GERMAN IMPERIAL GUARDS DECIMATED AT VERDUN

Censor Tightens On News From Mexico

WASHINGTON, March 16.—At Torreon, Mex., the American Consul has turned the United States Consulate over to the British Vice-Consul. More than forty Americans are waiting there to leave on the train which has been held up for a day by a wreck.

State Department officials are puzzled by the departure of Consul Williams from Torreon. They have given him no instructions to leave.

Secretary of War Baker was silent to-day. The department had heard nothing of the rumored blowing up of an American troop train nor of any important military development south of the border.

A Villista band dashed into New Mexico last night and looted homes in the outskirts of Hachita, according to reports to the El Paso and South western Railway to-day.

"Somewhere in Mexico," will be the most overworked date line in American newspapers from to-day and until "Pancho" Villa is taken. Censorship is tight.

The Senate to-day approved unanimously the joint resolution adopted by the House to bring the mobile army up to its full strength, which would add about 20,000 men to the present establishment, making it 100,000.

Easy Way to Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off next morning flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or so, with all its defects. No bleach could so effectually remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No pain or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.

In case of wrinkles which sink beneath the outer skin, a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel, makes a face bath which is wonderfully effective.

Canada to Be Consulted on Commercial Treaties Between Britain and Her Allies—Brief Despatches

LONDON, March 18.—Three British airmen were killed while making experimental flights.

LONDON, March 18.—Canada will be consulted on commercial treaties between Britain and her allies.

PETROGRAD, March 18.— Russian pursuit continues. A town on Euphrates, sixty miles west of Erzerum, has been occupied.

VIENNA, March 18.—Youths of 18 are called to the Austrian colours.

LONDON, March 18.—Von Triptiz was forced out by Hamburg-American head opposed to the submarine policy.

LONDON, March 18. — Lloyds are certain peace will come during this year.

PARIS, March 18.—The German Imperial Guards were decimated in the last desperate attacks at Verdun. No infantry attempts were made yesterday by the enemy.

Few Inventions of Real Use in War

Out of Nine Thousand Only Three Hundred and Seventeen Accepted.

PARIS, March 18.—During the first year that the war inventions committee was in operation, from August, 1914, to November, 1915, it examined 9,683 inventions, according to details given to the budget committee of the Chamber of Deputies by Prof. Paul Painleve, Minister of Public Instruction and Inventions, concerning national defence.

Of the 9,000 odd inventions, 317 were accepted. One hundred and thirty-two were either incomplete or were merely an adaptation of existing devices to military purposes.

The remaining 185, however, were of real use for national defence purposes.

If the flatirons are to be put away for some time, they should be rubbed on the bottom, when slightly warm, with a mixture of vaseline and sweet oil.

The Internal Situation In Bulgaria Is Critical Civil Revolution Feared

The Populace is Growing Restless---German Reichstag Broke Up in Disorder When a Socialist Member Declared Germany Started Present War--Forty-four German Ships Have Been Seized by the Brazilian Government

LATE WAR DESPATCHES

ROME, March 18.—The internal situation in Bulgaria is critical. A military revolt or civil revolution is feared. It is rumoured that attempts have been made on the life of King Ferdinand.

COPENHAGEN, March 18.—Couriers report that the German Reichstag broke up in disorder when the Socialist Leibnecht declared Germany started present war.

LONDON, March 18.—The Dutch liner Tubantia was at anchor fully lighted and couldn't have struck a mine, says Lord Cecil. All evidence shows that the steamer was torpedoed.

LONDON, March 18.—Forty-four German ships have been seized by the Brazilian Government. The ships were interned at the outbreak of the war.

LONDON, March 18.—A Rome despatch says a revolt si imminent in Bulgaria. The populace is growing restless.

BERLIN, March 18.—The War Office reports six mine explosions by the British near Loos with artillery duels in the Meuse region.

LONDON, March 18.—A number of bombs were discovered under the Bulgarian Royal Palace at Sofia, says a Rome despatch. Several arrests have been made.

PARIS, March 18.—The French Chamber has passed a bill for war credits for the second quarter. The Finance Minister says France will soon be spending eighteen million dollars daily.

PARIS, March 18.—The Minister of Finance says England is spending twenty million dollars daily on the war. The German offensive is because Germany realizes the necessity of success of some sort.

Plundering Arabs Carry On Guerilla Warfare But Melt Away Before Cavalry Charge

Mirages Deceive British in Mesopotamia---Difficult to Tell if Enemy is Horse or Fort or to Make an Estimate of Their Numbers.

LONDON, March 18.—Edmund Candler, in the Daily News, gives an interesting account of the hordes of Arab cavalry which swarm on the flanks of the British columns in Mesopotamia. He says:

"The mobility of the Arab cavalry, who ride light and are unsparing of their horses, is something outside experience. On approaching a Turkish position to reconnoitre, our scouts will often see a horde of Arabs emerge from the dark masses and spread in a fan-like movement over the whole horizon. These irregulars are eternally swooping about for no apparent reason. Drop a shell in front of them and they will swerve like a flight of steal, make a wide detour at full gallop and appear on the other flank.

"The atmosphere is most deceptive, and in the haze of mirage it is difficult to tell if the enemy are horse or fort, or to make an estimate of their numbers. Everything is magnified. A low-lying mud village becomes a fort with walls twenty feet high, a group of donkeys, a palm grove. Camels appear on a near horizon like huge dissipated compasses. There is not a cavalry regiment with the force which has not at some time or other mistaken sheep for infantry.

CAVALRY ESSENTIAL.

"In no theatre of the war is our cavalry so essential, for the Arabs make up a kind of irregular army for the Turk. They are always hovering on our flanks ready to take advantage of any accident or confusion by the way. And they follow like jackals in our rear. Two jibbing ponies in a Jaipur transport cart had to be invoked and the cart abandoned. The Arabs were down on it before the rearguard had passed on eight hundred yards. After this the non-descript horde closed in emboldened by the loot. They are frankly plunderers, and murder is merely a preliminary to pillage.

"Nominally the Arabs are fighting for the Turk, but they are the most uncomfortable allies. Their sympathies are but skin-deep, and they turn on their friends and murder and loot them, too, if opportunity delivers them into their hands. The Turks use them, but put no trust in them.

"The Arabs, of course, melt away whenever our cavalry charge. We can never get in among them. They are light and carry little kit, and seem to be independent of supplies. Their horses look thin and poor, but are hard and well fed, and they don't mind using them up.

THEIR TACTICS.

"Our chargers are handicapped with their six stone of accoutrement. The Arab horseman has his bag of dates, a small ration of grain for his horse, and nothing else except his arm and ammunition. These are of no regular pattern—a rifle always, a dagger or sword, or both, waist belt and bandolier of ammunition, and, occasionally, a lance.

"They fire from the saddle for choice, and employ no dismounting tactics. Each man holds his own horse, and stands or kneels firing. Their tactics are always to surround a smaller force, shoot the horses and close in; or to lead our cavalry on to an infantry ambuscade. They fear ambuscades themselves, and are chary of following us up. They are naturally more formidable in a retirement, when they wait until our cavalry are mounting, and get in their fire before they take up another position.

"They will only attack small bodies when the odds are five or six to one. They have cut up a patrol or two, but have never got in on a troop squadron, much less on a regiment, and are not encouraged by their superior numbers, which are, indeed, discounted by our guns.

BEATEN IN BATTLE.

"March 3, in the skirmish near Shaiba, is, I think, the only occasion on which they have charged. They believed they had taken us in an ambuscade and at a disadvantage in the deep mud. We were 450 cavalry, with two sections of horse artillery, and vastly outnumbered. We had no time to close in ranks and crumple them up, but wheeled on to them in extended order. We were interlocked. For a minute it was sword and lance. Then they gave. As they retired they came under our infantry fire, which did bloody execution. It was the best fight they have put up."

War Costly To the Neutrals

Holland and Switzerland Expend Millions Due to Hostilities.

LONDON, March 17.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from The Hague says the Second Chamber of the Dutch Parliament adopted to-day without division a war loan bill for 125,000,000 gulden, ($50,000,000).

BERNE, March 17, (via Paris) The expense of the Swiss mobilization up to the end of February amounted to about $80,000,000, including extraordinary expenditures, according to an announcement made to-day to the National Council by M. Motta, head of the Department of Finance.

MOTHER! DON'T TAKE CHANCES IF CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Clean Little Liver and Bowels

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

Kidney Trouble
Since Childhood
3 Boxes of Gin Pills

"Harcourt, N.B.

"I was troubled with my kidneys from childhood and spent a large amount of money with doctors trying to get cured, but I kept getting worse, finally I was in bed. A friend of mine advised me to try Gin Pills. I procured a box and by the time I had taken them I was out of bed and walking around. Two more boxes cured me completely and I have not been troubled with my kidneys since.

"I recommend Gin Pills with all my heart to anyone suffering with kidney trouble or sore back, for I think they saved my life. Signed, ANDREW L. CAIL."

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

You may not realize you have Kidney trouble, but these symptoms will tell you. Do you suffer from Rheumatism?—you need Gin Pills. Do you have pains in the back—lame back? Gin Pills drive them away. Is your urine highly colored?—does it burn? Gin Pills quickly bring relief, no matter how long-standing the trouble. 50c. a box at your dealer's, or $2.50 for 6 boxes.

HEBREW FEAST ON MARCH THE 19TH

Purim, a minor feast in the Jewish calendar, falls this year on the 19th day of March. The reading of the Book of Esther from a parchment scroll on that day constitutes the principal feautre in the Synagog service. The feast recalls the deliverance of the Jews of Persia through the intervention of Queen Esther and her kinsman Mordecai from a threatened massacre planned by Haman, the king's vizier. In the words of the Book of Esther it commemorates "the day wherein the Jews had rest from their enemies and the month which was turned unto them from sorrow to gladness and from mourning unto a good day." It was decreed that the day be observed in a joyous spirit that finds expression in sending portions to one another and gifts to the poor. (Esther Chap. 9, verse 20).

The feast bears the name of "Purim," because it is recorded that Haman the arch enemy of the Jews sought to fix the day of their destruction by casting "Pur" which, according to a popular etymology given in the Book of Esther, means "Lots." The feast is more social in character than religious. It does not require cessation from labour or any special religious ceremony other than the reading of the Book of Esther and the reciting of a few special prayers inspired by the event commemorated.

In former times the celebration in some places partook of the nature of a carnival. At present the Story of the Book of Esther is not unfrequently presented in dramatized form. The injunction to remember the poor was and is observed faithfully. During the centuries of persecution the feast of Purim was quite popular, due, perhaps, to the fact that the story of deliverance from the plottings of the tyrants, which the day recalled, brought hope of a similar deliverance from the evil designs of existing Hamans.

Have Fallen in the Fighting at Verdun

Brandenburg Regiment Lost Six Lieutenants and One Ensign.

BERLIN, via London, March 18.—Further confirmation of the report that the German losses in the capture of Douaumont, north-east of Verdun, were not excessive is found in the regimental memorial to the dead of the Brandenburg regiment appearing in the German newspapers.

The memorial is signed by the regimental commander, who gives the names of six lieutenants and one ensign as having fallen in the fighting before Verdun.

When washing blouses or any garments that have snap-fasteners on them, press the studs together before putting them through the wringer. If this is done the fasteners will come out quite uninjured.

Brass curtain rings that have been neglected may be cleaned by soaking them in paraffin for twenty-four hours and then polishing with ordinary brass paste. They will look like new.

WATCH SORE THROATS

because swollen glands or inflamed membranes often affect other tissues and lung trouble easily follows.

As Nature's corrector of throat troubles the pure cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is speedily converted into germ-resisting tissue; its tested glycerine is curative and healing, while this wholesome emulsion relieves the trouble and upbuilds the forces to resist tubercular germs and avert the weakening influence which usually follows.

If any member of your family has a tender throat, get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion to-day. Physicians prescribe it to avert throat troubles, overcome bronchial disorders and strengthen the lungs. No harmful drugs. Always insist on Scott's.

HOW FAT FOLKS MAY BECOME THIN

By Elizabeth Thomas.

Perhaps you are suddenly becoming stout, or it may be that you have been putting on weight for years. In either case the cause is the same—lack of oxygen carrying power of the blood. This trouble occurs in adults of both sexes and all ages, but it may be overcome very easily and without any of the privations that most people imagine necessary to reduce their weight.

Simply go to your druggist and get some oil of orilene capsules. Take one after each meal and one before going to bed. Weigh yourself so as to know just how fast you are losing weight. Wonderful results have been accomplished by this inexpensive recipe, but be sure to get the genuine oil of orilene in capsule form. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Any large druggist can supply you, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address: D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 2240, Montreal, Canada.

Hanel Sentenced to Die in Sing Sing

Justice Crane Gets Letter in Behalf of Butler Who Murdered His Woman Employer.

NEW YORK, March 17—Joseph Hanel, convicted of the murder in her home of Mrs. Julia Heilner, of No. 217 Albemarle Road, Flatbush hard his death sentence yesterday from Justice Crane in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn. He was sentenced to be put to death in Sing Sing in the week beginning April 4. Hanel preserved a stoical demeanor through the short proceedings, but after he had given his pedigree and was being led away he broke down and wept.

Just before sentence was imposed, Edmund H. Driggs, counsel for Hanel, handed to Justice Crane, a letter, which he said was from a man in Washington. Mr. Driggs said he submitted the letter at his client's request. Hanel had worked for the man and the latter gave him a good character.

"I have already received a letter from this gentleman," Justice Crane said, speaking to Hanel. He enclosed the letter that you wrote him and spoke highly of you, but I am afraid he was not familiar with your previous record."

Hanel said he is thirty-six years old; was born in Austria; home in Martinsburg, Md.; unmarried, temperate and was once convicted of larceny.

The daily meals should be set with as much care for one member of the household as for the entire family else the servants will grow careless.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

"Why should we be driven out of the place we have made our home?" she cried, yielding suddenly to the overwhelming demand for a confidant. "My mother has the wide world to choose from. Why should she settle in Pont Aven? I am sorry for her, and she is very lovable and gracious; but no power on earth can part you and me, Dad. Oh, I have been so miserable during these wretched days! I have had the wildest, maddest thoughts. If only she had not made a new life so impossible! She, my mother, another man's wife!"

The sheer necessity of calming the girl's hysterical outburst imposed a restraint on Ingersoll he was far from feeling. "We need not contemplate heroic measures to-day, at any rate," he soothed her. "Mrs. Carmac's present mood supplies no warranty of her actions next week or next month. Though she may seem to have recovered from the strain of the wreck, probably she is still very shaken and low-spirited. That phase will pass. She has many interests elsewhere—and few here. Moreover, you know me too well to believe that I would forbid you ever to hear from or see her again. That would be foolish, criminal. You are a grown woman now, Yvonne. Life has revealed some of its riddles, bared some of its brutal crudities. I can never forget, strive as I might, that you have met your mother. Let us bide a wee, Sweetheart. Let us wait till you and your mother have discussed an awkward situation openly. I gathered from your letters that she is saddened and disillusioned, and I shall be slow to believe that she really contemplates a permanent residence in Pont Aven. She and I cannot dwell in the same small village. If she stays, I go. Why, then, should she wish to bury herself alive here?"

Yvonne dried her eyes. "I'm so glad I brought you back, Dad," she said more cheerfully. "It is such a relief to hear you tackling a problem that has nearly driven me crazy. You see, I had no one to talk to. I couldn't confide in Lorry; though I imagine he guesses the truth——"

"Why do you think that?" broke in Ingersoll quickly.

"It seems that some days ago he overheard a conversation between Captain Popple and Mr. Raymond, Mr. Carmac's secretary, the man whose arm was injured. He was writing in the old dining room at Julia's, and heard voices outside. At first he paid no heed; but some reference to an attempt at salvage on the wreck appeared to upset Mr. Raymond very considerably. Then, when Mr. Raymond became calmer, he led the talk round to us—to our history, I mean. Some lady had given Captain Popple certain details picked up from village gossips. The captain—quite innocently, Lorry thought—corrected a silly story which Mr. Raymond had got from Peridot, and Mr. Raymond grew quite excited. Lorry has seen Peridot, and finds that Mr. Raymond actually went to his cottage and questioned him—about us. Peridot told him some outrageous fibs——"

"He would," said Ingersoll, with a grim smile.

"Well, Lorry is such a loyal soul that he didn't hesitate to warn Mr. Raymond very plainly that he must mind his own business."

"Exactly what one might expect from Lorry too."

"I don't attach much weight to Mr. Raymond's prying, nor does Mrs. Carmac. I told her. Was that right?"

"Quite right."

"But I couldn't help seeing that Larry must have formed some theory of his own, or he would never have interfered."

"If Lorry were our only bugbear, our troubles would be light. Have you met this Raymond?"

"Oh, yes. Often. He comes to Mrs. Carmac daily for orders; though she or I have to write letters and telegrams, as he can only print laboriously with his left hand."

"Have you seen a good deal of Rupert Fosdyke?"

Now Yvonne had not mentioned Fosdyke's name in her letters. She did not like him. Indeed, she mistrusted him from the moment of their first meeting, when the gallant Rupert favoured her with a glance of surprised admiration; which, however, faded into a covert scrutiny on hearing that she was Mrs. Carmac's niece.

Her sentiments toward this newfound "cousin" had developed speedily from passive indifference into active resentment of his ways. Of course there was nothing in Pont Aven to interest an ultra "man about town"; so Fosdyke took to escorting Yvonne from the hotel to Mere Pitou's cottage. At first she yielded out of politeness. When the short promenade became an established custom, and Fosdyke even called for her at the hours she might be expected to visit her mother, she was at a loss to know how to get rid of him. She thought first of Tollemache; but instinct told her that he and Fosdyke would mingle as amicably as fire and oil, and with similar results. Then she sought the assistance of Madeleine Demoret, and thereby added a new burden to an already heavy load; for the village girl became straightway infatuated about the handsome stranger, and Fosdyke, who spoke French fluently, took malicious pleasure in annoying the pretty prude, as he classed Yvonne, by flirting with Madeleine.

No wonder, therefore, that the girl should have longed for her father's company and protection; though she looked at him now with an air of bewilderment.

"You know something of him, then?" she said, searching the worn face with anxious eyes.

"I know his name. I attended his mother's wedding. Indeed, why trouble to conceal the fact that it was then I first saw your mother? She was a bridesmaid, a girl of fourteen, and already notable as a musical prodigy. I did not meet her again for six years, when her voice had given way, and she began to dabble in art. Mr. and Mrs. Fosdyke brought their little son to our wedding. He was an extraordinarily pretty child, and almost attracted more attention than the bride."

Ingersoll spoke in the tone of one who was recalling the past without pain; but his glance followed the last stragglers of the procession to Nizon,—Nizon, with its finely carved Calvery, and its high-perched stone cross bearing the tortured body of the Christ.

"Father dear," cried Yvonne impulsively, "I have made up my mind. You are powerless; but I can act. I will not have you harrowed and wounded at every turn. You and I, together with Lorry and Peridot, saved my mother's life. She must repay us by the only means she possesses,—by conferring the freedom of our own small Paradise."

"Yvonne," he sighed, "some day soon you will be marrying."

Whereat the girl almost laughed. "No matter what happens, that is the last thing I should dream of doing," she said.

"But why? It is the one thing that a girl of your age should have mainly in mind. Even in this small community, you might find a most excellent and chivalric husband——"

"Meaning Lorry," said Yvonne, without hesitation.

"But—I don't care for Lorry — in that way."

"Has he ever asked you?"

"No. Once or twice, perhaps, he has hinted that Barkis was willing. The last time was no later than the day of the wreck."

"And what did you say?"

"I was nearly angry with him."

"You would prefer him, I suppose, to a man of the Rupert Fosdyke type?"

"I loathe the sight of Rupert Fosdyke!"

"How has he offended you?"

"In no way that I can put into words. He is very courteous, and quite a clever talker, and he tries to make every woman he meets believe that she is the one creature on earth he adores."

"Then poor Lorry, with his chummy slang and abounding good conceit with himself and all the world,—excepting this Mr. Raymond, I take it,—compares but indifferently with the smooth-spoken Rupert?"

"Lorry! He's a man! He's worth a million Fosdykes!"

Ingersoll, well pleased, adopted the sound policy of leaving well enough alone. "Still, you have given me no specific reason for your dislike of Fosdyke," he persisted.

"You read my mind too plainly, Dad," she protested, smiling vexedly. "I didn't mean to tell you, hoping matters would adjust themselves; as, indeed, they may do now, if these invaders withdraw. But Madeleine has quite lost her head over him."

"Madeleine Demoret!" Ingersoll was evidently amazed, as well he might be, seeing that Breton maids are less approachable by strangers than the girls of almost any other nationality.

"Yes, and the worst thing is that I am to blame."

"But how can that be possible?"

"Mr. Fosdyke arrived here last Saturday, and of course I was introduced to him as Mrs. Carmac's niece. The necessity for any such pretense is rather hateful, and he did not render it more acceptable by claiming me as a cousin. Really, Dad, with the slightest encouragement on my part, he would have kissed me!"

"Shocking!" said Ingersoll.

"Father dear, don't make fun of me. His cousinly kiss would have burnt my cheek."

"I can't profess fierce indignation because a young man tried to seize a good opportunity to kiss a pretty young woman."

"Well, he didn't dare make the attempt," declared Yvonne spiritedly. "He realized at once that I would have slapped his face soundly for his pains."

"But are you serious about Madeleine? I mean, rather, do you think she is really enamored of him, or merely showing off for Peridot's benefit?"

"So serious that I am profoundly thankful the settled weather has kept Peridot at sea."

"Do they meet frequently?"

"I hate suspecting people, Dad; so I can only say that I don't know. Let us get away from all this worry for a day. Send Barbe for Lorry, and ask him to déjeuner. Then the three of us will walk by the Belon road to Moelan, and have tea at the inn. It will do us a heap of good."

Mrs. Carmac, after a burst of hysterical sobbing which her nephew tried to stop by a few conventional words of sympathy, subsided into even more exasperating silence as the carriage rolled back from Nizon. Fosdyke, being an egotist, did not exert himself to console her; he was, indeed, profoundly relieved when the wretched journey came to an end. He helped his aunt to alight but did not attempt to escort her into the annex. Instead he waited until the second carriage drove up, and Bennett appeared.

"Am I wanted for any formalities?" he inquired offhandedly.

"Not at present, Mr. Fosdyke," was the quiet answer.

"Isn't it customary that the will should be read after the funeral?"

"Yes, if it is available."

"Surely my uncle did not die intestate?" The question was shot out with a fiery eagerness that showed how joyfully any indication of the absence of a will would have been received.

"No," said Bennett, after a pause. "Mr. Carmac's will, in duplicate, is lodged in my office and at his bank. I did not bring my copy, as I had no reason to believe that events would shape themselves as they have done. But a confidential clerk is on the way with the document. He telegraphed from St. Malo this morning that he had caught a train that should reach Pont Aven about half past four this afternoon. At five o'clock, if convenient to you, I suggest that we meet in Mrs. Carmac's rooms."

Then Fosdyke knew that the gray-haired lawyer had been playing with him; but he only said airily, "Such distractions as seem to flourish in Pont Aven will probably leave me at liberty about the time you name, Mr. Bennett."

The lawyer nodded, kept a stiff upper lip, and followed Mrs. Carmac.

"The old fox!" growled Fosdyke savagely, careless who heard him. "I'll bet good money he has feathered his own nest all right!"

The mayor, the doctor, and the notary, who had descended close at hand, wondered what had put this elegant young gentleman into a temper. Raymond and Popple understood well enough, but said nothing.

"I suppose you ought to invite these local gentlemen to take a glass of wine?" suggested the secretary.

"I'll see them boiled first'" was the amiable answer.

Then Raymond, in his slow French, gave the invitation on his own behalf; but the Pont Aven men were not slow-witted, and courteously excused their further attendance.

"I've a notion that a gargle of some sort wouldn't come amiss," observed Popple thoughtfully.

"Sorry," he said, "but our chat must be postponed. Mrs. Carmac would be exceedingly annoyed if she heard that we were inhospitable. You ought not to have spoken the way you did before those French gentlemen. It was distinctly bad form."

If a timid hare coursed by a greyhound were suddenly to turn and admonish its pursuer, the dog would hardly be more surprised than Fosdyke when his queer-looking little secretary dared to chide him. He was so completely taken aback that he laughed.

"I guess you're right," he said. "Order a bottle of champagne. I'll ask those fellows to dinner, and do them well. Then they'll forgive me. Lead on, Macduff' And cursed be he who first cries "Hold! Enough.'"

Fosdyke's changed mood was distinctly more agreeable. Popple, for one, deemed him a rather peppery young gentleman, but none the worse because he spoke out freely.

HEADACHE?

Thousands of persons who have never known a day's sickness in any other form are subject to frequent attacks of Headache that almost drive them mad.

Whatever the nature may be and the cause, the immediate condition that produces the pain is a congestion or filling up of the blood vessels of the brain with blood, thus causing a pressure on the brain cells and nerve filaments.

In treating all forms of Headache the first thing to do is to relieve the congestion of the blood vessels of the brain. Abbey's Effervescent Salt in laxative doses does this promptly.
Sold everywhere at 25c. and 60c.

Full blooded people who are subject to frequent attacks of Headache can be entirely relieved by taking laxative doses of the Salt every morning. Headaches from Indigestion and Biliousness are also entirely banished by continuing the use of the Salt until the normal action of the liver and stomach is restored.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S MIDDY BLOUSE.

By Anabel Worthington.

The middy blouse seems to take a new lease of life with each succeeding season. Even through the last winter it remained in vogue for home wear and appeared in brightly colored corduroys and velveteen. For spring it will be made of washable corduroy, in linen, duck and plain colored taffetas and it probably will appear also in a number of the more substantial wash materials of simpler quality. It is much liked in plain serge.

The model, as shown in our illustration, is made with a plain front and back, but with a long cut from the edge of the neck in front. This opening is laced when once the garment is on and it is made for the purpose of widening the neck opening so that the blouse can be slipped over the head. The outline of the neck is trimmed with a wide sailor collar.

A very low shoulder line is used and to this is joined the sleeve, which may be made full length or shorter, as preferred. When long it is gathered into a band cuff, but when short a turn-back cuff is used and this is furnished with the pattern.

The blouse hangs very low on the hips and is made with the side seams open for a few inches above the hem. These may be left loose or laced together, as preferred. A band of trimming material edges the lower edge of the garment.

Nothing is nicer than one of these blouses for home wear in warm weather and it can be made of linen or of something much more sheer. They are worn with skirts of matching material for morning wear.

The blouse pattern, No. 7,605, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 36 inch contrasting goods to trim.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 5 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Preparedness: The subject is one which should be approached from all angles. I have already discussed some phases of it. I want to emphasize a feature that has been troubling the producers and consumers of food stuffs, and again call attention to the work of the Department of Agriculture at Washington. We are actually spending millions of dollars in that department, and if you will have your name put upon the mailing list the department will send to you the monthly crop reports as well as various bulletins that are available for free distribution. The bulletins are of actual cash value to both producers and consumers of food stuff, and if the producers were as well organized as the dealers, the monthly reports would be of tremendous value, but as long as they are not and are not likely to be for some years to come, then the value of these reports are for the dealers.

Now, as a matter of fact the consumers of meat products, including hogs, cattle, sheep and chickens, are paying from 25 per cent. to 100 per cent. more than they were ten years ago, and from 50 per cent. to 200 per cent. more than twenty years ago.

The monthly crop report sent out January 31, 1916, shows that the level of prices paid to producers in the last five years have actually decreased two per cent. The farmers are actually receiving 5¾ per cent. less to-day than they were one year ago.

Those of us who buy meats in the cities know from sad experience that we are paying more than we did a year ago. The butcher tells us it is due to the war in Europe, that the packers are getting fancy prices for war rations, and that they (the butchers) are losing money.

The actual increase of price level paid to the farmers on all kinds of principle crops is only 1.4 per cent. during the past eight years. If you wish to compare the retail selling prices with those of eight years ago, consult the advertisement of special prices published in newspapers of eight years ago with the bargain prices of to-day. When doing so keep in mind the fact that you are comparing special advertised bargains, which are as a rule from 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. less than most people pay.

It seems to me that the greatest and best work of the Agricultural Department is in ways and means of distribution, from the producer to the consumer, and in a more extensive propaganda of home preparation of products, making the products of the farm ready for the table.

The farmer that never sells hay or grain is universally better off than the one that does. All hay, fodder, and grain should be consumed on the farm. Let it walk to market in the form of hogs, cattle, sheep and poultry, or, better still, in the finished product. Hogs should go always in the form of hams, shoulders, bacon, spare ribs, sausage, etc. Many fruits and vegetables are far and away better and more wholesome when canned immediately after coming from the garden, and the community canning factories should become a permanent and profitable part of farming.

When the problem of distribution is settled in a practical manner the producer should receive much more for his crop, and the consumer should pay less. In America every man is his own king. It is our country, and we must be ready at all times to defend it. I believe that the Department of Agriculture should at once, through a system of storage and farm credits, prepare to care for the surplus of bumper crops so that when the lean years come the people may have plenty. The surplus could always be available in case the producers were called upon to defend their homes.

Some might call this kind of talk a step toward paternalism. Instead, it is simply co-operation. We, the people, find through our employers at Washington, that we have a tremendous surplus of a certain crop. The demand is for (to illustrate) 75 pounds, but we have producer 100 pounds. Twenty farmers have five pounds each to sell: there are only 15 buyers: they want 5 pounds each. The buyers, the middlemen, know how much the farmers have and how much is required. He at once gets the farmers to cut prices. Those that must have money cut it below the cost of production. The dealer buys 75 pounds at that price, and the farmers lose the other 25 pounds. In some cases, the dealers buy the surplus at the low price and store it for use the next season, knowing well that the 20 farmers will refuse to grow so much of an unprofitable crop. The following season only 50 pounds surplus is for sale, and the price is boosted "out of sight." Then the dealer brings out his 25 pounds stored from the previous crop, and cashes it at a big price.

With co-operation or Government control of storage and credits the proper level of prices to consumers and profits of production could be readily maintained to the advantage of the people.

SPORT CLOTHES FROM DAWN TILL DUSK

An Economical and Comfortable Notion for Summer

Bright Colours Chic and Harmonious

NEW YORK, March 18.—If all predictions prove true the coming summer should be a most economical one for the family with daughters. Fashion says: "Sport clothes from dawn till dusk, and after dark, as simple or as elaborate an evening frock as the fancy demands." Besides being decidedly practical and money-saving, this regime should be comforting and comfortable to a degree; just stop for a moment and consider how many puzzled moments will be saved, and how many times one will be spared that eternal question, "what shall I wear to-day?" A good supply of smart linen blouses, a sport skirt or two, with a chic sport coat, and one's wardrobe troubles are solved during daylight hours; after, it is a simple matter to select a dainty dance or dinner dress of net, or one of the exquisite summer fabrics now in favour, and don it in perfect peace.

One must wonder at the sudden enthusiasm for out-of-door sports being shown by the American girl this season; we have been gradually coming to it, but this year it looks as if we were one and all to take up sport for all that it is worth, or at least to look as if we adored tennis, golf, boating, swimming, and the numberless other excuses for getting out-of-doors.

Some Charming Effects.

We have been gradually accustoming ourselves to the vivid reds, yellows, greens, and the various startling plaids and stripes which blend so effectively and harmoniously with the blue skies, and green grass of the summer fields, the mountains and the shore, where some of us are fortunate enough to dream the summer through, and others are privileged to spend a playtime week or two.

Among the smartest of the new sport suits are many of silk jersey, or, as it is perhaps more generally known, Italian silk. These suits are often made with coat of a plain colour, emerald green, for instance, worn with a smart, short skirt of black and white stripes. White or cream serge too, is a favourite, combined with coat of scarlet, emerald, or bright blue. The coat is usually cuffed, collared and belted with the material of the skirt. Sometimes one sees a coat of stripes with skirt of uplain material. The silk jersey coats and sport coats of other materials will be worn with all types of frock this summer; for in spite of the popularity of the plain blouse and skirt, there are any number of attractive tub frocks being shown just now, and I am quite sure that they will be worn quite as much as in seasons past, more perhaps, as they are more fascinating than for many a year. This is another practical and economical notion.

Charming Sport Blouses.

Simplicity of cut, combined with the daintiest possible of linen, voile, organdy, or tub silk is the recipe for the most popular of the summer blouses, to wear with tailored suit, sport coat, or separate skirt.

WHEN BABY IS ILL

When baby is ill no other medicine will so quickly relieve him as will Baby's Own Tablets. They go right to the root of most childhood ailments—those derangements of the stomach and bowels which cause difficult teething, colds, constipation, vomiting and simple fevers. They cleanse the bowels and sweeten the stomach and drive out all cause of illness. Concerning them, Mrs. Wm. CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

HOME MANAGEMENT.

The Home Circle Department of your paper is of special interest to us and I believe to many others. It certainly lightens the hearts and brightens all homes it enters.

I believe, if properly managed, a lady can enjoy many departments in life, and the variety makes life bright, and that brightness is like sunshine to all who comes within its influence. By departments I mean all the necessary things that make the home life perfect.

After years of experience and observation I am convinced that the qualities most essential for the happiness of a home are cheerfulness, correct management in the financial part, and, above all, system. But the latter is not like the garments, to be taken off and put on at will. All the advice in the world will not produce it. Daughters must be trained from their earliest infancy to be orderly and systematic. From the playthings put away, comes the next step of helping mamma dust and make the rooms look so nice and inviting, then later on, comes the kitchen work—having a place for everything in the pantry, the rows of dishes and cans and tinware, all graduating down from large to small, not alone having system in the arrangement of things, but in meals, and certain days to do certain work, always being careful not to "slop over" or make unnecessary work.

Follow this rule and you are no longer a drudge but will have leisure to enjoy recreation in whatever way may dictate, and, most of all, to keep up the music, so much enjoyed in girlhood days.

We may well ask what life is and what it might be to the thousands of women all over the land, but to all the dear sisters who are striving for a higher attainment, I send them greetings of love.

THE COMPANY YOU KEEP.

A person is known by the company he keeps, and frequently—as the humorist puts it — by the company he keeps out of.

Be careful in choosing your associates. Never make friends—acquaintances would perhaps be the better word — with those whose language, habits or general conduct you would be ashamed to see and hear in your own home. If you do you are sure to be the sufferer. The person of low tastes and conduct is much less likely to be benefited by your superior ways than you are to be degraded to his level. Such, unfortunately, is the law of nature. Let a drop of milk fall into a pail of water. It is lost in a moment. But let fall a drop of black ink into the same water, and its presence will soon be noticeable. A rotton apple will finally taint a whole barrelful of sound fruit, but who would think of putting a good apple into a barrel of decayed fruit for the purpose of making them sound again. This does not mean that virtue has no leavening influence, but simply that it is easier to go down hill than up.

So do not keep questionable company. If you cannot find the right kind of associates, the kind who will make you better and nobler, be sufficient unto yourself. Live with your books and the worthies of all time, who are so willing to give you through their pages a friendship greater and benigner than that of kings.

DON'T FOR WIVES.

Don't expect impossibilities from your husband.

Don't snub him in the presence of strangers.

Don't henpeck him just because you know he is quiet and will stand it.

Don't treat him as if you had come down off a pedestal to marry him.

Don't worry him to death because you can't have your dearest wish granted.

Don't run to your mother with all his faults, rather keep his good qualities to the light and hide his failures.

Don't think that, now you are married, he doesn't care whether you curl your hair or not.

Don't expect him to be amiable with a breakfast of tough steak, greasy potatoes, cold rolls and muddy coffee.

Don't sit up waiting for your husband. Go to bed; get all the sleep you can. In the morning when you are looking and feeling the best, if you have anything to say, say it; nine chances out of ten you will win.

FRANCE HAILS AS HERO ONE OF HER BRAVEST AIR FIGHTERS

George Guynemer, Successor to Pegoud, Garros and Guilbert, Is Called "Fokker Killer," and His Work Attracts Attention of Country—Skill in Aerial Strategy Makes Him Dangerous Opponent.

(Special Dispatch.)

PARIS, Saturday.

France has a new air hero in the person of George Guynemer, sergeant pilot. He has just had the rare distinction of being mentioned in the French official communication, and all France is talking of him and his exploits.

For the first time a machine mounted by a successful aviator has a popular name, for both Guynemer and his aeroplane are becoming household words, the latter being called "le vieux Charles." The hero is popularly known as the "Fokker Killer."

For brilliancy of action only three French pilots in the past have been compared with him, and they heretofore had been regarded as the three greatest fighting aviators in the world—Pegoud, Garros and Guilbert.

Many refer to the present hero as "the new Pegoud," but Guynemer has a style which is all his own, and he really has constituted himself in a class apart.

Guynemer is serving in the army as a volunteer. Strangely enough, he had the utmost difficulty in being admitted into the service. When he first presented himself he was rejected by the medical inspectors on the ground that he did not weigh enough; he was too tall for his weight.

Five successive times the young man then tried to enter the army, going to different parts of the country to present himself, and each time he was rejected. Finally he insisted on installing himself at the aviation grounds, and after showing his worth he was admitted into the army.

He is very boyish looking, and was twenty-one years old on last December 5. On board his monoplane he operates handed; he is both pilot and gun-of period he has performed the le and unprecedented feat of down six of the most formidable machines.

seven months Guynemer has passed private soldier to sergeant, has won military medal, has been made Knight of the Legion of Honor and has received the War Cross with four bars. Such an accumulation of honors for one soldier is unique in the annals of the present war.

The young man's duties have consisted in chasing enemy machines and in escorting French aeroplane squadrons on bombarding expeditions. A description of his latest exploit indicates his methods of operation.

While cruising up and down the German lines he noted a German machine which apparently had the intention of passing over into the French section. Rising a little, in order to hide himself from the view of the larger enemy machine which was coming up, he suddenly cut off the latter's line of retreat, and attacked the duel.

The German fought valiantly, but Guynemer, after firing a few shots, succeeded in placing a bullet in the gasoleine tank of the Fokker. An explosion occurred and flames surrounded the German machine.

Both pilot and observer rose up from their seats in an attitude of anguish and bewilderment. Their machine was slipping down from beneath them, a veritable funeral pyre, and Guynemer accompanied it until he saw it fall on the ground, a mass of ruins, at a point near Herbecourt.

George Guynemer is a Parisian. His father is engaged in the manufacturing business at Compiegne. When the war began the young man was studying in Paris and was living with his grandmother. The latter speaks with pride of her grandson, and any mention of his perilous exploits brings a smile of satisfaction to her face. To the reporters who interviewed her when the recent conspicuous honor was conferred on the boy she said:—

His Young Ambition.

"George is just twenty-one years of age, as he was born on Christmas Day—that is perhaps what has brought him good luck. When he succeeded in entering the army he was sent to the aviation school at Pau, where he was perfected in the profession which he had chosen.

"In this connection I can tell a little secret about him. George already had been following aviation work, unknown to his father. Some boys hope to be engine drivers or policemen when they grow up, but George for years had said he would be an aviator. His father did not wish to encourage him in his idea, but as he was living with me, I could not very well oppose his desires. I said nothing to his father and used to give George a little money to go to the aviation grounds.

"Since he became a soldier he comes to see me occasionally and tells me of his exploits. He never boasts and indeed he talks but little. I have to question him on the work he does and on the dangers that he runs, for, although I have the greatest confidence in him, I cannot at times help feeling a little anxious about him. He invariably says to me, 'Grandmother, it is very amusing; I just imagine that I am out with a gun and following up the game. Suddenly I shoot, the animal is struck and falls. Really, it is not at all difficult.'

"That is the way he tells the story. He is the son of soldiers. His great-grandfather received the Legion of Honor at twenty-three years of age. He took part in the campaigns in Spain and it was General Hugo, father of Victor Hugo, who decorated him.

"His grandfather, my husband, was decorated for his military services in Algeria, and my son, George's father, also was an officer. But George himself has been decorated youngest of all of them, and, would you believe it, he did not tell me of the fact.

The Legion of Honor.

"He came here one day and I looked at him closely, for my eyesight has become very poor. On the left side of his uniform in a confused way I noticed something. 'George,' I said, 'you have stained your uniform.'

"Very calmly he replied, 'Why no, grandmother, that is the Legion of Honor.'"

Thus the young man has been described by the person who knows him perhaps best of all.

The French newspapers for some time have been very anxious to obtain permission to mention the name of the new brilliant aviator, but this was forbidden, as the censorship does not allow the names of the aviators to be mentioned except in the rarest of cases. The citation in the official communication, however, opened the way for making George Guynemer known and honored throughout France.

A mention in orders of a brigade, a division, an army corps and of the entire army is cherished by the soldier as a succession of very high distinctions, but to attain to mention in what is called an "order of the nation" means that the military authorities consider the individual mentioned as heroic and as serviceable to the nation in the very highest degree.

Among the hundreds of brilliant aviators in the French service scores are men of the very highest qualities as pilots, fighters and observers. But once in a while a man emerges who has peculiar qualities that put him in a special class, qualities of initiative, extraordinary capacity for sudden and accurate decisions and a genius for strategic and tactical manoeuvres.

Such were Pegoud, who lost his life in a struggle of reckless bravery; Garros, who was taken prisoner by the Germans, and Gilbert, who, having been forced to come down inside Swiss territory, has been interned there as a prisoner.

Great Aviators in Captivity.

Garros is kept under such close watch in Germany that there is no prospect of his taking any further part in the war. Gilbert on August 21 last made his escape from Switzerland and reached Paris, but he was sent back by the French authorities, as there was a question of his having violated his parole in escaping.

How great the value of one man in the air service is considered, when that man is of exceptionally distinguished ability, was seen in the case of Gilbert, as the whole French nation regretted the fact that he had to be returned to internment.

He had written a letter to the commander in chief of the Swiss army formally notifying the latter that he was withdrawing his parole and would feel free to escape if he could. The letter was delivered in time to give the notification before Gilbert started for France, but was allowed to remain on the Swiss General's bureau for a considerable time before being opened, and in the interval Gilbert had slipped the guards.

On being returned he refused to engage his parole and on February 5 he again escaped from the military barracks where he was interned in Zurich. Accompanied by another French aviator, named Pary, he succeeded in getting aboard a train for Geneva, on board which ill French prisoners were being returned from Germany. The aviators, however, were recognised at the station at Olten and were obliged to return to their captivity.

The little monoplane which Guynemer mounts is of a type which the French censorship does not allow to be described in detail, but it is small and seems under the perfect control of the young aviator. Following the name which the French troops have given to it, "le vieux Charles," the British soldiers, who have already become acquainted with it, refer to it as "Old Charley."

"Der Alte Karl."

It is said that the German aviators themselves, by the peculiar process of intercommunication of information between adversary airmen, have learned the sobriquet of the machine and that they call it "der alte Karl." This is the first machine on any side which has been accorded a popular name by the soldiers.

It was stated that during the recent Zeppelin raid on Paris a very brilliant French aviator had gone up hastily and pursued the Zeppelin and attacked it at close quarters for an hour, during part of which time he was within thirty yards of the airship, and desisted from his attacks only when through lack of both ammunition and gasolene he was unable any longer to render service. It has been hinted that the aviator in question was Guynemer and permission was sought to announce the name, but the authorities would not consent.

Guynemer's special mission being the destruction of the Fokker machine, the new fighting monoplane which the Germans for a while had so successfully used, his exploits are said to have caused a great deal of alarm on the German side.

It was said that Fokker machines accompanied the Zeppelins which carried out the recent raid on English towns, but that they discreetly remained away when the Zeppelin shelled the city of Paris in the last days of January.

It is not therefore to be wondered at if Guynemer has already made for himself a place in the affections of the entire French nation, and if his personality is being eagerly studied and all records of his actions followed with interest.

Germany Calling Boys To Be Ready for "Next War"

Frank Admission of Teutons They Are Preparing for Another Conflict Is Warning to Allies Against Inconclusive Peace, Says French Writer.

(Special Dispatch.)

PARIS, Saturday.

Under the caption of "The Beast That Must Be Killed," A. Fits Maurice writes in the Paris Figaro of February 10:—

"We read in news despatches yesterday about a discussion in a committee of the Bavarian Diet on the subject of militarizing the German youth. The project does not concern Bavaria alone, but the whole German Empire, and it is the intention of the Imperial government to have it enacted into a law by the vote of the Reichstag. The aim is to place all young Germans who have attained the age of seventeen at the disposal of the military authorities. This is not a temporary measure, but is meant to be a law of statutory validity for an indefinite time after the war. One of the provisions applies to the higher schools, where half a day each week will be set aside for military instruction, a drill sergeant taking the place of the erudite professors.

"Germany, which has taken more than forty years to prepare for the present war, has recognized that even the 9,000,000 men it has been able to mobilize are not sufficient to assure it of victory. The German Empire has found itself compelled to summon to the colors youths who had not yet received any military training, and it is such an emergency that it now proposes to avoid if possible in the future. While all of us Allies carry on this war with the hope of its leading in the end to a durable peace, Germany already is thinking of a new war, which it will stir up by the same means as the one now raging. For Germany has a presentiment that even if it should emerge victorious from the present struggle it will not gain enough to satisfy its ambitions, to realise its dreams of world dominion.

"Did not the leader of the German agrarian party say a few days ago, when speaking of the necessity of an economic alliance with Austria, that from now on one should commence to furbish the arms for the next war and those to follow? And the German Empire actually is preparing for this. Its children are going to be made ready for mobilization as soon as they are strong enough to shoulder a gun.

"In this, then, the Germans don't deal treacherously with us. They let us know in advance what we will have to expect if we agree to make peace before having accomplished our unalterable purpose of definitely and completely crushing the military power of Germany, of destroying the Prussian military spirit, which has produced the Pan-Germanistic movement.

"They know in Berlin that their game has failed this time, and they already for a long time have been thinking of trying to conclude peace on the best conditions that may be obtainable. The time will come, no doubt, when they will be ready to accept, or perhaps to ask for, peace on any terms whatsoever. Who knows but that it may be from their side that some day will come the proposition to declare the war a 'draw,' as King Constantine of Greece expressed it, and that some kind neutral Power may offer its mediation for the re-establishment of peace on the basis of the 'status quo ante.'

"But, luckily for us, the Germans themselves in their eagerness of organising and zeal of prudent precaution have made us aware of the risk we would be running if we permitted ourselves to be caught in the trap. They tell us candidly that if we do not lay low the ferocious beast we will be devoured by it.

"This savage beast, German militarism, will be ready to recommence its depredations if we give it a chance to recover from the wounds we have inflicted on it. It won't suffice only to harass and wound it. It must be killed. One does not send a rabid dog to the pound. One puts it out of the way for good."

Lieutenant Commander Cookson Chops at Cable Turks Stretched Across River to Prevent His Advance Until, Wounded in Seven Places, He Has to Turn Back.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Saturday.

How Lieutenant Commander Edgar Christopher Cookson, in command of the British gunboat Comet, during the advance up the Tigris River, attempted single handed to cut a steel cable which the Turks had stretched across the river as an obstruction is vividly told by a letter which one of the crew wrote to his mother and which was recently published in the English newspapers. While trying to cut the cable the gallant commander was shot seven times and died soon after reaching the deck of his vessel again. For his gallantry he received the Victoria Cross.

In his letter the seaman explains that the Turks were heavily intrenched not far from Ali Gharbi. "During the time that we were bombarding them," he writes, "some of our troops and cavalry went inland to try to surround them. They nearly succeeded, but found the enemy a little too strong, though they captured 1,000 prisoners and about twenty guns. Just as it was getting dark our seaplane dropped on to the water alongside us and told Lieutenant Commander Cookson that the Turks were on the run.

"A little further up the river they had placed obstructions so that we could not pass without clearing them away, giving them time to get away. This turned out to be the liveliest time I have had since the fighting started. Commander Cookson decided to go up and clear this obstruction and then give chase to the Turks. It was very dark when we started off with the Shaitan and Sumana following.

"When we got around the head of land the Turks opened fire with rifles, but we steamed right up to the obstruction. The Turks were then close enough to throw hand bombs, but luckily none of them reached the deck of the ship. The obstruction turned out to be a big cable stretched across the river with dhows made fast to it. An attempt was made to sink the centre dhow with gunfire, but when this failed the commander ordered that we steam alongside of it.

"Commander Cookson, when he saw that the boat could not be sunk by firing, took an ax and leaped over the bows of the Comet onto the dhow. He chopped at the cable until he had to turn back, he was so badly wounded. He was shot in seven places, and when we dragged him back aboard his last words were, 'I am done. It is a failure. Return at full speed.' He never spoke afterward. We had six wounded, but none seriously.

"During that time we had not been silent. We fired at them with guns and rifles, and the Shaitan and the Sumana were also blazing away. Our troops ashore said it was a lovely sight to see the vessels with all their guns working. We must have frightened the Turks, because on going up again at daybreak after burying our officer we found that they had cleared out and retired further up the river. We steamed after them, and when we reached Kut-el-Amara we found the cavalry there. This is the first place to which the army has got before the navy. Subsequently we received orders to pursue the flying Turks and we forced the enemy to leave several dhows laden with stores, provisions and ammunition."

Bavarian Crown Prince Says British Are Untrained Troops

German Commander at Lille Expresses Pride in His Men, but Asserts Their Adversaries Lack Officers and Are Too Cautious.

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Saturday.

Herr Karl Rosner, a well known German writer, has just had an interesting interview with Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, who is in command of the German troops near Lille:—

"I cannot say too much in praise of my men," said the Crown Prince. "With these soldiers everything is made possible. Nothing is too much for them and no sacrifice too great. While they have accomplished much, there are still hard days before them. Our worst enemies now are not the French and the British over there in the trenches, but the cold and the floods. But even over these they have become masters."

When asked to express his opinion of the British troops the Crown Prince replied:—

"They are no longer the same men. We notice this more and more every day, and since they received such bloody heads during their last offensive at Lens they have become very cautious.

"They are handicapped, too, by a lack of competent officers; they lack leaders, and the men—well, most of them are raw troops and it will take a long time for them to be properly trained. Of course, the longer it takes the greater will it be to our advantage.

"Tell the world that we here are all cheerful and happy. One thing I particularly want to mention, that is, the bravery of our German women. While the men are here at the front their wives and sweethearts are constantly encouraging them with letters of cheer and good will. I have yet to hear of a single instance where one of the men has received any letter of complaint from his wife or sweetheart. This is a great stimulus to the men, who thereby stand ready to undertake any task. Just say for me that our incomparable troops will lead the Fatherland to glorious and ultimate victory."

French Soldiers Spare Life of German Gathering Wood Nearby

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Saturday.

Mr. R. Hercod, in the International Rundschau of Zurich, tells a touching incident of a scene on the western front which gives credit to the magnanimity of the French soldiers.

A French instructor who is acting as a telephone operator in the trenches in Northern France tells the story. This telephone operator states that recently he was in an underground fortified position occupied by a French patrol. This was cleverly hidden from the enemy's trenches, whose barbed wire entanglements were only a short distance away.

"I noticed that two soldiers were speaking in low tones, and they showed considerable excitement," says the writer. "I caught the following sentences:—

"'You shoot him,' said the first."

"'I have not the heart to do it,' said the second. 'He appears to be an elderly man, and no doubt he has a family. You go ahead and do it.'"

"'No, I can't; it goes against me. It would be murder.'"

"I approached and wondered what the conversation meant. Just then I noticed a German soldier out there in the open quietly gathering pieces of wood that were lying about near the barbed wire. He evidently did not know of our position, or thought, perhaps, that we had abandoned it. Then I knew what the two soldiers were talking about.

"'You must know,' I said to them, 'that if you do not shoot him and spare his life you may perhaps be in a position any time where he would not hesitate to shoot you if he had the opportunity.'

"'Yes, we know that,' replied one of them, 'but we cannot bring ourselves to do it; we do not want to be murderers. Why don't you do it?'

"I at once got ready and took aim at the man, who was still gathering wood with no thought of danger. Somehow I, too, hesitated. For several seconds I stood ready to fire, but I could not.

"'It's no use,' I said. 'I have not the heart, either.'

"And we stood there still watching the German gathering his wood. When he had gathered a good armful he slowly went back to his trench and disappeared, never knowing how his life was spared."

THE VON HINDENBURG FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Saturday.

Recently Field Marshal von Hindenburg gave expression to some interesting views regarding the influence the war has had on the youth, vitality and energy of the men engaged in it. It was at his headquarters in Russia a few weeks ago that the Field Marshal was pleasantly surprised by a call from an eighty-year-old man who had been a neighbor of his for a long time. He was delighted to see the aged man so full of energy and vitality, and made some complimentary remarks on the care he took of himself.

"But, my dear Field Marshal," replied the aged man, "it is all right for me to take care of my health. I am at home, enjoying every comfort and have little else to do but to look after myself. I am, however, wondering how you manage to keep your health and look younger than your sixty-eight years in all the storm and stress of this campaign. I understand you go to bed very late and get up very early, obtaining on an average only a few hours' sleep out of the twenty-four. Yet you appear in better health than ever before."

"My friend, it is all a matter of the will," replied the Field Marshal. "Whatever happens, I make up my mind to face it, and there is the whole secret of youth. All that is necessary is to have some fixed purpose, some aim or ambition ever before you, and it is amazing how cheerfully you will do your work. Then it is that you have no time to think of getting old. You sleep less and eat less, never think of looking at the clock, but simply work, work, work. It is immaterial whether the weather is stormy or the sun is shining, you don't even notice it. That is what is keeping me young.

"Just consider for a moment our brave soldiers out there in the field. We have so many who are more than sixty and some even more than seventy years of age, and yet they are so fresh and so full of life that even the younger men marvel at it. Indeed, these men are thankful that in their old age God is giving to them the opportunity to show of what stuff they are made. They are overjoyed to know that now they can make use of their experiences and training and education. Who can feel old when he knows that now is the time for him to reap the fruits of years of labor and learning. Such men simply will not permit themselves to get ill or become weakened. The great work in which they are engaged throws off all illness.

"No one engaged in this war thinks of himself for a moment. There's the real fountain of youth—to engage in work that eliminates the self. Just think of the many men who in times of peace complained of feeling old at forty or fifty. Ask any of them now if they still feel old. Thus it is that when a man has a lot of work to do and finds pleasure in doing it he will never for a moment imagine that he is old, even if he is sixty or seventy."

"You are right, Your Excellency," said the Field Marshal's aged friend. "The war has made me younger also. When I saw my dear sons leave for the front my youth was renewed, and I am doing work at home now that the young men used to do before the war."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

In Place Of Paul.

By EFFIE W. SARGENT.

"That revolver again?" asked Musgrave, with a laugh that did not cover the irritation that it was intended to conceal. "It seems to me, Jeanne, that you are always fooling with that murderous looking thing."

"Not always," was the grave response. "For whole weeks it lies in the top drawer, Frank, but once a month I take it out and clean it that it may always be ready and that I may not forget, as though I ever could," she added wildly.

Musgrave shuddered. He disliked the sight of weapons, and there was something sinister in the care with which the girl kept the revolver always in good condition.

It was no pearl handled toy such as a woman might be supposed to carry, but a blue barreled .45 that would "stop" a man with a single shot, the sort of weapon that was meant for men.

It struck a jarring note in the femininity of Jeanne Barthon's personality. It was absurd and yet repelling that the dainty little artist should devote so much time to the care of the black mussled threat. All about were half finished sketches, bits of French seacoast, ideal heads and fashion drawings in odd confusion, with a handsome toilet over a dressmaker's form in one corner.

Jeanne herself was essentially feminine, a tiny mite of a woman with a coronet of golden hair surmounting a fragile face. She was scarcely five feet tall, and the gun was oddly out of proportion.

Musgrave sank into a chair from which he swept the fashion magazines to the floor and watched the girl with gloomy face.

"Perhaps it will be as well to tell you my secret, Frank," she said at length when the weapon had been oiled and reassembled. "Then you will understand my care and also why I cannot promise to marry you, dear. It is best that you should understand."

"I have no wish to pry into your secrets," he demurred. "They cannot be very important—except your reason for not wanting to marry me. You admit that you are unmarried and free and that you love me. Those are the essentials."

"Unmarried—yes," the girl breathed tensely, "but free—no. It is that I would tell you, dear, so sit that I may not see the horror in your face, and do not speak until I have finished. Sit so," she added as she placed a chair so that it stood directly before her own.

"It is the gun with which some day I am to kill a man," she began, plunging into the middle of her story. "Do not stir until I say that you may. I cannot talk if you interrupt. It is hard enough to tell even so."

"Then don't tell," urged the man. "You never will kill a man. You are afraid even of the dark."

"Of the dark, yes," she admitted softly, "but when the moment of revenge comes I shall shoot to kill, with never a thought of what will follow. They may not kill me, but I will spend years in prison, and all because I have done the justice that men would not do. That is why I may not marry.

"I had a brother once. He was all that I had. Not even cousins had I, and when my Paul went to your Klondike I grieved and grieved, even though he had promised that in one year he would return with millions of francs and I should enter the atelier of the great artist with whom I would study and become famous.

"For a year I had his letters. Then none came. I said that mails were not regular in that far off land, and so I waited almost another year. Then with the little money that I had I sought him, for I knew that evil must have befallen.

"I journeyed across this great land to the frozen north, and there I learned the worst. Paul was dead—killed by his friend, they said—his friend who could shoot him down for the little gold that he had.

"They said it was all an accident. Bah! Men who handle guns do not have accidents. Is it reasonable to tell that one is killed by another by accident? This man said that he was cleaning his revolver and that it went off by itself. They had let him go. He had fled the scene. He came to New York, they said, and he was a lawyer.

"There was a little photograph of him. That I brought with me. Of course he would shave his beard, but I have made other sketches—you have seen them—with the face clean shaven and with the mustache. One mark he had—a great scar across the cheek. It is his brand of Cain. By it I shall know him.

"Now I study art no more. I draw fashions because it pays, and when I am idle I haunt the courts. I look for a lawyer with a great scar, and when I find him this gun shall speak."

Musgrave had risen from the chair, and as she spoke she raised the revolver and pointed it at an imaginary foe. His turning disconcerted her, the gun wavered, there was a report, and the bullet seared Musgrave's arm.

"I have killed you!" she gasped. "You, my dearest friend, I have shot! It was not for you that the revolver was meant. You were right. I was wrong to keep it. Oh, my dear!"

She sank sobbing beside him, endeavoring to roll up the sleeve and stanch the blood that now trickled in a tiny stream down his arm. Musgrave pushed her from him.

"It was right!" he cried hoarsely. "The shot hit the man for whom it was intended, but you did not aim at the heart. Was your brother Paul Desplaines?"

"That was my mother's name," she explained. "Paul took it so that when he should return Desplaines, the miner, and Barthon, the millionaire, would not be the same. It was childish, but he was but a boy."

"It was common to use other names," said Musgrave harshly. "I was Jack Joyce up there."

"You!" The girl recoiled and half turned to where the revolver lay upon the floor. The studio building was almost deserted, and the sound of the report had brought no inquiry.

"I am the man who shot your brother," continued Musgrave. "It was an accident. I was cleaning my gun while Paul lay in his bunk. I did not see that one cartridge was left in the chamber. I snapped the hammer to see if it was limbered up and—it happened."

Overcome by the horror of the recollection, Musgrave buried his face in his arms for a moment while the girl stood silently by. Her face was ghastly white, the lines drawn and tense, and in the blue eyes was horror unspeakable.

"It was an accident," went on Musgrave after a moment. "The boys understood and let me go. I left the country and came back to New York. I had never liked the law. To escape that profession I went to Alaska. I could draw rather well, and I came back at a time when the northern novels were first coming out and men who could draw Alaskan scenes were in demand.

"I made a success and spent my money looking for Jeanne Desplaines. There is money in the bank that I have kept until I could find her, the money that Paul had helped me earn. I never dreamed that you were she, you are so unlike Paul.

"That picture you have with the scar is misleading. The scar is the result of a photographic error, a defect in the glass. I had some made because the effect was so odd. That is why you did not know me. You looked for the scar. You will not believe that it was an accident. You just said so. Shoot if you will. Take a life for the life I robbed you of."

He rose unsteadily to his feet, stooped and raised the revolver from the floor, handing it to the silent girl.

"Perhaps it would be better if I did it myself," he said bitterly as she made no move to take the proffered weapon. "It will relieve you of all consequences. I will welcome death since now I know that my love is hopeless. I will go to my own studio."

Unsteadily he staggered toward the door. The girl watched until his hand groped for the knob, then, with a sudden revulsion of feeling, she rushed toward him.

"You shall not! You shall not!" she cried passionately. "It was a mistake, Frank. I know now, for did I not shoot you by accident? It was only the good God who turned the bullet aside because he had sent you to make me happy. It was a lesson to me, who had disputed the wisdom of God. It was an accident, dearest, and now that I know that the thought of vengeance and—and prison no longer stand between"—

"You will marry me after what I have told you?" he cried in wonder.

"God is good," she said reverently. "He has taken my brother from me, but he has sent you—in place of Paul," and she suffered him to draw her within the circle of his arms.

A BRAVE TOREADOR.

One of the Most Thrilling Incidents of the Bull Ring.

The famous Spanish toreador Reverte figured in one of the most thrilling incidents ever witnessed in the arena. It was at Bayonne. After disposing of two bulls Reverte had twice plunged his sword into a third of great strength and ferocity, and as the beast continued careering wildly the spectators began to hiss Reverte for bungling. Wounded to the very quick of his pride, the Spaniard shouted, "The bull is slain!" and, throwing aside his sword, sank on one knee with folded arms in the middle of the ring. He was right, but he had not allowed for the margin of accident. The wounded beast charged full upon him, but the matador, splendid to the last, knelt motionless as a statue, while the spectators held their breath in horrified suspense. Reaching his victim, the bull literally bounded at him, and as he sprang he sank in death, with his last effort giving one fearful lunge of the head that drove a horn into the thigh of the kneeling man and laid bare the bone from the knee to the joint. Still Reverte never flinched, but remained kneeling, exultant in victory, but calmly contemptuous of applause, till he was carried away to heal him of his grievous wound.

Killing the Bad Taste.

"Maybe I won't have to take medicine again, and even if I do have to take it maybe the doctor will prescribe an ambrosial mixture, but if I should be condemned for my sins to swallow vile doses I know how I'll take them," a city salesman volunteered. "A man who was doctoring himself in the drug store showed me the way.

"The druggist had mixed a particularly obnoxious dose. The man before taking it asked for cracked ice. The errand boy brought it, several spoonfuls nearly pulverized. The sick man held that in his mouth until it melted, after which the medicine seemed as mild as tea.

"'I always prepare my mouth that way for a disagreeable medicine,' the man said. 'The ice numbs the nerves, and the medicine slips down without having any taste, good or bad.'"—Exchange.

THE BALANCE

THE two great forces in this country are the farmer and the home town merchant. It is THEY who preserve the BALANCE. And the balancing poles are HOME TRADE and CO-OPERATION. Their PERFORMANCES determine our prosperity. If outside influences are allowed to creep in, the balance is destroyed. Home Trade and Co-operation are the deciding factors. With these we can "deliver the goods."

Get Rid Of Pimples---Quick

By Using Stuart's Calcium Wafers---Natural Little Blood Purifiers That Work Like a Charm

Costs Nothing to Try Them

He—"How sweet you look."
She—"It was only removing those horrid pimples. Stuart's Calcium Wafers simply work wonders."

"Don't despair if your face is covered with pimples, blotches, liver spots, or your body is covered in spots with tetter, rash, boils, etc. Just use Stuart's Calcium Wafers for a short time and see how quickly you will clear up your skin.

Pimples and eruptions of all kinds come from the inside. The blood casts out the impurities it contains and thus pimples, boils, etc., appear. Cleanse the blood, stop the poison from developing in the blood tissues and pimples will vanish as if by magic.

Calcium Sulphide and the other ingredients of these remarkable little wafers are just what impure blood needs. You must know that the blood is rushing through our veins very fast. It takes less than a minute for our blood to cover the entire body.

You can thus readily see that Stuart's Calcium Wafers, when they enter the body, have an almost instant effect upon all impurities, no matter where located whether it be the tip of the nose or the ends of the toes.

By the use of Stuart's Calcium Wafers your complexion will take on a fresher hue and a more natural series of tints than ever before.

Impure blood is blue or black. Purify it and it becomes ruby red. This colour showing beneath the skin is the secret of all beautiful complexions.

SLAIN ARMENIANS' BODIES CHOKE TIGRIS AND EUPHRATES

PARIS, March 16.—A terrifying tale of Armenian massacres recounted by the Algemine Mission Zeitschrift held up by the Berlin censor since November 10, has just reached here. The Mission's report reads:

"Turkish soldiers who witnessed scenes of indescribable horror and fanatical savagery, told our investigators they saw hundreds of terrified Armenian women slain outright as they pleaded for mercy on their knees.

"To save their babies from excruciating tortures, many of these women, driven to desparation flung their infants to drown in the Rivers, Tigris and Euphrates, as the ravening hordes of religion-intoxicated Turks bore down on their homesteads, killing as they came. Investigators asked the soldiers:

"'You mean to tell us you pitilessly shot down women and children?' The soldiers replied:

"'We have no choice. We only obeyed orders.'"

MEN THROWN OVER CLIFFS

"Another official witness told us he helped to drive bands of Armenians into exile. They were treated like cattle and beaten, and the slightest recalcitrance was punished by death by strangulation.

"Every day dozens of men were cast over precipices along the route, babies' heads were crushed and women were robbed and dishonored.

"Our missionaries were present at a horrible scene, when hundreds of children, and aged women, many scarcely able to sit on their donkeys, were led to a precipice on the brink of the Euphrates. They were tied in bunches like faggots and flung into the yawning depths, where they were caught in the swift eddies of the river and whirled to death downstream. A soldier who had returned from escorting an army of 300 doomed women to Komagh, said:

"We drowned every one."

ARMENIANS CAST INTO RIVER

"We asked him why the massacres were not carried out in the villages where the victims lived. He replied:

"It is better to make them suffer in the course of the journey. Anyway if they were killed in villages instead of drowned, their bodies would rot.

"Between May 10 and 30 last, 1,200 Armenian notables and other Christians were arrested at Diarbekir, Mamouret and Ul Aais. Of these 647 were put on thirteen barges on the Tigris enroute ostensibly to Mosoul.

"Shortly after the departure of the barges soldiers robbed, stripped and flung the Armenians into the river. Other soldiers on shore drowned all who tried to swim to safety. Their clothes were sold at bazaars.

"During the whole month the Euphrates and Tigris were choked with the bodies of massacred bodies thrown up on the shore were devoured by pariah dogs."

Out of Trenches in Domestic War Also a Ford Rule

CHICAGO, Ill., March 17.—Henry Ford, who tried to bring peace in Europe, has carried the idea into the house of his employes, according to revelations made here today before Judge Dennis E. Sullivan of the Superior Court.

The peace leader's rules provide that employes and their wives who disagree must hoist the white flag and obtain divorces, or quit the service of the company and lose their $5 a day wages.

Henry Carter, a porter employed by the company, received a divorce from his wife here on a charge of desertion, and his witness was Walter G. May, of Evanston, formerly superintendent of the sociological department of the Ford works.

Mr. May revealed the idea of the manufacturer that the workman who quarrels with his wife in the morning makes a poor workman all the day. He testified he had done everything possible to reconcile Carter and his wife, but had failed. He said Carter was a good workman and the company did not want to lose him.

"As I understand from the rules of the company, a man that is in the predicament that Carter is in now will lose his position unless he is able to separate himself from his wife," Carter's attorney asked.

"Exactly," Mr. May said.

"I'll give him a decree," Judge Sullivan said.

YOU CAN'T FIND ANY DANDRUFF, AND HAIR STOPS COMING OUT

Save Your Hair! Make it Thick, Wavy Glossy and Beautiful at once

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment. A 25 cent bottle will double the beauty of your hair.

ONCE LIVED IN LUXURY

Former Broker Shovels Snow Near Hotel Where He had a Suite.

NEW YORK, March 17.—An old waiter, gazing out of a cafe window of the Hotel Majestic, Seventy-second Street and Central Park West, Sunday afternoon, caught sight of a man shovelling snow from the sidewalk on the Central Park west side. Calling the attention of Copeland Townsend, Manager of the hotel, to the man with the shovel, he asked:

Isn't that the gentleman who with his family, occupied the suite on the seventh floor ten years ago?

Mr. Townsend agreed and went out to speak to the man. The waiter's assumption was correct. Ten years ago the snow shoveller was a successful broker here, who, before living in the hotel, resided in West End Avenue.

The man, whose name Mr. Townsend was unwilling to give, went to Alaska on a gold mine venture. Luck went against him. Two years ago he returned to New York and obtained a position which he lost at the opening of the war. Since then he has been living from hand to mouth, but always cheerful.

REVOLT OF DIET AT SECRET METHODS

Storm Developing Over Issues in Germany's Naval Policy

German Chancellor Alarmed at Possible Action of House.

BERLIN, Thursday, March 17. —A storm is developing over issues in Germany's naval and foreign policy. Advocates of a more energetic attitude, influential Parliamentary leaders, particularly of the Conservative party, are endeavouring to force, both in the Reichstag and the Prussian Diet, an open discussion of the situation.

The Diet leaders, who recently were reminded by the Chancellor through the North German Gazette that discussion of questions of foreign policy and of the conduct of the military operations were beyond their competence, have since the publication of this announcement returned to the attack.

The Diet committee on ways and means met to-day to discuss the Chancellor's communication, and were in no chastened mood. It has not yet been decided whether their deliberations will be regarded as confidential, but according to an inspired communication the Conservative leaders favour full publicity. Thinly veiled references to the situation were made during yesterday's debate in the Diet on the budget of the Ministry of Education and ecclesiastical affairs, when the Conservative spokesman, Herr von Der Osten, prefaced his remarks as follows:

"If our enemies seek by outcries regarding Huns and barbarians to serve the political end of weakening our conduct of the war, I hope that they will find they have miscalculated. It is the general belief of our people that under the circumstances a most energetic conduct of military operations may be the most humane, and that the policy which will bring us soonest out of the sea of blood and misery into which our old Europe has been converted will serve the best interests of the human race." Hearty applause greeted the speaker.

It is expected that the session of the Reichstag may open the way for discussion which has been barred under a political truce since the outset of the war. Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg is exerting all his influence to prevent the discussion taking a form which would cross the declared policy of Germany.

SPENT COUNTLESS NIGHTS UNABLE TO REST OR SLEEP

Was Run Down and in Terribly Nervous Condition—By Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Gained Regularly

In this letter is told once more the story which comes from many thousands of women. It is the story of exhausted nerves, of a run-down system and of all the accompanying misery of sleeplessness, headaches and loss of energy and vigour.

But there is a silver lining to this cloud. There is the light of new hope and courage which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This letter is so representative of the kind we are daily receiving that you can judge from it what you might expect from this treatment under similar circumstances.

Mrs. Conrad Schmidt, R. R. No. 1, Milverton, Ont., writes: "Two years ago last spring I was run down, had nervous prostration, and was in a terribly nervous condition. I could not sleep or eat. Could scarcely count the nights that I passed without sleep, and if I did eat, had sick headaches and vomiting spells. My limbs would swell so badly that it hurt me to walk. I would jump up in bed, awakened by bad dreams; in fact, I was so bad I thought I could not live, and started to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food without much hope.

"It was not long before I began to improve under this treatment, and I can truthfully say it has done me a world of good. It took some time to get the nervous system restored, but I kept right on using the Nerve Food regularly, and gradually gained in health and strength. I have a fine baby boy now. He weighed 12 lbs. at birth, and though my friends were anxious after the condition I was in, I got over that fine, and now weigh 120 lbs. Before using the Nerve Food I was a mere skeleton."

You are not asked to expect miracles from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. But if you are willing to feed back your exhausted nerves to health and strength you can depend absolutely on this great food cure to produce the desired results. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Holland to Spend Hundred Million in Reclamation Work

The Hague, (By Mail), March 1.—Holland's recent disastrous floods on the Zuider Zee coast promise to hasten the Netherlands government's plans for reclaiming most of the Zuider Zee and turning the rest of it into a fresh water lake. The floods were the result of a northwest storm which swept the European west coast recently. The waves driven by this gale through the narrow neck of the Zuider Zee, could not get out as the wind's face, and the water kept piling up, higher and higher, until at last the tremendous pressure burst the dikes in many places and vast tracks of country were inundated. The scheme for eliminating flood possibilities is a good many years old. It seems likely now to be put into effect soon.

The Proposition.

The proposition of the Dutch engineers, the world's foremost experts at reclamation work, is to build an embankment across the mouth of the Zuider Zee, from Ewyksluis, North Holland, to the southwest corner of the island of Wieringen, and from the northeast corner of Wieringen to Piaam, Friesland and to pump out all the salt water inside the embankment. At the centre of the enclosed area, as far as the embankment, the purpose is to leave a basin into which the river Ijsel and lesser streams empty, gradually filling it with fresh water. The rest, except for a channel extending southwest to the vicinity of Amsterdam will be reclaimed. Reclamation is to be accomplished by the construction of dikes on the fresh water lake shore before it has time to fill up the streams emptying into it.

Areas Described.

The new areas are described by the engineers as the northwest, northeast, southwest and southeast "polders," or reclaimed lands. The "polders" shore lines will extend, respectively, from the northwest end of Eieringen to the town of Medemblik from the town of Oude Mirdep to the mouth of the Ijsel, from the town of Enhuizen to Marker, and from the mouth of the Ijsel to Muider. These lines will not be drawn as the crow flies but will bulge to the seaward, considerably increasing the land and reducing the lake area. Execution of the plan will mean the addition of 815 square miles to Holland's land territory and of a lake 557 square miles in extent. Experts are of the opinion that the reclaimed land will be fit for cultivation within 16 years of the start on diking operations and that it will support a population of 350,000 souls. The lake also will have its value, fresh water being much needed in Holland. Incidentally the embankment from Ewyksluis to Piaam will carry a double line of railroad and a highway for ordinary traffic, reducing the land trip from the North Holland to the Friesland coasts from about 300 to 25 miles. The embankment will be provided with locks and sluices for the regulation of the lake level and the passage of ships. It is estimated that the work will take altogether, 33 years and that its cost will be about $100000000.

Disloyalty Rife In Ireland

Dublin Juries Refuse to Convict Offenders—"British Army in Hostile Occupation of Ireland."

LONDON, March 17.—The Post publishes a long article in regard to what it characterized as the serious situation in Ireland on account of activity on the part of the Sinn Fein Society. It says:

"From motives of patriotism, English newspapers hitherto have refrained from commenting on the situation in Ireland, but it is developing with such rapidity and gravity that silence is no longer possible.

"Through the south and west a vigorous organised camapign against recruiting is being carried out without serious hindrance. Within a few weeks several persons have been indicted and tried in Dublin, but in every case acquitted by the jury amid tumultous applause from those in the court room. All these trials took place before ordinary juries, and we await with impatience the time when the authorities will utilize their powers to have such cases tried before special juries or military tribunals.

British Troops Hostile.

"In Cork a committee recently appointed to organize St. Patrick's Day celebrations was offered the use of several companies of Irish soldiers, but the committee refused to allow them to participate, stating in reply: 'The British army is in hostile occupation of Ireland, and it would be as absurd for Belgians to invite a contingent from the German army to participate in a Belgian national celebration.'"

Air Ministry To Direct Reprisals Against Germany

LONDON, March 17. — I am informed that Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, who has consented to accept membership in the new air committee, eventually will be made director of the air services and receive cabinet rank.

With the organization of the Ministry of Air a vigorous campaign will be resumed against Germany to re-establish Britain's air supremacy. The reprisals, however, will be directed against fortified towns, military bases, ammunition depots, Zeppelin hangars and aerodromes.

Britain's aviators never will wage war on noncombatants, women or children.

Mr. Johnson Hicks, supporting Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, said if England had ten airships of the Zeppelin type he guaranteed by sending them over the Kiel Canal and Wilhelmshaven the German fleet would be forced to fight within a week.

STOMACH ACTS FINE! NO INDIGESTION, GAS, HEARTBURN, ACIDITY

"Pape's Diapepsin" Fixes Sick, Sour, Upset Stomachs in Five Minutes

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain, unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them, if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

NO LAND GRANTS LIKELY.

Last Experiment Was a Failure — Soldiers Not Eager to Hew Out Farms.

OTTAWA, March 17.—The question of giving land grants to returning Canadian soldiers has not even been considered by the Government here. It is not thought likely that such a course will be taken. Some scheme for the settling of returned soldiers on the land will, however, probably be considered, but as free land is now very scarce and as the system adopted after the South African war did not result in settlement to any great extent, it is not expected that it will be again adopted. The whole question is under consideration by the Dominion Hospitals Commission and by the Economic Commission.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad, and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would shake. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

The policeman, most people would say. But the little girl is the biggest.

Do You See Well With BOTH Eyes?

Some who claim to see well have only ONE "Working" Eye.

You may be able to see with half the exertion that another is obliged to use to get the same results. But——

It is extremely unlikely that EACH of your Eyes have the same strength. Therefore——

Using glasses with EQUAL value will most likely do more harm than good.

DE LAVAL Cream Separators

Buying a Cream Separator is a good deal like hiring a man to work on your farm. A hired man that does poor work, and is lazy, is an expensive proposition, no matter how little you pay him. A cream separator that is hard to turn, hard to keep clean, and doesn't skim close would be expensive, even if you got it as a gift.

CREAMERYMEN AND DAIRYMEN ALL OVER THE WORLD RECOGNIZE THE SUPERIORITY OF THE DE LAVAL.

About the only reason why any one ever buys any other cream separator is because they can get it a little cheaper. Then they soon find out they have lost ten times as much from separator inconvenience, poor skimming, and a machine that quickly wears out, as they saved in the beginning.

Remember that a De Laval will soon pay for itself, and if you have no separator now, or an inferior machine, you can buy a De Laval on such terms that it will pay for itself while you are using it.

The best cream separator is the cheapest. Let our nearest agent call and prove it to you on your own farm, or write us direct.

SOONER OR LATER YOU WILL BUY A DE LAVAL.

A GREAT FRENCH OFFENSIVE IS FORESHADOWED

GERMANS MAY ABANDON VERDUN OFFENSIVE

FRENCH AVIATORS BOMBARD GERMAN CITIES AND IMPORTANT POSITIONS

Aerial Activities of the Allied Forces During the Last Twenty-Four Hours Have Been Almost Without Precedence in the History of Aerial Warfare---Five Great Raids Reported---Violent Artillery Bombardment in the Region of Vaux

RUSSIANS ARE ADVANCING

PARIS, March 18.—(French Official Communique)—French aviators made five great raids on German cities and important positions last night, and engaged in thirty-two duels along the Verdun front, the War Office reported this afternoon. Air activities in the last twenty-four hours have been almost without precedence in the history of aerial warfare.

Seventeen or eighteen aeroplanes attacked the railway station at Conflans through which the Crown Prince draws a large part of his supplies for the Verdun offensive. They dropped forty big bombs. Another French squadron of fourteen fliers attacked the Sablons station at Metz. Bombs were hurled with unusual accuracy, striking their targets. Three fires broke out in the station itself, and numerous explosions occurred along the railway. The squadron was violently cannonaded, but returned with no losses.

French fliers made 29 flights in pursuit of enemy planes, and engaged in 32 duels in one of which a German Fokker was badly damaged.

In the Argonne, nine duels have accurred in the region of Sourte Chausee, which were to the advantage of the French, the War Office reported.

West of the Meuse, French artillery directed a concentrated fire on German trenches on Hill 265 and in the Corbeaux woods, said the official statement. In the region of Vaux there was violent bombardment. Elsewhere the cannonading was intermittent.

Artillery exchanges of minor importance occurred in the region of Mulainville and Eparhes Heights. French long distance guns shelled the Apremont Vigneulles road, northeast of St. Mihiel, where German regiments were seen marching northward.

Germans Are Showing Less Resistance Around Verdun

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 18.—A marked slackening in the violence of the German assaults around Verdun has convinced some French military critics that the Crown Prince is about to abandon the offensive.

This conviction was expressed for the first time in several despatches from Paris to-day, coupled with it was the hint that final defeat for the Teutons at Verdun will be followed shortly by a great French offensive. All Paris despatches reported the Germans showing less spirit in attack than in the early days of the Verdun offensive. Some of the assaults are being made with little artillery preparation. The Germans are not standing ground under French counter-attacks as in the first days of the struggles around Douaumont and Vaux. German newspapers which printed lengthy articles about the Verdun battle in its early stages, have carried only brief despatches from their correspondents in the past ten days. Neutral observers have been forced to rely upon Paris accounts of the fighting, which report that the Germans have been checked with very heavy losses.

Passengers Were Saved

Special to The Examiner:

AMSTERDAM, March 18. — A thorough investigation shows that every person aboard the sunken Dutch liner Tubantia was saved, it was announced, at the company's offices to-day.

Troop Movements On Large Scale

Examiner Special:

PARIS, March 18.—The movements of troops on a large scale in Bulgaria are reported. It is said that these operations are so extensive that both passenger and freight traffic have been suspended. In Rumania, passenger travel has been stopped for ten days on the railroad running north from Bucharest to Predol, on the Hunagrian frontier.

Russians Nearing Trebizond

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, March 18.—Russian vanguards are within less than twenty miles of Trebizond, according to despatches received here to-day.

No Further Infantry Attacks

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, March 18.—The War Office reports no further infantry attacks by the Germans north of Verdun last night.

DUTCH STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, March 18.—The Dutch steamer Palembang has been sunk. Fifty of her crew were rescued.

OTTAWA, March 18.—Communique from a Canadian representative at the front to General Hughes just received, reports Canadian guns doing great work against the enemy. Fifty third trench mortar battery on March 10th broke the German parapets in several places. Other brigades from all over Canada are specially mentioned for accurate and timely shell fire. Canadian snipers are very successful. Many casualties among the enemy are observed from their sniping.

BERLIN, March 18.—The German offensive around Verdun has slackened because of weather conditions, the War Office announced this afternoon.

LONDON, March 18.—Turkish troops were repulsed in an attack on the British outpost at Imad, on Thursday, it was officially announced to-day. The British casualties were one killed and seventeen wounded.

PARIS, March 18.—"We have reached the decisive hour," said Alexandre Ribot, Minister of Finance, speaking in the Chamber of Deputies last night on the financial and military situation. "We can say without illusion and without vain optimism, that we now see the end of this horrible war."

M. Ribot's utterance is taken to be of the utmost importance as indicating official opinion with regard to the result of the battle of Verdun.

DISTILLERIES WILL BE ORDERED TO STOP MAKING

As Soon As Their Present Stock in Process of Manufacture Has Reached a Completed Stage —Announced Monday

AN IMPORTANT STEP

TORONTO, March 18.—The Federal government it is understood, has decided to serve notice upon all distillery firms throughout the Dominion to discontinue the manufacture of spirits after their present stock in the process of manufacture has reached a completed manufactured stage.

This decision will probably be announced when the government bill is introduced in the Commons next Monday prohibiting the importation of liquor into any province enacting prohibition measure.

The Government's decision is generally accepted as the indication of the intention of the Federal authorities to bring Dominion wide prohibition into effect as soon as the government is convinced that public sentiment is unmistakeably in favour of Canada coming under prohibition.

This Morning's Police Court

William Kelly Celebrated St. Patrick's Day in the Police Cells— Blacklister Fined

William Kelly, who by the way is one of the oldest "repeaters" in local Police Court circles, added another score to his record, when he appeared this morning before Police Magistrate Dumble. Kelly celebrated St. Patrick's day with such zest that he was garnered in by the police. Strange to say, the Magistrate failed to recognize Kelly's familiar face, which was cleverly concealed behind a natural ambuscade of whiskers. He was fined two dollars.

Blacklisters Fined.

A couple of local blacklisters were each fined ten dollars for being under the influence of liquor while on the prohibited list. They related a couple of strange and weird stories concerning thes ources from which they secured their liquor.

Veteran Soldier Dies In Cobourg

William Guy, well known in Millbrook for sixty years, died in Cobourg on Monday, and the remains were taken to Millbrook for interment in St. Paul's Cemetery. Corporal Guy was a veteran of the Fenian Raid, the Red River Expedition and the Reil Rebellion of 1885, and was every inch a soldier. Honest, courteous and gentlemanly in his bearing he passes into the beyond leaving behind, amongst the older settlers generous recollections of his days of activity.

LUXURIES WILL BE BARRED FROM GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, March 17.—A far-reaching order-in-Council, which will totally prohibit importation into the United Kingdom of a large number of articles which come under the general heading of luxuries, will be issued by the British Government at an early date.

Among the things which will be placed under the ban will be automobiles for private use, musical instruments, cutlery of all kinds, hardware, yarns, chinaware, fancy goods and soaps. The order will apply equally to all countries, including the British dominions and colonies.

The forecast of the coming order-in-Council was given in an interview by Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade. Mr. Runcimana admitted that articles in addition to those named would be placed on the list of prohibited imports, but in advance of the issuance of the order he declined to say what they are. He agreed that the decree would have considerable effect on exports from the United States, but pointed out that it applied to all countries alike, and declared it was absolutely necessary to limit the shipment of bulky luxuries in order to provide room on ships for necessaries.

"But please remember," said Mr. Runciman, "that the issuance of this order is forced on the country—not as a matter of policy, but entirely because of a shortage in tonnage. We want exports from the United States; we want your wheat, cotton and meat, and we need other things which we cannot get if the space aboard vessels is taken up with luxuries."

THE FIRST TWO WEEKS OF MARCH SHOW BIG INCREASE IN RECRUITING

The 3rd Division Recruited 1,521 Men During That Period--Men With Special Qualifications May Transfer to the Forestry Battalion---Orders For the Day

KINGSTON, March 18.—The first two weeks of March show a big increase in recruiting in the Division over the last two weeks in February. For the two weeks ending February 29th the 3rd Division recruited 1,521 men, and for the first two weeks in March the 3rd Division recruited 2,009 men, showing an increase of 488 recruits. The showing is an excellent one and Colonel Hemming is justly proud of the work done by the units under his command.

The 50th battery (Queen's) commanded by Capt. Anglin, secured 45 recruits, has four appointed officers, five attached officers and a total strength of 119.

The 51st battery, Dry Dock barracks, commanded by Major Barrett, secured 43 recruits, has two appointed officers, 13 attached officers and a total strength of 151.

The 52nd battery, Dry Dock barracks, commanded by Captain Shaw, secured 49 recruits, has four appointed officers, five attached officers and a total strength of 149.

The 53rd battery, commanded by Captain Grierson, Rideau barracks, received 16 recruits, has one appointed officer, nine attached officers and a total strength of 234.

"C" battery R.C.H.A., commanded by Captain Steacy, Tete du Pont barracks, secured 109 recruits, has four appointed officers, seven attached officers and a total strength of 376

The 59th battalion, Brockville, commanded by Lt.-Col. Dawson, received 36 recruits, has 39 appointed officers, four attached officers and a total strength of 1,196.

The 77th battalion, Ottawa, raised 15 recruits, has 37 appointed officers, 14 attached officers and total strength of 1,138.

The 80th battalion, Belleville, commanded by Lt.-Col. Ketcheson, 14 recruits, has 34 appointed officers, nine attached officers and a total strength of 1,127.

The 93rd battalion, Peterborough, shows 372 recruits, and a strength of 824.

With reference to Divisional Order No. 228, dated the 7th inst., it is published for general information that any men now belonging to units of the C.E.F. who have special qualifications and who desire to transfer to the Forestry Battalion are to be permitted to do so, and such transfers are to be carried out at once, and the usual documents passed to the D.A.A. and Q.M.G., 3rd Division, Kingston, Ont. This order will not apply to the 59th Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

VERDUN OVERSHADOWS THE WHOLE GERMAN POSITION

Germany Failed in an Attempt to Deliver a Crushing Blow and Annihilate a Big Block of the French Army—The France-British Parliamentary Committee and What It Has Accomplished

A NEW LINK

LONDON, March 18 — Verdun still overshadows everything. Though its final fate hangs in the balance, it has already done its work. One thing only could have brought the big result. Germany wanted, namely, a quick, crushing blow, with the annihilation of a big block of the French army. That no longer can come. Even the capture of Verdun now would mean the taking of a mere shell, within which is no gun or inhabitant. It would be disastrously costly at the price of such gigatic German losses. Thus Verdun overshadows the whole German position, and illuminates the whole Allied position in all quarters of the far flung battlefields.

Russia's Victories.

On top of this comes Russia's big victories over the Turks, which prepare the way for the breaking up of the Ottoman Empire, and which tran-form the Balkan situation. Though the rumour that Turkey will seek a separate peace is not confirmed all things point to a possible crisis at Constantinople. Again Turkey's breaking up may mean the breaking of the Bulgar-German alliance. Inflations at Sofia point to the possible transformation of the whole situation.

The threatened invasion of Egypt has now disappeared into space. Except for the perilous position of Mesopotamia, all the eastern situation now promises splendidly for the Allies.

Indications of Unrest.

While this sunny view of the external situation is growing there are many indications of political popular unrest in England. The return of a young airman against a combination of two great parties, followed by the adoption of that stormy petrel, Gibson Bowles, as a candidate against the coalition, are indications of this unrest. This is partly inevitable, because no ministry which does not win daily victories is popular. It is also due to the immunity of the Zeppelins while their raids were in progress. Winston Churchill's speech also has not helped the Ministry. Finally, dissatisfaction has been brought to a head by the complaints of the married men called to the army before all the single men enlisted. These things may blow over, but at the moment the prestige of the Ministry is low, and any political change is possible.

I must add that the dissatisfaction is not due to any desire to end the war but to a strong demand for more vigorous prosecution of the conflict.

St. Patrick's Day was celebrated this year with le more universal welcome than ever. Banquets were tabooed as unreasonable in war times but there were concerts and receptions and the flag day sale and wearing of the Shamrock was universal as to make it appear an English holiday also.

WILL PROHIBIT IMPORTATION AND MANUFACTURE

of Intoxicating Liquors Within Provinces That Have Enacted Prohibition Legislation, Making Law More Effective

A FEDERAL MEASURE

TORONTO, March 18.—The policy which the Federal Government has decided to adopt in regard to the prohibition issue as will be announced in the Commons next week, is outlined below. Its distinguishing feature is the placing of the responsibility for the enactment and enforcement of prohibition upon provinces. The Federal Government will frankly take the ground that the enactment of prohibition is none of its business, but if any province decides to enforce prohibitory law, the Federal administration will, by prohibiting importation and manufacture of liquors within such a province, make the prohibitory law more thoroughly effective. "No Federal measure of Dominion-wide prohibition." Prohibition must be enacted and enforced by the provinces. Where a prohibition law goes into effect in a province the Federal Government will supplement it by automatically prohibiting the importation of intoxicating liquors, or the manufacturing of the same within the province."

TALK ON "WIT AND HUMOUR OF IRELAND"

Successful Irish Evening Under the Auspices of Fraser Mission Band

A very successful Irish evening was held last night under the auspices of the Fraser Mission Band of St. Paul's Church. A large number of people were in attendance. The chair was occupied by Rev. Robt Pogue. Vocal numbers were contributed by Mrs. Frehilcock, Miss Allan, and Messrs. Steer and Carlisle. Mr. Keyes, of the Normal School, gave an interesting talk on "Wit and Humour of Ireland." He also showed a number of views of the Emerald Isle.

A ST. PATRICK'S DAY MESSAGE

TORONTO March 18 — The Prime Minister of Ontario on St. Patrick's Day sent a message of greeting to all old country men in Ontario and particularly to the Irish, but he wished to extend it to all nationalities in the province and especially to all representatives of such nationalities who are fighting in Canadian battles of the empire.

Council Could Not Reach The Police But Cut Chairman

The only direct cutting the Council could apply to the Police Department affected the salaries of Judge Huyeke, chairman, reduced from $100 to $91.62 and Mr. S. E. Armstrong, secretary of the Police Commission from $50 to $45.84. There is a touch of irony though only a light touch, in the fact that while the Commission did not reduce the police numbers or salaries the chairman himself came under the Council's pruning.

REVIVING RECRUITING.

The Government may think it has done its full duty in issuing a call for 500,000 men, and providing equipment for them as needed. But, in effect, it has ended at that, and left to private enterprise and patriotism to furnish the men. Private citizens have found the funds and the energy to do the bulk of the recruiting that has been done. If the work had been left to the Government and it had assumed its past and present attitude in this regard since the recruiting began there wouldn't have been very great need for equipment. In fact, if it had not been for private enterprise, private enthusiasm we should not have had some 280,000 Canadians under the colours. The country has been pretty well combed for recruits. The stream is dwindling and it is felt that extraordinary efforts will have to be made to enroll the quota, that Canada, through the Government, is pledged to furnish. In Peterborough, the Speakers' Patriotic League has taken on new energy, but it is felt that it is time the Geverment took a more active part in recruiting. The Hamilton Recruiting League, especially, thinks so. Elsewhere on this page its memorial to the Government appears. Its suggestion of taking a census of all men in the Dominion, from 18 years of age and upward, is a good one. It may smack somewhat of conscription, but is an excellent and business-like proposal. By taking stock of our population we shall be better able to place and tabulate the eligibles, and systematically approach and appeal in a way not practicable under hap-hazard and fishing methods. We can decide what men can or cannot be spared from idustrial service in the manufacture of munitions. Something like this or more extended is advocated by the Hamilton Recruiting League, whose programme is well worth reading, studying and heeding. One can agree with it that a census like that proposed and more effective recruiting measures, founded upon it, will simplify facilitate, and make recruiting more effective.

One can follow the suggestions made up to the point of systematizing recruiting work and enlisting the Government in the work of enlisting, but pending the trial of thorough systematization of recruiting, it seems premature to insist upon anything that would suggest compulsory service. That should be, at the most, a last resort, and only to be considered when all other means fail.

A LUCKY WESTERNER.

An Alberta boy won the V.C. and fell heir to fifty thousand dollars all within a month. This would stimulate recruiting.—Quebec Telegraph.

CUI BONO?

Within the past few days there has been a flurry of interest over some recent manifestations of what is called the "higher criticism" of the Holy Scriptures. The first question that suggests itself is, what good purpose does the "higher criticism" serve? Is it called higher on the same principle that fixes the fanciful etymology of the Latin word, lucus, a grove—lucus, a non lucendo? Is it called the "higher" criticism because it lowers the vital tone of religion, making divinely revealed theology a metaphysical muddle instead of a spiritual reality?

It is not necessary, in seeking an answer to the question, to consider the merits of the processes of the "higher" criticism or appraise its intellectual results. It is enough to insist upon the query as to what good purpose it serves. Can any one point to a single human soul that has been brought into the way of salvation by the cold-blooded, hair-splitting, the scholarly display of brains hammered out of these "higher" critics? Would it be hard to find one soul and many souls that have been blinded by the ignis fatuus of the bewildering theologians, and have wandered from the straight and narrow path into the broadway that leads to infidelity, or some equivalent schism? Is intensive criticism of the Holy Scriptures necessary to salvation? We that are as old-fashioned in our crude and unsophisticated religious beliefs as the Christian religion itself, are foolish enough to accept, and believe in, the Holy Scriptures as an all-sufficient and adequate revelation of God, Himself—a revelation, in which He makes so plain the way of life, that the way-faring men, though fools, shall not err therein. There are many things in the Bible that we cannot understand, and are not expected to understand, or otherwise, unerring Wisdom would have made them as plain as the cardinal truths, the essentials of salvation that we can, and do, comprehend. All religions, even those of heathen peoples, are based upon faith. Faith is the very essence of religion—the acceptance of things that cannot be proved by processes of reasoning like a theory of human propounding. To talk of reconciling the Bible as God's will, with man's reason, is at once to destroy its essence. Religion ceases to be religion when we can prove it like a mathematical proposition; when we eliminate the divine and faith in the divine, and bring it and all its associations to the level of human understanding.

The Christian religion is a divine dogma, and must be accepted as such in its cardinal essentials. It must be a matter of belief, founded upon faith. Does the "higher criticism" of the Bible help faith, confirm faith, help to keep faith? The only apparent purpose it serves is the satisfaction of intellectual pride at the expense of the simple, yet sufficient religion, founded upon unquestioning faith. This intellectual pride, in effect, antagonizes the Christ and Christianity of the Bible as the spiritual pride of the scribes and doctors in our Lord's day denied and rejected Him as the Christ. Has the cold, critical teaching of the "higher critics" ever steadied a stumbling Christian, or helped him to solid ground? Has it ever bound up a wounded heart—done any religious Red Cross work—or comforted a dying bed? Has it ever done anything to promote the spread of the Gospel? Would we send one of these censorious gentlemen to the heathen with the open Bible as a revelation of God and his purposes to man, with the critical comment that the researches of supercilious human wisdom have shown it to be largely a matter of myth and legend? These and other questions that crowd upon the thinking and devout mind are practical questions, as religion is a practical thing in men's lives bringing them back to God—a matter of belief and practice—of faith and works, inseparable conditions; and any teaching, no matter how high, that shadows faith with doubt and unsettles belief—a gospel of pin-pricks and negation — invites the practical question: What good purpose does it serve in making men and women more devout, more believing and better living Christians.

THE AMERICAN MEXICAN ENTENTE.

International accord to end evil conditions is represented upon this continent by the entente arranged between the United States and Carranza of Mexico, to secure military cooperation of the two countries to capture or kill, or crush the power of, Villa. It shows that President Wilson has assumed a becoming dignity of decision that his critics think he has not shown in relation to other international questions. Of course he will be criticised, and by no element more roundly than the German element of the United States, and by his political opponents. But the president seems to have done right to undertake prompt punishment for the raid and outrage upon United States territory at Columbus, N.M. His action would have been less simple if it had not been made in accord with Carranza. He will, however, not find it a holiday job to round up the Mexican De Wet, nor will he be able to neglect the boundary to prevent raids by the brigand partisans of Villa. In spite o, the protests of the Teuton element, the action of President Wilson is approved by the mass of the United States people. For the moment the old quarrel between Mejico and the United States is overlaid by the common aim of the two countries to capture and punish the firebrand whose liberty, and power for evil, prevent a settled government in Mexico and a peaceful life to the citizens of the United States in the vicinity of the border. The common action will insure good, or at least better, relations between the two countries. The United States General Pershing has been charged with the work of capturing Villa "dead or alive." He has crossed the frontier with 5,000 men and should, in cooperation with the troops of Carranza, speedily close the career of the brigand chief. It is probable, however, that the "job" will not be as short a one as expected. Experience shows this. At the outbreak of the civil war in the United States, optimists said the subjugation of the South would be a mere "breakfast spell," but it required four or five years. At the beginning of August, 1914, the German Kaiser planned banquetting the conquest of France by a dinner in Paris in mid-September; and Villa may show that a stern chase is so long chase and may lead the combined forces of Carranza and General Pershing a merry dance before he is roped.

A MEMORIAL TO THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT REGARDING RECRUITING

The following memorial to the Dominion Government regarding recruiting, was passed by the Hamilton Recruiting League, March 7, 1916:

Whereas, this Dominion is engaged in a war involving the very existence of British institutions— a war that calls for the most rigid economy of men and means—a war that can be successfully concluded only by the fullest utilization of all our resources.

Whereas, under the present voluntary system there is great waste of the Nation's resources.

The Hamilton Recruiting League humbly begs the Government of Canada to appoint a Commission for the purpose of:

(a) Taking a census of all men in the Dominion from 18 years and upward, specifying those married and unmarried.

(b) Classifying the men according to their occupations or their fitness or preference for certain kinds of work.

(c) Classifying the industries with a view to the restriction or the ultimate elimination of such as are non-essential to the welfare of the country or are not economic factors.

(d) It being understood that the foregoing is urged with a view to the immediate application of some just and comprehensive system of draft whereby the men necessary to complete the Canadian Expeditionary forces may be readily secured.

The Hamilton Recruiting League has been a very active agency in the enlistment of soldiers. It may fairly claim a share of the credit that is due to Hamilton for her splendid contribution to the Forces of the Empire.

From its intimate knowledge of the workings of the voluntary system, the League has reached the conclusion that for Canada to continue its present methods would be highly detrimental to the welfare of the country.

Canada has without doubt attracted to the colours a very superior class of men who are actuated by the noblest principles of patriotism and duty.

Almost every industry and family is suffering unnecessary loss through the present haphazard method of enlistment.

The first class of men who should be called upon for service are the unmarried fit men who could be released from their present occupations without serious loss to anyone.

Probably this class would suffice to complete the forces which Canada is pledged to supply.

The country could thus fulfill its obligations without serious disturbance of its internal economy.

A system of wise selection should appeal strongly to every loyal member of the community. It is not contrary to the spirit of true Liberty for which the Empire is fighting. That liberty for which a man will not fight is not deserving of the name. No man is free from the duty of defending the State.

It is not suggested that the proposed System of Selection should be permanent. Extraordinary need justifies extraordinary measures.

It is hoped that all who are in sympathy with the above Memorial will exert their utmost influence to further its objects.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Kindly allow me to raise my voice on this burning question of Dr. Workman's teaching. We are living in thrilling times, first Pastor Russell, then Dr. Workman to unsettle us. Do our ministers not know that this is a thing they will have to face sooner or later? To nine-tenths of our men the story of the Virgin Birth is a stumbling block, and if the Ministerial Association are all so convinced of the truth of the doctrines taught, why didn't they have the courage of their convictions and say so at the time instead of taking to the public press to justify themselves after Dr. Workman had gone? In fact they had too many manners to be truthful, and like Peter of old they saw the Christ being crucified and denied Him. A few years ago when the Rev. J. Campbell of the London Tabernacle said publicly "that very few ministers believed in the miraculous birth" he was met by a storm of vituperation from all communities. There was one unitarian minister in Glasgow who said "that it had been his own belief for years, but it was not politic to say so." Probably that may be where many of our teachers stand to-day. Let our ministers answer our questions if they can give us the right to ask them when we require to and the result will be a better and a purer people by the grace of God.

F. A. SEGER.

March 18th, 1916. McGill Street.

There is more truth than poetry in the saying "Birds of a feather flock together." The Ministerial Association of our city seem to have a special liking for those theological professors who are striving to unsettle the faith of the people in God's word. We remember not so long ago the Ministerial Association invited Prof. Geo. Jackson to our city and gave him a banquet similar to the one given to Dr. Workman last Monday eve. This Prof. Jackson and Dr. Workman are at one as regards their belief of the Virgin birth of Christ. Hear what he (Prof. Jackson) has to say in his latest book on this question: "With regard to the virgin birth of Christ it is perahps too soon to speak with confidence. . . The belief is in no sense fundamental to Christianity and may without prejudice be left an open question." Modern Mind, pgs. 157-168.

I went to say, Mr. Editor, that if Peterborough is a fair sample of the state of things among our preachers and Christendom can we wonder that the Lord has permitted the earth to be smitten with the curse. This time has come spoken of in the sure word of prophecy, viz.: "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears, and they shall turn away their ears from the truth and shall be turned into fables." 2 Tim., 4-3-4.

Yours truly,
JNO. CARLISLE.

P.S.—Christianity stands or falls with the doctrine of the virgin birth of Christ. If that doctrine is not true the whole race is lost, for if Christ came of the seed of sinful man he himself was a sinner. He could not redeem. J. C.

TOOK THE ADVICE OF HIS FRIEND

Stomach Trouble and Rheumatism Relieved By 'Fruit-a-tives'

MR. L. LAGRAE
394 Champlain St., Montreal.

"I have been restored to health by taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. For two years, I was a miserable sufferer from Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble. I became very weak, had frequent dizzy spells and when I took food, felt wretched and sleepy. I suffered from Rheumatism dreadfully, with pains in my back and joints and my hands swollen.

A friend advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and from the outset, they did me good. After I had started the second box, I felt I was getting well and I persevered in the treatment. I can truthfully say that 'Fruit-a-tives' is the only medicine that helped me.

Italian Attacks Are Easing Off

Vienna Claims Repulse of Attempted Advance Against Podgora

BERLIN, March 18.—An official Austrian communication says: "On the fronts of the armies of Generals Pflanzer, Baltin and Boehm-Ermolli there was increased activity by the artillery on both sides. Russian attacks north-east of Kozlov, on the Stripa, were repulsed.

"Italian attacks on the Isonzo front decreased in violence. Two attempts to advance against the Podgora position by strong Italian forces were impeded by artillery fire. An Italian attack on the northern slope of San Michele was repulsed with sanguinary losses. At many places there were artillery duels during the night. On the Carinthian front there is artillery fire in the Fella sector."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged, and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everybody should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well known druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

THE KINGDOM OF THE SKY

This column is written for The Examiner by the Peterborough Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. Ottawa may join this society by paying two dollars. Every member receives twelve books, star maps, Observer's Guide, and other scientific data free from the Ottawa Government. The society will endeavor to give answers to all astronomical questions that may be sent in.

NORTH

SOUTH

Standing upon any of the streets of Peterborough that run north and south, facing to the south you will see a little more than two-thirds up the sky, almost upon to the zenith, straight above your head, a very bright red star. This is our nearest neighbour in the Heavens, the planet Mars.

How it gets its fiery red colour, we will discuss later.

If you have kept last Saturday's Examiner, you will more easily be able to trace the star groups as they appear from week to week. A little east of Mars you will see a group of stars in the form of a sickle, this group forms part of the constellation of Leo the Lion, one of the signs of the zodiac. Regulus, a star of the first magnitude, is situated at the end of the handle. The third star in the sickle counting from Regulus is a beautiful double. To the naked eye it just seems to be one star. But when seen through a good telescope it is seen to be double.

It is estimated that it takes about 400 years for these two stars to revolve around each other.

Denebola, a bright star, about twenty-five degrees to the east of Regulus, forms part of this constellation.

Strange to say the greater number of the bright stars in the Heavens, are just great balls of gas. Vega, Deneb, Spica, Sirius and many more all belong to this early class.

Stars of this class are very tenuous and shine with greater proportionate light than do the stars of later development.

Regulus is a little further advanced and is of the solar Sirius class, and is one of the great suns of the Heavens. It emits a thousand times more light than does our sun.

Were Regulus to change places with our sun, human life could not exist here. It is estimated that Regulus is distant from us about a quadrillion miles and each year it increases this distance about five hundred millions of miles.

The sun passes through the constellation of Leo from about the second week of August to the third week of September.

Regulus is almost exactly on the ecliptic. If you could see that star in daylight, you would see Regulus and the sun almost together about the first of September.

Within the curve of the blade of the sickle is the point from which the November meteors come to us. These meteors are called after this constellation "The Leonids."

Much more interesting to us, than is Leo, is the ruddy planet to the west of it. It is the fourth known planet from the sun. Some authorities claim that there is still another planet between the sun and Mercury. They base their claim on the fact that Mercury during a part of its orbit goes at a more rapid rate than can be accounted for by the known mass of the sun and the family of planets.

However no astronomer has been able to detect the mythical "Vulcan." So we may say that first there is Mercury, and Venus. (Venus is still shining very brightly in the early evening, low down in the western sky.) and the Earth, and fourth our interesting neighbour, Mars.

The outer planets are still in a semi-gaseous state. We will not in this article discuss how the planets broke away from their parent body, that will be noticed in a future article.

In the far distant past, some estimate it as about 100,000,000 years ago. All the planets glowed with their own heat, just as the sun does today. In fact the planets differ in no respect from the sun except in development.

The whole solar system was virtually a family of suns. Following a very simple law, if you put a small and a large block of metal in a great furnace and bring them both to white heat, then take them out and let them cool. You will find that the smaller body has cooled more rapidly than has the larger body.

The moon being quite small, comparatively, has already gone through all its stages and is now a burnt out cinder, sterile and dead.

Now about Mars and its probable inhabitants. We find that this article is going to be fairly long. Not wishing to weary the reader we will divide it into three chapters. We will call this article chapter one. The others will follow in due course.

Band Grant Stays At $250 Apparently

Finance Committee Declined to Accede to Deputation's Request

Ald. Evans wanted to wipe out the grants to the Horticultural Society and Peterborough Industrial Exhibition at last night's meeting of the Finance Committee. Ultimately the most he would make the Horticultural grant was $300. A few nights ago it was reduced from $900 to $800.

Ald. Weir and Ald. Saunders moved that another $100 be lopped off, making the grant $100. Ald. McIntyre supported them, but Ald. Stratton, Ald. Evans and Mayor Duffus tied it up.

Ald. Evans was agreeable to $300 and the Mayor and Ald. Stratton opposed the extra cut. The Mayor suggested splitting the difference and the grant to the flower lovers went through at $750. "I wouldn't have them kicking at us for a "measly" $50, said Ald. Stratton.

Then came the Exhibition grant.

Ald. Evans—"I heard a merchant say the Exhibition did harm. It came too early."

Ald. Saunders recalled a fair day of Sept. 29th, when he nearly perished with the cold.

Ald. Weir—"What is it worth to the city to hold the Exhibition? Is it worth as much as the 12th of July? I don't believe it is.

Mayor Duffus—"If you can't make it $800, make it $500.

Ald. McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Weir that this grant be reduced to $500. Only Ald. Stratton and the Mayor opposed. Last year it was $900.

The Band appropriation was not increased and it is recommended that the $250 set aside be for general Band purposes and not given to any organization.

Mayor Duffus — "Remember what Mr. Hall said."

Ald. Stratton—"Yes. The man that hath no music in himself.

Nor is not moved with the concord of sweet sounds;

Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils."

Ald. Weir — "That was Shakespeare's opinion.

The Peterborough Health Association's $600 grant was not increased.

Ald. Evans termed it the fad of a few doctors and his way would have been an elimination of the grant.

The Patriotic Pageant Was A Great Success

Under Auspices of "Fidelis" And Olive Mission Bands at Trinity Church Hall Last Evening

One of the finest productions of its kind ever put on in the city was presented by a hundred young people last night in the Charlotte street Sunday school hall. It took the form of a pageant portraying. "War Time in Song and Story," a book written by Mrs. Knight of Port Arthur, and was held under the auspices of the "Fidelis" and "Olive" Mission Bands. From beginning to end it was a huge success.

The stage was decorated with bunting and flags of the Allies, and the presence of a number of soldiers of the 93rd added realism to the scenes.

The programme was opened by a Salute to the Flag, by members of the 93rd, John Bull (Pte. Palmer Wiley) coming on later to introduce the flag.

The March of the Allies by twenty little girls was particularly good and included Italy, Serbia and Portugal.

A pleasing part of this number was the presentation of bouquets to Mrs. (Rev.) Lewis and Mrs. Knapman, in appreciation of their labour in preparing the pageant.

Mr. Edward Jones, tenor, favoured the large audience with a pleasing solo, "Land of Light and Glory."

Bandsman W. Walno contributed a cornet sol, which was well received.

Another delightful feature of the evening was the appearance of Mr. Thos. G. Stratton in highland costume, who sang, in his inimitable style, two songs which were heartily encored.

Mr. Edgar H. Finlay of Fraserville, sang two tenor solos, "Heroes and Gentemen" and "Canada Fill In," with good effect.

Miss Alberta Curtis and Mr. J. H. Renwick were the accompanists for the evening.

TYPEWRITER NEWS.

Why Your Records Will Cost You Less

THIS price-reduction is the direct outcome of making records in Canada.
The facilities of the Canadian factory have been increased—bigger production lowers the cost—and the public benefits.
A standard price of 85 cents is now applied to all 10-inch Columbia records excepting only the Grand Opera, or "Symphony" series, which have already been reduced in price.
For 12-inch records, a standard price of $1.25 has been made possible.

Columbia

Here are a few of the latest Columbia selections—a foretaste of the life, fun, sentiment and classic beauty represented in the April Columbia list, now on sale.

A-1940, 10 in., 85c. TWENTY LAUGHS ON TWO RECORDS. COMIC AS A FUNERAL. MICKEY, MACKEY, COMEDY MONOLOGUE. MRS. DUGAN'S DISCOVERY. STEVE PORTER. COMEDY MONOLOGUE. For cut to gain weight. "Mrs. Dugan's Discovery," character, in the humorous style of the "Mickey" hear that surely.

A-1946, 10 in., 85c. EXQUISITE EASTER SELECTIONS. THE HOLY CITY. EVAN WILLIAMS, PRINCE'S ORCHESTRA. DAWN OF HOPE. PRINCE'S ORCHESTRA. "Easter Chimes" opens with a stirring prelude with ecclesiastical interludes, while "Dawn of Hope" is a "reverie"—veiled harmonies of wind and string, a contrasted and exquisite companion piece for the "Chimes."

A-1942, 10 in., 85c. LATEST MARIMBA SELECTIONS. THE ROSIEST SUSANNA (Gilbert) ROYAL MARIMBA BAND. THE FLAG OF GUATEMALA (Hartado) ROYAL MARIMBA BAND.
It may be the combination of native Guatemalan players, Guatemalan music and the Guatemalan marimbas that aided the Hartado Brothers to play so well the "Flag of Guatemala." These are happy additions to the repertoire of the marimba experts.

A-1935, 10 in., 85c. HAWAIIAN MELODIES BY GUITAR EXPERTS—ON THE BEACH AT WAIKIKI. HAPA HAOLE HULA GIRL. The liquid purity of the Hawaiian language extends to their instrumental music as well, and this purity and sweetness is in every note of the expert guitar playings of Helen Louise and Frank Ferera.

A-1939, 10 in., 85c. TWO EASTER HYMNS—THE PALMS. Tenor and Baritone Duet, Orchestra accompaniment. THE RESURRECTION, Baritone Solo. Orchestra accompaniment.

A-5775, 12 in., $1.25. TWO GEMS OF ORCHESTRAL COMPOSITION—COMEDY OVERTURE. PRINCE'S ORCHESTRA. TALES OF HOFFMAN. MARCAROLLE. PRINCE'S ORCHESTRA.

We invite you, in behalf of the Columbia Company and the Columbia dealers, to visit any Columbia store and hear any of these, or other records that may appeal to your taste.

occupy the same position of leadership among machines, that Columbia records have attained among records. Priced reasonably, considering their unquestioned supremacy; and with the War Tax not included in the price you pay, but paid by the Columbia Company out of its profits

The De Luxe - - $250.

The Conquerer - $15. Other models priced according to size and tone value. Complete Grafonola catalogue free.

No deviation from the high Columbia standard. It is the price only that is lowered—not a jot, the quality. That will always be maintained. The same brilliant tone, the same clear sound-production that has won for Columbia Double-Disc records the distinct preference so widely accorded them.

This announcement means a big saving to you—to all owners of disc machines. For Columbia records fit any such machine. It means, for instance, that those delightful Hawaiin and Marimba selections for which you have heretofore gladly paid a dollar apiece, can now be obtained for 85c each.

Columbia records are double—a selection on each side.

And such selections. The very latest song hits and a vast variety of standard music, as played or sung by the world's greatest artists, and entertainers.

Yarn of the "Bonworth" Brand Booms Business at the Bonner-Worth

Extensive Additions to Be Made in All Departments---Their Product is Being Used From Coast to Coast--A Most Promising Outlook

Extensions are the order of the day at the Bonner-Worth. This is not to be wondered at, for they have on their books at the present time orders which will require eighteen months to fill. Besides, the outlook is so promising the management have decided to erect additions to their plant, which will take care of their increasing business for some time to come.

From the date of its inception in 1911 the progress of this company has been most marked. Within a year and a half additions were made which increased the capacity 25 per cent.; the following year another extension added fully 50 per cent., and last year a commodious office building was constructed at the east end of the main structure, relieving considerable space, which was filled with as many machines as could be crowded in.

EXPANSION YEAR.

Nineteen-sixteen will be known as expansion year, for, as soon as weather permits, contractors are to start work on additions which will add fully 75 per cent. to the spinning, and 50 per cent. to the dyeing departments.

The main building will be extended as far east as the creek, some 110 feet, and to a depth of 66 feet, with basement of stone and two stories of brick in conformity with the present style of architecture. To the rear of this another structure, 150 x 40, two stories high, will be erected for the dyeing and shipping departments. Besides, a new boiler house to front on Cambridge Street will be put up to accommodate a battery of three boilers. These will be used exclusively for dyeing and heating, their source of power being the city's Hydro system.

All the new machinery needed has been on order for five months, part of it being now on its way from England, where it is manufactured. In fact England is the only country from which it can be obtained.

Building operations will be rushed with all possible speed, and they hope to have everything completed and ready for operation by the end of June.

A SPLENDID GROWTH.

The company's agreement with the city called for the employment of thirty-five hands. At the present time there are one hundred and ninety on the pay roll, one-third being male, mostly householders, and the balance females. These receive work all the year round, and represent a pay roll approximating $100,000.00 a year, which finds its way into about one hundred and fifty homes, and finally to the merchants and banks of the city of Peterborough.

Between the employees and the company there have always existed the most harmonious relations. This not only has warded off any labour troubles, but has created among the employees a hearty spirit of co-operation, which spells "success" for the firm, and "welfare" for themselves.

Then the situation of the plant close to the homes of its operators fosters a feeling of contentment. A part of the city healthier and freerer from smoke could not have been chosen; besides it has the advantage of being near the best park, and is well served with street car service.

SPECIALIZE ON ONE PRODUCT.

One reason for the phenomenal growth of the company is the fact that instead of dissipating their energies over a number of ventures they confine their attention to one product only—that of worsted yarns, and in this they specialize.

Their output is being used to-day from coast to coast, by women, in knitting socks for our brave soldiers. Each skein that leaves the factory bears a little label with the imprint of the company's trade mark.

BONWORTH MADE IN CANADA BRAND

The choice of this combination was a most fortunate one. "Bon" from the French, signifies "good," and "Worth" is symnonymous with "value." Therefore their trade mark means "good value," and the knowledge of this has been indelibly impressed upon the women of Canada since the war began, for there is practically no other yarn on the market that approaches it either in value or quality. The experience of the T. Eaton Co. is a sample of conditions everywhere. They say they are scarcely able to get it on the counters before it is snapped up.

A YORKSHIRE PRODUCT.

Previous to the war there was an idea prevalent that worsted yarns could not be made outside of England. As a matter of fact, the greater portion of the yarn used in this country was imported from Yorkshire, but when hostilities broke out the British factories had all they could do to supply their own needs. Consequently, as the Bonner-Worth was the only firm in Canada dealing extensively in worsted yarns, Canadian manufacturers had to come to them, even those who were prejudiced against the Canadian product.

Of course there are other firms which make yarn, such as the Forbes Co. of Hespeler, the Guelph Carpet Co., and the Toronto Carpet Co., but they have either carpet, cloth, or knitting mills which use up practically all their output. The Peterborough firm, on the other hand, manufacture nothing, save the yarn, which they sell to other concerns, who use it in weaving carpet or cloth, or in knitting sweaters, hosiery, etc.

Then it must be remembered that "Bonworth" yarn is virtually a Yorkshire product. The raw material is the same as is used in Yorkshire; the machines were made in Yorkshire; the foremen were born, bred and learned their trade in Yorkshire, or in Scotland near by, while the Worth family themselves have been associated with the business in Bradford, England, for over half a century.

MADE IN CANADA YARNS.

While the war may have had an indirect effect in boosting their business, it is not the chief reason for the contemplated extensions. It is because their product is becoming so widely and favourably known throughout the Dominion—the campaign of education having been accelerated to a large extent by conditions arising out of the war.

After it is over, the textile industries in Canada are bound to be busy, as stock will be depleted on account of everybody supplying the Government, and the people will be educated to the advantage of using made-in-Canada yarns.

THE MEN BEHIND THE FIRM.

The officials behind this enterprising company are: Mr. Edgar Worth, secretary-treasurer and manager; Mr. Dyson Worth, superintendent; Mr. J. W. Worth, superintendent of the spinning department; Mr. Harry Hoyle, superintendent of drawing; and Mr. Robert Yeaman, superintendent of the dyeing department.

Mr. W. G. Worth, who was associated with Mr. J. W. Worth in the spinning department, has answered the call of his country, and is now a Lieutenant in the 93rd Battalion, having charge of recruiting at Havelock. In all nine employees have enlisted so far, and two or three are expecting to do so any day.

It is with a great deal of satisfaction that the citizens of Peterborough learn of the splendid success which this firm is making, for flourishing industries mean a progressive city.

Truly "Peterborough presents possibilities unparalleled."

SPRING IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

A Tonic Medicine is a Necessity at This Season

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all year round tonic, blood-builder and nerve-restorer. But they are especially valuable in the spring when the system is loaded with impurities as a result of the indoor life of the winter months. There is no other season when the blood is so much in need of purifying and enriching, and every dose of these Pills helps to make new, rich, red blood. In the spring one feels weak and tired—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give strength In the spring the appetite is often poor—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills develop the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. It is in the spring that poisons in the blood find an outlet in disfiguring pimples, eruptions, and boils—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills speedily clear the skin because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood. In the spring anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, erysipelas and many other troubles are most persistent because of poor, weak blood, and it is at this time when all nature takes on new life that the blood most seriously needs attention Some people dose themselves with purgatives at this season, but these only further weaken themselves. A purgative merely gallops through the system, emptying the bowels, but it does not cure anything. On the other hand Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood, which reaches every nerve and organ in the body, bringing new strength, new health and vigor to weak, easily tired men, women and children. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring—they will not disappoint you.

You can get these health-renewing Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SAXONY INCREASES INCOME TAX.

DRESDEN, March 18.—The Finance Committee of the Second Chamber of Parliament voted unanimously to revise the income tax schedules so that persons receiving $5,500 annually shall pay ten per cent., and those receiving $10,000 or more shall contribute thirty per cent. of their incomes to the state. Fathers supporting three or more children and having incomes less than $1,200 are exempted from the increase.

Heroic Gallantry.

In spite of the early neglect to record the achievements of the Irish as well as the other regiments, the heroic gallantry of the Irish soldier has now taken full possession of the English mind. Everybody here wants to join St. Patrick's Day demonstrations as a testimony of their magnificent towards the defense of the liberties of Europe.

Let us put down, while fresh in my memory, some impressions of the now memorable visit of the British section of the Franco-British Parliamentary committee to Paris. I note the friendly reception we got wherever we went. France is very sensitive at this moment to any signs of sympathy. I compare her to a woman who has lost her only child. France has lost a large number of her children, and everybody who comes to her with a word of sympathy is taken to her bosom. Recognizing the thoroughly friendly and warm spirit of the representatives of the British Parliament, France accordingly was ready to extend to them every mark of affection and respect. There was nothing too good for them. They lived in a whirl of attention from everybody in the country. They were scarcely in Paris when they received a friendly welcome from M. Briand, the Prime Minister. From him they went to the President. They returned from the President's house later in the evening to tea; they were received by both the Senate and Chamber of Deputies; they were received by the Municipality at the Hotel de Ville, and finally they attended a brilliant luncheon, where M. Briand presided. There were to have been several speeches there; but the battle of Verdun was then at its fiercest, and it seemed untimely to make speeches when many of the best soldiers of France were shedding their blood in resisting the fiercest attack the Germans have made for a long time.

The Social Side.

This was the more social side of the visit. I hasten to add something about the meetings of the committee itself. It occurred to our committee that the best work we could do was to make a full detailed, but modest statement of the efforts of the British Empire to bring the war to a successful issue. We do so largely because so much has been published in a certain type of British journal concerning our drawbacks and shortcomings that we thought there might be a real danger of our efforts not being sufficiently or clearly realized The papers were committed to four members of our committee — Lord Desart, Mr. Evelyn Cecil, Mr. MacKinder and General Sir Ivor Herbert. The papers were in French, and were read by the gentleman who wrote them—all admirable French scholars. These papers were admirably drawn up, conveying all the information which could with safety be given. They were full of recognition of all that had been done by our gallant ally on land and sea.

The arrangement was that each of these papers should be commented upon by members of the French committee. I am not at liberty to go into the details of either of our papers or of the French replies for the moment. I hope that some day both will be published. But I may with discretion give a general view of the impressions which we all drew from these discussions, and especially from the French speeches.

First Impression.

And the first impression I must say was one of surprise; the second one of gratification; the third—as I will presently explain—of a slight humiliation. The members of the French committee were all picked men. Several of them had already held high office. The President was M. Clemenceau, one of the most powerful figures in French life for nearly half a century, and in recent years Prime Minister. M. Clemenceau is now seventy-five years old. He was unable to attend the meetings of the committee, except to deliver the reply to the admirable opening speech of our President, Lord Bryce, whose world-wide reputation was a tower of strength to us in France. Never can anybody who heard it forget the speech of M. Clemenceau. It startled, dazzled, moved everybody who heard it. Several of the French members—not all of them political friends of M. Clemenceau—wept openly. When it had ended we really didn't know what to do. We were all so thrilled that it seemed too great a leap back to ordinary life. So M. Franklin-Bouillon, to the relief of everybody, got up and moved that we should adjourn until afternoon.

Then began the business discussions. The first surprise came from the fact that the French delegates spoke of the inner history of the war with an intimacy of knowledge that was extraordinary. Whoever is ignorant of our gigantic efforts and of every detail of these efforts, it is not the leading advocates of the British Empire and of its efforts. We found the best informed and the warmest advocates of us and our efforts among the Frenchmen, themselves.

A New Link.

I give as an example a quite extraordinary speech on the question of freight. Everybody knows that this is a delicate and complicated question, especially for some of our Allies. Everybody knows that the agents and press of Germany have been spreading all kinds of rumours, in the vain hope that this question would create some irritation and division. If any German had been present at our meetings, he would have found how vain was this hope. The defence of our position was made by a Frenchman in terms and with an array of facts which could not have been improved by Mr. Runciman, in a speech in the House of Commons. It was the same with every other issue raised by our papers. Lord Desart's exposition of our naval policy and of its results throughout the world were not more enthusiastic in its plea than the speech of the French speaker who replied. It was the same with all the papers. The French speaker seemed to command as much knowledge and he gave even more recognition to our case than the British speakers. I didn't exaggerate in a phrase that I used, addressing M Clemenceau when the proceedings had ended, when I said that every word, every single word uttered, during these meetings of the Committee had added a new link to the chain of amity which united the two people in this great struggle for liberty and civilizaton.

Inside Facts.

But I have said there was also some feeling of humiliation. Though I was a member of it, I may be permitted to say that we had an excellent committee. They were one and all intelligent and broad minded men. But yet they all felt that they were at some disadvantage in these discussions, because of the much closer acquaintance with the inside facts of the war which was displayed by the Frenchmen. Our French delegate, for instance, gave a long description of the part which minerals had played in the war, especially in view of the fact that so much of the best mineral region of France had fallen into the hands of the enemies. Packed with facts in every line simple, lucid, every word telling this speech produced a profound effect on the British members. The French speaker to whom I have just alluded, did not refer to munitions except in so far as they were influenced by the supply of minerals; he is, I understand, the President of the Commiftee of the French Chamber of Deputies, which deals with munitions. I was told by a Frenchman that this gentleman has every morning a full return of every rifle, of every shell, of every fuse that is manufactured in France, or supplied to her from abroad; that he exercises the most constant vigilance on these returns, and in that way is a most important assistant to the War Office. It was the same with the other departments of the Government. One remarkable young deputy for instance is chairman of the committee of aircraft; and some of the most useful and novel inventions in that department are due to his initiative. Similarly there were members there who had seen the chief despatches, and heard in secret the communications of the Ministers with respect to the foreign relations of France. In fact we found ourselves in the presence not merely of private members of Parliament, but with men who had all the knowledge and as much capacity as the members of the Ministry itself.

Skilled Intelligence.

The first impression of course was the skilled intelligence of the representatives of France; the next was of their splendid and tireless industry; but the third was of a more complex feeling. Everybody knows that they have a different system in the French Parliament from that in ours. In the French Parliament there is a system of committee covering all the national life; and each of these commissions has the right to see all papers and to summon to their presence all the Ministers. It is the honourable record of the French Parliament that the proceedings in these commissions are almost always kept secret; certainly never a word has escaped since the war. The results are two-fold. On the one hand that the members of the Commission know everything that is going on as well as the departments to which they refer; and this accounts for that large and intimate knowledge of the events of the war and of their inner history with which the French delegates surprised and pleased us. The second result is that every member of the French Parliament gets an opportunity of working his very best for his country. Every member belongs to some committee; thus every member is doing some kind of government work.

Plenty of Work.

In our Parliament, on the other hand, it is the rule that the Ministers shall be allowed to work in secrecy except so far as they are ready to communicate their information to the House of Commons. Two results again follow; first, the majority of the House are entirely in the dark as to what is going on; and secondly, that again, a large majority of the House are without any public employment in the inner services of their country, just at the moment when every man's service is necessary and when every man is filled with a desire to do his bit for his country. It was a remarkable fact of the French Committee that while there were plenty of veterans among its members, there were also plenty of youngsters. Men who come into the House while they are still young are immediately taken up by the older members—often quite irrespective of party differences, are put to some useful job; and thus the race of experts is being constantly recruited, and there are no indispensible men.

I do not pronounce a final opinion on the two systems, though I have strong leanings towards the one view. I note the fact of the difference at this moment as one of the most remarkable lessons I have received of the different results of the two different systems. Here I have said that the superior knowledge of details and inner history which the French delegates displayed, created a certain sense of humiliation and of helplessness among at least some of our members. Whether we are prepared, however, for a different system I cannot say. I do not think that on that point we should be unanimous, but any how, the thing is worth thinking about, and by and by and in easier times may come up again for discussion.

I had the pleasure of sitting close to M. Briand during the lunch given to us by the French Committee. I felt at once under that charm which has made him so powerful and so popular a figure in French politics. I have men many great public men in great positions; I have never met one who seemed so completely free from any sense of his own superiority or of his great position.

From Paris some of our delegates went to Bodeaux—the greatest, perhaps, of French commercial cities Bordeaux looked as busy, as prosperous, as full of work and wealth as if there were no war. We had the same whirl of invitations and of manifestations, lunches, teas, receptions by the Mayor and by all the other authorities, winding up with a great meeting in a large public hall. This was the first public meeting held in France since the opening of the war. Here and there you saw many women in mourning—a sad reminder of the gigantic war. The audience seemed to become most deeply interested when British speakers began to address them. It was evident that meetings of this kind in other great cities of France would be beneficially necessary. The French politicians know all about us and our friendship and all about our efforts but the masses are not so well informed. Every British speaker who goes to France to tell our tale helps make the countries understand each other better, and knits them more closely and indissolubly together in their great common effort.

Finally, in the two committees there was the living proof of the unity of the two nations. The British Conservatives were no friendlier to the British Liberals and Labour men and Irish Nationalists than the ardent French Catholics and the old-time French free-thinkers were to each other. The whole business gave me hope that after the war, we may in both countries and in the face of the savage and intolerable enemy approach our own differences in a broader, more tolerant and kindlier spirit.

How You May Throw Away Your Glasses

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one Bon-Opto tablet in ¼ glass of water. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind, or nearly so, or who wear glasses might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. The Valmar Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

"A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, made the statement that Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. His experiment investigations are said appears to embrace eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. It can be obtained from any druggist in the United and in case of the very slightest benefit, the contents of the bottle be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

Requisition Sheet For Fire Dept.

Chief Howard welcomed the idea of a monthly requisition sheet for the Fire Department, as suggested by Ald. Stratton yesterday. Henceforth, practically all supplies required by the department will be listed by the Chief, who on his requisition sheet will indicate the stocks on hand.

Chief Howard reported that Fireman Joseph Burkton had slipped in one of the stables on January 11 and sprained an ankle. He remained at work until January 27, when he was examined by the M. O. H., and a small bone in his right foot was found broken. Burkton was absent from duty one month. Chief Howard said that in two former cases men injured while at work had been paid their salary.

Ald. Galbraith moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that Fireman Burkton receive one month's pay for period off duty.

Fireman Thomas Hatley, on the force since July last, has enlisted in the 93rd Battalion.

The usual provision was made that on his return, his position will be open to him if he is in a physical condition to resume it.

FRECKLES

March Brings Out Unsightly Spots How to Remove Easily.

The woman with tender skin dreads March because it is likely to cover her face with ugly freckles. No matter how thick her veil, the sun and winds have a strong tendency to make her freckle.

Fortunately for her peace of mind the prescription, othine — double-strength, makes it possible for even those most susceptible to freckles to keep their skin clear and white. No matter how stubborn a case of freckles you have, the double strength othine should remove them.

Get an ounce from your druggist and banish the freckles. Money back if it fails.

FIRE BETRAYED WHISKEY STILL.

MONTREAL, March 18. —A two thousand gallon illicit whiskey still in operation in the heart of the city, was discovered last night by firemen while fighting a blaze in the premises partly occupied as a barber college. The moonshiners had tapped a gas pipe and thus secured free fuel.

MAJ. GAULT PAID FOR IT.

OTTAWA, March 18.—Major Hamilton Gault's contribution towards raising the Princess Patricia has been fully paid and reports to the contrary are without foundation.

"When the war broke out," said the Deputy Minister of Militia, Major Gault gave his cheque for $100,000. It was payable to the Receiver-General a year after date, and was deposited with his bankers."

The Deputy Receiver-General, who was seen subsequently, stated: "The amount that Major Gault subscribed has been paid. It was a hundred thousand dollars."

HER LITTLE BOY HAD PNEUMONIA
NEARLY LOST HIM.
DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP SAVED HIM.

The slight cold, the irritating cough, the tightness of the chest, if not attended to, will sooner or later develop into some serious lung or bronchial trouble, and our advice to you is that on the first inception of a cough or cold "GET RID OF IT."

Mrs. H. Washburn, Gaspereaux Station, N.B., writes: "I thought I would write and tell you just how much I appreciate Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for I would not be without it in the house. Twice my little boy, now four years old, has had pneumonia, and nearly died, but since using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup I have kept him clear of even a cough. I often say that if it had not been for "Dr. Wood's" I would have lost him."

"My little girl, ten months old, is subject to bronchitis, but when she seems to be stuffed up and has difficulty in breathing I give her a few drops of Norway Pine Syrup every two or three hours, and in a very little while she is all well, in fact, on the first signs of a cold or cough we all fly for 'Dr. Wood's'."

You can procure Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup from any druggist or dealer, but be sure and get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it, as there are many imitations on the market.

The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c.

PUBLIC MEETING WILL BE HELD IN MARKET HALL

Communication to That Effect Has Been Addressed to The Various Municipalities Throughout The District — The Completion of The Trent Canal

MR. GILLESPIE WILL SPEAK

The appended communication, which is self-explanatory, has been addressed to the members of the various municipal bodies in Central and Eastern Ontario.

Sirs,—The Acting Minister of Railways and Canals, the Hon. J. D. Reid, and the Provincial Minister of Water Powers, Forests and Mines, the Hon. G. H. Ferguson, have accepted an invitation to address a public meeting in the City Market Hall, Peterborough, Friday evening, March 31st, at 8 o'clock, upon Water Power, Electric Power and Radial Railways in Central and Eastern Ontario.

Mayor Duffus of Peterborough will preside. Notices are being sent to members of both Houses of Parliament and to municipal councils and other public bodies throughout the district.

It is most important that the people of Central and Eastern Ontario shall avail themselves of every opportunity to impress upon the representatives of both Governments their earnest and imperative desire that the good work of establishing public ownership of water powers, shall be followed up by the development and distribution of power for Hydro power purposes, on the farm, in the factory, and for Hydro-radial railways.

Governments can go only so far as the mandate of the people directs and unless the agitation which has been lately conducted for public ownership and the introduction of Hydro and Hydro-radials be followed up by what may be considered a mandate for their extension, the good work will only be half done.

The meeting at Peterborough is intended to be one of a series to be held at different points in the district, at which Ministerial representatives of both Governments and Sir Adam Beck will be invited to address the public.

The time and place of the next meeting to be addressed by Sir Adam Beck, it is understood, is being arranged for, and will be announced at Peterborough.

Sir Adam Beck and the Ministers are meeting the public half way. Shall we not show ourselves eager to aid in pushing the work to a satisfactory completion?

The spring of 1916 will show the lower half of the Trent Canal open to Lake Ontario for light draught, and the spring of 1917 will show it open to Lake Ontario for its full draught of eight feet, as announced by the Minister.

If Central and Eastern Ontario do not prove equal to all these new opportunities it will not be the fault of their representatives in Parliament. The year 1916 may well be employed in preparation for a great future for this whole district, which now depends largely upon ourselves.

Yours truly,

J. H. Burnham,
M.P. West Peterborough.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., has also consented to speak.

Council in a Civic No-Man's Land Hears Contrary Opinions

Their Assault on Tax Rate Has Not Drawn Out The Entire Support of The Ratepayers And Some Alderman Wish They Had Never Made The Sally.

The Council finds itself caught in a civic "no-man's land," exposed to the fire of friend and foe, and uncertain as to which is friend and which foe. And some of them already wish they were back in the snug dugout from which they could snipe in security at exposed members of the budget.

But having lodged their recent attack on the trenches of expenditure, aimed particularly at decimating the salary section, some of their forces have draw nback from the welter of close-up fighting and, as a result, the whole assault has halted out in the open where, swept by counter fire, some are carrying on a policy of attrition and others are contemplating the chances of a dash back to their former lines.

Certainly the Council has reached a rather unenviable position. Actuated by concern for the average taxpayer the aldermen fell in behind Alderman Langford when he proposed the ten per cent. salary cut, and immediately commenced operations up and down the civic salary list. But the nearer they approached the selected line of attack, the faster their courage ebbed. Some of them could not, or would not thrust home the bayonet.

Hence they halted and listened to the expressions that swept around them. And what Alderman Dobbin heard turned to something akin to sarcasm. "The people don't want the measure of economy we set out to give them," said he. The Horticultural Society representing four or five hundred citizens want the usual contribution from the city; the band representing all the people hasn't asked for any less sum than they have been receiving; the directors of the Agricultural Society say touch any other grant you like, but not this. Hence it is apparent we are on the wrong track and won't get an "I thank you" for it. We are honestly trying to do what it seems we are not called upon to do. Besides this is a war year, and we can't run the city as before.

Alderman McIntyre—I agree with you.

Alderman Stratton — On George street you won't find one man who will not tell you we are on the right track, and the average man with a house worth $1,500 or $2,000 is in accord with us. I think we're working along the right lines. Let us keep the rates as low as we can in keeping with good municipal government.

Alderman Edgar—I have visited a lot of business places and I have not yet been taken to task by a single ratepayer. All said we were on the right track and doing the right thing.

Alderman Weir—Some men have told me they considered this Council the best the city has ever had. It is possible that some of these items will not be taken off. We may readjust them, but I think we are following the right lines.

Alderman Galbraith—All say the Council is doing a fair kind of thing. We certainly have got to economize.

Mayor Duffus—Some ratepayers might say we were doing the right thing when we would not be doing the best thing at all. I feel we will do what we think best. Last year too much money was spent. We did not look into it enough. Now we've got to economize.

Alderman Evans—I have been told we are on the right track, and that this action should have been started some time ago. The Council has been getting congratulations all along the way.

Many Opinions.

Hence, the Council has to form its own conclusions and decisions. Some citizens affirm that they are prepared for increased taxes this year. They expect them as part of the sacrifice war entails. Others welcome every reduction,—it doesn't make any difference whether it is a true economy or not, nor do they care who suffers, —that will save them a dollar. Let the other fellow make the sacrifice, fireman, policeman, it matters not. Then there are those of the sporting spirit who say not one cent from the firemen if the police don't get the same medicine. Again there are men who question the pruning of civic salaries when the mechanic making more money than ever, and a wage earner just as the city employee, is receiving increased wages throughout the circumstances now prevailing. Others claim that the Council is setting an example to employers in this policy of pruning.

These are some of the opinions the Council hears in the welter of their struggle with the tax rate. And it is scarcely to be wondered at that some of them wish they were on the safe side of the innocuous periscope the safety first instrumnet in past campaigns.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr. Was Elected

By-laws of the A. O. U. W. to Be Revised

Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., was elected to the executive committee of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, at the convention of the order held in Toronto. Rev. James Skene of Havelock was also chosen a member of the same committee.

Mr. Turner was also elected Deputy District Grand Master of the Counties, including Northumberland and Durham, but resigned this office in favour of Major McCaughey of Cobourg.

By a majority of 15,475, or more than nine-tenths of the vote cast, members have endorsed a private bill which is to be introduced in the legislature in a few days, providing for an adjustment of the beneficiary certificates of membership in the order so as to place the order on a sound financial basis and actuarial basis. The plan is to re-adjust the amounts of insurance carried by the members. For instance, a member carrying a thousand dollar policy, and paying premiums on that amount, will continue to pay the same premiums, but his insurance will be reduced to seven or eight hundred dollars, according to the amount of his premium.

BARRETT GREENWOOD AND LORAINE LESTER—In "When Dreams Come True," Grand Opera House next Tuesday, March 21. Speaking of this attraction The Detroit Free Press Says:

One of the most welcome, as it is one of the most original and fascinating, of recent musical comedies, is "When Dreams Come True." Sylvio Hein's music is hauntingly melodious and the book comes as near to flood tide in the way of theatrical libretti as anything this side of grand opera or "Robin Hood."

One song in it is enough to justify the presence of the work on the stage: that song is "When Dreams Come True." It is sung by Barrett Greenwood in the character of the prodigal son, Kean Hedges, on his way from Paris to New York, "broke" and facing paternal wrath. His accompaniment is performed on the violin by a young member of the cast billed simply as Beatrice, and the exquisite melody, representing Composer Hein's happiest inspiration, is taken up by the orchestra and played continuously until the rise of the curtain on the next act. This is a felicitous expedient and one that will doubly endear the song to lovers of the poetically and sentimentally appealing in music.

The settings of the operetta are as interesting as they are artistic, and the story is told in a way that demonstrates the value of intelligent dramatic action even in compositions that are primarily designed as mere amusement.

"When Dreams Come True" is a trumpet call to the musically inclined among theatregoers.—G. P. G.

THE DAN SPENCE AMBULANCE HAS OUTLIVED USEFULNESS

Council Learns That Undertakers Are Not Eager to Have It—Motor Driven Vehicles More Serviceable

The Dan Spence ambulance, a memorial of sacrifice and service of one of Peterborough's young men killed in the South African war, has got its usefulness in this age of motor driven vehicles. Undertakers say they are not eager to have it and the Council finds its disposal a new and pressing problem. Some suggested that it be turned over to the fire hall, but this would preclude its use in contagious cases. First the committee of the Whole passed it to the Finance committee and yesterday it was moved on to the Property committee.

In the meantime the Council has set aside $350 to be offered to the ambulance owners for services to those who may be unable to pay for them and would previously have called the Dan Spence ambulance.

In the words of Ald. McIntyre it is regrettable that some more lasting monument than an ambulance was not selected.

Studebaker

Representing the supreme effort of the GREAT Studebaker factories at Walkerville, the GREAT resources of the Studebaker Corporation and the long, long years of Studebaker's successful manufacturing experience, these new SERIES 17 Studebakers are the biggest values that Canada has ever seen.

In POWER, the new Studebakers are absolutely without rivals at such prices. No other 7-passenger, 4-cylinder car on the market offers FORTY Horse Power at any such price as $1225. And no other FIFTY Horse Power SIX is priced as low as $1450.

Both are SEVEN-passenger cars—big, roomy and inviting and finished as few cars at any price are finished. And both exhibit a series of new refinements in finish and mechanical design that have made these new models the sensation of 1916.

See the car before you decide on any. Note
—DIVIDED and adjustable front seats;
—tank in rear with Stewart Vacuum Feed;
—FULL-floating rear axle with complete equipment of Timken Bearings;
—overlapping, storm-proof windshield;
—deeper crown fenders;
—upholstery of the finest straight-grain, semi-glazed leather;
—more conveniently arranged instrument-on-dash with indirect illumination;
—Studebaker-Wagner Starting System;

And THEN, decide if any other car on the market offers you more REAL value for the price.

Capacity Audience Witnessed Presentation of "Innisfail"

Play Was Featured by Some Good Acting on The Part of Local Talent—Specialties Were Well Received—A Four Act Drama.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

In the presentation last evening of "Innisfail," a comedy drama of Irish life in four acts, the Dramatic Club of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society scored another success. A capacity audience was in attendance at the Grand Opera House when the curtain was raised, revealing Ross Castle, Killarney, by twilight. This was one of the many beautiful stage settings that contributed much to the success of the performance. The play is replete with a number of mirth provoking situations and a liberal repertoire of song numbers. A number of excellent specialties was introduced between the acts.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.

The cast of characters follows:
Felix O'Flaherty—Frank Grady.
Gerald O'Connell—Wm. Collins.
Brandon Benner—Vincent McCabe.
Con o' The Bogs—Jas. O'Brien.
Henry, Blackwood Headford—John McCabe.
Bartholomew O'Conner Malone—James Condon.
Boucher—P. J. Connolly.
Effie Headford—Lillian Simons.
Mary Ann Malone—Gertrude Clancy.
Mrs. Ford—Annie Simons.

The work of the performers was uniformly good. Mr. Frank Grady, as Felix O'Flaherty, supplied a fair proportion of the comedy, which constitutes one of the pleasing ingredients of the play, while William Collins as Gerald O'Connell, Vincent McCabe as Brandon Benner, and John McCabe as Henry Blackwood Headford, merited the applause they received during the performance. Jas. O'Brien as Con o' The Bogs came to an untimely end towards the close of the third act. His work was particularly good. James Condon and P. J. Connolly gave a pleasing impersonation of Bartholomew O'Connor Malone and Boucher respectively, while Miss Gertrude Clancy as Mary Ann Malone was excellent. Miss Lilian Simons as Effie Headford, met all the requirements of a part which was by no means an easy one, and Miss Annie Simons made much of her opportunity as Mrs. Ford.

SPECIALTIES.

The specialties were exceptionally good and were divided between the following:

Misses Clancy, Simons, Masterson, and Mahony.

Messrs. Bartley, Minnicola, Hoolihan, Murty, McCabe and Collins.

ST. PATRICK'S NIGHT AT ST. ANDREW'S

Young Ladies of the Church Provided an Enjoyable Entertainment The Programme

St. Patrick's night was celebrated in true Irish style at St. Andrew's hall last evening when a large number of people enjoyed a very happy time provided by the young ladies of the church. The hall was decorated in Irish colours, the tea room being most attractively arranged. Home-made cakes and candy were sold, while a fish pond also received a very liberal patronage.

The following was the programme rendered:

Vocal solo—Miss H. McLaren.
Instrumental solo—Mr. Wm. Jones.
Instrumental duet—Mrs. Kerr and Miss Edith Kerr.
Vocal solo—Mr. C. Blythe.
Vocal duet—Messrs. C. Blythe and W. Jones.
Selection — 93rd Saxaphone quartette.
Banjo selection—Mr. F. Clarke.
Vocal solo—Miss Bessie Reed.
Piano solo—Miss May Shearer.
Vocal solo—Miss Catharine Powell.

Trades and Labour Notes

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labour Council was held on Wednesday evening, with a fair attendance of delegates. President Chas. Hammacott was in the chair.

Credentials were read for two new members from the Typographical Union, and one from the Brewery Workers' Union.

After the reading of the minutes of last regular meeting, several communications were read and dealt with.

The Council endorsed the action of the Hydro-Electric Railway Association in protesting against the Dominion Government granting renewal of expired charters and other concessions to the Mackenzie and Mann interests.

The London Trades Council drew attention to the fact that ex-Alderman Max Lerner of that city had not been re-appointed on the Economic and Industrial Commission, in connection with the colonization of New Ontario lands. As ex-Ald. Lerner had been the moving spirit and originator of the scheme, it was considered unfair on the part of the Government that he had not been re-appointed, and a strong protest to that effect was ordered sent forward.

THE POLICE FORCE.

The Municipal Committee reported that City Council meetings had been attended by them, and reported on the rescinding of a motion re fixed assessment on the Grand Opera House.

The police force was the subject of considerable discussion, and it was the concensus of opinion that the force should be decreased at the present time, as rigid economy should be practised by the Police Commissioners and the City Council.

The report of the auditors for the previous half-year was received.

Another barber shop was reported unfair, this making four unfair shops. There were two other shops not union shops, which did not go in for price-cutting.

An interesting discussion arose in regard to the welfare of children after they have left school, and several good points were brought out. The school teachers should be qualified judges of the dispositions of children, as they would be in close contact with them while they were attending school, and could in all probability state what adaptability most children possessed. In many cases, after children have left school, they are left to work out their own salvation in the matter of entering upon pursuits in life that would benefit them most, and for which they were adapted. A committee was appointed to wait on the Board of Education, and see if steps could be taken on this question.

G. A. Hamon was elected as Peterborough representative on a deputation from the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada and the Labour Educational Association of Ontario, which waited on the Provincial Government yesterday to press for legislation that was desired by the labour bodies.

Next meeting April 5th.

Suffered From Nerves

Could Not Sleep

To the thousands of people who are tossing on sleepless beds night after night, or who pace the floor with nerves unhinged, and to whose eyes sleep will not come, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer the blessing of sound refreshing slumber.

They restore the equilibrium of the deranged nerve centres, thereby producing peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep, and will cause you to get up in the morning feeling that you have the strength and vitality to go through your day's work.

Mrs. Hollar Knox, St. John, N.B. writes: "I suffered greatly with my nerves, I could not sleep at night, nor work, and the least little thing worked on my mind and bothered me. Last winter I thought I would go out of my mind, I would screech out, and my mother really thought I was going crazy with my nerves. It was so terrible I would hold my head and cry. I tried two doctors, but they did not do me any good. I thought I would tell you that to-day I am perfectly cured by using three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I can recommend them to all sufferers from nervous troubles. You can tell everyone that they are the only thing that did me any good."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been on the market for nearly a quarter of a century, and are universally known as the best remedy for all heart and nerve troubles.

Price 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Married Men's Protest Ignored

LONDON, March 18.—The protest of the married men against being called to the colours before all the unmarried men have been called is not to be heeded by the Government, according to an official announcement last evening.

The announcement says it is not intended to postpone the call of married groups between the ages of 25 and 32.

regrad are followed and not departed from.

The unlimited recruiting privileges given to the Forestry Battalion to recruit in any part of the Province and to secure transfers from other battalions in playing havoc with some of the infantry battalions who have spent much money, time and effort to secure enlistments.

With reference to Divisional Order No. 226, dated the 7th inst., it is published for general information that the provisions of this order do not apply to the 39th, 17th or 99th Overseas Battalions, C.E.F., who will be permitted to recruit anywhere in the 3rd Divisional Area.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Speakers' Patriotic League are invited to take seats on the platform at the Sunday evening recruiting meeting at the Armouries to-morrow evening, when Mrs. Haultain, of Port Hope, will be the speaker.

The Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club held a Talent Tea in aid of the soldiers. The proceeds amounted to $6.70. In addition to this Miss H. Blake collected the sum of two dollars and two donations of fifty cents each was contributed by Mrs. Chard and Miss Elsie Card, respectively. The tea was held at the home of Mrs. Bugg, 209 Aylmer Street.

Two big recruiting meetings are to be held to-morrow, one at three o'clock at th Royal Theatre and the other at 8.30 in the armouries. At the afternoon meeting a film of splendid war pictures will be shown and an address will be given by Mrs. Charles Haultain of Fort Hope. Mrs. Haultain is a very interesting speaker and is well known in Peterborough, she being a sister of Col. R. M. Deanistoun. Mrs. Haultain has two sons serving at the front.

At the evening meeting Rev. Robt. Pogue will preside and Miss Dorothy Allan has kindly consented to sing. The speaker will be Mrs. Haultain. Adjt. McElhiney will speak at both gatherings and at night will conduct the question drawer.

CASE OF INFANTICIDE IN CAVAN TOWNSHIP

A case of infanticide is reported from Cavan township this week to the Crown authorities in Cobourg. On Monday evening a young girl there, employed on a farm, gave birth to a healthy child. She left the house some time during the night, and some time later the man of the house heard her fall in a faint down stairs. She was given every attention by the man, and next morning, by following her footprints in the snow, he found the baby frozen to death in the snow. The case was reported to the coroner, and the Crown authorities here notified.

Peterboro Soldiers Defeated The Sportsmen's Battalion

Large Crowd Sees the Soldier Teams in Action at the Toronto Arena Last Night—Score Was 2-1 in Favour of the 93rd Battalion

TORONTO, March 18.—The Sportsmen's Battalion (180th), in their first attempt to live up to their name, were defeated last night at the Arena in a hockey game by the 93rd Battalion of Peterborough by 2 to 1. The rink was fairly crowded with the members of the 180th and their friends, while the 93rd also had some friends in the crowd. The Sportsmen had three players on their line-up who have had senior experience in Noble, Crane and McLaren. On the other hand the 93rd played in the O. H. A. intermediate series, won their group and were put out of the running in the second round by Belleville, who went into the finals.

The locals have had little practice together and naturally their play was all of the individual style, except when Noble and Applegath, who were with the Riversides this season, attempted some passing. Noble was the individual star of the game, but he found a stonewall defence when he tried to penetrate the Peteborough citadel. Applegath tried hard, but was pretty closely watched, and had little chance to get his well-known shot into working order. The defence was not very strong and it was only the good back checking of the forward line which held the visitors from scoring more.

The 93rd are a good team and their victory was well earned. Their defence are exceptionally strong and are good rushers. Lieut. Montgomery is a player much after the style of Harry Cameron of the Toronto N. H. A. He has an abundance of speed, is a safe puck-carrier and has a hard shot. Ketchum is a good rusher, but in his defence work has a tendency to trip. Lieut. Montgomery is a big, rangy fellow, with a burst of speed. The forward line worked well together. Montgomery, in goal had some hard shots to handle. One of Applegath's shots laid him out in the first period and he had to retire for some time to recuperate.

As stated above Noble was the best man on the ice. He showed the same speed and clever stickhandling which have been a feature of his work all season with the Riversides but could not get past the Peterborough defence very often. Applegath was not up to the form he has shown with the Riversides all season. McLaren lacked condition, but tried hard all the way.

Between the first and second periods Fred Robson, the veteran local skater, skated an exhibition fifty yards in 4 4-5 seconds. The world's record is five seconds. Between the second and third periods he gave an exhibition of barrel-jumping. Capt J. T. Sutherland, President of the O. H. A., faced the puck at the commencement of the game. The teams:

Referee—Bobby Hewitson.

BUTTER AND EGGS WEAKEN IN PRICE

The attendance in the Market Hall this morning was quite up to standard, and prices of butter and eggs showed a tendency to ease off a little.

Butter sold all the way from 35 to 38 cents a pound, while eggs brought 27 and 28 cents a dozen. Large quantities of both were offered and the lower levels prevailed.

One vendor of butter from near Millbrook, besides having his name, address and 'phone number on the butter paper, had the following: "Quality guaranteed only when sold direct."

Several lots of chickens were offered at varying prices: 95 cents and $1.00 each, and $1.80 a pair.

Two ladies had cream at 35 cents a quart, and one had "scalded cream" in little glass receptacles at 15 cents each, or in bowls at 35 cents. Nothing more delicious could be imagined unless it would be the honey in combs which was offered in large quantities at 15 cents for the small holders, and 35 cents for the large.

Home-Made Cooking.

Mrs. Wright's Sunday School Class had a table of tempting looking home-made cooking, as did the ladies of the Canadian Kitchener League, who also served sandwiches with hot tea and coffee, the proceeds to be used in providing socks for our soldiers in the trenches.

- Outside Section.

Weather conditions had a great deal to do with making the attendance on the outside rather small.

Beef sold at 11 and 12 cents, while pork brought 15 and 17 cents.

Apples sold for 35 cents a peck for Greenings.

Live hens stood at $1.00 each.

Very few vegetables were offered; those that were, brought their usual winter prices.

Axe handles sold for 25 cents each.

Wood, 4-ft., brought $4.50, and 2-ft., $3.50 a cord.

Auction Sales.

Two lots of household furniture occupied quite a space on the "square." They included such things as an organ, extension table, bureau, beds, writing desks, and clocks.

Supply Of Cocoa To Neutral Countries

In view of the statements made in Parliament and in the press with reference to the export of cocoa to Holland, Denmark and Scandinavia several of the larger cocoa firms in this country are hastening to disclaim responsibility for the large figures quoted. Cocoa exports in 1915 have been given as 34,520,987 pounds. The view of those engaged in the industry is that a large proportion of this is raw cocoa, a commodity seldom, if ever, exported by the firms whose names the public usually associate with the Cocoa trade. The large exporters, it was pointed out to the press association's representative are known to the Government, since a license has to be obtained before the goods can be shipped to the Continent. It is also easy for those in touch with the market to identify those who are buying for export.

To the Editor,

Sir,—Regarding the statement that has been made in reference to the exports of cocoa to Holland, Denmark and Scandinavia during 1915, which are stated to amount to 34,520,987 pounds, we should like to point out that the prepared cocoa exported by us to the above countries during 1915 was 26,605 pounds (11 tons). The whole of this was in fulfilment of contracts made in 1914. During the same period our exports of chocolate were £14.

We think there is no doubt that by far the larger portion of the exports of cocoa refer to raw cocoa, and this we have never handled. We have always been strongly of opinion that the export during the war both of raw and manufactured cocoa to Holland, Denmark and Scandinavia should have been prohibited by the Government.

A FEW SIDE LIGHTS ON MARKET DAY IN PETERBOROUGH

Being Impressions Formed by a Study of Our Market and its Relation to the Farmer, Citizen and Merchant

"THE SQUARE"

Every highway leads to Peterborough on market day.

With the roads good and the weather fine farmers flock to the city from every point of the compass on Saturday, even in the wee sma' hours of the morning.

Market day is quite an event and is preceded by many hours and even days of weary preparation. The making of butter, the gathering and cleaning of eggs, the killing and plucking of fowl, the bagging of potatoes and apples and other vegetables, the preparation of beef and pork, all entail hours of toil, which, sometimes, are little appreciated by city folks.

Then there is the question of prices. Every wise farmer scans the Weekly Market Report in the Thursday Daily and the Weekly Examiner to see what the quotations were the week before, and to learn the ups and downs for the future.

Promptly at four or five, in the dark hours of the morning, Mr. Farmer rouses the household from their slumbers, by the clarion call, "Hurrah for Peterborough," and everybody hops. There is no shuffling of boots on the floor to fool "dad," for every "bye" knows the stock must be fed and watered, the horses harnessed and all the "choors" done up before he can go to town to see his beat "gurrel"; and every country maiden realizes that breakfast must be got, the dishes washed, her curls disentangled from the papers, and her best bib and tucker put on, for may she not meet her beau (he! he!)

Once in town a bee-line is made for the market square—dodging the street cars, of course.

What a wonderful place is the 'square." Getting down to hard facts, it is where a farmer sets up a temporary business that he may sell his wares—call it a store if you like, for he is in exactly the same position as a storekeeper, only his outlay is infinitely less. For 5 or 10 cents (toll) he can set up shop for a half-day, or until his produce is sold.

To provide him with this convenience the city sacrifices a rental of fully $5,000.00 a year for stores on Water and Charlotte Streets, besides an annual rental of $1,500.00 for space which the Market Hall occupies. He can make use of this privilege any day of the week, as do those who have wood and hay to sell, but custom has restricted the sale of other commodities to Wednesday and Saturday, particularly the latter day.

In other words, the city has a capital investment of fully $150,000.00 tied up from which there is no direct return except the paltry sum received from the sale of the tolls.

All this is done that the farmer may get a few cents more for what he has to sell, and that the citizen may pay a few cents less for what he wants. If there were no market both could go to the merchant. Thus the market acts as a regulator of prices.

Peterborough claims to have one of the best markets in Central Ontario, and any town that wishes to beat it will have to get up early in the morning.

To the city housekeepers—and not a few men—market day is an opportunity to get out for an airing, and to sharpen their wits in driving a bargain with Mrs. Farmer. From all parts of the city they come with their baskets.

No household is complete without a market basket. There is as much variety in these as there is in the vehicles that bring in the produce. The favourite style is a little wicker affair, usually brown in colour, with a stout handle and lids, large enough to hold a couple of dozen eggs, a few pounds of butter and a lifeless chicken.

Market day is also an occasion for a little social intercourse. Men from Ennismore rub shoulders with men from Douro, and men from Harvey swap stories with men from Cavan—neighbours all.

Of course, marketing, as far as the farmer is concerned, is a round-about method of extracting coin from the city people in exchange for the products of the farm." Part of this money he "salts" away in the bank, and the rest he (or she) spends among the merchants. Having spent all he then becomes "broke," for every farmer—without exception—is poor unless he has a "wad" in his pocket, no matter how much he has in the bank.

Then Mr. Merchant pays his help, who in turn pay their board, who in turn buy butter and eggs, and thus the dollar "Bill" goes on its merry round.

All of which contains a short study in "Political Economy."

A RECRUITING MEETING AT THE INDIAN VILLAGE

A most enthusiastic reception was given Rev. Mr. Peever, who addressed the natives of the Indian Village last night. Col. Miller, who was to have accompanied him, was unable to attend.

Notwithstanding the severity of the weather a large audience assembled in the Town Hall, and listened with great interest to the appeal for recruits. Two young men handed in their names, and Mr. Peever is confident of further results.

RECOMMEND $300 TO PATRIOTIC FUND

The Speakers' Patriotic League asked the Council to grant them $500 toward the expenses of a recruiting campaign that is now under way. Last night the Finance Committee recommended a grant of $300 on motion of Alderman Saunders, seconded by Alderman McIntyre.

NO WONDER POLICE KNOW THINGS EVEN BEFORE THEY HAPPEN

And now it is the cops' turn to laugh. A couple of weeks ago when they were on the grill the firemen jollied them along over the reduction of the force and even the salaries. But the Police Commission put up a Verdun front to all such suggestions, and now when the firemen are in the limelight the police are having their turn to laugh. A few nights ago the police are said to have reported the proposed ten per cent. cut before the meeting was over, or thereabouts, and the question arises as to how they got the information so quickly. Possibly a little incident at yesterday afternoon's Fire, Water and Light committee meeting affords an explanation. There is a door between the committee room and the police station and when Ald. Weir happened to open the door he disturbed one of the force who was apparently practising dictagraph methods on the committee.

"There all the time," said Ald. Weir on resuming his seat for further consideration of the proposed salary reduction at the fire hall. He didn't name the constable, and it is to the eavesdropper's credit that he wasn't so glued to the door that he tumbled in when it opened.

It seemed of no moment to the aldermen whether the walls had ears or not.

A well known citizen was in a great state of excitement the other day at discovering a man with the "gift of tongues," (May you, we said "man.")

Expect Shackleton From South Pole

British Geographical Society Looks for Explorer's Return.

LONDON, March 18.—British geographical circles are expecting momentarily, news of the return to an Australian port of Lieut. Sir Ernest Henry Shackleton's South Polar Expedition. The last communication from the expedition was received over a year ago, when his ship, the Endurance, sailed from South Georgia for the ice region.

The object of the expedition is to cross the Polar Continent from Weddell Sea to oss Sea, about 1,700 miles, which Lieut. Shackleton estimated would take four months. The explorer intended to start this journey at the beginning of November, 1915, and after touching the South Pole about Christmas to meet a party from the ship Aurora at the base in Ross Sea.

TRIED TO JOIN BROTHER.

Australian Girl, Disguised as Soldier, Sailed on Transport.

How a desire of Miss Maude Butler, seventeen years old, to get to the front, where she could nurse her brother, who had been wounded, led her to stow away on board a transport disguised as a soldier is told in a recent issue of the London Daily Telegraph. Miss Butler was a waitress in a restaurant in Sydney, Australia, and was determined to get to her brother. She got aboard the ship, and her sex remained undiscovered for two days before her voice betrayed her.

The officer asked Private Butler as she was known, why "he" was not with "his" unit. When the girl replied that she had no unit the officer became suspicious. He called the girl to the captain's cabin and the girl admitted her identity. A passing ship, bound for Sydney, was hailed, and the girl transferred, much to her regret, as well as to that of the captain and men, the captain explaining that regulations prevented him from taking her to Europe. Before leaving the ship Miss Butler received a purse raised by the men, and she said she would use the money to pay her passage to Europe aboard another ship.

Heavy Russian Attacks Reported On Austrian and German Fronts

Austrian Official Statement Admits Austrians Were Compelled to Give Ground Near the Vocieczko Bridge-head

LONDON, March 20.—Heavy Russian attacks on both the Austrian and German fronts shifted interest temporarily to-day from the waning German offensive around Verdun.

An official statement from the Austrian War Office to-day admitted the Austrians were compelled to give ground near the Vocsiczko bridgehead. The Slavs attacked violently with grenades, following artillery bombardment.

"Our defence line was somewhat withdrawn," admitted the Austrian War Office, "but all attacks at other points were repulsed."

Petrograd despatches to-day were silent on the new Russian offensive. It was believed here that Russian strokes were delivered to prevent the shifting of more German troops to the western front.

Developments of the last forty-eight hours have increased the belief in Paris that the Crown Prince is preparing to withdraw from the Verdun attempt.

LONDON, March 20.—British official report on operations in France and Belgium says there is nothing to report except usual artillery duels.

COPENHAGEN, March 20.—The German Government has ordered investigation of the Tubantia disaster. An affidavit is to be secured from passengers and crew.

Holland Is Stirred by the Loss of Steamship "Tubantia"

THE HAGUE, via London, March 20.—The loss of one of Holland's finest steamships has stirred the country deeply. The sinking of the Tubantia, valued at $1,600,000 and insured for $1,240,000, means loss of valuable cargo space not easily replaceable.

The opinion accredited to the captain, that the Tubantia was torpedoed, adds to the feeling of resentment aroused by the disaster. The Vaderland directs attention to the fact that the vessel was sunk at almost the same time that announcement was made of the resignation of Admiral von Tirpitz as German Minister of Marine and of the statement that his successor would continue submarine warfare without abatement. The newspaper refers to the cases of three Dutch steamships, the Katwyk, the Artemis and the Bandoeng, sunk or damaged as a result of German "mistakes," and says that if the Tubantia was sunk by a German submarine there will be increasing danger that Germany, against her wishes, may find herself in conflict with neutral States on account of the conduct of her submarine commanders. The Vaderland voices the hope that the change in leadership of the German Marine Ministry will be utilized as an opportunity for issuing more binding rules to submarine commanders.

The Nieuwe Courant says:—"Is this Von Tirpitz's farewell greeting to friendly Holland? Germany ought to be ashamed at this fresh proof that her Admiralty has not her submarine commanders properly in hand. They sink neutral merchantmen and are reprimanded and punished, yet on the next occasion flout their government's measures and promises and fire away blindly."

A stronger note is sounded by the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant, which says that, no matter whether the Tubantia was sunk by a torpedo or a mine, the country demands that such occurrences cease. It declares that the government must make the strongest representations to Berlin, and continues:—

"The Tubantia was not a mere tramp. She was the pride of our mercantile marine. Every responsible naval commander would know what she was and whither she was bound. No account of the disaster mentions a warning of any kind. There is no excuse. No words can qualify this misdeed, which stultifies all German assurances and promises.

"We have nothing to do with officers' 'mistakes.' The German Admiralty is responsible, and the demand must be made that definite instructions be given to the German navy or render it certain that such mistakes will not arise in future."

This newspaper says Holland is unfortunately placed between one belligerent "who professedly fights for the interests of small nations but holds up our ships, seizes what she likes and paralyzes our imports and industries," and another belligerent who "while contending for the so-called freedom of the seas sinks our ships on sight without notice."

Cost of War in 1915 Was $4,400,000,000, Says Finance Minister, But the Republic Will Be Able to Pay All Debts—Pleads for Reduction of Imports and Asks Increased Tax on Liquor

PARIS, March 20—Although France spent more than 22,000,000,000f. ($4,400,000,000) in 1915, the financial situation is satisfactory, thanks to the French internal loan, which is being maintained above the rate of issue, said Mr. Felix Ribot, Minister of Finance, during a discussion of the appropriations required for the second quarter of 1916 in the Chamber of Deputies to-day.

With only one dissenting vote the Chamber adopted the credit of 7,000,000,000f. ($1,500,000,000) for the second quarter. This is equivalent to a daily expenditure of 87,000,000f. ($17,400,000).

Mr. Ribot said while France soon would be spending 90,000,000f. ($18,000,000) a day, England would be spending 110,000,000f. ($22,000,000), and she is able to support the imposition of new taxes much better, because France is concerned with the difficulty of purchasing abroad supplies, such as coal, grain and meat for the army and civil population.

The rate of exchange, he said, is going up, but the necessary credit has been obtained. Importations, Mr. Ribot declared, must be reduced. France, he continued, is resolved to pay its debts, hard as this may be.

What ought to be done, Mr. Ribot said, in closing, is to increase the tax on liquor and alcohol. Regarding an income tax, he said a greater one than that now being collected could not be demanded at a time when the future is an uncertainty.

CANADIANS NOT IN IT.

Divisions Are Far From the Verdun Conflict.

OTTAWA, March 18.—A few Canadian officers, attached to the staff of the French army, may be at Verdun watching operations in the terrific struggle in progress there, but the Canadian divisions are nowhere near the point of siege.

5 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Hettie Mosser, Cannonsm, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this treatment enough."

HUNS' WORK IN SWEDEN.

Country Flooded With Pamphlets Advocating Cause of Germany.

STOCKHOLM, March 18. — The pro-German agitation is growing throughout Sweden and the Government has so far taken no steps to check it. The country is flooded with pamphlets justifying the German cause and appealing for the sympathies and active aid of the Swedish nation.

In many cities pro-German organizations have been formed. The leaders of these societies are mostly school teachers, writers, physicians and other intellectuals. Some of the conservative politicians are openly advocating an alliance with Germany.

VERDUN, THEN PEACE.

Germans Planned to Announce Terms After Taking Fort.

BALTIMORE, March 18.—That the Germans planned to reduce Verdun and then publicly announce their plans for peace was the information contained in a letter received in the last few days by Cardinal Gibbons from an authoritative source in one of the continental countries now at war.

The Cardinal said he had heard that conditions in Germany were depressing the people somewhat, and that the Government felt that after it had put its Verdun campaign through successfully it would be in a better position than ever before to announce to the world on just what terms it would accept peace.

You will find CERTAIN-TEED affording equal protection from the snow and ice of the Arctic, and the sun and rain of the Tropics. It is literally "the roof of the world".

Making roofing is the General's chief business. He makes one-third of all the roll roofing made in America—thirty-nine other manufacturers make the balance. Such predominance is due to the General's ability to make the highest quality roofing at the lowest cost.

Every advantage that men, money, mills and machinery can offer is used to increase production, maintain quality and lower the cost. The result is that today CERTAIN-TEED, the world's best quality, costs less than inferior roofing cost ten years ago.

CERTAIN-TEED is made of the best quality roofing felt, thoroughly saturated with a scientific blend of soft asphalts, the formula of the General's board of expert chemists. It is then coated with a blend of harder asphalts, which keeps the inner saturation soft and prevents the drying-out process so destructive to ordinary roofing.

CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5,10 or 15 years, according to ply, (1, 2, or 3). Experience proves that it lasts longer.

CERTAINTEED is made in rolls; also in shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roofs, from the largest skyscraper to the smallest residence or out-building.

CERTAIN-TEED is sold by responsible dealers all over the world at reasonable prices. Investigate it before you decide on any type of roof.

FIRE IN CHURCH, PRIEST AVERTS PANIC AT MASS

Seeing Smoke When He Enters Building He Gives Alarm, but Continues Service.

NEW YORK, March 20. — While flames were sweeping through the vestry of the Church of St. Catherine of Alexandria, Fort Hamilton Parkway and Forty-First Street, Brooklyn, the Rev. Patrick Hart, curate in the church, calmly continued his celebration of the mass and so prevented what might have been a panic among several hundred persons in the church.

Father Hart reached the church just before half-past six o'clock, to say the first mass of the day, and when he entered the vestry he saw smoke curling out from a closet used to store cossacks, albs and other garments. Without stopping to notify persons in the body of the church, he telephoned the Rev. J. J. O'Neil, rector, and the Fire Department, and then quietly vested for the mass.

Entering the sanctuary, he gave orders to an altar boy to shut the door tight so that the smoke might not frighten the worshippers. Then he proceeded with the celebration of mass, while firemen fought the flames.

Few persons in the church realized what had happened until after they left the building. They saw the long lines of hose and the engines pumping and then it dawned on them that the church vestry was afire.

Due to the fact that electric wires or steam pipes are not located anywhere near the closet where the fire was discovered Father O'Neil is inclined to believe the fie was of incendiary origin. He has notified the police and the fire marshal. The fire did damage of $1,000.

PIONEER PRINTER GONE.

J. E. Solomon's Wife and Brother Also Have Passed Away.

BRIGHTON, March 18.—A notable figure in the journalistic life of this district fifty years ago has passed away in the death of James Ewing Solomon. Mr Solomon was born at Cobourg in 1834. Sixty years ago he went to Brighton and established and printed The Brighton Ensign. He also helped found and print The Trenton Courier. He retired from journalistic work after twenty-five years, and engaged later in the painting business, and fruit raising.

Mr. Solomon's wife, formerly Frances A. Thayer survived her husband only a few days. A brother, Mr. Ira B. Thayer, resides in Toronto. Three sons survive their parents. Geo. D. of Brighton, Ira B. of Canning, Nova Scotia, and Fred W. of Hamilton.

A brother of Mr. Solomon's, T. Whitford Solomon, a resident of this village, died a week ago in his seventy-seventh year.

GET IT FIRST—NOT LAST

When a cold grips your system it is convincing proof that your condition is weakened—remember that. It is risky indeed to simply trust your strength to throw it off, because neglected colds have brought more serious sickness than any other one thing, while weakening cathartics and stimulating syrups are often depressing and dangerous.

The one best treatment for any cold—the one so often relied on when others fail, is the powerful blood-nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the very sources of bodily strength to suppress the present cold and generate strength to thwart further sickness.

Get Scott's first, not last—and insist on the genuine—always free from injurious drugs. No advanced prices.

SERBIA'S DEBT TO ITALY.

Italians Saved More Than 150,000 Veteran Troops, Prince Says.

ROME, March 18.—Crown Prince Alexander of Serbia arrived here today and was received with royal honours. Acclaimed by crowds, he proceeded to the Quirinal, where he was received by Queen Helena and the Duke of Genoa in the name of King Victor Emmanuel who is at the front.

Prince Alexander said that when the history of the war was written, it would be difficult to find a tale of greater endurance and loyalty than that of the retreat of the Serbians to the Adriatic. He found it impossible to express his gratitude to the Italians, who, in co-operation with the French and British, saved more than 150,000 veteran Serbian troops. This achievement, he said, sealed the friendship of Serbia and Italy, and pledged them to "friendly mastery of the Adriatic."

TRY "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS IF SICK OR BILIOUS

To-night! Clean Your Bowels and Stop Headache, Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

DRUNKEN MAN AMAZES NEW 'DRY' COMMUNITY

Milliken, Colo., March 20.— For the first time this year, or since the three saloons that formerly operated in Milliken closed, a drunken man was seen on the streets. He was attracting so much attention that friends took him home before the town marshal could arrest him.

All Milliken merchants report better business since the saloons closed than ever before in the history of the town. The buildings made vacant by the removal of the saloons have been rented.

BAD DREAMS ARE SYMPTOMS

Ill Health the Cause—Many Alarming Symptoms of Women's Ailments—How Cured.

Paterson, N.J.—"I thank you for the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies as they have made me feel happy and healthy. Sometime ago I felt so run down, had pains in my back and side, was very irregular, tired, nervous, had such bad dreams, did not feel like eating and had short breath. I read your advertisement in the newspapers and decided to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It worked from the first bottle, so I took a second and a third, also a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier, and now I am just as well as any other woman. I advise every woman, single or married, who is troubled with any of the aforesaid ailments, to try your wonderful Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and I am sure they will help her to get rid of her troubles."—Mrs. ELSIE J. VANDER SANDE, 7 Godwin Street, Paterson, N. J.

Women suffering with any form of female ills, or any symptoms that they do not understand, are invited to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. (confidential), and receive advice wholly free of cost.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

"Life's a rum thing," anyhow," said the skipper, when the three were seated in the dining room of the hotel, which was otherwise empty. "About this very hour this day week the Stella was makin' bad weather of it off some little islands north of the Aven. I wanted to put in here; but Mrs. Carmac wouldn't hear of it. I must push on for Lorient, she said—an' the pore gentleman we've just planted on top of the hill there was chaffin' her about bein' afraid o' spooks. Blink me! Who's the spook now?"

"I don't see what ghosts had to do with Pont Aven," said Fosdyke sharply.

"Neither do I, Sir," said Popple. "It was a funny remark, look at it any way you like."

"Both of you seem to forget Mrs. Carmac's niece," put in Raymond suavely. The conversation had suddenly taken a dangerous turn, and it must be headed deftly into a safer channel.

"What of her?" demanded Fosdyke.

"Well, she represents the family disagreement which estranged Mrs. Carmac and the late Mrs. Ingersoll. You see, Mr. Fosdyke, your aunt was aware that her sister lived here, but evidently did not know she was dead. That fact would account for her disinclination to visit Pont Aven. In a word, Fate drove us on to that wretched reef, which you, Captain, will see more of if this fine weather lasts. How goes the salvage scheme?"

"I've got a diver, an' the right sort of craft to stand by. Has its own steam, an' a derrick, an' it'll be along side Les Verres at nine o'clock tomorrow morning. I'm sorry I can't find that chap Peridot. They tell me he's away with the fishin' fleet; but some of the boats may come in by tonight's tide."

"What is there to salve?" said Fosdyke.

"Banknotes, an' jew'lry, an' dockyments," said Popple.

"Rather a wild goose chase, isn't it?"

"That is a point on which our worthy friend and I differ," put in the secretary. "I bow to his superior judgment, of course; but I shall be vastly surprised if he brings ashore anything worth having."

"Who is Peridot?" demanded Fosdyke.

"A Breton, whom Mr. Ingersoll employs occasionally on his cutter," explained Raymond. "He, and an American named Tollemache, together with Mr. Ingersoll and his daughter, were concerned in the rescue."

"Mighty lucky thing for the rest of you that they were at sea that day," commented Fosdyke, with a certain viciousness born of a thought that had darted through his mind. "It was a close call, I'm told. Two minutes after the last man was taken off the Stella smashed up."

Raymond smiled. He knew exactly what this dutiful nephew was thinking. Had the Stella been lost with all on board, there would have been some chance of the Carmac estate passing to nephew and nieces, notwithstanding the will. Mrs. Carmac might have been legally presumed to have died first, or, failing that, her relatives might have remained unknown.

"Mrs. Carmac means to present Peridot with a sardine boat of his own," he said, waiting until Fosdyke was surfeited with the gall of his own evil notion. "Then," he went on, gazing contemplatively at a cart laden with casks of cider lumbering across the square, "then, I am given to understand, Peridot will marry a girl named Madeline Demoret, and settle down in prosperity and content."

There was a pause. Captain Popple, who really had no reason to complain of any deficiency of vision, either literal or figurative, pouted out another glass of champagne, and watched the wine creaming.

"This fortunate person, Peridot, owns a queer name," said Fosdyke, surveying the secretary with a steady scrutiny. "Isn't a peridot a precious stone of sorts?"

"Yes; but his real name is Larraidou. The other is only a nickname, arising from the curious colour of his eyes. He's by way of being a humorist too; though I fancy he could reveal a very ugly disposition if roused."

"Humour of any variety is surely out of place in Pont Aven," said Fosdyke. "Here's to Peridot remaining several more days with the fishing fleet—and damn his eyes!" He rose and went out.

"Affable kind o' young gent, that," commented Popple. "A trifle quick on the trigger, though. I was glad to hear you touchin' him up a bit, Sir. You did it neatly—twice, an' all."

"Twice?" Raymond affected astonishment.

But Popple was a wary bird too. "No business of mine, anyhow," he said shortly, and, finishing his wine with a gulp, betook himself upstairs, where the injured steward was still confined to his bedroom.

The sprained ankle had proved awkward; practically it amounted to a dislocation, and Dr. Garnier would not yet allow the patient to put the injured foot on the ground. A cheerful little Cockney, the steward had interested Yvonne at once by his happy-go-lucky demeanor when brought on board the Hirondelle. Each day she had visited him for a few minutes. Tollemache seldom passed without exchanging a few lively words with him, and he was a positive godsend to Popple.

"Well, Harry my boy, how goes it?" was the skipper's greeting.

The invalid was sitting up in an easy chair, placed in front of a low window. Thus he could gaze into the square beneath, and see its whole extent. In summer the dense foliage of the sycamores would have blocked the view; but in mid-December their bare branches hid nothing.

"Fine, Cap'n," he answered. "Mr. Tollemache tole me the doctor said I might hop downstairs to-morrow. This day week I'll be leggin' it back to England, 'ome, an' work."

"Mebbe, an' mebbe not," said Popple, settling his bulk into another chair, and beginning to fill a pipe.

"'Strewth, Cap'n, you're the darn'dest man I'd like for a Job's comforter," said the steward.

"W'at's the rush?"

"No rush; but I'm goin' along all right, an' 'er Lydyship won't want to keep a chap like me 'angin' about."

"S'pose you get a job here?"

"Now, I ask you, Cap'n, w'at can I do in a place where they tork neither French nor English? I'd be a byby among 'em—a silly byby."

"This salvage business may last a bit. If you like, I'll ax Mrs. Carmac to put your name on the books."

"Cap'n, d'ye mean it? Well, you are a brick! It'll help a lot if I earn a quid or two while I'm crocked. I've been thinkin' ahart this salvage idee. W'at's behind it?"

"Just pickin' up any odds an' ends we come across. But that's a funny question. Got something in your noddle?"

"Nothink, Cap'n. On'y it struck me 'ow w'at between sea an' rock the Stella must be pretty well dished by this time."

"Everybody says that," growled Popple. "An' that's just why I've a fixed notion we'll find more'n anyone bargains for."

He was busy with his pipe, which refused to draw freely, so failed to perceive that the steward was gazing into the corner with a curiously brooding stare. Harry Jackson had been taught by a hard world not to blurt out everything he knew.

"Harry," said Popple suddenly, "would ye like a tonic?"

"Would a duck swim, Cap'n?" said Harry instantly.

"There was a glass or two left in a bottle of the boy downstairs. 'Arf a mo! I'll ax Marie if it's still on tap."

Harry stared again out of the window. This time his glance followed Harvey Raymond, who was strolling toward the bridge. He watched the secretary's thin figure, its ungainliness being somewhat enhanced by the stiffly bandaged arm, until Popple returned in triumph with nearly a pint of champagne and a wineglass.

"There you are, Son!" he cried joyously. "Put that where the cat can't get it. You're drinkin' Mr. Raymond's health."

"Am I?" said Harry. "Then, 'ere's to him, the swab!"

"Hullo! Don't you like him?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"'E ain't my sort, Cap'n. Monkey-face, we chaps forrard used to call 'im."

"Blink me! You didn't see much of him."

"Didn't need to. 'E's the kind o' jumped-un snotty who corks to men beneath 'im as if they was dawgs. When a real toff calls me 'Jackson' I s'y 'Yes, Sir'; but when that blighter did the sime thing I wanted to bung 'im one in the jaw."

"Well, I'm dashed!" breathed Popple, surveying his friend with manifest approval. "Now, who'd ha thought he'd stirred you up in that way? Between you an' me, Harry, I'm not too fond of him myself. I suspicioned that Mrs. Carmac meant to fire him last week! but I was mistaken. Anyhow, 'Live an' let live' is my policy. So long as he doesn't interfere with me, I'll leave him alone."

"Sime 'ere," agreed Jackson.

Mrs. Carmac passed a restless afternoon. Twice she summoned her maid, Celeste, who had come from Paris on receipt of a telegram, mean-Yvonne's prolonged absence. She Stomach Was Bad.

Could Eat Hardly Anything.

When the stomach gets out of order the whole system seems to become affected in one way or an other. The breath becomes foul, the tongue furred, the appetite becomes disturbed, nausea and vomiting occur, there is a rising and souring of food caused by the acidity of the stomach, and the stomach and bowels become distended, causing flatulency. Unless these symptoms are met with immediately, dyspepsia or some other serious trouble is liable to follow as a consequence.

That grand old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that there is not another medicine on the market to-day that can compare with it for the cure of all disturbances of the stomach.

Miss Lillian E. Phillips, Plumweoop, N.B., writes: "My stomach was so bad I was in pain and misery. I could eat hardly anything. I had been treated by skillful doctors for it, but they did me no good. I was giving up in despair when I happened to hear of Burdock Blood Bitters. You can't think how fast it helped me, for I had only taken two bottles before I was better. I will recommend your medicine very highly to all my friends and sufferers."

ing to send that discreet tirewoman for Yvonne, yet twice changed her mind.

As the hour fixed by Bennett drew near, she felt more reconciled to was beginning to realise the perplexities and embarrassments to which her daughter was being subjected daily.

The lawyer was first to arrive. "I am glad of the opportunity of having a word with you in private," he said. "Of course you are acquainted with the disposition your husband made of his estate; but Rupert Fosdyke may be disagreeably surprised. If he protests, do not be drawn into argument. Please leave matters in my hands."

"Am I to say nothing at all?" she demanded.

"Nothing controversial. If he blusters, and asks questions, refer him to me."

"He knows already that Walter viewed his—what shall I call them?—social entanglements with disfavour."

"Yes. For all that, he may be hoping for more than he will get."

Bennett shook his head. "It would be construed rather as weakness than as strength," he said. "Fosdyke is not poor. On ten thousand dollars a year a man can live very comfortably, even in society. An extra couple of thousand will keep his hunters or run a car. No, Mrs. Carmac. Your husband's intentions are set forth very clearly, and I advise you not to depart from them in the slightest particular."

Five o'clock came and passed; but Fosdyke did not put in an appearance. They waited ten minutes, and the lawyer was about to suggest that the will should be read without more delay when a hasty step on the stairs and an imperative knock on the door announced the errant one's advent.

He apologized gracefully enough. "I went for a stroll," he said, "and missed my way in the dark. I hope I have not kept you waiting?"

"It did not matter, Rupert," said Mrs. Carmac.

"Well, now that we have come together, suppose we get to business," said the lawyer, unfastening a brief bag and extracting from its depths a bulky parchment. He began reading at once. Mrs. Carmac sat very still, a listener whose thoughts hardly kept pace with the loud-sounding legal jargon. Fosdyke, however, followed every word attentively. First in order was a long list of bequests to various institutions, and legacies or annuities to servants. Annuities of five thousand dollars a year to each of Carmac's two nieces succeeded. Then came a personal reference:

Of all overworked women probably the housewife is the hardest worked. She has so much to attend to, with very little help. Her work can be lightened if she knows the value of system and she should try and take a short rest in the daytime. A physician who became famous almost around the world, Doctor Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., the specialist in women's diseases, for many years practised medicine in a farming district. He there observed the lack of system in the planning of the work.

If it is a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The disorder should be treated steadily and systematically with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

For diseases from which women suffer "Favorite Prescription" is a powerful restorative. During the last fifty years it has benefited from the lives of tens of thousands of women the pain, worry, misery and distress caused by these diseases.

If you are a sufferer, get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form to-day. Then address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and get confidential medical advice entirely free.

JOB SUB-LET THREE TIMES.

Victoria Harbour Improvements Under Scrutiny at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, March 18. — A case where a big Government contract was let and afterwards sub-let repeatedly was gone into before the Public Accounts Committee.

The Victoria, B.C., harbour improvements were under review, and from the papers produced it appeared that the first contract for excavation was let to Grant, Smith and Macdonald, at $0.10 per yard for solid rock. They sub-let to another Macdonald, who sub-let again to a firm known as Henry, Fee and Macdonald, while the latter divided up the contract with the Pacific Dredging Company. Including all the works, about two millions were involved. Charges of collusion between Government engineers and excessive allowances to Macdonald, the second contractor, were made by one Mallery, who demanded a share of what he termed the "raise-off." He was dismissed from the work and the charge indignantly denied.

Arthur St Laurent, assistant deputy Minister of Public Works, who went out to Victoria and investigated, was examined. He found no evidence of collusion to "do the Government, but there was evidence of over classification of rock, thirty thousand yards being returned, whereas what he would call rock totalled only something like thirteen thousand yards.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

Brantford, Ont. March 19.—Pastor Russell gave an able address here today, based on 1 Peter 1:16: "Be ye holy; for I am holy." We give a condensed report:

The word "holy" is related to our word "whole," which signifies complete, unbroken. Viewed from this standpoint, our text is a wonderful exhortation. Our Lord Jesus also exhorted us, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in Heaven is perfect." (Matthew 5:48.) Very properly we note who are thus addressed. It is not the world; for the Bible is not addressed to the world. In their fallen condition, out of harmony with God and not seeking to know His will, mankind are not in a position where God can thus address them. They are aliens, strangers, foreigners, as the Lord speaks of them through St. Paul. At present they have neither lot nor part in the things of God. So far as they are concerned, His great Plan is yet future. The Father loves the world sympathetically, and has made provision that ultimately they shall have a glorious place, rich blessings, but not yet.—Ephesians 2:11, 12; 1 Corinthians 1: 21-25; John 3: 16.

During the long period from Adam to the making of the Covenant with Israel at Mt. Sinai, God recognized no nation. Mankind were cut off from fellowship with His because of Adam's transgression. God did, indeed, speak through a few; such as Enoch, Noah, and Abraham, to whom He made certain declarations not clearly understood by any at that time. No one was permitted to come into covenant relationship with God except in the sense that Abraham did, and through animal sacrifices, which typified the great Sacrifice for sins yet to come.

Then came God's dealings with the one nation of Israel. He separated them from all other nations. (Exodus 19: 3-6; Amos 3:2.) He gave them His Law, and promised that if they would keep that Law they should have everlasting life and should exercise those gracious privileges which God mentioned to Father Abraham; namely, that through them all the families of the earth might be blessed. They thought that they could keep God's Law; but they found that they could not do so—that they could not be holy.

This holiness was briefly commanded in the command, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength; and thy neighbor as thyself." (Luke 10: 27.) But Israel could not attain to this holiness, this completeness; for, like all of the Adamic race, they were imperfect. No imperfect man could keep a perfect law.

Year by year for over sixteen centuries God permitted Israel to offer typical sacrifices; and they renewed their covenant annually on the Day of Atonement. Thus they were made acceptable to God for the ensuing year, and were kept in covenant relationship with Him. Over and over again they tried to keep the Law, but failed continually. The Apostle Paul tells us that during all those centuries not one Jew was justified through keeping the Law.—Romans 3:20; Galatians 2:15, 16.

How Christians Can Keep God's Law.

Then came the Gospel Dispensation. Our Lord Jesus, by His life and by His preaching gave forth a Message of mercy and peace, even to those Jews who could not keep the Law, saying still to them, "Be ye holy." During all those many centuries the Israelites had tried to be holy, but had failed; and how could these of our Lord's day expect to be holy, complete, lacking nothing, any more than could their ancestors? Ah, there was a secret which Jesus disclosed to the earnest and sincere, the "Israelites indeed"! The reason why any could keep the Law after Jesus came, was that Christ accomplished an important work, applicable to those who became His disciples. The Jews could not succeed in keeping the Law of God, but Christians can do so. This is not because they are better born than the Jews; for naturally we are all "children of wrath, even as others."—Ephesians 2:3.

In the absolute sense, Christians cannot keep God's Law any more than could the Jews, and for the same reason. Doubtless we have all proved to our own satisfaction that we cannot keep that perfect Law in the sense of having no imperfection of thought, word, or act. When the Apostle says that the righteousness of the Law is fulfilled in us (Romans 8:4), he means that God has made an arrangement through Jesus by which our imperfections are legally cancelled, made as though they did not exist. Thus, by keeping the Law in spirit and by having our Lord Jesus cancel our infirmities of body, we are perfect before God. As Christians, we keep His Law.

According to God's Plan, our Lord Jesus laid His life down as a Ransom, a corresponding price, for the life of Father Adam. Adam sinned, and must meet the penalty of sin—death. He died; and all of his posterity have been born under the conditions of sin and death which his disobedience entailed upon them. Mankind die because sin entered into the world through one man's disobedience, as the Apostle explains. (Romans 5:12.) But through His death our Lord Jesus secured the right to annul Adam's death sentence and to take possession of all mankind. Thus Adam and all of his posterity will be awakened from death; otherwise the entire human race would suffer eternal death; for the penalty of sin was not the mere act of dying, but remaining dead forever.—1 Corinthians 15:21, 22; 1 Timothy 2: 5, 6.

At the beginning of the Messianic Kingdom our Lord will take possession of the world. Mankind are something like a scrap-heap of old machines, engines, boilers, etc., all rusted and twisted out of their original shape. But the one who will take control has infinite power and ability to repair and to reconstruct all these defective beings. During the thousand years of His Reign this will be His work. It will affect the dead as well as those having a measure of life when that Reign begins. The Messiah will bring all who will out of sin and death conditions back to the perfection lost in Eden, redeemed at Calvary.

God purposed, before the foundation of the world, to permit sin to bring forth its evil fruitage for six thousand years, and then to usher in a great Sabbath Day, the Millennial Sabbath, during which He would do, through Jesus, His appointed Channel, a work for mankind which they cannot do for themselves. Meantime, He has been selecting and preparing the classes that will be His agents, under Christ, to accomplish His great work for humanity—first, an earthly class (enumerated in Hebrews 11), and then a spiritual class, the Church.

Jehovah God has also purposed that our Lord Jesus shall be the great work for humanity—first, an earthly class (enumerated in Hebrews 11), and then a spiritual class, the Church.

Jehovah God has also purposed that our Lord Jesus shall be the great King of the world during the Millennial Sabbath, and that this spiritual class shall be associate kings under Him; moreover, that Jesus and the Church shall be a Royal Priesthood to bless and instruct the world of mankind, their subjects; and that this great High Priest and His under priests shall also be the judges of the world. These different features of the work of The Christ were shown in type in the anointed priesthood of Israel, their anointed kings and in their judges. The Apostle Paul says: "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?" (1 Corinthians 6:2.) The Christ, Head and Body, will also be the world's great Prophet, the antitype of Moses. —Acts 3:22, 23.

All this shows us that the Church of Christ is separate and distinct from the world at large, as Jesus said. (John 17:14; 15:18, 19.) What God will do for the world through our Lord Jesus during the incoming Age, by restoring whosoever will to all that was lost in Adam, bringing them back to human perfection, is something very different from what He is now doing for the Church. The inheritance of the faithful Church is to be spiritual, not earthly; and it is the Church that are now called upon to be holy.

During the Millennial Age all mankind will be called upon to be holy; far less than the standard of holiness will be set before them, and by the assistance of The Christ all the willing and obedient may attain human perfection. Whosoever will may become holy, as was Father Adam before he sinned. While on earth, our Lord Jesus was holy in the perfection of human nature. (John 1:14.) During the Millennium the whole world will be expected to come up to the standard of holiness, of completeness—nothing lacking, nothing imperfect. The merit which our Lord has, by virtue of His faithfulness to the Father even unto death, gives Him the right to purchase the human family and to help them back to that condition of completeness, of holiness, in which they can be holy, as God is holy.

God's Crowning Work.

The difference between the call to holiness now extended to those who have an "ear to hear" God's present Message and the call to holiness to be extended to all mankind during the Millennium is this: It is not the flesh of the Christian that is holy, but the New Creature. His human imperfections are covered with the robe of Christ's imputed righteousness. This unique dealing with the Gospel Church is for a specific purpose. We understand that God, who had already created various ranks of spirit beings, and who then created man "a little lower than the angels," had planned before the foundation of the world that in due time He would have a New Creation, different from anything created before then, and the greatest, the most wonderful, of all His creations.—2 Corinthians 5:17; Ephesians 1:4; 2:10.

This New Creation, God tells us (2 Peter 1:4), is to have the Divine nature, His own nature. It will not only be higher than the human nature, which in perfection is the image of God, but higher than the various orders of spirit beings, who are also in the image of God. It will be the spirit nature in its highest form.

God first began to develop this New Creation in the person of our Lord Jesus Christ at the time of His baptism in Jordan. The Father's purpose in sending the Son into the world was: (1) That He might be the Redeemer of the world; (2) That He might become the Leader of the Church. (Hebrews 2:9, 10.) God has made our Lord to be Head over the Church, which is His Body—in the same sense that Congress is a Body. The work of the Gospel Age has been the gathering of the members of this Body. The blessings promised to the world cannot begin until this work of gathering and developing the spiritual Body of Christ shall have been completed.

Now we see what the Apostle means when he says, "Present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." (Romans 12:1.) We should rejoice to know that if we offer our little all to God, Jesus will make up what is needed to render our sacrifice fully acceptable to the Father. When the Holy Spirit comes upon one, an unction from on High, it constitutes him a son of God, on a new plane. He is no longer counted as a human being. He has been begotten as a spirit being; but he has no spirit body as yet. He still has the old body, the old brain, although a new will is there, a new mind, "the mind of Christ." He had the mind, the disposition, of Christ to present himself as a sacrifice; but when he was begotten of the Holy Spirit, he received from God the start of a new nature. He became a New Creature in Christ.

During the present life the New Creature must dwell in this earthly tabernacle. (2 Corinthians 5:4.) If he continues to walk humbly and faithfully before the Lord, seeking to do the Divine will, as the consecrated have agreed to do, he will be more and more filled with the Holy Spirit, until eventually God will complete the matter by giving the resurrection "change" the birth of the Spirit. (1 Corinthians 15: 51-53; John 3: 5-7.) Then the new mind will be transferred, to a Divine spirit body, and the New Creature will be complete.

New Creatures to Judge Themselves.

It is the New Creature that is to be holy, perfect, as the Father in Heaven is holy, perfect. This does not give any one liberty to sin with the body, however. "How shall we who have died to sin live any longer therein?" asks the Apostle. (Romans 6:2.) If we consecrated ourselves voluntarily unto death in opposition to sin, how shall we find pleasure in sin? Whoever enjoys sin thereby manifests that he has not the Holy Spirit. The mind of the Lord does not enjoy sin. We are to make a clear distinction, however, between the impulses of the flesh and the desire of the heart. Through the impulses of his fallen human nature, any one of God's people might be overtaken in a fault, and under stress of circumstances might do or say something that he did not approve. But so surely as he is a New Creature he will make amends for his fault, in order to return to full harmony with the Lord.

God is judging His people according to the heart. (1 Samuel 16:7.) The world cannot know all about God's people. They look at things from the natural man's standpoint; and when they see a child of God do or say something unkind or improper, they draw their conclusions accordingly. But we must not judge them. Our heart attitude must ever be to wish to do the Lord's will. Should any of God's people willingly consent to sin, he would be a partaker of that sin. If overtaken in a fault, he must correct it. Whoever as a New Creature in Christ is seeking to be holy as God is holy, will watch his words and conduct, and will try to keep a strict rule over his mortal body; and if that body should temporarily get from under control, he will discipline it by way of punishment, will correct it in order to make it remember for the future.—1 Corinthians 11: 31, 32.

All true Christians should be on the alert to note God's providences. Nothing can come to the Lord's people by accident; for all things must work together for their good. Should one of them meet with what would appear to be an accident, if he should have some peculiar experience, he should think, "Is this something to teach me a special lesson, or is it a chastisement from my Father for wrong-doing?"

Every child of God must receive discipline, in order that his character may be developed. Even our Lord Jesus had disciplining. But in His case these experiences were never punishments; and it is for the Lord's people to be on guard to see that their disciplinings are not in the nature of punishments, so as to get the greatest benefit for them.—Hebrews 12: 6-11; 5:8.

The Lord's people should also study the character of God, to see His wholeness, His completeness, that they may copy His example. They are to have "the spirit of a sound mind." Our minds are not sound naturally, being blemished by the fall; but the mind of the New Creature is always loyal to God. The Scriptures tell us what God's will for us is, what His mind is; and we are to copy Him. God is LOVE. But He will not be loving at the expense of Justice. So let us copy God in His Wisdom, Mercy, Justice, and Love. All these noble qualities will be manifest more or less in the Church of Christ.

We should ever remember that our chief work is with ourselves. We are interested in the Lord's people, however. But God has not given us the work of making them over. He will attend to that work Himself. We are all soldiers under the one great Captain, we are members of the same Bride class, all called with the same Heavenly Calling. We have all been begotten with the same Holy Spirit, have one Father and one Saviour, if we are in the School of Christ and are learning of Him. How we should love the brethren, then! The Bible gives this as one of the unmistakable evidences that we have passed from death unto life—love of the brethren. (1 John 3:-4.) God's Word points out to us what it is to be holy as our Heavenly Father is holy, to be perfect as He is perfect. Then let this mind be in us which was in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Suffered No End of Pain FROM BACKACHES.

If a pain attacks you in the back you should stop and think what it is and what causes it.

If the kidneys are at fault—and in nine cases out of every ten they are—you should attend to them at once, as it is impossible to have a well, strong back unless the kidneys are performing their functions in a proper manner.

Anyone with a bad back should appreciate how to get a good one. It is a very simple matter. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They regulate the kidneys, and there is no further excuse for any kidney trouble to exist.

Mrs. E. J. Graves, Oshawa, Ont., writes: "My complaint lies with my kidneys. I have suffered no end of pain with them, and with backaches. I had tried everything, so I thought, until a friend advised me to try a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I did try them, and one box helped me fine, so I got another, and now feel that I cannot recommend them too highly to anyone suffering with kidney trouble."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the original kidney pills. Do not accept any substitutes put up under similar names. Always see that our trade mark "The Maple Leaf" appears on the label and wrapper.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Convince Yourself

Look at Crisco. Its very appearance tells a story of purity. It is creamy white and just stiff enough to round up nicely on the spoon.

Then see if it has an odor. You will find none but a delicate aroma, indicative of its purity. Crisco remains the same in hot weather without refrigeration.

Next taste it. You will find a neutral taste; that is, practically no flavor—not greasy or "lardy." It resembles cold, unsalted butter.

Then try it. First fry potatoes, and note the wholesome potato flavor. You may never have known the potato flavor before because the taste of the fat you have been using has predominated. Crisco allows the true flavor of the food to assert itself.

Next make some biscuits. See how light they are. Break one open and you will be delighted with its appetizing odor. This is a severe test for a shortening.

Next make a white cake and learn how delicate and rich your cake will be without butter and with few eggs.

Please convince yourself about Crisco. If you will know Crisco you will be a Crisco enthusiast.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter, and we attributed their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the best of all medicines. I was formerly subject to attacks of gravel, also by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

CURIOUS PERUVIAN TREE.

It Produces a Copious and Continuous Supply of Rain.

The rain tree of Peru grows very large, is rich in leaves and is called by the Indians tamaicaspi. It has the power of collecting the dampness of the atmosphere and condensing it into a continuous and copious supply of rain.

In the dry season, when the rivers are low and the heat great, the tree's power of condensing seems at the highest, and water falls in abundance from the leaves and pours from the trunk. The water spreads around in veritable rivers, part of which filters into the soil and fertilizes it. These rivers are canalized so as to regulate the course of the water.

It is estimated that one of the Peruvian rain trees will on the average yield nine gallons of water per diem. In a field of a area of one kilometer square—that is, 3,250 feet each way—ma be grown 10,000 trees separated from each other by twenty-five meters. This plantation produces daily 333,000 liters of water. If we allow for evaporation and infiltration we have 185,000 liters or 20,531 gallons of rain for distribution daily. The rain tree can be cultivated with very little trouble, for it seems indifferent as to the soil in which it grows. The tree increases rapidly and resists both extremes of climate.—Espana Moderna.

An Odd Apology.

This is the classic apology of a celebrated statesman of the last generation: "Mr. Speaker, in the heat of debate I stated that the right honorable gentleman opposite was a dishonest and unprincipled adventurer. I have now, in a calmer moment, to state that I am sorry for it."

A LIFE FOR A LIFE.

Everywhere in New Guinea the traveler is continually brought face to face with death, and the natives are devoid of the slightest pity or respect for the dead or dying, although after a death they will often wail and mourn for a considerable time.

Murder is an everyday occurrence, and nothing could be worse than the morals of the natives. In fact, they have none. They thieve and lie with a persistence and cunning which are surprising.

The Papuans have a cheerful custom which demands a life for a life. Should any one die at the first opportunity they kill some one—they are not very particular whom—to make up for it. "While we were at Humboldt bay," says Professor Pratt in the Wide World Magazine, "a Malay died of dropsy. He was the first Malay who had ever come to that part, and the Papuans greatly respected him.

"'Very well,' they said, 'we must shoot a Malay with our bows and arrows to pay for his death.' And sooner or later some innocent person would be killed to square the account, when everybody—except, presumably, the victim's friends—would be satisfied."

A Disguised Toast.

At one time the officers under Lord Howe refused to drink his health at their mess, for, though a splendid admiral, he was not popular in the navy on account of a certain shyness and want of tact with those about him. The chaplain, who was a protege of his lordship, was mortified at this and determined that the officers should drink to Lord Howe. When called upon for a toast one day he said, "Well, gentlemen, I can think of nothing better at this moment than to ask you to drink the first two words of the Third Psalm, for a Scriptural toast for once may be taken from one of my cloth." The toast was drunk. Not one of the officers indicated by word or look that he was ignorant of the words alluded to. On referring to the Bible it was found that the Third Psalm begins, "Lord, how are they increased?"

As Baby Shows.

The Rev. C. B. Law, vicar of Cheshunt, speaking at a baby show at Cheshunt, said as a corpse he was very nervous of babies. He did not know whether to say "he" or "she," and he was afraid to refer to it as "it." In desperation he said to the mother, "Is this your youngest?"

A fellow-curate was wiser. His stock sentence for such occasions was, "Well, that is a baby!"

WONDERFUL FOR THE BLOOD

Cures Sallow Skin, Headache, Languor and Tiredness.

You don't need to be told how you feel,—blue, sort of sickish, poor appetite, vague pains, tired in the morning. This condition is common at this season.

Fortunately there is prompt relief in Dr. Hamilton's Pills which immediately relieve the system of all poisons and disease-producing matter.

Thousands have been so utterly depressed, so worn out as to be despondent, but Dr. Hamilton's Pills always cured them. "I can speak feelingly on the power of Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes C. T. Fearman, of Kingston. "Last spring my blood was thin and weak, I was terribly run down, had awful headaches and a gnawing, empty feeling about my stomach, I couldn't sleep or work until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills,—they did me a world of good." A DENTAL CURIOSITY.

The Set of Artificial Teeth That Washington Endured.

It may not be generally known that the Father of His Country was one of the first Americans to wear artificial teeth. By the time the war of the Revolution had ended he had parted company with most of the outfit which nature had given him. An ingenious physician and dentist of New York city undertook the then unusual task of re-equipment and produced at length a full set of artificial teeth. These are now, of course, a dental curiosity and offer an additional proof of the heroism of our first president, for it is a matter of fact that General Washington wore those teeth for many years and, so far as we know, never complained of them.

The teeth were carved from ivory and riveted, wired and clamped to a somewhat ponderous gold plate. Three large clamps in particular figure conspicuously in the roof of the mouth and must have caused difficulty, if not anguish. There were an upper and an under set, and the two were connected and held in position relatively by a long spiral spring on each side, says Harper's Weekly.

Nevertheless Washington wore them long and well, a fact sufficiently attested by the worn and dilated condition of both teeth and plate.

At the last account these teeth were the property of a dental institution in Baltimore.

A Useful Coffin.

A writer in an English church magazine once found in a collier's cottage in Staffordshire a coffin used as a bread and cheese cupboard. Notwithstanding his wife's remonstrance, he told the story of the coffin as follows: "Eighteen years ago I ordered that coffin. The wife and me used to have a good many words. One day she said, 'I'll never be content till I see thee in thy coffin.' 'Well, lass,' I said, 'if that'll content thee it'll soon be done.'

"Next day I gave directions to have the thing made. In a few days it came home, to the wife's horror. I got into it and said, 'Now, lass, are thee content?' She began to cry and wanted the horrid thing taken away. But that I wouldn't allow. In the end she got accustomed to seeing it, and as we wanted to turn it to some use we had some shelves put in and made it into a bread and cheese cupboard. We have never quarreled since it came."

Circulating Libraries.

Long before the Revolution a young printer in Philadelphia when he had taken off his working apron at night used to sit poring over his dozen of old volumes by firelight. He even knew them by heart and hungered for more. But books were costly, and he had but little money. He had eight or ten cronies, young men who, like himself, were eager for knowledge. Ranging his books on a shelf, he invited his friends to do the same, that each of them might have the benefit of them all. Ben Franklin thus laid the foundation of the first circulating library in this country.

He Lived It.

A man who lives alongside of a graveyard was asked if it was not an unpleasant location.

"No," said he: "I never resided in all my life with a set of neighbors that minded their own business so steadily as they do."—Pittsburgh Press.

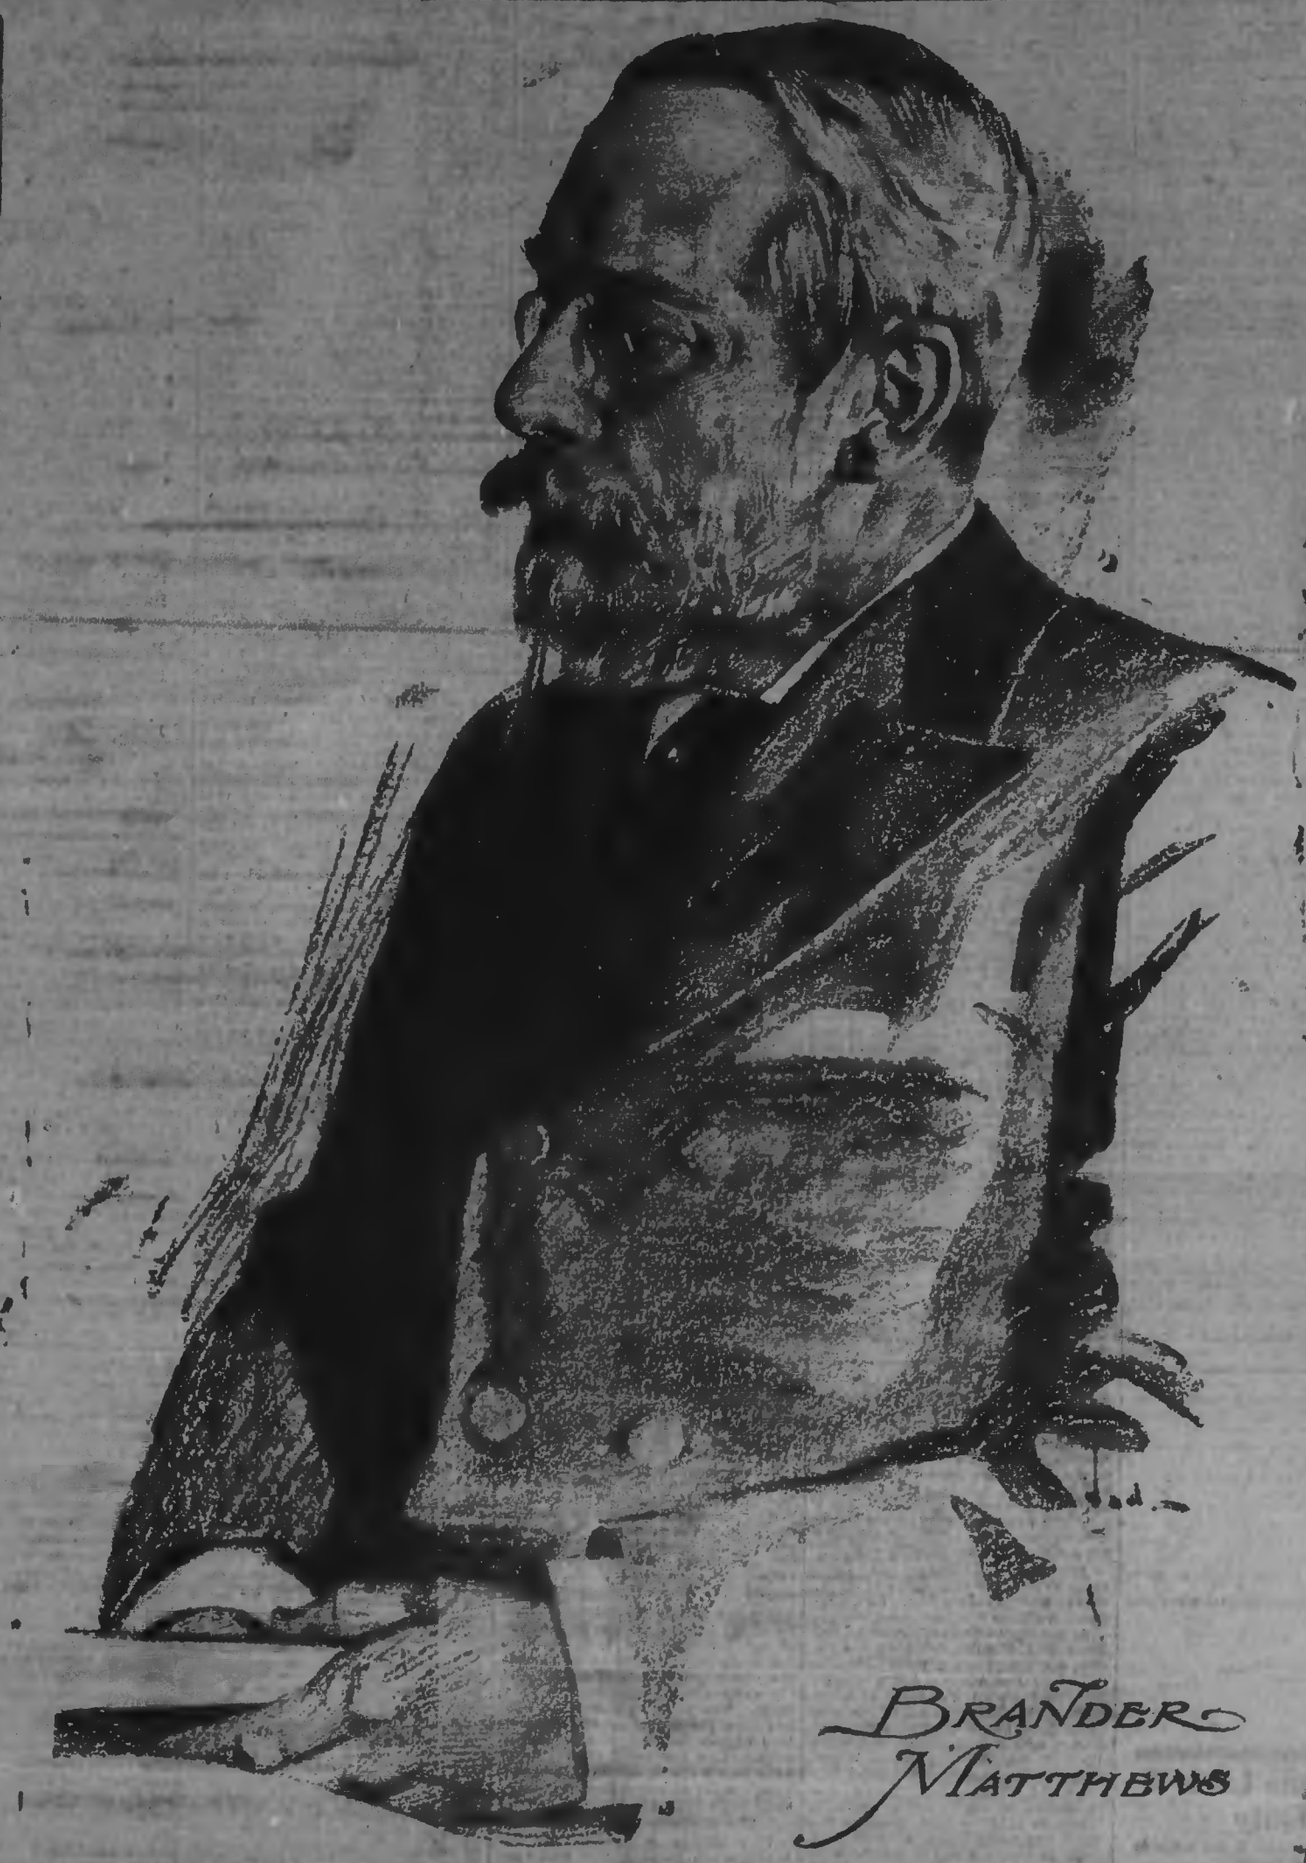
Effect of European War on English as a World Language Discussed by Brander Matthews, Noted Author and Educator

Says English Is Better Fitted for Universal Use Among Nations Because of the Simplicity of Its Grammatical Construction.

All Will Depend on the Result of the War—German or English Language Will Then Predominate, According to Which Nation Is Victorious.



By BRANDER MATTHEWS, LL. D.

Professor Dramatic Literature, Columbia University.

ALTHOUGH nobody can deny the truth of George Eliot's assertion that "of all the forms of human error prophecy is the most gratuitous," we can none of us refrain from speculating upon the deep and wide consequences which will necessarily follow upon the cessation of the mightiest war in the history of mankind. There are scores of questions in our minds as to the immediate future after the coming of peace, when the racial energies now fiercely bent on destruction shall be again directed toward construction, and when men are free once more to work out their own salvation in their own fashion.

Some of these inquiries are of immense importance to all of us, and some of them seem to have only a curious interest to a few here and there. A question which has presented itself to many is as to the effect this great conflict is likely to have upon the expansion of the English language. Is the war going to help the spread of our noble tongue? Or is it going to hinder the diffusion of English and to halt the marvellous increase of the English speaking people—an increase which was one of the most significant of the many significant events of the nineteenth century?

At the end of the eighteenth century there were probably twenty or twenty-two millions of human beings who had English for their mother-tongue, most of them being natives of the British Isles, although perhaps a quarter of them were immigrants or the descendants of immigrants in the United States, in Canada, in India and in various sparsely settled British colonies. At the end of the nineteenth century the number of the inhabitants of Great Britain, of the United States, of Canada and of Australia was probably almost seven times as large as it had been a hundred years earlier, and nearly all these hundred and thirty millions spoke English, even if it was not their native speech, and they were bringing up their children to speak English. Those who had to use English in their everyday life probably outnumbered nearly two to one those who had German for their mother tongue, as they probably outnumbered nearly three to one those whose native speech was either French or Spanish.

Dreams of Universal Tongue.

In view of this extraordinary growth there were enthusiasts who hailed English as the future world language, the certain successor of the Latin, which for more than a thousand years had been the means of communication between peoples of the most diverse races. Some of these enthusiasts even ventured to predict a linguistic millennium, when many of the evil effects of the confusion of tongues would disappear, because nation after nation would come to perceive the benefit of abandoning its own language and of adopting English instead. Of course, this was only an idle dream; no race will ever surrender its inherited idiom, no matter what advantage—political or commercial—it might find in the exchange.

But even if English might never attain the supremacy and the comparative universality once enjoyed by Latin, it might hope to conquer for itself the proud position once held by French—as the second language acquired by all educated men in all parts of the world. Indeed, the rivalry of French and English for this position as a medium of international communication has long been obvious, and there was little doubt that English was slowly gaining on French, even if it had not already passed it in the race. For example, French was no longer the sole and necessary language of diplomacy. Again, owing to the fact that the British and the Americans are more abundant and more persistent travellers than the French, it has been evident that the Dutch and the Italians, the Swiss and the Scandinavians were turning more and more to English, even if there was little relaxing in the potency of the appeal of French literature. And equally undeniable has been the effect of British leadership in finance, in commerce and in manufactures, whereby it has been pecuniarily profitable for men of affairs in every part of the world to acquire English, if only for the purpose of doing business in it.

Learn English for Profit.

The increase in the number of those who possess English as a second tongue in addition to their own native idiom is not due to any superiority of the language itself any more than the former more or less universal use of French and of Latin was due to any superiority of these languages. Foreigners are led to learn English for political, financial and commercial reasons, and not at all because they hold the language itself to be the best fitted to serve as an international medium. The worldwide use of Latin for nearly a score of centuries was the result, not of its own merits, undeniable as these are, but to the military prowess and to the political capacity of the Roman people. So the subsequent popularity of French was the result partly of the abiding and compelling charm of French literature and partly of the political pre-eminence of France from the brilliant days of Louis XIV. to the dark downfall of Napoleon III.

Yet English is no worse fitted for universal use than French or Latin, and perhaps it is even better adapted than either, because of the simplicity of its grammatical structure and because of the richness of its double vocabulary, Teutonic and Romance. Even if English is not quite the grammarless language that Richard Grant White held it to be, it has far fewer grammatical complexities than any other of the great languages of the world, ancient or modern. Owing to the fortunate fusion of the Saxon and the Norman the English long ago rid themselves of the artificial genders, the embarrassing declensions and agreements, and the cumbersome conjugations which still abound in French and even now in German, as they abounded in Latin and Greek. Biologically English is the most advanced of all the modern languages in that it has shed the grammatical intricacies characteristic of all primitive tongues.

Better for Its Directness.

Now and again, it is true, scholars of our stock, trained in their youth to an appreciation of the delicate shadings of meaning made possible in Greek by declension and conjugation, have been moved to lament the disappearance of these refinements from our stalwart and masculine speech. But these scholars are only a few at most; and they are far outnumbered by the students of language who rejoice that our tongue has rid itself of these survivals from linguistic juvenility. The Danish historian of English, Professor Jespersen, is emphatic in asserting that our language is superior to other modern languages very largely because it has dropped these outworn complexities. And an equally open minded and far abler German student of speech, Jacob Grimm, had earlier declared that "in richness, in compact adjustment of parts and in pure intelligence no other of the living languages can be compared with English, not even our own German, which must cast off many imperfections before it can boldly enter on its career."

Whatever its career may be hereafter, German is now severely handicapped in its expansion by its retention of primitive grammatical complexities which have been discarded by more advanced languages—by French to a great extent and by English to a still greater extent. German is also made more difficult to acquire by its clinging to the contorted mediæval alphabet long since discarded by the English and the French. The Spaniards and the Italians in favor of the clearer Roman letters, and German will be still further unfitted for use as a world language if it succeeds in its present effort to purge its vocabulary of foreign words, casting out the universal "hotel" and "telephone," for example, in favor of the local "Gasthaus" and "Fernsprecher."

Easiest to Learn "By Ear."

As a direct result of the almost grammarless simplicity of structure, English is by far the easiest language to learn by word of mouth—by the ear alone. But English is unfortunately far less easy to acquire from the printed page, that is to say, by the eye, because its orthography is as unnatural as its syntax is natural. The ideal of rational spelling is that there should be a single symbol for every sound and a single sound for every symbol, and if this ideal could be attained there would be no need of the pronouncing dictionary and of the spelling book. Now, this ideal is now attained, if not completely at least substantially, in Spanish and in Italian, languages in which the foreigner can learn to read without delay and in which the children are not compelled to waste years in a barren memorizing of long lists in a speller. This ideal is not even approached in German, in French or in English. Misleading and absurd as the spelling of French and German often is, the spelling of English is far worse. We have half a dozen symbols for every sound and we give half a dozen sounds to the same symbol. Our spelling is illogical, incoherent and chaotic, and no other language, ancient or modern, has ever had a group of orthographic inconsistencies as absurd as "though," "through," "cough," "hough," "bough" and "rough."

Hinders Its Own Diffusion.

It has been said—although probably without warrant—that when the Japanese were engaged in taking over the manifold appliances of modern civilization they considered seriously a proposition to give up their own melodious language and to adopt English as their official speech, and that the determining cause of their final rejection of this suggestion was the surpassing absurdity of our spelling. Even if there were no foundation for this tale—and it is most unlikely that a proud people like the Japanese would ever consider seriously the surrender of its mother tongue—it is an indisputable fact that our uncivilized orthography is an obvious hindrance to the wider diffusion of English. Happily, there are signs that the two peoples who speak English are slowly awakening to the immense disadvantages of our spelling and that steps are timidly to be taken in the immediate future to regularize it more or less and to make it fitter for worldwide use.

Yet when all is said that needs to be said about the grammatical simplicity and the orthographic complexity of English, the fact remains that it is not by its own merits that any language spreads itself abroad.

The steady expansion of English in the future will be due to the same factors which have brought about its expansion in the past—the masterful energy of the stock that speaks the language.

If English is to continue to press forward this will be because of the enterprise, the industry, the imagination and the courage of the Americans and of the British. If English is to become the second language of all educated men this will be due to the ability of the Americans and the British to hold their own in the intense international rivalry in the arts of peace, in literature, in manufactures, in commerce, in finance and in diplomacy—a rivalry certain to reveal itself intenser than ever before as soon as this war is over.

What Will the War Do?

Of course, the future of English as a world language will depend to some extent upon the result of the war itself. If the British Empire should be broken up the blow would be hard to bear; and if the German Empire should be able to hold any large portion of the countries now overrun by its armies there would be a corresponding advantage to the German language. Even if the German Empire shall be able only to regain its lost colonies this would be to the disadvantage of English, although it is to be noted that Germany has not been successful in persuading its subjects to establish themselves in its own colonies, always under strict governmental control. Apparently, a German subject when he emigrates from his native land prefers to go to a country where he feels himself free from the meticulous supervision which has restricted his liberty at home.

It seems likely also that there will be very little emigration from Germany when peace is declared. In the first place, the Fatherland, after the enormous losses of the war, will need all its subjects to build itself up again; and, in the second place, Germans will not be immediately welcome in the dependencies of the nations with which the empire has been at war. In the neutral countries, however, and especially in South America, the Germans will make strenuous efforts to recapture the trade they have lost during the war. Yet here again the rivalry of the German language is less dangerous than might be supposed at first sight, because the success of German commercial enterprise has been due largely to the willingness of the Germans to learn and to employ the languages of the several peoples with whom they desired to do business. The Americans and the British rather expect the foreigner to learn English if he wants to trade with them; and sometimes the foreigner has taken the trouble to do this. The Germans do not take their language with them, and they make no attempt to force the foreigner to learn German.

Competition of German Decreases.

Still another characteristic of the German will tend to diminish the effect of the commercial competition of the next few years. The men who have English for their mother tongue not only take their language with them; they take an abiding pride in the race to which they belong, and they therefore refuse to be incorporated into the people with whom they are doing business and in the midst of whom they are sojourners, perhaps for all the years of their lives. The German, on the other hand, casts in his lot with the country to which he has immigrated; he adopts the native tongue; he forgets his own, and he does not insist on bringing up his children to speak German.

That is to say, the German who has settled in the United States or in Brazil or in Argentina may retain a keen sentimental interest in the Fatherland for one generation at least; but he is soon subdued to what he works in, and his children come to think of themselves as Germans, partly because they are very likely not to speak German. Here in North America we have seen the beneficent results of this complete assimilation of the descendants of German immigrants, and we may rest assured that a like assimilation is taking place in South America.

The rivalry of English and German is a commercial rivalry, and for the reasons here given the English have little to fear as to the result. The rivalry of English and French is not so much commercial as literary, and there is no likelihood that it will be any less keen in the future than it has been in the past. We who speak English take only a tepid interest in German literature, and there were only a few German authors in the nineteenth century who won international acceptance. But the appeal of French literature is as perennial as it is pervasive. Paris is still the artistic capital of the world, and the French language is still the most felicitous medium of social intercourse. To say this is not to assert any superiority of French literature over English literature, which is flourishing on both sides of the Atlantic and which is ever revealing its own special qualities as valuable and as significant as those of French literature.

It may be long years yet before English is able, finally, to displace French as the second language of men of education interested in all the arts. Indeed, English may never succeed in achieving this, even if it shall be able to have its own claims more and more widely acknowledged. With German, however, the rivalry is colonial and commercial, and there is no reason to suppose that English will ever be deprived of the commanding position which it now possesses throughout the world.

THE ALLIES RETALIATE FOR AIR RAID

German Attacks At Verdun Are Weakening

SIXTY-FIVE OF THE ALLIED AEROPLANES BOMBARD A GERMAN SUBMARINE BASE

Enemy's Aerodrome at Houltade and Seaplane Station at Zeebruge Are Also Bombed By Allies' Airmen, Considerable Damage Being Done---Attack Made in Retaliation For German Air Raid on England.

GERMANS LACK SPIRIT IN WEST NOW

LONDON, March 20.—In retaliation for Sunday's raid by German seaplants on the English East Coast towns sixty-five British and French and Belgian planes attacked Zeebrugge, a German submarine and seaplane base, and the Belgium town of Houltade, at an early hour this morning.

Fifty of the raiding aeroplanes carried 200 pounds of bombs each. They rained these missiles down upon the seaplane station at Zeebrugge and German aerodrome at Houltade.

Fifteen armoured fighting planes convoyed the bomb-bearing aircraft to the Belgian towns to engage enemy airmen. The Admiralty announced this afternoon that all the Allied planes returned safely to their bases.

To-day's air raid on the German seaplane base, one of the greatest sky attacks by the Allies in Belgium in many months, was also the first instance in which Allied airmen carried the war to the enemy's aircamp immediately after an air invasion of England. This policy, it is understood, will be pursued in every case hereafter. Lord Derby made this decision immediately after he assumed the office as unofficial aviation minister.

Sunday's air raid on England in which eleven persons were killed and more than thirty injured, was only one of a number directed by the Germans from the seaplane base at Zeebrugge, only a few hours' flight across the English Channel.

LONDON, March 20.—Fifty Allied aeroplanes attacked the German submarine base at Zeebrugge, Belgium, and enemy works at Houltade, the Admiralty announced this afternoon. Considerable damage was done, the official statement said.

Infantry Attacks Are Stopped By French

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, March 20.—Intermittent bombardment around Vaux village, northeast of Verdun and lively cannonading around Esparges on the Meuse Heights to the southeast, was reported in this afternoon's official statement from the War Office.

The repulse of German infantry attack against Pepper Heights position, four miles north of Verdun was announced by the War Office this afternoon.

Germans attacked after artillery bombardment of French positions. The assault showed the same lack of spirit displayed by the Germans in the recent fighting around Verdun and was stopped by the French guns.

BERLIN, March 20.—Repulse of French attacks around Fort Douaumont and Vaux village was reported by the War Office in the official statement this afternoon.

PARIS, March 20.—The importance of the Allied military and political conference to be held here this week was emphasized to-day by the arrival of General Cadorna, Italian Commander-in-Chief.

At previous sessions of the War Council, Italy has been represented by General Porro, second in command. Prince Regent Alexander and Premier Pachitch of Serbia, who are beginning a tour of Allies' capitals, will reach Paris to-morrow noon.

Two British Steamers Are Sunk by Subs.

Examiner Special:

LONDON, March 20.—The British steamer Port Dalhousie and the Norwegian steamer Langeli, have been sunk with the loss of several lives.

Seven of the crew of the Port Dalhousie have been rescued, but several others are missing. Sixteen of the survivors of the Langeli were picked up.

LONDON, March 20.—Berne despatches reported to-day that it has been learned positively that the Crown Prince is about to relinquish command of the army of the Lorraine, as a result of the Verdun failure.

SHAKESPEARE TO BE PLAYED AT THE GRAND

The longest run of Hamlet ever known is to be placed to the credit of John E. Kellerd, who comes to the Grand on Friday and Saturday of this week. Kellerd played Hamlet at the Garden and Harris Theatres, New York City for one hundred and two nights—a record worthy of this great tragedian. Mr. Kellerd has demonstrated that when the plays of Shakespere are presented in an intelligent and artistic manner they are bound to secure their full need of support from a public only too eager at any time to realize the true genius of an actor who can portray characters with such unusual and exceptional ability. Mr. Kellerd's wonderful versatility is shown by the performances he is now placing before the public, "Hamlet," "The Merchant of Venice" and "Macbeth."

Owing to the fact that Bothern and Marlowe have retired and that Mantell has deserted the stage for the screen, Mr. Kellerd has been able to secure such well known players as Philip Quinn, Brandon Peters, Elwyn Eaton, Carl Reed, Cyril Courtney, Victor Beecroft, George Hinn Henry Hemptield, Bernard Widman, Leonard Cohan, Reginald Stewart, Jack Phillips Donald Dacey, Miss Georgianna Wilson, Miss Helen Barry, Marguerite Swank Martha Doro, Adelaide Farrar and Beatrice Beecroft.

This being the year for Shakespearian Celebration, the distinguished organization will no doubt meet with capacity business during their all too brief stay here.

All the productions are given with a close attention to detail and the entire company upholds all the highest traditions of dramatic art.

ROYAL THEATRE

To-night. If you are interested in the best feature dramas and comedies, don't miss our programme to-day and to-morrow. This week's specially selected programme is sure to please every one; in fact, any one not satisfied can ask for and will get his money back'k. No delay. Continuous performance, with three machines and two Union operators. Afternoons electric orchestra will give selections. Everything up to date, and will please everybody. Our many years' experience has taught us what pleases the public.

A CONFERENCE WITH EMPLOYERS OF LABOUR

Greater Efforts Will Be Made to Fill the Gaps in the 93rd Battalion—Last Night's Recruiting Meeting

THE QUESTION BUREAU

Mrs. Charles Haultain, of Port Hope, was the speaker of the evening at the recruiting rally that was held in the Armouries last evening. Mrs. Haultain is an interesting speaker and is well known in Peterborough. She has two sons serving at the front and every eligible relative of military age is with the colours in some form or other. Rev. Robert Pogue, who presided, gave an excellent address concerning the struggle that is being waged throughout the world. Mr. Pogue during the course of his remarks expressed the opinion that the recent battle at Verdun marks the beginning of the end. It constituted a futile attempt on the part of the Germans to win a smashing victory. The speaker reminded those present of the privilege that was afforded them of joining the colours before it is too late. It was difficult to explain why so many eligible young men were shirking their duty. He placed some of the responsibility for this with employers of labour and also friends. In conclusion, Mr. Pogue urged every man to place himself at the disposal of his King and country and help to bring the war to a successful and speedy conclusion.

Mrs. Haultain.

Mrs. Haultain reviewed the efforts that are being made throughout Canada to fill up the ranks and avenge those who have laid down their lives on the battlefield. Public men and women in all walks of life are freely contributing their time and energy to this great work. The speaker alluded to the conditions as they now exist in the devastated countries through which the enemy has passed and the sufferings that must be endured by the inhabitants of those countries until such time as the situation is relieved by the victorious allies. Men are needed to-day to go forward and do their part in bringing this war to a conclusion. The men in the trenches are standing together and wondering how many of those at home will go out and help them vanquish the enemy. A short time ago a consignment of clothing was forwarded for the use of destitute children in Poland. Word came back that the clothing was not needed as there were no children in Poland. Those that had not been driven away were slaughtered or had died from exposure. "This is one of the tragedies of the present war, and is one of the many reasons why all eligible men should enlist," said Mrs. Haultain.

The Question Buresu.

That local manufacturers to a man are willing to adopt any reasonable measures to facilitate enlistment among their employees, was the information that was imparted to the audience by Capt. James Rollins, of the 93rd Battalion. In some cases single men employed in local industries will be asked why they have not joined the colours, and if they are unable to furnish a satisfactory reason, will be dismissed. Where a man is working on a special line of work and is indispensable for the time being, arrangements will be made to have him attested and his place filled before he is removed. Some time during the week a conference will be held between local employers of labour, the Speakers' Patriotic League and any other organization interested with a view of inaugurating some definite and amiable plan of action.

Adjutant McIlheney closed the meeting by answering a number of questions that were asked through the medium of the question bureau. In cases where the questions alluded to specific cases the questions were answered direct, others were laid over for further investigation. As to why members of the police force and the City Council did not enlist. Adjt. McIlheney said he was not a medical examiner. He presumed there were eligible men in both the Police Department and the City Council.

PETERBOROUGH BOY MENTIONED FOR HIS WORK AT THE FRONT

Grenadier W. H. Saxby, of 21st Battalion Cut German Wire ---Is a Brother of Corp. N. Saxby of the 93rd Battalion ---Peterborough Bandsman is Honoured---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Pte. W. H. Saxby, one of the Peterborough members of the 21st Battalion and a brother of Lance Corp. Norman Saxby of the 93rd, is mentioned in the last despatch received at Ottawa from the Canadian representative in France. The despatch says:

In spite of these conditions our patrols were exceedingly active along the whole front. On the night of March 10 an officer patrol of our Twenty-first Eastern Ontario battalion, consisting of Captain Miller, Lieut. Shepherd and Lieut. Spier, made an extensive examination of the German wire. On the following night Lieut. Shepherd, accompanied by Corporal Ford, Scout Doyle and Grenadier Saxby, cut through the enemy's wire opposite a machine gun emplacement.

Band Sergt. Knipper, formerly of the 57th Regimental Band, is winning laurels in London, where he is bandmaster of the 70th Battalion. A few days ago he directed four massed bands, 120 players, at the presentation of colours to the 70th Battalion. The London Advertiser says: "Band Sergt. Knipper led the massed bands skillfully and received many congratulations."

Battalion Sergt. Major T. Miller was the recipient of a magnificent ebony, gold-headed cane, suitably engraved, on Saturday. The beautiful cane was a gift from the sergeants of the 93rd and was presented on behalf of the sergeants by Battalion Q. M. S. Cottrell.

The machine gun section of the 93rd Battalion presented Sergt. Herb O'Heron with a very handsome cane on Friday afternoon as a mark of appreciation of his service.

Sanitary Orders.

Reverting to Sanitary Orders of Dec. 3rd, all beds must be neatly made by 8.30 a.m. every morning.

J. E. R. MUNRO, Capt.
Adjutant 93rd Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.

It is published for general information that the reward of $20 for the apprehension of a deserter from the permanent force is not authorized for members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Reasonable expenses incurred in making the arrest and returning the soldier to his corps will be allowed but wherever possible, these will be recovered from the man's pay.

Recruiting officers and patriotic fund. With reference to Divisional Order No. 128 dated the 9th February, it is published for general information that the instructions contained therein are not being carried out by some recruiting officers. Numerous complaints have been received at headquarters, regarding promises made by recruiting officers of assistance given to the Patriotic Fund to the families of married members of the C.E.F., living at their own homes and drawing subsistence of 60c per diem. This statement is erroneous, as the only promise made by the Association is that it will undertake to provide an amount to comfortably maintain a soldier's family when away from home this amount to be varied to suit altered conditions.

ATTEMPTED TO ASSASSINATE THE BULGARIAN LEADER

Premier Radoslavoff Attacked by Postal Employee Who Fired Two Shots at Him, Both Missing

COACHMAN WOUNDED

LONDON, March 20.—Premier Radoslavoff of Bulgaria, was attacked by a would-be assassin while riding in an open carriage in the streets of Sofia yesterday, according to despatches from both Rome and Paris this afternoon.

A postal employee named Ivanoff fired two shots at Radoslavoff. The first bullet went wild. The second wounded the Prime Minister's coach man. Before Ivanoff could fire again a student sprang upon him and disarmed him. The Premire, himself escaped unhurt.

The Bulgarian Premier is one of the dominating figures in the Balkan politics. He occupied a particularly prominent position during the negotiations preceding Bulgaria's entrance into the war.

MEASLES CLAIM ANOTHER VICTIM

Infant Child of Pte. Bath of the 93rd Battalion, Passed Away Last Evening

Hazel Viola Bath, the eleven months' old daughter of Pte. James Bath of the 93rd Battalion, passed away last evening. Death was due to measles. The funeral will take place to-morrow from the family residence 535 Gilmour Street to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. J. P. Wilson of Trinity Methodist Church will officiate.

Ministers Endorse Personal Canvass

The Ministerial Association met at 11 o'clock this morning at the Y. M. C. A., to hear a deputation from The Speakers' Patriotic League, composed of Capt. Rollins and Mr. H. B Rogers, and the following resolution is the outgrowth of the presentation of their case

Moved by Rev. Mr. Webb, seconded by Rev. Mr. White

Resolved, that we, as an Association, will place on record our hearty sympathy with the work of recruiting; that we approve of the personal canvas scheme of filling the ranks of the 93rd Battalion, and that we will do all in our power to further the best interests of the work of the Speakers Patriotic League

Weather Forecasting

A weather wiseacre tells the Examiner of "an infallible way" to guess the weather. His instructions were to watch the prevailing winds of to-morrow, March 21, the vernal equinox. Whatever will be the prevailing wind during the day to-morrow, will be the prevailing winds for the next ninety days. If the winds come from a cold quarter we shall probably have a cold, backward spring; and if from the sunny south we shall have a spring of of normal geniality. We shall all keep our "weather eye" open, with the diligent employment of the straw which shows which way the wind blows.

NO MYSTERY

in eyeglasses. The eyes have a lens system with which they focus objects far and near. In defective eyes, this focal power is more or less limited. Our system of grinding lenses and relieving defective eyes is an exact science. See Dr. Lacey, 410 George street.

The stomach of the young calf is small, so that it is not able to handle large amounts of milk. Eight to ten pounds or four or five quarts per day is the proper amount to feed a young calf. For a very small or weak calf six pounds or three quarts is sufficient.

A STRONG PLEA FOR AN AWAKENING

Peterboro' Physician on Active Service Says We Have Not Yet Come to the Point When We Will Throw Our All into the Struggle

A THOUGHTFUL LETTER

The following eloquent plea to the people of Peterborough to grasp the seriousness of the war situation and come to a realization of the call of duty was written for the Examiner by Lieut. N. H. Sutton, a Peterborough physician with the Canadian Army Medical Corps at Bramshott Camp, Eng.:

Bramshott Camp, Feb. 29, 1916.

This week-end I received a whole bunch of "Examiners," from January 24th to February 3rd, and covering the period of the main recruiting campaign, and I could not refrain from writing. I should have so enjoyed being there to help, and anything I can do to help is now a bit late, I fear. I have not yet read all the numbers but, as far as I have gone, the campaign seems to have stirred things up considerably, which is all to the good as far as it goes. If the ranks of the 93rd are filled up, so far so good for the present. What of the future? Also entirely to the good, as I estimate it. If some people's feelings are hurt and some little bitterness engendered, it will not last, for time and the progress of the war will mend all that; especially the latter.

I write this letter under date of February 29th, 1916. I see no reason why I should not be again writing you from the army on February 29, 1920, and still in this fight to a finish against the Germ-huns.

As I write, the battle of Verdun is still in progress; the greatest battle of all time. How long will it hold that record? Perhaps not a fortnight. Does it look as if the enemy were approaching an end? No, nor are they! When a nation has for forty years been organizing itself throughout its whole life with a thoroughness and minuteness of detail not dreamed of even by men who knew as much as could be known, like the late lamented "Bobs," it is not to be beaten in a day, nor perhaps in a decade. But it can and will be beaten. When, however, that is accomplished, we shall have become organized and disciplined to the very depths of our national and individual souls. We are far from it yet, as is evidenced by some of the letters appearing in your columns. The "Voice of the People" is still a confused cry with many discordant notes, some even distinctly querulous. But I hope ere the war is over, to hear it arise at last united in resolution, and tempered with resignation and the spirit of self-sacrifice, so that even the murmur of "How long, O Lord, how long?" which will presently creep into the chorus, will have ceased and the nation will at last have found its soul. When that is accomplished this truly terrible war will have done its work.

THE ATTITUDE OF FRANCE.

And what a war it is. To realize it or to form an adequate estimate of its meaning, I can think of no better way than to study the attitude of France. La Republique Francaise is pictured in cartoons as a woman, and with a woman's intuition the whole nation grasped immediately the meaning of it all. Never again, perhaps, will earth witness a nation in a still breathless agony of suspense, as was the case with France during the first four days of August, 1914. Almost a pin might have been heard to drop in Paris. If the British Empire came in, France could engage in what she knew would be a life-and-death struggle with steadfast energy and hope. If the opposite befel, then she would enter it with courage none the less steadfast be-

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THE ONE CONDITION.

Premier Hughes of Australia, wh is at present in England, has bee advocating a fundamental change o government that will organize th whole empire in devising and formu lating a policy to cover every aspec of economic and social life. Withou thinking of the details of such a polic it is safe to demand that anythin impairing or tending to impair, th self government of the Dominion must not be included in it. Our nat government and our sense of it hav made Canada a nation doing a na tion's work, and with a national spiri of self reliance and wholesome ambi tions that could not exist under an subordinate or subject relation to th constitutional centre of the Empire It's the national spirit that nerve the national arm. The self governin dominions of the Empire are a pol itical paradox—bound yet free, subjec yet sovereign, loyal, with a loyalt that has its roots in autonomy.

A "FAD" AND A FALLACY.

One has sometimes ground for aston ishment at the attitude, opinions an sentiments of aldermen; and "sh limit" seems to have been reached i the desire of one alderman, to "cu out" the grant to the Peterborough Health Association and his declara tion that it was a "fad of the doctors. Such an expression of opinion—which is not an expression of fact—may hav been expressed in a moment of ex citement induced by the zeal to cu down expenditures; but it was cer tainly made in forgetfulness or ignor ance of the work of the Health Assoc iation and the importance of unceas ing efforts of sanitary science in th prevention of disease. A little use o the mind to think, and a little watch ing of recorded results of the triumph of sanitation, would show its import ance. The present war is the greates in history, and the conditions ar more favourable for the developmen of disease, with immense masses o men crowded together, and subjecte to the greatest physical hardships - standing in knee deep trench water sleeping in mud, subjected to prolong ed and intense nervous strain, destruc tive of vitality and strength to resis disease; in a ward under the mos favourable conditions, if undealt with to promote disease and even pestil ence. Yet such is the advance o sanitary science and scientific know ledge of sanitary measures, that th mortality from disease in the armie in the field shows a smaller percent age than in any previous war. Th health of our civilian population i equally important. Who that thinks a all does not know, that the possessio of wealth and the capacity for effec tive service to the family or the com munity are neturalized when healt disappears; circumstances that emph asize the supreme importance o health, and the justification of the greatest of efforts, and even lavish expenditures to maintain the health of our citizenship. An alderman ha only to turn to a report of the wor of the Peterborough Health Associa tion, to learn of the immense benefit of this "fad of the doctors." Home that were hot beds of disease hav been visited and conditions so im proved that the menace has been re moved and inmates taught how to preserve health, and where poverty i added, to prevent the development o disease that would throw a financia burden upon the city and the taxpay ers of the city. The reading of the report would show that great misery and suffering have been relieved, death diverted, the highest duty o humanity done and the highest triumphs of sanitary science effective ly applied. Good luck and unbounde ing and liberal support to a "fad" like the Peterborough Health Associa tion, which is not nearly so near a fad as the aldermanic position is a failure.

The advertiser who is deceived as to newspaper circulation is not entitled to much sympathy."

PATRONAGE.

Mr. Burnham, in a letter, in another column, comes to the defence of the patronage system. He says "to select and recommend" is "patronage." It all depends upon the person, or authority, doing the "selecting and recommending." This is a mere family matter, with the existence of the patronage list which, of course, contains only the names of the faithful. To do away with the evils of patronage needs the destruction of the patronage list; the removal of "patronage" from party governments and party leaders, whether "members of the riding" or ward association magnates, vulgarly described as "bosses." Give patronage—appointing of officials, and in some cases, the awarding of contracts—into the hands of a commission independent of parties or governments, and responsible only to parliament. Let this commission alone distribute "patronage." Under circumstances with which all the people of Peterborough are familiar, "there's richness" in Mr. Burnham's denunciation of the "worst evil in patronage"; that is, "cliques trying to get hold of party conventions."

PRESIDENTIAL QUALIFICATION.

It is stated that one Franklin P. Lane cannot constitutionally be elected President of the United States because he was not born in the United States—because he was born in Canada. The latter, however would be one reason why he would make a good President. The manufacturers of the United States constitution decreed, among other things that no man could be President of the United States unless he was hatched under the Eagle. Why this was done is not clearly understood by outsiders. The first President of the United States—one of the best they ever had—the father of the country—was born in England. The point is that he was an Englishman and wouldn't have had his nature changed if he had just seen light or merican soil. Foreign birth disqualifies a man from the presidency and native birth qualifies, though one birth should it take place at sea, a hundred yards outside the three-mile limit, and the other at sea, a hundred yards inside the three-mile limit. Every one born in the United States is qualified, by birth, to be President. Are there not a few native-born Teutons who would not be elected as President—men who are lying, spying and plotting to injure their native country? The accident of birth has not changed their natures and made them eligible, in the higher sense, to become the head of the nation. The enforcement of an arbitrary rule stands to deprive the United States sometimes of a good President. Foreign birth, especially if it takes place in Canada, should be an additional qualification. Republican institutes, as the assumed highest manifestation of the Democratic principle, do not always bring what should be the fullest and fairest expression of liberty—equal rights of citizenship.

WHERE THE RESPONSIBILITY LIES.

While he (Sir Robert Borden) is reproaching the opposition for the naval inactivity of Canada, he knows full well that but for the unholy alliance that he made with the Nationalist party in Quebec, and the promises that for political purposes he made to men who talked about "shooting holes through the British flag," Canada would to-day be on a par with proud Australia in the matter of naval aid to the Empire. Instead of that the men who talked of "shooting holes through the British flag" have been elevated to some of the highest positions in the state, and, in order that they might be sustained there, the Canadian people have been prevented from either having a navy of their own, like Australia's, or saying whether they would or would not approve Sir Robert Borden's makeshift proposals in place of that navy.—Montreal Herald.

THE RACES TAX.

The tax which the Ontario government is placing on amusements has its duplicate in New Zealand. In that colony there has been no diminution in horse racing, of which the New Zealanders are notoriously fond. The leading centre of racing is Canterbury. During the four days' racing of the Canterbury Jockey Club this year the sum of £177,015 was put through the totalisater, or more than $14,000 in excess of last year. At the Metropolitan Trotting club's meeting in three days £128,048 was passed through the totalisater, or more than £7,000 in excess of last year. As a result racing clubs are being made to contribute very materially towards the expenses of government and the cost of the war. There is a tax of 2½ per cent. paid by racing clubs on the receipts for each meeting, and there is a war tax of 2½ per cent. on totalisater dividends, and of one per cent. on the stakes won. Thus far no tax has been imposed on admissions to places of amusements and this is now being strongly advocated, more particularly as regards motion picture shows, which have thus far escaped the war taxation.—Brantford Expositor.

Peter McArthur Tells How Gossip Antagonizes Our Military Efficiency

It is all very well to take high ground about "gossip" and to refuse to repeat or consider it. But during the past few weeks I have been forced to change my opinions about this pastime or vice, whichever you care to call it. So far as individuals are concerned, gossip is just as detestable and negligible as ever. But when gossip affects the efficiency of a nation at war it becomes a matter for indignant consideration. I have been forced to the conclusion that both recruiting and contributions to patriotic funds have been seriously retarded by gossip. There are all sorts of stories afloat that are damaging to soldiers and patriotic workers, and I cannot think of any way to check them except by turning on them the light of publicity from the highest quarters. It would be useless for me to publish them, for I am not in a position to refute them, and I would only give them wider publicity. If you want to know what they are just listen to the gossip in your own town or neighbourhood. I find the stories the same wherever I go. And everywhere they are doing incalculable harm.

For instance, there is a wretched story about Red Cross supplies being diverted from the purpose for which they were intended. I shall not repeat the story for fear of giving it new life. The first time I heard it the incident on which it was based was located in British Columbia. Now I hear it in every town or city I visit. Of course I can never pin it down so that it can be investigated When I heard it in Aylmer the evidence of its truth was said to be in the hands of a person in St. Thomas. In St. Thomas I was referred to London. In London I was referred to Lobo. Wherever I heard it no one in that place had the evidence. The elusive evidence was always somewhere else. Now, this story has been refuted in the press and from the platform, but it still continues to do its baleful work. Selfish people who do not wish to help quote this story to justify their meanness, and many good people who are easily moved to indignation stop work when they hear it. I remember reading somewhere that "a lie can travel around the world while the truth is getting its boots on," and in this case the saying is justified. The truth never seems able to catch up with this particular lie. The reason probably is that a lot of people want to believe it, though I incline to think that some kind of mob hysteria helps to give it currency and to make it carry conviction. I feel certain that it is a baseless lie, but I do not know how to disprove it. Personally I refuse to believe any story of this kind unless I can get a chance to consider the evidence myself.

As to many of the stories about the conduct of the soldiers I am convinced that they owe their vitality chiefly to the self-righteousness of those who give them currency. If I believed them I should be forced to believe that the man who puts on the King's uniform at once degenerates, but I am convinced that the opposite is the truth. Remember, please, that the soldiers are only "Single men in barracks and very much like you."

Because they are in khaki they are in the public eye at all times, and all their doings are noted. But if we took a similiar number of civilians and subjected them to the same scrutiny I doubt if their conduct would bear the light as well as that of the soldiers. Let it not be forgotten that on the morning after the great temperance parade it was reported in the press that a man who claimed to be one of the delegates appeared in the Police Court on account of having fallen off the water waggon. You cannot take any large group of men and have them all perfect, even in one particular.

The result of the gossip about the soldiers is that parents do not want to expose their boys to the temptations that are supposed to follow enlistment, and instead of having a class of men who are "too proud to fight," we have a mealy-mouthed lot of young men who are too good to fight. By this I do not mean to slur at those who really have conscientious scruples about fighting. That there are some who are sincerely conscientious in avoiding war I freely admit. But there are others who assume a hypocritical virtue, and affect to look down on the soldiers. Besides the evil done by gossip about soldiers in the way of retarding recruiting, the parents of boys who have enlisted suffer keenly.

Another style of gossip that is very prevalent everywhere deals with petty grafting in connection with the military organization. There is also talk about inefficiency that may endanger the lives of the soldiers, not only by poor leadership in battle, but by exposing them to unnecessary hardships while training. These should all be capable of careful investigation, and no public-spirited citizen who hears such stories will allow them to pass without forcing an investigation. We are investing a lot of money in this war, and the burdens will be heavy, and we should try to put down any grafting that can be proven. If there has been big grafting going on we can leave that to our members of Parliament, but if we find petty grafting we can get after that ourselves. We should do this even if the amount involved is only a trifle. It may be a symptom of much worse conditions that may be uncovered in this way. More important still is the matter of inefficiency. Besides its investment of money the country has a large investment of its young manhood, and it would be intolerable to have it wasted by incompetence. If you know of any grafting or incompetence it is your duty as a citizen to have it stopped by forcing it into public attention. If you are afraid to do this I am willing as far as I possibly can to undertake the work if you send me the facts. But be sure that you have facts. If you have no facts to go on, then do not repeat the story. Gossip is becoming a menace to the country now that it affects the work of the nation, and some way must be found to stamp it out. —Peter McArthur.

HOW DIFFERENT NATIONS WARM THEIR HOMES

The stove is, comparatively speaking, a new invention. So late as the time of Queen Elizabeth people did not have chimneys; they built their fires in a round hearth in the middle of the room, and when chimneys were introduced, the old-fashioned folk all grumbled, because, they said, smoky air was good for colds. But to the eastward stoves of brick and porcelain were commonly used.

A stove made of brick is used in Russia, and in it a slow fire burns all night long. On top of it, when night comes, the peasant and his whole family, in their sheepskins lie down and go to sleep. It is nice and warm, rather like a window seat that is over a radiator, and sometimes there is a second shelf overhead for any stranger who may be staying overnight.

The brick stove of the Russian peasant, in all probability, came overland from China too long ago to talk about, for the Chinese have stoves of brick and clay, shaped something like it.

In Japan there is not much need of keeping warm, but whatever stoves there are in a Japanese home are low, for the life here is all carried on sitting or kneeling on the floor. There is a rough clay stove made especially for the great rice kettle, that costs only a few cents, and when broken the poorest can buy another. There is a dainty little charcoal stove on which the cooking is done, and beside it stands a pretty basket filled with the softest and finest charcoal. There is also a small stove or furnace to heat the water for the bath. And still more odd is the little earthen bed-stove, used as we use a hot-water bottle, shaped like a curled-up cat, and it is called "neko" (the kitchen).

The German stove of porcelain, with its curious decorations, has figured in many a story of German life. A porcelain stove will hold the heat a long time and keep a room warm with but little attention.

In Holland, where the working people are often at home for a little while at noon, they have the most thrifty arrangements of all—what might be called a portable stove, a stove in an iron bucket. When the children come home from school and the older people from work at noon, instead of lighting the kitchen fire one of the children takes the fire bucket and trots around the corner to the fire woman's. The bucket is just large enough to hold a piece of burning peat or some live coals, and a teakettle sits on top. The old woman who sells fire and hot water fills the bucket and kettle for a tiny sum, and the child goes home with just enough fire and water enough for the family dinner.

Charcoal is commonly used for cooking in France, Italy and Spain, because it makes a small, hot fire. The Italian keeps warm (or says he does) over a small fire of what we would call an earthen hand-warmer with coals in it, called scaldino. Only within the last few years has it been possible to find rooms that were heated on the American plan anywhere in Europe. The people keep warmer in this country than in any other spot on the surface of the globe in the temperate or frigid zone.

CHANGE NAME OF BOWERY.

Notoriety Causes Business Men to Make Request.

NEW YORK, March 18—The Bowery, immortalized by poets, short story writers and composers of popular songs, will become Central Broadway, if merchants and bankers whose places of business are on the famous thoroughfare can persuade the board of aldermen to agree to the change in name. The business men point out that the fate of the Bowery was sealed by the refrain heard many years ago:

"They do such things and they say such things,
On the Bow'ry, the Bow'ry—
I'll never go there any more."

It was said this song, which went all over the country, made such an impression that people ceased trading on the Bowery, which, until that time had been an important business street.

Will you tell us a good reason for calling purebred stock thoroughbreds? This word refers to a single breed of horses, and has nothing to do with the pure breeding of other animals. A cow or a hog is purebred when both parents are of registered breeding.

$12,946.35 Amount Subscribed By The Citizens to The Belgian Relief Fund

Generosity and Hearty Co-operation of the People Heartily Appreciated by the Committee--$4,000 of the Amount Has Already Been Paid.

THOSE WHO CONTRIBUTED TO FUND

The members of the Executive committee of the Belgian Relief Fund met on Friday last for the purpose of closing up the business of the campaign, and to perfect details for the collection of the subscriptions as yet unpaid. As many subscriptions are made in instalments, collection will be made by the ladies, from month to month. The fine result attained, $12,946.35, was made possible through the generosity and hearty co-operation of our citizens. The girls in the stores and offices and factories were cheerful and substantial subscribers to the fund.

The large amounts subscribed by the employees of the several factories and manufacturing interests were a feature of the canvass.

The amount subscribed to the fund by citizens, individually, $10,766.35, or about an average subscription, per subscriber, of $6.00. Among many block amounts received the committee thank the Knights of Columbus for $100.00, the proceeds of a concert, and the fine sum of $69.80, from the lecture delivered by Prof. Leacock, under the auspices of the local Red Cross Society. Half the amount taken in. So far the committee is much encouraged by the fact that about $4,000 of the amount subscribed has already been paid, exclusive of the city grant of $1,000.

The expense in connection with the campaign is not large. The committee were zealous and careful in this respect, and it is much to the credit of the enterprise that expenses were comparatively small. The cost of the lunches served in the room has been met without cost to the fund, a commendable thing. The committee wish to thank Mrs. Birdsall for the use of the store at the corner of Brock and George streets, which made such a convenient and comodious headquarters. This gift was much appreciated.

It is most gratifying that our citizens have responded so heartily and liberally to this appeal, and it is a credit to our city that we have again sustained our reputation, as a city, of being in the front rank for number of men enlisted and in service and in substantial contributions to all patriotic purposes.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

The Conscientious Objector and The Soldier's Views

The following is taken from "John Bull":

Sergeant: Excuse me, I don't mean to be rude or inquisitive, but it's rather a queer thing you are not wearing your armlet. You know the King has expressed a wish that all the men attested should wear the khaki badge?

Sergeant: Ah, but it is my business. As a recruiting officer it is my duty to make a few inquiries in such cases as this. Unfit?

S.-L. Youth—No.

Sergeant: Not a "shirker," are you?

S.-L. Youth—What d'you mean, a "shirker"?

Sergeant: Why, one of those chaps who would sooner somebody else did the fighting. Only son?

S.-L. Youth: No, I'm not.

Sergeant: Married?

S.-L. Youth—Not much!

Sergeant: On war work?

S.-L. Youth: No, I'm not. I'm a conscientious objector, if you want to know.

Sergeant: What's that?

Sergeant: Have you got it with you?

S.-L. Youth: Got what?

Sergeant: Why, what you said—your conscientious objection. I should like to have a look at one.

Sergeant: No, really I am not joking. I should like to see this thing you call a conscientious objection, and I dare say these other gentlemen would, too.

S.-L. Youth: Look here, you've no right to badger me like this in a public railway carriage. You're not everybody, even if you are wearing khaki. The law allows me to have a conscientious objection to fighting, and I don't have to ask your permission.

Sergeant: Would you have a conscientious objection to me flotting you on the nose? It's all right. I'm not going to. I want to keep clean. But I should like to know exactly how your conscientious objection to fighting would work in a case like that. Would you hit back?

S.-L. Youth: I might. That's my business. I might have you run in for assault.

Sergeant: Of course, I forgot. You're a "sooner"—you'd sooner a copper protect you than stand up for yourself. Have you got a girl?

Sergeant: Look here, youngster, do you think it is my business to fight and risk my life for swabs like you? I don't. I've got a conscientious objection to getting shot in the trenches so as you can swank about safe at home in civvies. Where do you think you'd be if everybody was like you?

S.-L. Youth: Here, I expect.

S.-L. Youth: That's what you think. If nobody would fight there wouldn't be any fighting.

Sergeant: You damn young fool! If everybody was a woman there wouldn't be any men, would there? And if every Britisher was a snivelling, cowardly cuss like you, there wouldn't be any British Empire! What right have you to live in this country if you're not willing to fight for it?

S.-L. Youth: I didn't ask to come, did I? I didn't make the British Empire.

Sergeant: No, but you'll soon damn well smash it if there were a few million more like you.

S.-L. Youth: H'm!

Sergeant: Here, none of that! Don't you "H'm" me! Let me get out of this! I've got a conscientious objection to breathing the same air as "sooners" and shirkers. "Conscientious objection!" Ruddy cowardice, that's what it is! . . . Let me get out!

Sunday Morning Service at Murray St. Baptist Church

"Believe Me that I am in the Father, and the Father in Me; or else believe Me for the very works' sake," John 14:11. Such was the text chosen by Rev. Mr. Webb for his Sunday morning discourse, the theme being: the greatness of Christ's claim, and the greatness of His condescension in establishing that claim.

Christ's great passion on earth was that men should believe Him, and He recognizes that what He is about to claim as teacher is hard to believe, but He is going to urge the belief upon them. In John, the sixth chapter, our Lord disclosed something to His disciples which He could not have told earlier, because they were not ready to receive it. "Who can hear it? Who can believe it? Who can understand it? Who can accept that My flesh is bread, that My blood is life, that except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, ye have no life in you? It is a hard saying. I know it is a hard thing to accept, but there will be a harder one. What will ye say when the Son of Man is carried upward to where He was before?

In the text the time has come when Jesus is about to ascend to the Father. The disciples are thinking they shall lose Him. Christ anticipates their thoughts and says: "Let not your hearts be troubled, you are not losing Me when I ascend up where I was before." The disciples still disconsolate reply: "How can that be? We have laid aside everything for You. All was done gladly. If You disappear what have we left?" Christ gently reassures them: "You will not lose Me. I'll not leave you orphan-less, the Father is going to be with you, and possessing the Father you possess Me. When the Father is with you I am with you."

Philip, always of a doubting nature, queried: "Lord show us the Father and it sufficeth us," to which our Lord replied: "Philip, have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known Me? I am in the Father, and the Father in Me. Believe it because I say it, or else believe it for the works' sake."

Notice the greatness of the claim and the greatness of the comfort that comes from it.

"I am in the Father and the Father in Me. Father, God, the Creator of the Universe, is not complete without Me. I am of His substance. I came forth from Him. The Father is Myself."

That being so, Almighty God walked this earth in Galilee; the dispensations as we know them in Jesus are attributes of God, are manifestations of God. Then we may become acquainted with out Creator through His Son. When Jesus feeds the poor, that is the way God feels for the impoverished. When Jesus discomforts the accusers of the sinful woman we see the attitude of God to the one who has sinned. When we see Jesus dying for sinners we see the compassion of God for a lost world.

"Philip, you never saw anything beautiful, attractive or lovely in My life, but what is part of My Father. When you see the Father you see Me."

In the opening of our parliament the speech from the throne—does it mean the pronouncement of the Governor-General? Not at all. The speech from the throne has all the authority of George V. It is the speech from the throne of England.

"The words I speak unto you I speak not of Myself, but the Father who sent Me."

Eliezer, the servant of Abraham, in going for the one wh owas to be Isaac's bride, came upon Rebekah, who brought him to her father and mother. Questioned by them: "Wilt thou go with this man?" When she sees Eliezer, when she learns the wonderful story of his journey, and sees the presents, she replies: "I will go." She had a definite presentation of the life and character and love of her future master through Eliezer.

When we read Revelation there is in it sufficient to make the human heart quake: "And I saw a great white throne, and Him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away . . . . . And I saw dead, small and great, stand before God.' When we read this we tremble. But when we remember that Jesus is on the throne, the throne does not become a mountain of wrath threatening us, but a mountain of joy, a haven of comfort. "When you see your Father on the throne, you see your Saviour and earthly friend."

Christ, in the text, realizes there are some who believe simply because He said it, and He also realises there are others who cannot enter into the full comfort of it. "If ye cannot believe Me because I have said it, then believe Me for the works' sake." What a marvelous condescension! He is just doing what the Son of God did in eternity past, in His life on earth, and what His apostles did after Him. If they have not the power to reach up they come down. Paul said, "I can give all things to all men that I may save some." He did what Peter did after the lame man was healed. Peter said: "The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers hath glorified His Son (R.V.—servant) Jesus, whom ye killed. He was the Holy One, the Just One, the "servant" of God. Peter realized he could not win men unless he came down to their level "He is the Prince of Life, and ye murdered Him and desired a murderer to be given you. He was raised from the dead by the glory of God. Whom having not seen, ye love; and in whom, though now ye see Him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." Peter has become a mystic for the time being because of the difference in the calibre of their minds; and many who heard him believed.

Jesus cares not by what path we come. He is the way, the truth and the life, and there is no disappointment in store for us if Jesus is our ideal.

Christ is sufficient for all. He can satisfy the need of every one. "In my Father's house are many mansions. . . . I go to prepare a place for you . . . and will come again and receive you unto Myself."

"Believe Me that I am in the Father, and the Father in Me; or else believe Me for the works' sake."

—PAUL PENMAN.

"The Story of the Rosary" To Be Presented Here

Big War Drama to Be Given at the Grand Opera House on Thursday Evening Next

Opening with a scene of splendor—a regimental ball such as preceded Waterloo, and saddened by the same circumstances, a declaration of war, through scenes of the Royal Light Infantry in billet, part of the battlefield, such as Shakespeare always included in his historical plays, with noise of battle—big guns and falling walls, old world places where the romances accompanying the war were consummated and the joyful celebrations and anniversaries when the war is over, "The Story of the Rosary," Walter Howard's great military play, presented by George F. Driscoll at the Grand Opera House next Thursday, March 23, deals with war—a living document on the many phases of a country's life during war time. It deals with the present conflict.

The plot hedges on the rivalry between Paul and Phillip Romain, brother officers in the Royal Light Infantry, and cousins, who are both in love with Venetia, daughter of Prince Van Sabran. On the eve of the declaration of war, she chooses Paul and they are married that night in the Chapel of the Mother of God. The regiment is ordered to the front that night and Paul promises to join his regiment on the Luxembourg Road the next morning. On Paul's failure to join his regiment the next morning, Phillip insists on the arrest of his rival as a deserter. But Paul has been captured by the enemy and in an episode like that in the battle of Waterloo, gains his regiment by dashing across the shell-swept area. In one of the most dramatic moments of the play, Paul is given charge of the Royal Light Infantry and charges into battle at the head of his soldiers.

The rest of the play, which is in four acts and twelve scenes, deals with the waiting of Venetia for her soldier husband's return in the Convent after the war is over and with her resolution to take the veil upon his reported death. Carl Larose searches for his friend in the military prisons unsuccessfully. During the last act, Paul returns and joins his comrades in their anniversary celebration of their big battle, and also in time to prevent his wife from taking her final vows which she has resolved to do when she gave up her husband for dead.

Mr. Driscoll has a distinguished company in Olive Templeton, (Miss D'Arcy, Miss Preston, and Messrs. Robinson, John Smythe, William Webb, Richard Dix, Edward Leduc, Frederick Smith and Cecil Bashame.

Letters of Acceptance

The Examiner has been furnished by Mr. Burnham with the following copies of letters of acceptance to speak at the meeting in the Market Hall on March 31st:

Toronto, March 18th, 1916.

Dear Mr. Burnham,—I shall be very glad to attend your meeting on the 31st inst., with the Hon. Mr Reid. The success of the Government's negotiations has been a great satisfaction to the Government, and I feel confident will result in a tremendous impetus to industrial development in Central Ontario.

Yours very truly,

G. H. Ferguson.

(Copy.)

Toronto, March 16th, 1916.

J. H. Burnham, M.P., House of Commons, Ottawa,

Dear Sir,—Yours to hand of March 16th, re meetings to be held for the furthering of Hydro-electric. In reply, would say I will be pleased to do anything I can to make these meetings a success, with the object of benefitting Central Ontario with the advantages of Hydro-electric.

Yours truly,

G. A. Gillespie.

Mr. Gillespie, M.P.P., will be one of the speakers at the meeting in the City Market Hall on March 31st.

McGILL STUDENT KILLED IN ACTION

COBOURG, Ont., March 20.—Word has been received that Pte. Archibold McLeod, of the 24th Battalion, brother of A. C. McLeod, trainmaster at Havelock, was killed in action at the front on February 26. Pte. McLeod was twenty-seven years old. He was studying at McGill University for a degree in architecture and enlisted at Montreal.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

Mr. F. E. Ellis of the local Farm and Dairy staff addressed the men's meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. Mr. Ellis chose as his subject "Christian citizenship," illustrating his point by reference to the way an immigrant is treated in this new land. "We advertise in their home papers," said Mr. Ellis, "that here in Canada we have plenty of free land, and when the poor people leave a land of want and come to our shores they find all the desirable land in the hands of those land sharks whom we designate as real estate men." Mr. Ellis then gave an illustration to show by what means we allow men to hold and without using same. A caravan proceeding over the desert is sighted by a robber band, which decided to attack it. But their leader is a crafty man, and so instead of rushing into danger he leads his band to the first and only oasis on that track. Here they build a high fence around the spring and claim all the legal rights to the land around thus making the people of the caravan pay dearly for the water they need. "This," continued Mr. Ellis, "is practically what we are doing to-day. We allow men in the east to hold our free land in the west and thus we build in our great cities slums of unfortunates who are unable to secure land accommodation."

The speaker went on to say that it was the people from southern Europe, Italians, etc., who can live so cheaply, that are able to get our land and not the good old Anglo-Saxon stock. If these people were given the helping hand of good Christian citizens, and not shunned as they sometimes are, we will have in the future a Canada advancing by leaps and bounds. But should we not care to do this the result will be a very much lower state of civilization in our land than we have at present.

"VICTORY" CITY IS CALLED INTO BEING BY MAGIC OF WAR

The News of the World says:

From a vast mushroom city which he calls "Victory City," created by the Government for the purposes of the war, and the locality of which must be kept a profound secret, a correspondent of the "Daily News" writes: I have felt to-day as though the British lion were only just twitching his mane and stretching a paw, with the claws out. I have been looking, literally and figuratively, down vistas of new things. I have realised acutely how true it is that all this perspective of the accomplished on the trodden road is only preparation. I have had a vision of a tremendous goal—of the mouth of a furnace in which the armies of the Central Powers must shrivel and perish. One of the lessons we have to learn is that it is a waste of labour—and life—to strike before the iron is hot. Here in Victory City a man learns it more quickly than in most places for he gets a grip on the vastness of the task, and begins to comprehend how, in spite of all possible pressure, by human energy, enthusiasm and skill, time must still remain a prime element in our ability to put the whole power of our muscle behind the coming blow. I conceive the British Empire as a nation going into training. And in athletic training the rule is: Patience, patience, and again patience. So the Empire has set about building Victory City and is approaching the end of the job. Victory City is a long way from—anywhere; as the Zeppelins will find should they try to bomb it. It has sprung from the ground at a word from Whitehall, not exactly in shining armour, but in the serge-brown of the modern knight. For 20 square miles, it stretches its lanky frame over hill and valley. Many thousands (I must not give the exact figure, but may say it is a remarkable one) have built, and are still building it, and many thousands, including thousands of women, will live and work in it. I was shown a monstrous range of brick workshops, and told they were put up in three weeks, the bricklayers standing almost shoulder to shoulder night and day. Hundreds of miles of railway track have been laid, and in all directions magnificent roads are being engineered on granite foundations—roads apparently meat to last for several generations. All through one is astonished, not only by the imaginative huge scale of the operations, but by this element of permanence about them. It is as though the country had said: "Henceforth, or until Germany sues for peace, war—war on a gigantic scale—shall be considered our normal way of life. We intend to settle down to it for a hundred years or so." A day in Victory City convinces a man that there really must be

Something in the Bull-dog Smile

By this I do not mean that all the buildings are of stone, or even of brick. Most of them have been made of wood, for speed, but it is wood that will last. They are of a size and plan that will admit of a comfortable family life whenever it is desired; the cottages are fitted with bathrooms and electric light, and in many cases are large enough to permit of lodgers being taken, while the "barracks," in which the majority of unmarried workers will live together, have the most carefully-thought-out arrangements for heating, messing and sanitation. For this is to be no mere congeries of roughly housed and fed labourers. Victory City is not a group of free shacks on a moor. If your ambition is to take lodgers you are asked to pay 9s. a week for a bungalow, pretty enough for the banks of the Thames, containing a living-room, sitting-room, four double and two single bed-rooms, a washhouse and a bathroom. There are no rates, and the 9s. includes the supply of electric light. Or for 5s. you can rent a smaller cottage with only three bedrooms. It would be unthinkable nowadays to import a fully-fledged population, of the kind that will live in these houses, into a country district without providing beforehand most of the social amenities to which it has been accustomed elsewhere. So on one side of the great main avenue rises a really palatial social institute facing, on the other side, a picture palace, with accommodation for 700 to begin with, and flanked by sports grounds for men and for girls. Beyond are the schools (for Victory City will have a large child population), and the churches, probably four in number for different denominations. There is also the main shopping street. The shops will be let by the State on weekly or monthly tenancies, which will give the State all the necessary control over prices and quality. Besides which the private shops will have to compete with the big co-operative shop that is going to be opened. The State has also assumed entire control of the liquor traffic. This has meant the out-and-out purchase of 30 licensed houses in an area that can hardly be less than 200 square miles in extent, with the object of making the city area itself as nearly drink-tight as possible. One only wishes it were possible to run cheap excursions to Victory City and its counterparts. There could be no surer way of inspiring that quietness and confidence which is a nation's strength.

Music & Drama

"THE WINNING OF BARBARA WORTH."

Harold Bell Wright's famous story—"The Winning of Barbara Worth," which was presented at the Grand Opera House, Saturday evening proved to be one of the dramatic treats of the season. The wonderful scenic effects, including the realistic sand storm, and early dawn after the flood were features of the play. There is an abundance of crisp, fresh comedy arising logically from situations, stirring and melodramatic climaxes, which quicken one's heartbeats and underlying all, the love and rivalry of two virile men battling for fortune and the love of a woman. The beautiful love story of Barbara Worth and the painstaking portrayals of the various characters made a strong appeal to the audience.

Barbara, Willard Holmes, Abe Lee, The Seer, Jefferson Worth, Texas Joe, Pat and James Greenfield, the leading characters of Mr. Wright's book, are shown in the stage version of "The Winning of Barbara Worth," and the scenes of the book that have been placed upon the stage include a perfect picture of the great desert of "The Hollow of God's Hand" and the great irrigation works on the Colorado River.

Canadian Manufacturers' Patriotic
PURE FOOD DEMONSTRATION
Starts TO-MORROW

READ CAREFULLY!

A rare opportunity for every householder in Peterborough to secure many lines of Canada's Leading Food Products through your local grocer on behalf of your local Patriotic Fund Society.

ATTENTION!

A number of Canada's Pure Food Products and other household necessities have been combined together and the proceeds of any goods sold, less the mere cost of production and labour, is given to Patriotic Work.

Representatives from the manufacturers, through your local grocer, will call at each home and solicit orders which will be delivered by local grocers.

You have only one opportunity to favour, just while the town is being canvassed, and we feel sure that every home will be too pleased to give Patriotic canvassers an intelligent hearing and to assist in raising a substantial sum of money.

If not at home when called upon, place your order at your grocer's for a COMBINATION WAR BOX, which contains the following goods, under the following numbers:

Box No. 1—Price $1	Box No. 2—Price $1	Box No. 3—Price 50c
1 Pure Vanilla Extract.	2 Pure Vanilla Extracts	1 Pure Vanilla Extract
1 Pure Lemon Extract.	1 Pure Lemon Extract	1 Pure Lemon Extract
(Non-alcoholic flavours, 15c each)	(Non-alcoholic, 15c each)	(Non-alcoholic flavours, 15c each)
1 pkge. Lemon Cream Pie Filler.	2 pkgs. Raspberry Jelly	1 pkge. Lemon Cream Pie Filler
1 pkge. Lemon Custard.	2 pkgs. Cherry Jelly	1 pkge. Raspberry Jelly
1 pkge. Vanilla or Choc. Pudding	2 pkgs. Lemon Jelly	1 pkge. Washing Crystal
1 Raspberry Jelly, 1 Cherry Jelly	1 pkge. Washing Crystal.
1 Lemon Jelly (1 pt. packages)
3 pkgs. Washing Crystal.

You have the privilege of donating to whatever society you please—mention this to canvasser. The Mayor of this City will distribute donations to the different societies. If convenient, pay canvasser when order is taken, this saves unnecessary work of collecting. If not convenient, pay grocer when box is delivered to you.

Should campaign net One Thousand Dollars, the Manufacturers will contribute an extra $25.00.

SUITS
FASHION'S MANDATE

THE Folly of late buying is demonstrated every season. Many people make their purchases when the cream of the stock has been picked up. It's the same old story of the early bird catching the best worm. This season it is urgent for you to shop early especially when your suit purchase is the question. Wool materials have advanced tremendously and everything indicates a greater altitude. Now the foresight of our buyers has protected you to a great extent and to-day a magnificent array of charming garments that are notable for their moderate prices is the result.

Among our better models is a handsome suit of a corn stalk shade. Military style, kid trimmed, yoke back and front, high military closing collar, with fullness falling from shoulders. Skirt follows the coat lines, gathered and falling in flares.

Here is a silk and cloth combination—a handsome blending of silk and taffeta in mid-night blue. Coat with the fashionable swirling flare and the skirt to match. Coat with pretty steele ornaments and buckles, cord and strappings of material over silk, contribute greatly to the splendid effect.

Just a word about our $25 models. They are many and varied cut on popular lines, and lined with light shades of silk, contrasting sharply with the materials. You can't afford to overlook these when contemplating a purchase.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—The article in Saturday's evening's Examiner, headed "Cui Bono," appears a direct question of "what advantage or profit is it." I would recommend to those interested the book "Inside the Cup," by Winston Churchill, to be read without prejudice. The Rev. Hodder therein mentioned, I believe to be the answer. The book may be had at the Public Library.

505 Rubidge Street,
Peterborough, March 20th, 1916

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly insert the following in your valuable paper:

I received a letter from my uncle, who is captain in the famous French "75" Artillery Regiment, and who is shelling the huns now around Verdun. In this letter he tells me that his son, who at the beginning of the war, escaped from his town in Alsace into France, so he would not have to serve compulsory in the Prussian Army. As soon as he was in France, he joined the battalion of Chasseurs Alpine, or, as the Germans call them, "the Blue Devils." Later on in the battle at Charnic he was made prisoner with a few other soldiers of his battalion and taken to Erfurt (Saxony), where he was taken before a court martial, where the Military Attorney-General proposed a sentence for life imprisonment, but the military court came through the discussion and declarations of the witnesses to the persuasion that the accused is an Alsatian, and found guilty for taking up arms voluntarily in the French army to fight against Germany, therefore the death sentence was pronounced, and on the next morning he was executed by a firing squad. Then at the end of the letter my uncle writes: "Now my dear nephew, out of twenty-eight of our relations who are fighting the boches, but one is gone, but we will take vengeance on them in a few days with our never tired soixante-quinze, and I hope that we'll soon see you over here with your battalion." Thanking you for the space in your valuable paper. I remain, yours truly,

Pioneer-Sergt. Emile Beaumoire,

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—Having received a number of letters from Churches, Sunday Schools, Societies, and other public bodies, upon matters connected with the administration of public affairs let me say:

The first question to consider is: "What are we to do with Women's Franchise?" The equality in numbers of the sexes being destroyed by war, and war being apparently in the last analysis, the final court of appeal, and women being unfit to do the actual fighting, and thus run the risk of being killed, it follows that women would, at the polls, be in the majority, and therefore men would have to do as women would say—in a woman's world. Do these and other considerations outweigh the general proposition that individuals are equal before the law, including the law of franchise? Personally the general proposition strongly appeals to me, but I have been made aware that if a resolution appears in this House, as it may do at any time, I am not expected to support it since the question has, at no time been made an issue. What am I to do?

Then, I have received communications endorsing Sir George Foster's attack on Patronage. My correspondents overlook the fact that of three applicants all may be technically and equally qualified and yet two of the three physically and morally unfit. Are they to be placed on a par? Yet "to select and recommend" are "patronage." Patronage, in its widest sense, is unavoidable, unless we are to give up all choice under all circumstances outside of the mere results of examinations. But the worst evil in patronage, Sir George did not touch upon. He probably has had no experience of cliques trying to get hold of party conventions, so that under the pretence of party politics they may have agents at court. This is the favourite plan of railways, industrial companies and other organizations and private individuals who regard their own interests as paramount. If critics would attend party conventions and work hard on election days and generally take a strong, patriotic and sensible interest in public affairs the present "scandalous" condition of Canadian public life would not be as much in evidence. Long range criticism is poor stuff.

The meeting on March 31st, in the Market Hall, ought to be attended by all our people, as the movement means more to this district than all others combined.

Yours truly,
J. H. Burnham.
Ottawa, March 18, 1916.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me space for a few thoughts in connection with the Dr. Workman and Russell episode. I listened to Pastor Russell and have read what has been given as Dr. Workman's address, the former gave many nice things in a gentlemanly Christian manner, his fundamental doctrine I do not believe, but from a Christian standpoint I feel that it is my duty as well as a privilege to listen without interrupting. As to the latter if what we have read is correct, some things seem very far from the truth, however we have not the address in full, as Mr. Cowan admits, therefore we are not in a position to pass judgment, in many cases a word added or one left out will change the real meaning of a sentence.

As to the elders and laymen's letters, I trust their good judgment would prevent them from anything that would seem like tying the hands of our ministers of the Gospel from endeavouring to bring out a higher and better understanding of the Scriptures, even though it should be through Pastor Russell or Dr. Workman.

The very circumstances under which we are now struggling should convince any conscientious thinker that there is need of a revised condition of Christianity.

A few days ago one of our ex-mayors told me he "was bewildered at present in trying to see the connection between this war and Christianity." Is it to be wondered at that such men should be bewildered when they think of the centuries of preaching and teaching of peace on earth, and against killing our fellow man, that these same churches and institutions have been forced to retreat, and turn these churches into recruiting stations soliciting their members and adherents to go out to fight. I think in the face of these facts it is more becoming and honest for us to acknowledge that it is a proof of the lack of Christianity, a failure of our creedal beliefs to bring the power of the glorious gospel of peace and good-will. And that our present state is a "suffer it to be so now," to hold the enemy in check and learn our lesson until we get a better understanding of God and of His word, the only thing that will bring permanent peace. I don't think we should need any better example of the lightness of present creedal teaching than what Mr. Wearing gave us in the Opera House last Sunday, when he quoted Paul as an advocate of military fighting, when he said: "Fight the good fight," and also to accuse Pastor Russell evading his question, when the Pastor answered emphatically, "I would not advise you to fight, neither would I advise you not to fight. I would say ask Jesus, if He says fight, fight."

This sounded to me like a proper answer from a man claiming to teach Scripture. I do not believe that Lloyd George and other leaders in England would endorse the methods used against Pastor Russel on the Sunday referred to, that of turning a lecture on the Bible into a howling wilderness. I fear very much that Mr. Wearing is somewhat like the man, spoken of in Scripture, who undertook to cast out the evil spirit, and it leaped on him saying, "Jesus I know, and Paul I know, but who are ye." Acts 19: 15,16. That is he has undertaken to wipe out Prussian militarism and German Kultur, and the spirit of it has got hold of him. When those who preach and teach the gospel, refrain from calling others who may not see eye to eye with them cowardly hypocrites, etc., we will have more real Christianity and a better system of recruiting, that will fill the ranks of the 93rd Battalion. The cause that the Allies are fighting for is not of calling names, but of righteousness and freedom of conscience. Let the old flag float, do not drag in the dirt by calling names. God rules, and not Pastor Russell or any other mortal man.

Thanking you for space, hoping for honourable peace through the annihilation of Prussian tyranny in the near future.

Sincerely yours,
R. J. TODD.

Will Take No Action Without First Consulting The Dominion

OTTAWA, March 18.—According to a cablegram received from Rt. Hon. A. Bonar Law, Secretary of State for the Colonies, the British Government will take no action regarding a commercial treaty with the allies should such be contemplated after the conference to be held in Paris without first consulting the Dominion. Hon. Senator Lougheed read the following messages in reply to a query by Hon. Senator Bostock in the Senate this afternoon:

From the Colonial Secretary to the Governor-General:

"London, March 15, 1916.

"An economic conference of the allies is to be held in Paris on the invitation of the Government of France. The representatives of this country, and I presume of other allied Governments will attend, so far as arrangements after the war are concerned, for the purpose of discussion only, and the Government will not be committed in any way in regard to trade after the war. If as the result of the conference any action should be contemplated no steps will be taken without full consultation with the Dominion."

Council Tackles Salary Question Again To-night

Will Receive Finance Committee's Report and May Reach a Final Recommendation — Two Offices to Be Discussed.

The Council will likely reach a decision this evening when they meet in Committee of the Whole to gather up the frayed ends of their plans to reduce civic salaries. On the street to-day it was rumoured that some citizens would present a petition adverse to the Council's probable action but there was nothing authentic behind the report. Without any intention of influencing the aldermen, it may be said that the salary cuts do not seem to meet with general favour in the conversations one hears around town. At the same time it is doubtless safe to say that many persons could be found to heartily endorse the salary cutting. But whoever and wherever these persons may be, they are not prominent in voicing their opinion.

To-night's meeting is due to hear a discussion of a suggested rearrangement of the City Treasurer's and City Engineer's offices. This has been discussed several times lately, and a number of the aldermen and Mayor Duffus hold that a saving can be made in these offices as well as in other civic departments. In this whole question of salary reductions the aldermen declare that they have a ticklish job on their hands, and to-night's session will indicate their final disposition of it.

ALICE BRADY IN "THE LURE OF WOMAN"

Paul Armstrong's Play Will be Shown at the Empire Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Next

Paul Armstrong's play, "The Lure of Woman," filmed by World Film Corporation is a powerful drama of military and Indian life in which Alice Brady, the gifted young star who was so pleasing and successful in former films, "As Ye Sow," and "The Boss," plays the sympathetic role of Katie O'Day, a lovely Irish girl whose love affairs supply the nucleus of the story.

Alice Brady has the assistance, in the cast, of George Ralph and Claudia Fleming, both actors of sterling ability who have won applause on the stage and in pictures.

The drama is full of exciting action. There are scenes of Indian and military life and the producer thus finds scope for making a picture which holds the audience's attention firmly all the time. Beautiful photography and settings heighten the striking incidents and effect of the story.

Empire Theatre, two matinees and two evening performances each day.

cause the courage of despair. What wonder there was a brief spasm of celebration following Britain's declaration of war. Then every ounce of the nation's energy and resources was thrown into the struggle with a heroism which is the constant marvel of her friends. That a nation so well known for its capacity for quick changes in its lighter moods, should show such unprecedented steadfastness, illuminates as does no other aspect of it the awful significance of the conflict.

And Britain! busy with other things, capable as always of venting sophistries in the mother of parliaments, full of internal bickerings, the heart of the nation slept, to wake with a start at the invasion of Belgium, four days too late; and she has been waking up ever since, but according to Lloyd George is still a trifle late. But she will be there at the end.

CANADA'S PROGRESS.

Canada, my own beloved nation, with one hundred years of peace and so far removed from the centre of the storm, what of her? What wonder that as a whole we did not realize at first the true, inward meaning of it all, that our First Contingent was composed of British born and the most alert-minded and most adventurous of our young Canadians. One cannot even be too much astonished, that in some places our troops were even jeered at as they left their home towns. We don't laugh now—Peterborough never did—we too are becoming awake.

Yet it is interesting and instructive to pass an idle hour thinking back and picturing Canada before the war. Busy for a century struggling with the forces of nature and carving out the material nation, we have come to believe that no other struggles of a sterner nature could occur. The Militia was smiled at indulgently, the Minister of Militia caused quite a tempest in the West by prophesying a war with Germany, and the debates in Parliament pictured the general attitude. Not one man in a hundred could have told you that Lord Fisher had said that war would promptly follow the opening of the enlarged Kiel Canal. Yet ten days after the opening, war was declared. Then recall the feeling of stupefaction which was so universal on the declaration of war, and so, bit by bit, trace the road we have travelled up to the present. How long a time it seems since those days of peace. How different our outlook upon life. And if we have gone so far in eighteen months. What point will we reach before the time of stress is past?

IN SWEEP OF CURRENT.

Where are we now? Have we reached the point where we are ready to throw in all we have? I think not. Indeed to judge by these papers, there is every evidence to the contrary. We do not yet fully realize that we are in the sweep of the current and that only our best efforts, only a complete concentration on this tremendous business in hand, will sufficient to carry us across the stream; that the cataract is below us and that only by using our full strength will we gain the other shore, and safety. We can't draw back; we must go on. I am almost certain we will do it, but at that, disaster is too comfortably close. Well may Capt. Ackerman say, "There is no time for sentiment." He has been over here and knows whereof he speaks. And to know that by throwing everything into it we can shorten the war by years, and lessen the casualties by thousands, to know that only when we come to realize what real sacrifice means, will we will and win well. Oh how I wish that I could write of these things as they should be written or that I had Aladdin's carpet and could transport those who will not perceive the issues at stake, where they would see reality. There is not, could not be, any manner of doubt of the result.

The chief appeal of the Nazarene was simply to "Come and suffer," and the rapid growth of the early Church was the direct result. The appeal was never stronger than today. "And sudden the worst turns the best to the brave." All the boys find it so over here; having made the plunge, they are almost surprised to find themselves enjoying it so. Yet it could not well be otherwise. Certain effects must inevitably follow certain clauses. When they enlisted they thought they were doing their duty; now they know it. How often have you been surprised, on reading the letters from the front, of this or that acquaintance? How often have you marvelled and remarked, "I did not know it was in him." The answer is simple. They have swung out into the current of a great cause, as they have lived, grown, expanded to its influence, and are greater, better and happier with the consciousness of duty done.

HOW THE MEN FEEL.

I have talked with many of them. Some at once have seen their duty and have done it; some have had a period of hesitation and doubt before enlistment, and now are amazed that it should have been so. Some, like myself, have been compelled by stress of circumstances to pass through the purgatory of a period of enforced inaction; some had only slowly wakened up. Others were hard to classify. I distinctly remember one man, who had lessened his age a bit to enlist, had broken down in service, and was put before my board with a recommendation for discharge. I questioned him as to why he had enlisted, and was told that "When those belonging to me wouldn't come I had to try it myself." He had three boys of military age, not one of whom would do his bit, and he had so hoped to be able to "carry on." Now he was faced with the prospect of discharge, and it nearly broke his heart. I managed to find him duty at the base, where he can be useful and take the place of a front line man. I would do anything for a man like that. But think a moment of the disgrace and sorrow those boys were heaping on their father's head. What chance had they ever to become men who are worth while? Yet every man who deliberately shirks his duty in this matter is heaping a like disgrace on those whom he professes to love, but for whose protection he will not make the great adventure. In this, I should judge by some of the women's letters in your paper, that they are at times aided and abetted by the women who love them. How can they do it? How can a woman risk her life bringing a boy into the world, and tenderly watch over his childhood and youth, and hope to be proud of, or deserve, his care in return in her old age, if she deliberately encourages him to be a coward, poltroon and shirker? Better that he never been born, than that he should be reduced to such a level; while if he is persuaded against his wish, to dodge what he feels is his duty, he will be the victim of a growing canker which through life will gradually eat out his moral fibre, until he becomes a mere shell of a man, a whited sepulchre. Does the patriotic (?) mother of seven children desire this? There are worse risks than that of having one's boy die a hero.

Peterborough holds a good position as regards recruiting. All her boys over here would like to see her retain it. She has not sent one man too many, nor has the Dominion as a whole. That half-million will be none too many. It may not be enough. I trust we will not have to come to enforced service. But if necessary it will come. Wake up, Canada! This is the new birth of the nation!

The Power Of The Printing Press

(By F. M. Dela Fosse)

It is estimated that since printing was invented in the 15th century, no less than 13,500,000 separate works have been published throughout the world. As an evidence of the vast development that is taking place it may be instanced that at the present time the annual output of books, pamphlets and magazines is estimated at 185,000. Taking these facts into consideration, one can readily understand what a wonderful power the printed word exercises over the destinies of the human race. Indeed, it is not too much to aver that the spread of Christianity would never have approached to within a hundredth degree of its present scope and effectiveness had not it been for the power and the almost illimitable range of the press.

Looked at from whatever standpoint we may, whether from that of the purely utilitarian one of knowledge as expounded in our educational institutions or from that of the wider knowledge of things mundane that opens upon our vision when schooldays are over the power of the press overshadows everything. To the superficial observer it sometimes seems strange that it should be so; that the nation at large should allow itself to be guided by the opinion of this or that individual and thus place him in the position of the dictator of its destinies. Take the case of Delane, the great editor of the London Times. He exercised an influence greater than that of the Sovereign, greater even than the Prime Minister of England. Take the case of Horace Greeley, the famous American journalist, and, coming down to the present day, that of Garvin, of Blatchford, and of Robertson Nicoll. The three last named sway the minds of multitudes of their fellow-men, and, looking at the matter a little closer, one can see that it is only natural that they should do so, and that the public, ignorant for the most part of any but the barest rudiments of political economy, should prefer to trust to the judgment and the dictates of those who have made a life-long study of matters pertaining to the government and the welfare of the country. The press produces its firebrands and has done so in every century since printing was invented. It has started revolutions and dethroned kings; it has made mistakes and glaring ones, on matters of world-import, but when its shortcomings have been weighed in the balance against all the good that it has accomplished the preponderance in favour of the latter is overwhelming.

Apart entirely from what good the press, as typified in journalism, has accomplished let us glance for a few moments at what the field of literature has been able to achieve. It has been already stated that since the invention of printing over thirteen million distinct works have been issued from the presses of the world. The influence of many of these has not been confined to one generation. The words of sages long silent in the grave still reverberate through the power of the printed page. Shakespeare, Bacon, Goethe, and all the illustrious host that have long since gone to their rest, still live for us in their works, and exercise as great an influence as if they were living entities like ourselves. The prophets and priests and all that wonderful array of men who contributed to the formation of our Bible play a part in our lives that the march of the centuries has but tended to increase. The orator dies and his words die with him but for the saving power of the press. The preacher's words of comfort fail of a large portion of their effectiveness unless the press helps him to a wider field of usefulness. Laws, doctrines, everything in fact that ensures to our welfare and to civilization is in some manner or another dependent on print. It has always been so. In olden days the carved stone, the papyrus and the waxed tablet were the means employed. To-day it is the blend of paper and ink. Who shall scoff at its power when half a world is in arms owing to the fact that a great nation refused to recognize its importance as one of the buttresses of civilization? Seeing that it exercises so important a part in the world we can agree with the great American educationist, Horace Mann, that every schoolboy and schoolgirl who has arrived at the age of reflection ought to know something about the art of printing. However humorously it may have been designated the Fourth Estate, the press well deserves its name; its power is no whit less than that of the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, for it is the mouthpiece of all three and in many instances their master.

Living eighteen miles from a drug store Mr. Carr found it necessary to keep in the house some treatment to regulate the action of liver, kidneys, and bowels.

To the habit of keeping these important organs active by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, when required, he attributes the good health of his large family.

Here, surely, is evidence of the value of these pills as a family medicine to protect the members of the family who use it from the common ills so many of which arises from constipation of the bowels and torpid condition of the liver and kidneys.

Mr. James Carr, Maynooth, Ont., writes: "About 19 years ago I received an envelope containing two of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I was doctoring at the time with two doctors, and as they did me no good I used the Pills, and by the time I had finished one box I was cured of the pain in the back and shoulders.

"We have great confidence in Dr. Chase's Medicines. I have a family of ten children and have never had a doctor in the house for any of them. We live eighteen miles from a drug store and find that these Pills cure nearly all the ordinary ills by regulating the liver, kidneys and bowels. That we are all well and sound I attribute to their use and I have recommended them to hundreds and given away many a box because I believe there is no medicine so good."

By awakening the action of liver kidneys and bowels Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cleanse the system of poisons and remove the cause of biliousness, headaches, backache, lumbago, kidney disease and rheumatism. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

The era of the separate waist and skirt began two seasons back and it is still in the fullness of favor. The skirt shown in one of the practical models which are used for woollens and for heavy cotton fabrics as well.

This skirt has two gores. Both the front and the back are cut away a little at the edges near the top and a shaped piece of material is placed in the opening. In addition, the fronts are stitched in pocket outline, with a curved edge at their opening, and this gives a very narrow effect to the top of the skirt. In the back the material is gathered and is finished with a strap belt. The lower edge of this skirt measures 3¾ yards in medium size.

The fewer the number of gores in a skirt the wider should be the material used for it, unless one is content to have a number of seams. In many materials the seams make but little difference in the general appearance, and this is especially true of figured goods and of plaids and stripes.

This skirt will be handsome in whipcord, serge, gabardine, poplin and in numbers of the new heather and tweed mixtures, as well as in fancy dress linens, piqué and washable corduroy.

The skirt pattern, No. 7395, is cut in sizes 22 to 30 inches waist measure. Medium size requires 3¾ yards of 54 inch material.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart colour and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

RENEWED ENGLAND'S SOUL.

War Just What Was Needed to Save Nation, Says Writer.

LONDON, March 20. — General Francis Vinton Greene, American capitalist, West Pointer and former United States army officer, said he had come to London "because it was the most interesting place in the world at the present moment."

"Great Britain to-day," he said, "is filled with a wonderful spirit. During long talks with such leaders as Lord French, A. J. Balfour, Lord Lansdowne and Walter Long, I was amazed at the unquenchable determination and optimism permeating all, while the same feeling is manifested in every day life.

"It is an object-lesson to us Americans. While these people are proudly giving all that is nearest and dearest to them, we are haggling over war commissions and making all that is possible out of them, and raising petty disputes over negligible questions. This war has saved England and renewed her soul.

"One sight I saw last Monday amazed me. Lord Ruthven, a war-scarred veteran of 77, who returned to active service as a provost marshal, took me to the Victoria Station to see the soldiers return to the front after seven days' leave. Their cheerfulness amazed me. All were laughing and joking, including the women and children. Such people won't be easily beaten."

WEAK FROM GRIPPE

Home Missionary Tells How She Restored Her Strength.

"I am a Home Missionary, was weak and run-down after a hard spell of LaGrippe. I had headaches, indigestion and pains in my chest, and was tired all the time. A friend asked me to try Vinol and the result is I am free from those troubles and I feel well and strong and able to go to work again." Mrs. Hattie Johnson, Towanda, Pa.

The reason Vinol was so successful in building up Mrs. Johnson's health is because it is a constitutional remedy which contains peptonate of iron to enrich and revitalize the blood, the nourishing properties of beef peptone and the healing medicinal extractives of fresh, healthy cods' livers, all combined in a delicious native tonic wine, without oil.

We wish every person in Peterborough who is suffering from a weakened, run-down, devitalized condition, would try our Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit them.

Foreign Situation Getting Worse

All Grades of Refined Sugar Have Advanced in Price—The Market Situation

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in the Canadian Grocer this week:

Toronto, March 19, 1916.

The topic of interest at present alike for the retailer and consumer is the unprecedented advance in refined sugar. All grades of refined sugar were advanced another 15c per cwt. yesterday and this is the fourth advance in less than three weeks. This makes an aggregate gain of 45c per cwt. and puts sugar on the highest basis since the outbreak of war, and in fact the highest for many years. Several causes have contributed to this result; the first is that there is some drought in Cuba and they cannot get sufficient rain for the crop. The second is the acute freight situation which is becoming worse instead of better and which of recent days has been further complicated by very severe storms. The third reason is very heavy buying of raws on the part of England. England apparently has placed an order for a huge amount of raws which she is grinding herself. Moreover, despite the high price, refiners are buying heavily. In fact the higher the price goes the more heavy seems to be the demand. Refiners were caught almost bare of stock and they had to have raws, no matter at what price. The planter, unlike the position he was in two years ago, has a good deal of money at present, owing to good business which has been proceeding for the last two years and can get practically the price he wants. He does not have to sell below what he considers he should get and so he can afford to hold out for the quotation he makes. There is no sign on the market either in New York or here that sugars are going to be lower; in fact many sugar men figure that we shall see higher prices before we see a decline, so the public should get used to the idea of paying a little more for their sugar.

A MARKET FEATURE.

Another feature of the market this week is a further crumble in wheat, resulting of course in a decline of flour prices. These have decreased materially during the week, both in case of Manitoba and Ontario winter wheat flour, but particularly the former. Trade in all grains is quiet and millers are holding off where possible. Export business has been hit on the head and rendered unconscious by lack of freight space, which condition, instead of getting better as the weeks go by gets worse. Domestically, there is little demand for flour and the market is dull. The opening of navigation, which is now approaching, will release some 25,000,000 bushels now stored at the head of the lakes on board ships and also at Montreal. If the freight situation clears up sufficient to provide enough vessels, such a surplus would mean a big haul of money for the owners. There is a visible supply of wheat in Canada of 30,000,000 odd bushels and in the United States of 53,000,000 bushels. These compare with 10,000,000 for Canada last year and 24,000,000 for the States. Thus we have an aggregate increase of 45,000,000 bushels over last year. Consequently those people who are bearing the market do so with strong reasons for their faith.

Looking at the quantity of wheat available for export in the five great producing countries of the world, Canada, United States, Argentine, India and Australia, it is seen that there is no less than nearly 900,000,000 bushels of wheat available. This is a huge amount, and should make, it would appear, for weakness in the market. Nevertheless, the bulls have one strong argument in their favour; what is the good of all this wheat if there are no boats to carry it to destinations? The freight situation does really seem to be a tie-up at present. The outlook, so far as flour is concerned, so far as one may venture on prophecy, is for lower levels in the near future.

If a garment is spotted by the rain it may often be freshened by laying a damp cloth over the article and steaming it.

King and Queen Visit Headquarters of Irish Guards

LONDON, March 18. — King George accompanied Queen Mary to the headquarters of the Irish Guards, where the Queen presented each officer and soldier with a sprig of shamrock.

The King paid high tributes to the Irish regiment, which was created by Queen Victoria to commemorate the heroism of Irish regiments in the South African war.

"By splendid achievements in your first campaign," said the King, "you have proved yourselves worthy of this proud tribute."

The King said: "On St. Patrick's Day, when Irishmen the world over celebrate the memory of the patron saint, it gives me great pleasure to testify my appreciation of the services of this regiment in the war. I gratefully remember your heroic endurance on the retreat from Mons, at Ypres, and on November first, when those left showed the enemy that the Irish Guards must be reckoned with, no matter how hard hit. After twenty-eight days of fighting the battalion came out of the line less than a company strong with only four officers. This is a glorious tribute to Irish endurance.

"In conferring the Victoria Cross on Michael O'Leary I was proud to honour the deed. That fearless contempt for death illustrated the spirit of my Irish Guards. Your appearance to-day tells me the spirit of the Irish is unconquerable. My thoughts and prayers are ever with you and I wish you all good luck."

NEW YORKER TO WED HIS WAR "GODMOTHER"

PARIS, March 17.— A real story-book romance has befallen an American member of the Foreign Legion, Dennis Dowd, who studied at the Columbia University Law School, and before the war was practising law in New York. While in Paris on legal business at the outbreak of hostilities, he joined the Foreign Legion and was wounded in the Champagne battle in September.

While in a hospital he was adopted as a "godson" by Mlle. Paulette de Saint Gilm, a debutante well known in the American colony, whose parents live at Neuilly and with whom he exchanged letters.

When convalescent, Dowd visited his "godmother," and soon lost his heart, with the result that their engagement is now announced. The wedding will take place, it was announced to-day, as soon as the bridegroom receives the necessary papers for the fulfillment of the French marriage formalities.

At Mr. Dowd's home at Sea Cliff, L.I., it was stated last night that his engagement had been known to the family since last week, when they had received a cable from him in Paris, but that the news that he was going to be married soon was unexpected. Beyond the fact that they knew from him that his fiancee was of an old French family, and that she lived near Paris, Mr. Dowd had not told his family of his plans.

At his home it was said that Mr. Dowd was graduated from Georgetown University in 1908 and then took a course in Columbia Law School. Mr. Dowd lived in Brooklyn at 256 Lafayette Avenue. His father is Dennis P. Dowd, a real estate man at 180 West Eighteenth street.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well, what a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It clears out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

Big Crowd Will See Toronto Sportsmen Play Here To-night

Rattling Game Promised When the 180th Battalion Seven Will Clash With the 93rd—Noble, Applegath, McLaren and Other Stars on Line-up.

WILL BE HARD FIGHT

The biggest crowd of the season should be at Brock street rink to-night when the 180th Sportsmen's Battalion team of Toronto will clash with the 93rd Battalion team in the second game of the series for military honours. The 93rd won the first game in Toronto on Friday night by the close score of 2 to 1 after a grand exhibition of hockey and to-night's game should be even faster as the Sportsmen will be in better shape. In Noble and Applegath of the Toronto Senior O.H.A. champions, they have a great pair. Noble is fast and tricky, while Applegath carries a shot like a bullet from the gun and should be even more dangerous here than on the Arena. Friday's game made a big hit with Toronto fans. Here is what Charlie Overrie of the Toronto News has to say.

It looks as if the fag end of the season is going to furnish the best hockey. Last night at the Arena the Sportsmen's Battalion aggregation were defeated by the 93rd, of Peterborough, in one of the most interesting exhibitions of the season. The score was close all the way, and the play spectacular.

The local battalion had Applegath and Noble, the two Riverside stars, and they were the best of the bunch. McLaren tried hard, but was not in shape, but the boys did very well for their first appearance together, and while they lacked the combined effort that makes up a good team, they tried all the way.

Ferguson, the Sportsmen's goaler, did fair work all the way while Lieut. Molyneaux and Dow worked all the way. Molyneaux and Ketchum had a collision in the last period and both had to retire with badly cut faces.

Peterborough had it on the locals in team play, and also had an excellent defence in Ketchum and Montgomery, while Private Montgomery in the nets showed that he knew how to play the position. He stopped several of Applegath's shots that were right for the corner.

In centre ice the visitors have one great player in Lieut. Sexton, who skates just as fast as the Winnipeg Monarchs. Windsor at centre showed a lot of class, while on the whole they look a lot better than any intermediate team seen here this winter.

The crowd was good and while it was mostly composed of the soldiers of the Sportsmen's Battalion, they cheered the visitors as well as their own players. When two battalions can trot out athletes like this to play hockey it shows that the boys in the sporting world are doing their bit.

The News also adds:

The Sportsmen's Battalion trotted out a pretty aggregation, including Lieut. McLaren, of the Toronto R. and A.A.; Lieuts. Applegath and Noble of the Riversides, and little Dow, who figured with the Rowing Club a couple of years ago; Stanfield of the Beaches League; Lieut. Molyneaux, of Parkdale Canoe Club, and Ferguson, a goaler, who has been out of the game for some years. At individual play, Noble and Applegath were the best two men on the ice, but the Sportsmen boys have not had sufficient practice together to be a real team, although they tried hard all the way.

The 93rd are a rattling good aggregation, and their victory was well earned. They played in the intermediate O. H. A. and lost in the semi-finals to Belleville. Their chief strength was on the defence, where Montgomery and Ketchum performed in excellent style. Montgomery is one of the fastest men seen at the Arena this winter, and he checks hard and close. Several times Applegath broke away only to be stopped by his clever checking. Lieut. Sexton, at rover, and Windsor at centre, gave the locals a lot of trouble, especialy Sexton, who went like a house afire in the last period. They had better combination than the locals and worked closer to the nets.

To-night's game should be an even better exhibition. Billy Breen will have the strongest line-up available and hopes to pull the round out of the fire. The 93rd Battalion Band will be on hand and the battalion will be out in force to root for their favourites.

BOWLING

CURLING

A rink skipped by W. H. Collier defeated four Fitzgeralds on Saturday night, in an extra end, by the score of 12 to 11. Percy Fitzgerald was skip, with J. E. A. Fitzgerald vice skip, and Walter and Alex. completing the rink, which is not only unique in its personnel, but with a little more experience together, would give the best of them a battle.

Four rinks of Bachelors and Benedicts are drawn for Tuesday night, as follows:

Married Men	Bachelors.
Jas. Connal vs. W. G. Morrow.
R. Neill vs. J. E. A. Fitzgerald.
T. Brightman vs. H. R. Martin.
W. G. Ferguson vs. W. D. Campbell.

A large attendance of members is expected at to-night's annual meeting. The election of officers will be held and other routine business will be transacted.

MORE CHILD CRIMINALS.

Youthful Germany is Imitating the Kaiser's Army.

Ever since the beginning of the war the number of child criminals in Germany has been steadily increasing until the average is four to five times as many before the courts as there were in peace times.

In Hanover the number of thefts by children has doubled; in Munich there are bands of young criminals who attack and rob people in the streets at every favourable opportunity; in Berlin shops are robbed by those young Huns and, in fact, the same stories come from all the big towns of Germany.

The reason for this increase in young Hun criminals, according to the German newspapers is the loss of control by their fathers and mothers. The fathers are in the trenches, while the mothers are compelled to be out all day taking the place of the men in the workshops and fields.

Another curious effect of the war on the young Hun is the increase of truancy. Schoolmasters all over the country report a heavy falling off in school attendance.

The authorities in Stuttgart, reporting on the increase of child criminals, give the reason that they are imitating the soldiers.

YOUNG WOMEN CARRY LIQUOR IN PANTALETS

GALLIPOLIS, O., March 20. — One of the most ingenious and successful methods of running whiskey into dry West Virginia was discovered here when two young women were arrested. The women wore pantalettes. Each pair had sixteen cleverly constructed pockets, and snugly hidden in each pocket was a pint of whiskey.

An Aldershot At The Front

Vast Legions Are In Training in Flanders

Without attempting to indicate figures, writes Reuter's correspondent to British Headquarters, I may definitely state that along our leagues of front we substantially outweigh the enemy in man-power, and still they come, as no one is probably better aware than the enemy. The result is that under normal conditions of this stationary warfare there is no longer any necessity for men to be rushed into the trenches as soon as they arrive. That such an occasion might occur in the event of a grand offensive is possible, but I am speaking of things as they are to-day. It requires no particular military knowledge to realise considerably better results are likely to be attained by the principle of tuning up the new units within the atmosphere and sound of war than by pitting them fresh from the home drill grounds against the Germans. And so for miles in the rear of the British battle line the flat levels of Flanders have been transformed into a sort of vast Aldershot. The front line supports, and reserves only account for a proportion of our armies in the field. The remaining legions, whether composed of war-tried troops or of new units, are always carrying on that training which has no finality, for trench fighting alone is but a limited aspect of the soldier's calling, notwithstanding the scope it yields for resource and initiative. Therefore when a corps comes out it usually reverts for a spell to the sort of work which recalls the Long Valley at Aldershot, and, whilst maintaining proficiency in what it already knew, is likewise learning something new in the never-ending development of warfare. It does seem an anomaly to talk about field days and manoeuvres in the very heart of the terribly real thing, and yet probably never were these exercises more necessary to the essential condition of keeping it. For 18 months past our front line has scarcely altered its contour, for 18 months our men have been fighting day and night amid the same environment. When troops begin to grow jaded their efficiency is on the wane. We know very well our men are anything but jaded. Indeed, the one unanimous impression which all the visitors to the trenches carry away is that of the admirable cheerfulness of the soldiers. I cannot help thinking the manner in which the doctrine of maintaining fitness by variety in training and relaxation in sport is carried into effect has much to do with the result. On the other hand, there is abundant evidence the "Beaches" are growing very jaded.

To broil ham soak the slices of ham in cold water at first to freshen them, then dry and lay in a gridiron over a hot fire, turning as soon as the fat is slightly browned.

PERSONAL LIBERTY AND THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC

The Subject of Rev. R. G. Peever's Evening Sermon at the George Street Methodist Church—"The Safety of the People is the Supreme Law."

Last night the Rev. R. G. Peever, in a powerful arraignment of the liquor traffic, dealt with that phase of the question touching "personal liberty; next Sunday night he will deal with the subject from another point of view, that of "compensation."

Before announcing his text the Rev. speaker took occasion to voice his pleasure at the splendid success achieved by the Committee of One Hundred, and the way the Government took hold of the question. "What a splendid thing it would be," said he, "if, in view of the high level of public opinion, our newspapers would agree not to have anything more to do with the traffic in the way of advertising its wares? Neither Grit nor Tory has now any advantage in protecting the traffic, since it has been practically interned."

For his text he took I Cor., 8th chapter, verses 9 and 13. "Take heed lest by any means this liberty of your's become a stumbling block to them that are weak . . . . If meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother offend."

This argument of "personal liberty," is as old as the human race. In the chapter from which the text is taken it is very pronounced. Paul recognised that it was causing trouble. The question of eating meat was a stumbling block to some people. Paul himself saw nothing wrong in it, but if the partaking of it would make his weak brother to offend then he would deny himself.

To-day the same question of personal liberty is being revived, and we ought to be informed and able to meet the argument to show that it does not apply; but it must be done kindly if we wish to exert any influence with our brothers.

The liquor traffic is doomed, and the heart and best judgment of the people are pronounced against it.

In studying the subject, Rev. Mr. Peever propounded two questions:

1. Should I drink myself? This referred to the minister as well as the individual in the pew.

2. Should I help pass a law to restrain my neighbour from drinking?

Should I Drink, Myself?

"As a minister I have the liberty to drink. As a minister I have just as much right to drink as any man." Any woman has the right to drink, to get drunk and go home like a demon and kick out her husband. And would to God some women would do it. "My heart has been stirred during the past week by a brute coming home and throwing his invalid wife out into the snow."

There are no two standards of morals for men and women for the minister and the pew. "My sin, in degree, may go farther in consequence of my position, but the inherent wrongness is the same."

Even in Moderation.

Should I use the liberty I have even in moderation? There is no more iniquitous argument than that an individual can use alcohol in moderation and not hurt him. Our friends of the liquor traffic recently asked to be allowed the right to sell wines and beers.

In certain provinces in Europe, such as Sweden and Bavaria where beer drinking prevails, the percentage of still-born infants is alarmingly large. Recently Sweden turned away from the practice, and infant mortality dropped almost to nil.

The place for alcohol is on the druggist's shelf, to be kept there as a poison, and to be dealt out on prescription as other poisons are. Medical Science to-day, maintains that it is not a beverage, and that the smallest fraction of alcohol taken into the system is detrimental to the intellect of man.

Economic and industrial service agree with medical science. Large employers of labour ban liquor among their employees. Physical, mental and moral efficiency are better maintained by not touching it.

Insurance (Medico actarial) science pronounces against it. In England there is a society where all the large insurance companies come together for the consideration of problems affecting their business — and they are in business to make money. In their study of "life" and its duration they can tell to the fraction of a year how long an individual is likely to live. In comparing the drinker with the abstainer they find that ten to thirteen years is what the moderate drinker pays as the price of his "personal liberty" to have a few glasses a day. In the light of these facts who can say I ought to have moderate drinker and tread the downward path that leads to a drunkard's hell?

Should I Restrain Others?

Should I help pass a law restraining my neighbour from drinking? Why not, if it is in the interest of our fellow men? If it is not right for me; if it is a dangerous thing; if it is a poison and should be kept only on the druggist's shelf; those are sufficient answers why I should help take it away from my neighbour. If drink destroys, shouldn't we outlaw it? If drink blights home and children, shouldn't we intern it at once? Why wait?

Some there are who tell us that it is God's method of development; that we should have temptation in order to teach our young men to resist. Such an argument pertains to the bottomless pit.

Billy Sunday tells a story of a farmer of Kentucky who made a living catching rattlesnakes and extracting the poison for medicinal purposes. A box in the back yard contained some rattlers; his little boy, a dear little chap, slipped up close to the box and lifted the lid. The rattler struck him in the cheek. A shriek pierced the father's heart. He grabbed an axe and cut the snake to pieces. With a knife he cut out a portion of the child's cheek, and with his own lips sucked the blood, but it was too late, the child soon lay a corpse before him.

As well might we keep open the saloon where our sons may be poisoned. The saloon as a place of development starts them on the road to perdition.

Can the Government Afford It?

Can we as a government afford to prohibit the liquor traffic? Recently the liquor men went to the legislature and Mr. Wright, their president, said that the retailers would lose 150 millions, the brewers and distillers would lose over 200 millions, and that the Government would lose a revenue of nine millions; but they said nothing of the penitentiaries, asylums and police force that have to be maintained.

Russia never again will sell a gallon of Vodka to her people. Prohibition has made a new Russia. Now her people are clothing themselves properly, are buying farms, educating their children and banking their money.

Others argue: You'd stop a great industry. Where would the men in the breweries go? In Dublin, where is located the largest distillery in the world, there are 14 million pounds invested in the business and they employ 3,000 men. In Belfast, which is noted for its linen industries, there is invested the same amount of capital in the linen business and they employ 100,000 hands. In Sheffield the Caledonia brewery, with one a quarter million capital employs 150 men, while the Atlas cutlery works, with one and a half million capital, employ 4,500 men.

To invest the capital of breweries and put it into manufacturing industries would employ from 10 to 30 times as many men.

Civilization and Liberty.

Others say: "My home is my castle, I can live as I like." But can you? Can you disturb the peace of your home? Can you continue to oppress your child? No.

Yet others says: "My habits are my own business, why interfere with me?" On the street if you use profanity you can be prosecuted. There are no liberties either in home or on the street. Yet people cry that their personal liberty is being interfered with when we touch the liquor traffic. Bishop Fallon, for example. Yet there is no church on earth that dominates its people as does his church.

If we come within civilisation our liberty dovetails into that of another. Civilization is the subordination of personl preference for the well being of the community. If diphtheria comes into my home, the authorities put up a placard. They interfere with my liberty for the good of the community. If Pastor Russell comes to town and is evasive in his answers regarding the rights of Canadians to recruit, we say: Get out. He stands contravening the interests that guard us.

The Safety of the People.

The safety of the people is the supreme law. It is the basis of liberty, of all civilisation, of all government, and the liquor traffic is diametrically opposed to these principles. Therefore, like the tree that brings forth bad fruit, the axe must be applied at the root. There can be no compromise."

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, March 20.—Bethlehem Steel, the market's bell cow failed to disport itself to-day on the Stock Exchange, following the publication of a report showing the Company earned 112 per cent. during the last year. Bethlehem sold off nine points from Saturday's close. During the past week of war stock activity and strength, Bethlehem moved up approximately fifty points, traders discounting in advance the anual report of to day.

Peace talk and professional traders showed a tendency to check an advance and "shake down" the outsiders after several days of bull trading, it was said to-day, accounted for the decline in the Bethlehem Steel quotations.

At 2 o'clock, prices of many of the leaders were two points under the high marks of the day. Crucible was 21 1-2 under its best price, selling at 95 1-8, while United States had lost a point at 85 5-8.

Bethlehem Steel opened at 520, off 9 points; Baldwin dropped from the morning's high of 112 3-4 to 110 1-2 at noon. Marine pref. was 72 3-4 at noon.

New York, March 20. — Advances in war industrials was a feature of the Stock Market opening. Crucible opened at 97, up one point; Marine Preferred at 73 1 2 up 3-4 of a point; U. S. Steel 86 1-2 up 1-8 of a point, and American Locomotive 80 1-8 up 3-4 of a point.

Mexican petroleum opened at 114 5-8, up 1 -8 of a point.

During the first twenty minutes there was no trading in Bethlehem Steel.

Crucible, from this morning's high of 97 5-8, sagged to 95 3-4 at eleven o'clock. Mexican petroleum reached 115. Sales for the first hour of trading totalled 206,223.

A Proposed Peace Programme

Austria Dismembered, Hohenzollerns Deposed, Alsace Restored.

Nothing less than the dismemberment of Austria and Aethunnement of the Hohenzollern dynasty in Germany will be to the Czech Nation, (a Bohemian review published, it need hardly be explained, outside of the Central Empires,) an acceptable outcome of the war. Its views on these and other war aims are set forth in the following passage:

"An experience of half a century has proved beyond any possibility of argument that the inhabitants of Alsace-Lorraine wish to be reunited to France.

"The Poles and the Danes of Schleswig demand freedom from the German domination, which becomes more oppressive in proportion to its duration.

"Austria has never been anything but an instrument of tyranny and violence. She must be wiped out to the extent of permitting the Galicians to reunite with the Poles, the Czechs and Slovaks to form an independent State, and the Slavs now subject to Austria to join themselves to the Kingdom of Serbia.

"In the last place, it has been demonstrated that the dynasty of the Hohenzollerns, which has gained its power by theft and conquest and is incapable of dissociating itself from the obsessions of its origin, is a menace to the peace of the world, and must disappear.

"These four points, the restitution of Alsace to France, the reconstitution of Polish nationality, the dismemberment of Austria, the suppression of the Hohenzollerns—will the German Socialists accept them? If so, let them declare it clearly, and let them prove their faith by their works. So long as they fail to do so, it will be for us to see in their pseudo pacific declarations nothing but a despicable manoeuvre, and to denounce them, despite the transparent disguise they have assumed, as the shameful train-bearers of William II."

Holland Is Indignant Over German Submarine Outrages

ENEMY ATTACK WEST OF THE MEUSE IS REPULSED

Crown Prince Now Trying To Force Abandonment of The French Positions

LONDON, March 21.—By a flanking attack from the extreme west, the Crown Prince is now trying to force the abandonment of French positions on the northwest front of Verdun, according to despatches to-day.

The German offensive west of Malancourt followed the failure of frontal attacks to break the French front, west of the Meuse. The Crown Prince is now applying the familiar "nut cracker" strategy on the narrow sector ten miles northwest of the citadel.

The German thrust near Malancourt, eight miles west of the Meuse, was accompanied by an advance of German troops from Regneville, along the river bank. The plan evidently was to squeeze the French out of the villages of Cumieres and Chattancourt, behind Dead Man Hill, and force a retirement on the northwestern forts of Verdun.

The German attacks around Malancourt met with some success, despatches from Paris admitted to-day. By the use of flaming liquids and a heavy artillery fire, the Germans penetrated French trenches directly west of Malancourt.

The attempt to advance the eastern jaw of the "nut cracker" on the bank of the Meuse, met with failure. German forces that moved southward from Regneville was caught in the flooded lowlands by a hot fire from French artillery on the east bank of the Meuse and driven back with serious losses.

LONDON, March 21.—Freedom of the Cornish Borough of Falmouth has been conferred on Sir Sam Hughes, the Mayor referring to him as "the Kitchener of Canada."

SUIT HALF CENTURY OLD IS COMPROMISED

Louisville, Ky., March 20.—Litigation begun forty-five years ago over a bond issue for a railroad that never was built ended here when Union County taxpayers compromised a suit for $500,000 with the bondholders for $100,000 and paid the smaller sum into court.

Incidentally it is the first time in nearly half a century that a sheriff of Union County has not felt that he might be under the necessity of resigning his office rather than be compelled to collect taxes with which to liquidate the judgment. A number of them did resign rather than oppose their constituents and make the levy.

RUSSIA'S ARMAMENTS NOW EQUAL TO THAT OF THE GERMANS

Holland Has Plenty of Money

Bond Issue by Trading Association Seventy Times Oversubscribed and Gold Pouring In

AMSTERDAM, March 21.—An indication of the plenteousness of money in Holland at the moment is the fact that an issue of $1,800,000 five per cent. bonds just made by the Amsterdam Trading Association was seventy times oversubscribed, the capital offered amounting to $123,000,000—and this in a country situated right in the midst of the greatest war in the world's history.

The continued flow of gold to Holland and the resultant superfluous supplies of money are evoking questions whether there are not serious dangers and disadvantages connected with this apparently favorable phenomenon.

Two of the leading economic journals ask whether the Hollanders should not, contrary to the practice so far largely followed during the war, use the occasion to extend their holdings of good American railway bonds, other leading foreign stocks and bills generally, and even open up new fields abroad, thus rendering productive means now lying idle, extending commercial relations, reducing the money superfluity and normalising several foreign exchange rates.

KID IN TRUNK WAS DETECTED

German's Ruse to Get Back to Fatherland Was in Vain

LONDON, March 21.—After crossing the Atlantic from New York in his wife's trunk, Captain Roewer, a German engineer, was detected by the British at Kirkwall and interned, according to a story appearing in Danish newspapers and forwarded by Reuter's correspondent at Copenhagen.

Captain Roewer was an engineer at Kia-Chow, China. He escaped after the capture of Kia-Chow by the Japanese and made his way to New York, whence he and his wife sailed for Copenhagen. To escape detection, the captain arranged to cross the Atlantic in his wife's cabin trunk. He remained in the trunk during the daytime, breathing through a ventilator inserted over the name plate, and emerged from the trunk during the night.

None of the passengers suspected the ruse, although it was noticed that exceptionally large meals were sent to Frau Roewer's cabin. At Kirkwall the captain left the trunk fearing he would be detected when inspectors searched the luggage, and was caught in the packing room. He was interned, but his wife was permitted to proceed, reaching Copenhagen yesterday.

Vast Stores Held Up In German Ports Likely To Be "Dumped" Into Britain

When the Conflict Ends, it is Feared, and a Movement is on Foot to Prevent It---Neutral Countries Will Also Be Affected

LONDON, March 21.—The prospect of the "dumping" of large stocks of German goods on the British market as soon as the close of the war releases the pent-up German production has started an active movement for an "anti-dumping" law. American dealers located here say this same prospect of "dumping" applies to the United States, as the blockade of German ports has had the effect of accumulating vast stores of products which will eventually be freed to seek foreign markets.

A parliamentary White Paper summarizing the views of a Board of Trade committee on this subject declares that the "dumping" will affect neutral countries as well as England, the "dumping" being accompanied by a cut in prices to gain the foreign markets. The report says:

ADVISES GOVERNMENT ACTION.

"In view of the threatened dumping of stocks which may be accumulated in enemy countries, the government should take such steps as would prevent the position of industries likely to be affected being endangered after the war or during the period required for a wider consideration of the whole question.

"There is a general fear that immediately after the war this country will be flooded with German and Austro-Hungarian goods, sold at almost any price, and that the competition in price which was going on before the war will be accentuated, with resultant serious difficulty to all manufacturers of goods of kinds exposed to this competition and positive disaster to those manufacturers who have been encouraged to extend their operations or engage in new branches of industry, with a view to capturing trade formerly carried on by enemy countries.

"The conviction that the prices at which German goods will be offered in the British and neutral markets after the war will be even lower than the pre-war quotations is based on two assumptions—first, that in some branches of industry, at least, Germany has been accumulating large stocks during the war; and, second, that immediately upon the conclusion of peace she will make every effort to recover her position in the world's markets and to crush nascent competition, and that in carrying out that policy cheapness will be a potent weapon."

APPLIES TO AMERICA TOO.

The representative of one of the largest American electrical concerns said the statement in the White Paper applied quite as much to the United States as to Great Britain.

"Our firm for a long time was mystified as to how Germany controlled the English electrical market before the war," said he. "Finally we got the balance sheet of the German electrical concerns, showing thirty per cent. profits in some countries and no profits in other countries, including England. That is, large profits in some countries permitted actual losses in other countries in order to gain the market. That is the chief danger of 'dumping' when the blockades end and the accumulated stocks of German products are turned loose on the world."

THE WAR HAS MADE A BIG RISE IN DRUGS

Nearly All the Lines of Drugs That Are Called Into Common Use Have Advanced Sharply—Outlook for Future is Not Much Better

The war is certainly no respecter of persons or things, and foodstuffs are by no means the only commercial things affected by it. In the chemical and drug market there are many necessary parcelling which have soared away up in prices, while the scarcity of familiar household drugs continues to make itself more severely felt. Even so humble a remedy as castor oil has doubled in price since the war began. The castor bean of commercial medicine is a product of India, being shipped through Calcutta. In the last few months little or none of this nauseating necessity has left that port. So, the result is that from $1.00 a gallon, the terror of all childhood has mounted to $2.00. Now comes word from Texas that the castor bean grows luxuriantly in the portions of that commonwealth nearest the Mexican border. As yet, however, the market stringency has not been felt keenly enough to make Americans and Villistas forget their feud, in any wild scramble to gather palma christi, as the gentle fruit is called.

The blockade of Germany, too, has cut off the source of supply of many valuable remedies, chiefly the famous coal tar products of which the best known example is aspirin. Mercury, also, is in great demand for explosives and the hundred and one chemical compounds of that mineral are difficult to obtain. Such is the case with quinine. Not only has the supply of medicines been diminished and the means of shipping these and other drugs seriously impeded. All open markets must compete with the warring governments, however, and they seek huge amounts for use in thousands of field ad home hospitals.

All in all, the present seems an excellent time to choose for keeping well. Worse luck that the epidemic of la grippe should have chosen the winter of 1915-16, to say nothing of the measles which have become so prevalent.

A few drugs and chemicals have somewhat steadied in price, but the quantities available of such drugs are so small that it is impossible to set any market value on them which would act as a guide. It has not been uncommon for an article to have several values during the course of twenty-four hours, and the upward tendency all around is still marked, largely due to the constriction of freight facilities. Higher prices rather than lower must still be looked for in the widest extent in drugs and chemicals. Business in the country is generally very satisfactory, with an increasing tendency towards larger movements.

WRONG BODY AT WAKE.

Daughter Who Discovers Mistake Startles Jersey City Mourners.

Many persons were attending what they supposed was the wake of Mrs. Mary Booth, 68 years old, in an undertaker's rooms in Jersey City when Mrs. Mary Taylor, of 10 Floyd street, Jersey City, entered, glanced at the body and screamed: "That is not my mother!"

It developed that Mrs. Booth and another woman of about the same age died at the same time in the Hudson County Asylum for the Insane. The body of the stranger woman was returned to the asylum and Mrs. Booth's body was obtained in time for a belated wake, followed by the funeral in St. John's Roman Catholic church.

It is a good idea to save. If possible a definite sum for furniture replacements. This applies especially to the keeper of a new home.

BRITISH FLAG ALONE HAS BANDITS' RESPECT

Detroit Woman Refugee Tells of Flight in Mexico.

EL PASO, Texas, March 21.—Mrs. Wallace Rogers of Detroit, Mich., arrived here Sunday with her 18-months-old infant, and told how she had hidden with her baby for two days in the shaft of an abandoned mine near Cananea, from Mexican bandits.

Mrs. Rogers declared that the Mexican bandits not only had no respect for the American flag, but that it actually incited them to outrages. The only flag that offered any protection at all, she said, was the British flag.

"I am bitterly ashamed to admit it," she said, "but whenever trouble started we began to hunt for a 'Union Jack.' It was by no means a bullet proof shield, but it was the only flag I ever saw that the Mexicans paid any deference to."

Policeman Recognizes Prisoner as First Man He Arrested.

More than forty years ago, when Eugene Birmingham, the present chief of police of Bridgeport, Conn. joined the city's force, his first arrest was Michael Frawley, one of a gang of youths who came here from Derby and created a disturbance. The other day Frawley, now an old man, was again brought before him, this time for theft. Birmingham is noted for his ability to remember faces and names, and the moment he saw Frawley he recognized him as his first prisoner. Frawley is wanted in New Haven for stealing, and will be taken there at the conclusion of his sentence in Bridgeport.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

"To my nephew, Rupert Foodyke, I give and bequeath the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars per annum during his life. This sum is to be increased to ten thousand dollars per annum on his marriage, provided that such marriage takes place within two years after my death, unless a postponement is rendered necessary by unavoidable circumstances which the trustees of this my will shall deem sufficient cause for an extension of the said period of two years, and provided also that the said trustees shall approve of the person he marries. Such approval should not be withheld unreasonably; but nothing in this testament shall be regarded as interfering with or controlling the absolute direction of the said trustees.

There was no hint of tremor or emphasis in Bennett's tone as he recited that onerous clause. He treated Foodyke's legacy with the same sangfroid he had displayed in detailing a bequest of fifty-two pounds per annum to an aged gardener attached to the Surrey mansion.

But the despoiled heir bubbled into instant frenzy. He could hardly believe his ears when the amount was disclosed. The generous treatment of his sisters prepared him for at least five times the sum they would receive, and his pallow face grew livid when he knew that the dead man's hand still retained its grip.

He grasped something; but the lawyer promptly raised his voice, with the air of a man who was not to be stayed in an important undertaking because of an incensed testator. Thereafter Foodyke paid little heed. He understood, it is true, that the whole of the residue of the real and personal estate was left unconditionally to "my dear wife" Stella Carmac," and that the said Stella Carmac, John Carmthorpe Bennett, and the public trustee were named as trustees with the ordinary provisions as to the appointment of successors.

But these things reached his senses through a haze of fury and disappointed greed. He was almost beside himself with rage. The slight woman, so likely, at the three deaths, would probably, would have at command an income of quarter of a million! Bitter as were his thoughts toward his uncle's widow, he was even more enraged with the aging lawyer. If murder would have served his purpose, Foodyke was in a mood to choke the life out of the gray-haired man whose voice had droned out that sentence of almost complete excommunication.

"Can I have a copy of that precious screed?" he said, and if each word had been a poison-tipped arrow Bennett would have died a sudden and painful death.

"A copy of any will of which probate is granted in England can be obtained by application at Somerset House," said the lawyer calmly; "but in this instance, as you are interested I see no reason why, with Mrs. Carmac's consent, an uncertified copy should not be supplied from any office."

"I am not thinking of contesting it," went on Foodyke bitterly. "I have no doubt that the robbery has been carried out in accordance with the law."

"You have been aware of your uncle's views during the last four years, Mr. Foodyke—why do you now resent their clear and final enunciation?" came the cold, unemotional comment.

Foodyke rose. He would have gone had not Mrs. Carmac stayed him. She too stood up, and came nearer. She was deathly pale, her lips trembled, and she spoke at first with difficulty.

"Whatever the consequences, I cannot let you leave me with anger in your heart," she said. "Still less can I endure that your uncle's memory should be made hateful by what you regard as unjust treatment. It was not his intention, it can never be mine, that you should be punished for past errors. . . . Mr. Bennett, I beg you not to interfere. There are moments in life when a higher law operates than is writ in the textbooks. . . . If I were to let you go now, Rupert, harboring evil thoughts against me and a man who is dead, I should hold myself responsible in some degree through all the future years. Your uncle only asks that you shall marry some woman worthy in herself and fitted to carry on the traditions of your family. Do that, and you will never regret it, either in its influence on your own career or in the material benefits it will bring without that delay. I can say no more. But I do ask you to believe that I am speaking from my very heart."

She ceased. For a few seconds there was profound silence in the plainly furnished room, which, by its very simplicity, gave a curious indefiniteness to a conversation in which money, money in millions, minted wealth that would have overflowed through windows and doors if piled on the floor, figured as vital element.

But Foodyke closed his ears to the woman's plea; though his alert wits warned him that a declaration of war would be nothing short of rank lunacy at the moment. So he bowed with the easy grace that was natural to him.

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 50 cents, 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils.

You will be pleasantly surprised to note how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else.

"I—I—I—I do what you have said, Aimée," he murmured, choking back the humiliated wrath that stormed for utterance. "I don't imagine you expect them to discuss matters now. With your permission, I shall leave Pont Aven as soon as possible. On your return to London I shall ask permission to visit you."

Mrs. Carmac would have answered, but he quitted the room abruptly.

"Rupert Foodyke is a thorough bad lot," said Bennett, entering the look of a fair boy with an angry flush. "If that young man pulls himself straight, I'll—well, I'll grow potatoes instead of preparing seeds!"

Mrs. Carmac smiled wistfully. She knew, none better, that the pendulum of life can swing from one extreme to the other. Yet even she might have lost faith had she been with Yvonne when the girl hurried from home after supper.

At that hour, about half-past eight, though the night was pitch dark, one so accustomed to unhindered movement in any part of the village did not hesitate to take the short cut that led across the Avon by a footbridge and debouched by an alley on the main street not far from the Place. She was on the bridge, and a faint, luminosity from the swirling waters beneath showed posts and rails with sufficient clarity. At that point she ran into two people, a man and a veiled woman who emerged from the black shadow of a mill. The man was Rupert Foodyke; but the woman was a stranger. Who could it be?

Suddenly some trick of carriage and bearing suggested Madeline Demoret. Madeline masquerading in modern attire! Madeline without coif or cornaid shrinks from reveling herself to masculine gaze without her coif, which is the symbol of all that is pure.

In her dismay she nearly cried aloud to her friend. But the two had hurried on, vanishing in the direction of the Bois d'Amour. Sick at heart, she hastened to Madeline's cottage, where the girl lived with an aunt.

"Tiens!" cried the woman who looked up from the hearth when Yvonne entered. "Why isn't Madeline with you? She went to Mere Pitou's half an hour ago."

"We've been to Moelan," faltered Yvonne. "I must have missed her. Au revoir, Madame Brisse."

"Oh, I cannot bear it!" cried Yvonne in an agony of shame when she was alone again in the darkness. "My mother! And now my friend! What shall I do? Is there none to help? How can I tell my father—or Lorry Dear, lion-hearted, Lorry! Surely I can trust him, and he will take that man in his strong hands and crush him!"

CHAPTER IX

SHOWING HOW HARVEY RAYMOND BEGAN THE ATTACK.

Raymond has too many irons in the fire that day to permit of the relaxation of mental and bodily energies that his condition demanded.

It was essential to the success of a scheme now taking definite shape in his mind that he should seem to avoid Rupert Foodyke's prying while maintaining a close surveillance on his movement. Thus, owing to the chance that he occupied a bedroom over-looking the Place, he knew Foodyke went out after changing the garments of ceremony worn that morning, and guessed quite accurately that an after-noon stroll would lead the younger man past Madeline's cottage. He watched for the arrival of the solicitor's clerk from London, and when Foodyke's return soon after five o'clock. Then realizing that the first of many formalities with regard to Carmac's will was in progress he quitted his post meaning to sit on the terrace until Foodyke reappeared.

The weather, however, had turned cold, and he found an overcoat necessary. With the help of a servant he buttoned the coat in such wise that the empty right sleeve dangled as though he had lost a limb. As a consequence he was not instantly recognizable. Harry Jackson peered patiently at the window behind the open square, failed to make out the identity of that small, ungainly figure until it had passed to and fro several times across the top of the small square.

A remarkable feature of a day rich in events fated to exercise a malefic influence on the lives of four people was provided by the fact that two men so opposite in characteristics as Harvey Raymond and Harry Jackson should have spent some hours in staring out from their respective sporting seats at the carnival of picturesque pulchrum presented by the main thoroughfare of the village. Each was unaware of the other's vigil, each wholly unconscious of the part he was destined to play in a drama of love and death.

The secretary, of course, was pursuing a project that could hardly fail to raise his fortunes to a height hitherto undreamed of; whereas the cheery-hearted sportsman, though his pampered thoughts at times would have bothered Raymond far more than an occasional twinge of a broken arm did he but know their nature, was actually concerned about little else than his own future and the welfare of a meal dependent on his earnings. Skill, it was said that the night of Raymond seldom failed to bring a perplexed frown to Jackson's face. The two had never met until the Stella sailed from Southampton Water. They had not exchanged a word beyond the commonplaces of politeness on board ship. Yet Jackson disliked Raymond, and his minds were mirrors the quasi-gentleman would have seen in the civil spoken steward a fearful enemy; though none would be more surprised by the idea that the sturdy little Cockney himself.

Jackson felt rather lonely just then. Popple was occupied with an English-speaking representative of the Brest marine salvors from whom he had hired a diver and a tug. Yvonne had vanished, being miles away at Moelan with Yvonne and her father, and the changeful show beneath had lost some of its novelty in the eyes of the lively headsman. He resented enforced inactivity. He wanted to be up and doing, bustling about like Popple; but that wretched ankle of his anchored him securely in bed or easy chair.

Thus there was nothing to distract his attention from Raymond's slow promenade beneath; and he speculated idly as to whom the secretary was awaiting—evidently someone from the annex, judging by the frequent glances cast that way.

At last Jackson's harmless curiosity was gratified. Rupert Foodyke, walking rapidly, hove in sight. The main door of the annex was not visible from the onlooker's window; but Raymond's unflagging patrol told him where the expected one would come from, and a close family likeness between uncle and nephew—notably in the dark, lustrous eyes, raven black hair, and pink and white skin—served as an effectual label. No cumbrous Brittany cart happened to be creaking noisily over the rough cobbles of the square. The gate had subsided. The window was open. Jackson could hear every word that passed. These were brief and much to the point.

"Ah, Mr. Foodyke!" said Raymond, affecting a pleased interest because of their chance meeting. "I'm glad I've run across you. What did you wish to say when we came back from Nigon?"

Foodyke, staring with uncomprehending eyes at first, seemed to awake suddenly to the fact that his late uncle's secretary barred the way. "I've forgotten," he said slowly. "At the present I want only to tell you to go to the devil!"

"Indeed!" Raymond jerked his head backward, as if he had been flicked and thus reap the greatest wealth the with a whip on the cheek.

"Yes, truly."

Could Not Stand The Least Excitement.

Was So Weak and Run Down.

Many women become run down and worn out by their household cares and duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with shattered nerves and weak hearts.

When the heart becomes weak, and the nerves unstrung, it is impossible for a woman to look after her household or social duties. The least little exertion or excitement leaves her in an exhausted condition, and not fit to do anything.

On the first sign of any weakness of the heart or nerves, you will be wise if you start to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

This remedy will act directly on the disordered heart making it beat strong and regular, and will also invigorate and strengthen the nerves so as to make them steady and firm.

Mrs. J. A. Williams, Tillsonburg, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I suffered greatly with my nerves. I was so weak and run down, I could not stand the least excitement of any kind. I believe your Heart and Nerve Pills to be a valuable remedy for all sufferers from nervous trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the original remedy for all heart and nerve troubles. Price 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DEATH IN EMPTY TIN CANS

The United States Public Health Service announces that the tin can is a menace. An official bulletin says:

"Malaria experts of the United States Health Service have found that discarded tin cans containing rain water are breeding places for the mosquito, which is the sole agent in spreading malaria.

"A hole in the bottom of the empty can might have resulted in the saving of a human life. Certainly it would have assisted in preventing a debilitating illness. Empty tin cans have no business about the premises anyway, but if we must so decorate our back yards let us see to it that the can has a hole in the bottom."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Kicking A Goal

By LITTELL McCLUNG.

Though it was only an hour before the great football game between Clinton and Darnall, their conversation was not of the gridiron as they walked down Main street bound for Clinton oval.

"There's only one thing that keeps me from becoming engaged to you right now, Thornton," said the girl after a serious pause.

"You'll have to tell me, Leta; I can't guess it," answered the stalwart quarterback of the Clinton eleven.

"Just this," she said. "I am not altogether sure that you really need me in your life. You are a strong, self reliant boy, capable of fighting your own way over the obstacles that will confront you.

"More than all else put together, I want to know that without my encouragement you would be accomplishing less—that I will always be an inspiration to you, no matter what your aims may be."

For a moment the young man did not reply. Then he looked at his companion, his gaze sincere.

"Leta, you're right," he agreed quietly. "That's the way I want you to feel about it. Deep down in my heart I know that you would always inspire me to strive for the best in life. But I must convince you of this, and I'll do it, too, dear girl, if I get the chance!"

"Maybe you will, Thornton," she replied, "and I hope that you will more than you can guess. Why—why not begin at the game today?"

"That's what I intend to do, Leta!" was his prompt response. "I expect to play as I never played before, just because you are wearing Clinton's colors and wearing my pennant. It's a pretty one, isn't it?

"The gold and brown stripes harmonize beautifully with that bright brown gown you are wearing. Your ticket calls for a seat back on the north goal, and I know I'll see you clearly despite the crowds."

"It certainly is fine," she declared, "that little me may be an inspiration to a Clinton boy to play at his best! But it seems almost a pity that you are not one of the halfbacks or in the line, though I know everything depends on the quarterback. He gives the signals and delivers the ball, doesn't he?"

"I know what you mean, Leta," he said. "You would like to see me in a position where I could run with the ball instead of handing it out to somebody else?"

"Well, that's because I weigh only 145 instead of 200 pounds," he continued. "After all, it takes sheer weight in the line, and that naturally slides me into the quarterback's place.

"But you mustn't forget that Clinton depends upon me to kick the goals, and a goal kicked or missed often wins or loses a big game like this."

They were now on the college grounds amid shouting hundreds and fluttering flags and pennants. Thornton assisted Leta to her seat high up in that part of the semicircular grand stand that stretched around behind the north goal.

"I hope Clinton gets the south end of the field," he said as he started off toward the clubhouse.

"Why?" she asked.

"Because then I'll be able to see the orange and brown magnet that's drawing me north toward Darnall's goal!" he said earnestly.

Soon the rival elevens trotted out on the field, and from the thousand tongued grand stand rose a mighty shout, while pennants, ribbons, handkerchiefs and flags mingled in a waving, varicolored mass.

It was the great wind-up game of the year, and there was a chance for any player to win a glory crown by making the deciding touchdown. Both elevens, it was evident, were steeled for the contest.

But, as fate would have it, Clinton got the north end of the field, and a savage quarterback waited for the umpire's signal with his back to the girl in orange who was waving a pennant—for him.

But despite this disappointment he gathered his strength for the charge, and as the shrill whistle struck his ears he leaped forward straight for the ball that lay on the line twenty yards in front of him. Biff! The oval went whirling through the air in a sixty yard parabola, with the whole Clinton team in pursuit.

The ball landed in the arms of Darnall's fullback, and the big fellow came back up the field in a series of lunges. But before a dozen yells had split the air he was down, with every Clinton man piling over him.

Then the shoulder to shoulder battle began. In three downs Darnall lost the ball. Then Thornton's opportunity came. To test Darnall's line he gave it the risk of having his own neck twisted a series of center rush signals.

Three times the heavy backs charged over him, and he felt his breath going fast as Darnall hurled back the plungers. End runs were tried with but little better success. Seeing that line rushes were hopeless, he gave the signal for a kick, and Clinton's fullback sent the ball far down the field.

But Darnall hurled it back with another kick. There were more close formation plays, followed by two more long distance kicks, while the air was filled with the cries of the spectators and the sharp, quick shriek of the umpire's whistle.

The time of the first half was almost up when suddenly outside a scrimmage rolled the ball. For a second nobody excepting Clinton's quarterback knew what had become of it.

Directly in front of him, not twenty yards distant, was Darnall's goal. Even a halfway drop kick might win the game. Thornton dropped the ball to the ground and swung his right foot. A great cheer went up, which died away suddenly in a groan. The ball flew high, but it didn't go within fifty feet of either post.

Thornton felt that all Clinton was disappointed beyond expression and deeply ashamed of the showing he had made after the college had boasted of his prowess as a drop kicker. He remained in dejected seclusion during the intermission.

But when the whistle sounded again he was like another man. Clinton had the south goal this time, and clearly the quarterback saw a girl in orange swinging a pennant in the grand stand. Already the throngs had forgotten his fluke in the hope of victory in the second half.

At the kick-off Thornton sent the pigskin seventy yards down the field and then plunged into the game with ferocious energy. He determined to redeem himself or perish in the attempt.

Neither eleven seemed able to break down the defense of the other until toward the end of the half, when Clinton began to come up the field steadily.

Thornton, his head clear as a bell, was playing at frightful pace, giving Darnall no time to catch its breath after each attack. But thirty yards from the goal line! Darnall braced itself heroically and stood like a stone wall.

"Only one more minute to play!" called the umpire, and the crowds took up the shout.

Thornton realized that in so short a time line plunges would be futile. There was only one hope of victory, another drop kick for a goal. While only twenty yards away, the goal posts were off to the left at an oblique angle.

There was about one chance in a dozen of putting the ball between them, but Thornton took it. He stood back of the line ready to call the signal, and the Darnall eleven, seeing it was to be kick, got ready to plunge through and break up the play.

Then suddenly the quarterback, looking directly between the goal posts, saw Leta in the grand stand in an attitude of breathless expectancy, and he knew more than the game depended upon his quickness and skill.

He stepped back a few yards, and with his eye riveted on the figure in orange he gave the signal in clear, sharp tones, "Three, double two, eleven!"

The ball struck his outstretched hands, and as he dropped it he shot out his right foot. The next second a big Darnall guard leaped over the line and struck Thornton head-on, sending him reeling senseless twenty feet from the spot where he was hit.

But the big man was half a second too late, for Thornton's toe had caught the ball squarely, and it went flying straight as a bullet between the goal posts and up into the grand stand, falling almost at Leta's feet!

A wild, deafening yell of joy broke over the field, but the quarterback did not hear it. Ten minutes later, when he came to, a girl was bathing his forehead, and he caught the glow of her bright brown dress. The crowd fell back respectfully.

"Don't worry, Thornton, dear boy," she whispered. "I saw you looking at me when you made that wonderful kick, and I know now how much I mean to you!"

She Coughed Day and Night.

Mrs. Fred. Fenier, Cedarville, Ont., writes: "I am sending you this letter telling what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. Ten years ago I had a terrible cold. For days I could not speak above a whisper. I coughed day and night. One evening I was so bad I went down to our storekeeper, and when I went in he said, 'You better get something done for that cold of yours.' I told him, as well as I could, that I had just come to get a bottle of the best cough medicine he had. He told me Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was the best he had, and said for me to take a little of it before I left the store. I took some, and in fifteen minutes I could speak as well as ever. I think 'Dr. Wood's' is the very best on the market."

That persistent cough must be gotten rid of immediately, for if it hangs on to you it may develop into some serious lung trouble, such as bronchitis, pneumonia and perhaps consumption.

Get rid of it by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A remedy that has been on the market for twenty-five years. A remedy that cures when all others fail.

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get what you ask for as there are many imitations on the market.

STARVE ALL BELGIANS!

Hun Editor Calls For Blood of all the Conquered

Here is one way to end the war. First, let Germany confiscate all Belgian land now in its occupation and send all the dispossessed landowners to the centre of Germany and Austria, installing German people in their places. Second, let Germany take possession of all mines, railways, factories, banks, etc., in the occupied territories. Third, let the inhabitants of the occupied territories be subjected to starvation. That would arouse such a world-cry for peace in the lands of the Entente powers that their Governments would be compelled to sue for peace.

Such at least, is the conclusion of Herr Rudolf Keller, the editor of the "Prague Tageblatt." He expounds and details his scheme in a series of five articles which appeared in his journal. Herr Keller strikes the note of brute force, naked and unashamed in his very first sentences: "Imperial Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg has said that Germany abandoned sentimentality. If that is so Germany has not made it sufficiently pparent and that is just what Germany must do.

"Experience in Alsace-Lorraine and Schleswig-Holstein has shown that if the Central Powers would achieve, as the Chancellor said they must, frontiers which would protect them from attack in the future, they must drive out the entire population from the occupied territories and replace the present inhabitants with Germans. That would be the work of months." Herr Keller goes on to urge "A beginning should be made at once. There is no time to lose. It is possible now. After peace it would be no longer possible. Let us confront our enemies with an accomplished fact. It will help us in the negotiations."

SELF-MADE MARTYRS.

Love Makes People Do Some Very Curious Things.

A farm servant who has never been to bed for more than forty years has just died near Swansea, England. He had slept mostly in stables.

His reason for this habit was the fact that he had been "crossed in love," and he swore that he would never sleep upon a bed since his trouble.

These self-imposed penances are not rare. One man, whose sweetheart died, made a vow that he would never eat of any dish that he had once enjoyed with her. This meant cutting out all his favourite dishes, but he fancied that he was paying homage to her memory in this way, and so kept it up until his death.

Many people refuse to visit certain places of entertainment, because they were once visited in the company of a dead or faithless sweetheart. There is a young man in London to-day who will never visit any of the beautiful parks or greens because they are haunted by the memory of his dead wife.

THE BURDEN OF AGE.

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak loins, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing eyesight. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They restore the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

Britain's Great Arsenal.

Woolwich is suffering to-day from a house famine. There is, so far as is known, not a single private house in the borough or district rented at under £50 a year to let. The slightest intimation that a house is likely to become vacant brings a flood of applications. It was rumored late one night that a small house, old and not very convenient, might be available soon, as the present tenant had been ordered abroad. By eight o'clock next morning thirty-six people had applied for it. It had been let, however, by 6 a.m.

The magnet that has drawn skilled workers to the Arsenal is the big money to be made. Clerks formerly rich on 35s. a week now make their £4, with overtime and bonuses. Boys often earn 23s. a week or more. The skilled workman receiving his £5 or £6 a week is a commonplace individual. People point out particular workmen employed on special jobs, and say that they sometimes make £15 or £16 a week. Often several members of a family are working. With the father earning £6 a week, and four or five others receiving smaller amounts, up to maybe 25s for the boy, it is easy to see that the family income may reach a total that many a supposedly prosperous professional man might envy.

RUSSIA A DEMOCRACY DESPITE HUN DECEITS

English Writer Uncovers Germany's Claims of Being Bulwark Against Autocracy—Europe's Saviour

One of the indirect results of the war has been the number of books published in England in defence of Russia. Stephen Graham, the Scotchman who has traveled over that great empire and mixed with all classes, is, perhaps, the most widely-known authority upon this subject, but Charles Sarolea has attacked the problem of Russia from a new angle. Germany has used as its ultimate defence, the plea that she alone is the barrier between Europe and the domination of the Slavs. She has created the popular idea of Russia as a land of startling contrasts—the Czar or one hand, the serf on the other; the luxurious salons of Petrograd and the miserable hovels of the provinces; the aristocracy lolling in its fur-decked sleighs and the peasants drowning their sorrows in vodka—as an argument against any friendship with the great power of Eastern Europe.

Czarism is Needed

But Mr. Sarolea draws an entirely different picture. He sees in Russia the hope of democracy. He does not deny that autocracy exists, but he explains it by historical and physical necessity. For thousands of miles Russia is one vast plain; over it all prevails the force of nature revealed in her most malevolent aspect. For mile after mile there is nothing to relieve the monotony, and so there is an essential democracy among those whom fate has decreed must live there. But they have been face to face for centuries with the risk of Tartar invasions, and so they have submitted in very fear of their lives to the central power of the Czar. But their local life has ever preserved true democracy, and in the "Mir" and the "zmetayo" the peasants have kept unimpaired their free institutions.

A Thinking, Living Power

So, Mr Sarolea says whatever may be the form of Government, there is a peculiar freedom in Russian thought. The language is so difficult that few foreigners can appreciate it. The stories that are told of the revolutions and the "Black Hundred" he pronounces ridiculous, and he declines to believe that the masses will ever be led by the handful of atheistic intellectuals who have posed as the leaders of reform. The Orthodox Church, he asserts, may be dead, but the people themselves are intensely religious and will work out their own salvation regardless of the obstacles placed in their way. Mr. Sarolea sees in Russia one of the revivifying forces of the modern world. The war of 1812, he declares, liberated Europe; the war of 1825 freed Greece; the war of 1878 rescued Bulgaria, and so the war of 1915 will save Europe from Prussia. Even the remorseless advance of Russia to the east he explains by the natural expansion over a No Man's Land of a people which increases at the rate of 3,000,000 a year, and can any one wonder at its desire to acquire as open port on the sea, when the events of the present war are remembered?

SHIPS MAKE FORTUNES

War Helps Norwegian Owners of Old British Hulks

In the latest Norwegian papers a most remarkable feature is the number of advertisements heralding the birth of Norse shipping companies, and appealing for additional capital. These "fleets" comprise as a rule, one, two, or three steamers—seldom more—of small tonnage (1,500 to 3,000) and of ancient construction dating back into the early eighties and late seventies. The majority of these venerable craft are British in origin, and prior to the war were probably sold as scrap iron for next to nothing to some humble Norse merchant or port official. Now, however, with the prevalent high freights, these "dug-outs" are proving gold mines to the purchaser and to the enterprising war partner who has paid for the redecoration and new engines. In fact, Norwegians of all classes are investing their savings in old hulks.

No stale cake should be thrown away. It can all be used with advantage in puddings or even in ice creams.

WOULD ABOLISH GERMAN

Kultur Must be Isolated, Declares the French Press

The French press almost unanimously demands that the study of the German language shall be forbidden forever in the educational institutions of France. Many papers express the hope that the same step will be taken not only by England, Italy, Russia and Serbia, but also by the United States and other neutral countries. The provincial press wants not only all German books thrown out of the schools and public libraries, but also all French translations of the works of German philosophers, poets and scientists. One of the strongest advocates of this policy, the "Petit Provencal" of Marseilles, says editorially: "The influence of Germany must be done away with for all time and this can only be accomplished by practically killing the German language. All nations should be impressed with the fact that it is below their dignity to learn a language which is only spoken by a race of barbarians and murderers. No sane man thinks of wasting his time in studying the languages of the Zulu-Kaffirs or the head-hunters of Borneo, and it is hard to understand why anybody should try to learn German.

"There is no doubt that the morbid German philosophy has greatly influenced certain intellectual circles in all countries. Many of the persons whose minds have been thus contaminated are actually dangerous to their own races, because they have lost all patriotism. The allied nations should unite in a crusade against everything that is German after the war. A lasting and general boycott against all German products is sure, but this is not sufficient. The German language and literature must be driven from all civilized parts of the world. That alone will rid civilization of the unhealthy and dangerous influence of the Boches. If all commercial and mental intercourse with them is broken off they will be no longer able to do any harm."

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

An Officer's Flash

While we were at a village not far from Ypres, relates Private H. G. Cavanagh of the 1st South Staffordshire Regiment, a lieutenant of my regiment called for six volunteers to go into a wood and try to draw the fire of the Germans. He soon got the six men and a sergeant, and set out with them.

While in the wood they came under a heavy rifle fire, and two of the men were knocked over. The lieutenant went to them at once, but after a few minutes he was persuaded by the sergeant and the rest of the men to retire.

When he had been back in the trenches for half an hour it seemed to us as if he could not rest. At last he asked if anyone would go out with him and bring the two men in. Getting a small party, he succeeded in getting them both back, in spite of a terrible storm of bullets. But one must have been killed instantly, while the other only lived a few hours after his return.

For this brave act our officer would undoubtedly have earned the Victoria Cross, but he was shot by a sniper next day.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Their Effect in the First Theaters in Which They Were Used.

The first theater in the world to use incandescent lamps was the Academy of Music, on Halsted street, Chicago, the plant being installed by the Western Edison Light company. The theater was wired for 150 sixteen candle power lamps. The lighting was confined to the auditorium. No electric lights were used on the stage, as dimmers had not been thought of at that time. On the opening night, after the new lights were installed, the actors struck, claiming that it was impossible to make up by gaslight and play their parts under the glare of the electric lights. It was with difficulty that they were persuaded to proceed with the second act.

The first theater to be completely lighted with incandescent lamps was the old Haverly theater, then located on Monroe street, where the Inter Ocean building now stands. This plant consisted of two dynamos with a capacity of 637 lamps. On the opening night only sufficient lights were started at first to enable the ushers to seat the audience. When the curtain rose every light was turned on, causing a tremendous sensation among the audience and eliciting applause that continued for fifteen minutes. The innovation was so successful that McVicker's theater and the Chicago Opera House immediately installed similar plants.—W. C. Jenkins in National Magazine.

Sulphur in New Zealand.

Sulphur deposits are found on White island, in the bay of Plenty, on the coast of the North island of New Zealand, about thirty miles from the mainland. This island, which covers about 600 acres, attains a height of 900 feet on one side and opens to the sea on the other. Its topography indicates an old crater, and the boiling lake on the island, which is one of the awe inspiring sights of New Zealand, is a further evidence of volcanism. After the New Zealand Sulphur company had spent $100,000 in preparation for mining sulphur in this locality a volcanic disturbance wrecked the camp and killed ten men.

ENGLAND A WORKSHOP.

What the Ministry of Munitions Has Accomplished.

Carping critics tell us that we do not make enough use of the business men of the nation, which merely emphasizes their ignorance of the work of the Ministry of Munitions, which has organized the labor of the country in such a marvellous manner for the purpose of turning out munitions of war—work which will be the deciding factor in this great struggle. For Mr. Lloyd George has enlisted under his banner the best business brains in the country. The greatest engineers, contractors, managers, railway, and shipping magnates, mining authorities, scientists, and chemists have welded themselves into a body which has transformed Britain into one huge arsenal.

We have already told in Tit-Bits how the whole of the United Kingdom has been mapped out into huge munition areas; how nearly 17,000 munition factories are working night and day, turning out material for our men in the fighting line—material which we so woefully lacked at the beginning of the war. And if further proof were wanted of our extraordinary resources in this direction, it can be found in a striking article which Dr. A. Shadwell contributes to The Edinburgh Review.

As Dr. Shadwell says, the Munitions Office is staffed with practical men of the highest standing and capacity. "None of the knowing critics could suggest so good a list; they do not know enough. There is, for instance, the Bombay and Burma Trading Company. It is said to be the largest trading concern in existence, and the reader will perhaps be inclined to believe it when he learns that one of the assets of that company is £4,000,000 worth of trained elephants alone. Yet the manager of this immense business is content to occupy an assistant's seat in a subordinate office of the Supply Department."

This is but one example of the business geniuses who have made great sacrifices in order that their services might be utilized for munition work. At the head of the Munitions Supply Department is Sir Frederick Black, a man who for three years was Director of Naval Stores. Every source has been tapped, "the country," to quote Dr. Shadwell, "having been raked with a tooth-comb for all the spare units available. It is not confined to industrial districts. It penetrates into remote regions, associated only with agriculture or pleasure resorts.

"Wherever two or three lathes are gathered together, there some help is being given. There is a house in London—West Central District—where a man and his wife have given up two rooms—a bedroom and a sitting-room—and have installed four lathes. They are making caps for some form of ammunition, and since there was not room enough for the metal rod from which the caps are made to be fed into the machine, they knocked a hole in the wall to give it play. The case illustrates the spirit which the munitions act is able to catch, and the small forces enrolled thereby in the service."

The State arsenals have been taken over by the Ministry of Munitions, while it may be mentioned that the head of the machine-tool department is the head of the most enterprising firm of makers we have; and he has working under him experts representing each of the principal machine tool making districts in the country. Wherever there has been expert labor, expert labor has been organized for munition work, so that when the right time comes, the Allies will be able to batter in the German lines and go on battering for weeks and perhaps for months.

Baby Afflicted With Eczema Dr. Chase's Ointment Cured

The Family Doctor Tried in Vain to Heal the Sores—Another Tribute to This Great Healing Ointment

It may be interesting to note that Dr. Chase's Ointment was originally compounded to cure a case of eczema on a child. The disease had spread almost over the entire body and defied all the regular treatments for such troubles. The doctor was perplexed, but finally on the formula of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and, as many say, "it worked like a charm," healing up the nasty sores and leaving the skin soft and smooth.

That was a good many years ago, and since then many thousands of cases of eczema, both in children and adults, have been cured, until to-day Dr. Chase's Ointment is recognized as the standard cure for itching skin diseases.

Mrs. Geo. McNair, River Charlos, N.B., writes as follows: "We use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home, and would not wish for anything better for cuts, burns and bruises. A few years ago a friend of mine, whose baby was terribly afflicted with eczema, had her child treated by their own family physician, but the little one got no better. They tried several remedies, but they all proved useless in this case. Upon the advice of a neighbour, they got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and before the first box was used the child was completely cured.

"I can also recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to suffering friends, who I know will be glad to learn of something to relieve their nervous trouble. You have my permission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

So soothing and healing is Dr. Chase's Ointment that relief from itching and burning comes almost as soon as the ointment is applied. The sores are cleaned by the action of this treatment, and the process of healing is soon begun. By persistent use of the ointment cure is effected. 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

A CHILD'S TONGUE SHOWS IF LIVER OR BOWELS ARE ACTIVE

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Give Fruit Laxative at Once

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile, and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of Mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by A Single Application

PLANS SEA-GOING TRAIN.

Engand to be Connected With Stockholm by Railroad Ferry.

Stockholm, aMrch 20.—Having practically completed plans for a railroad car ferry service between Gothenburg Sweden, and an English North Sea port, presumably Immingham, the Swedish Board of Trade is considering establishing a similar line from Stockholm and Abo, Finland.

With the system in running order, a car, or even a train, might make the run from Vladivostock to Abo, cross by boat from Abo to Stockholm, go by rail from Stockholm to Gothenburg, travel again by ferry from Gothenburg to England and unload in the latter country for the first time. The proposition is to run 10,500-ton boats on the Anglo-Swedish line daily in each direction.

Jarred Her!

A Chicago woman was traveling in the orient. On a trip through a desert she was carried by four stalwart blacks in a chair suspended on poles. The natives started out with great cheer, but as the journey progressed and the sun beat down upon them they began to chant a prayer to Allah. It was melodious, though a bit mournful. Its constant repetition was soothing, and the lady dozed. On awakening, the prayer, grown more mournful, almost despairing, was still being intoned. Turning to her interpreter she asked the meaning of the mysterious words. The interpreter pretended not to hear, but being pressed for an answer finally bowed low and said:

"Madam, since you insist, they pray that the great Allah may make you less fat."—Chicago Tribune.

Sacrifice!

There was only one piece of pudding for dinner, and Mrs. Jones divided it between her children, Ned and Grace. Ned looked first at his piece and then at his mother's empty plate. "Mother," he said, "I don't think I can eat my pudding while you haven't any." "Why, Ned," said the mother, much pleased, "how unselfish you are, dear! But, you see, my boy, there is no more pudding." "I know that, mother. You take Grace's!"—London Mail.

How Any Woman Can Remove Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture)

It is not longer necessary for a woman to visit a beauty specialist to have superfluous hairs removed, for, with the aid of a plain delatone paste, she can, in the privacy of her own home, remove even a stubborn growth in a very few minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes removed and the skin washed, when it will be left clear and hairless. Be sure you buy real delatone.

Except in the bottle—No!

You cannot get real Bovril except in the Bovril bottle. Bovril is so strong that it cannot possibly be manufactured in cheap cubes. It takes the beef of an entire ox to make less than two dozen bottles of Bovril. Add Bovril to make your cookery more nourishing and to save butchers' bills. But it must be Bovril.

Old Time Temperance.

Germany would seem to have given the lead in the matter of temperance societies. On Jan. 18, 1517, a man named Sigismund de Dietrichstein formed the Order of St. Christopher, and in 1600 the landgrave of Hesse formed the Order of Temperance, both societies aiming at the promotion of moderation. What moderation meant in bygone Germany may be gathered from the fact that members of the first order pledged themselves to abstain from toast drinking, while those of the second were pledged "not to drink more than seven glasses of liquor at a time and that not oftener than twice a day."

Flexibility of English.

English is not only, as Richard Jefferies asserted, the most expressive and flexible of tongues, but also, in Swinburne's opinion, the most musical. He proclaimed the lines—

Music that gentlier on the spirit lies
Than tired eyelids upon tired eyes to be unmatched for melody in any language. And few would venture to contradict such a master of music and tongues. But surely French ranks next on the roll of languages. For clearness of diction it is unrivaled, and, thanks to its abundance of vowels (close on one for every consonant), it flows rhythmically from the tongue.

Some Odd Animals.

Many curious animals haunt the marshy parts of South America north of the pampas. Frogs, big and ferocious (the ceratophyrs), given to making vicious springs when closely approached; the capybara, a cavy "contented with the bulk of a sheep;" the huge coypu rat and the swarthy, pig-like tapir are frequently seen.

Along the forest margins troops of peccaries are often met with, occasionally the jaguar, sometimes the puma, likewise that toothless curiosity, the great ant bear, long in claw, long nosed and remarkably long tongued. Very plentiful, too, are those "little knights in scaly armor," the quaint, waddling armadillos. Long toed jacanas pace about upon the floating leaves.

A familiar object is the great jabiru, a stork with a preference for the desolate lagoons, where it may often be observed statuesque on one leg and wrapped in prospection.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Strenuous Methods of Healing.

Papuan medicine men are regarded with great respect by the natives. Those I have met certainly seemed energetic and hardworking. They sit close to the patient, massaging the seat of pain with much vigor, and, while they are thus rubbing, make a noise with their lips rather like that which a groom makes when rubbing down a horse. The process is a tiring one, and the medicine man stops at intervals to drink hot water in which taro has been boiled. His object is to extract some mysterious foreign substance from the sick man's body, and if he succeeds in this he receives a fee; otherwise he gets nothing. "No cure, no pay," is apparently the Papuan sufferer's motto.—Wide World Magazine

A Certain Test.

"The pleader in criminal cases has often strange experiences," says Sir J. H. A. Macdonald, the late Lord-Justice-Clerk, in "Life Jottings," and remarks how in the case of a murder, brutal in its character, anger at the deed will cause a jury to reject the clearest evidence that the perpetrator was insane.

"I once defended a case," he says, "and a majority of the jury not only convicted, but added a rider affirming that the prisoner was sane. The man was hopelessly mad. The doctors sent to see him were satisfied of that, and the sentence was not carried out. A crucial test applied was that while one of them put his finger lightly on the pulse, the other suddenly said, 'By the by, Miller, when is it you are to be hanged?' There was not a tremor or a change of countenance or acceleration of the pulse, and, looking up, he said, quite simply, 'I think it's Tuesday week, if I'm not mistaken.'"

Not So Much of a Joke.

The late Linley Sambourne, the famous Punch cartoonist, began life in an engineering works. When a young man he was always fond of playing practical jokes, and a French draftsman employed at the engineering works often became the butt of his humor. This young draftsman wore a soft hat, which he frequently laid on his desk, not waiting to hang it on its peg, and one day Sambourne hit upon the bright idea of nailing the Frenchman's hat down to his desk. He awaited the consequences in high glee. But when lunch time came instead of attempting to tug the hat from the desk, as expected, the French youth calmly took another hat from the peg and went out. Then the future cartoonist bent over the desk, looked closely, and saw that it was his own hat he had nailed to the desk.

GERMANS GAIN FOOTING AT MALANCOURT

BRITISH AND ENEMY DESTROYERS CLASH

The Germans Gain in a New Offensive West of the Meuse

Heavy Assaults Preceded by a Terrible Bombardment and Stream of Liquid Fire Gained Enemy a Footing in Malancourt Wood, Northwest of Verdun---Further Attemps to Advance Were Checked.

NO OTHER ACTIVITY AROUND VERDUN

PARIS, March 21.—The German troops have made further gains in their new offensive movement on the west bank of the Meuse, the French War Office admitted this afternoon.

In a renewal of the heavy assaults against the Abancourt-Malancourt line last night, the Teutons occupied the southeastern part.

The Germans, however, sustained heavy losses in the attack. The German heavy artillery first bathed the whole French front with a steady fire. Then streams of liquid fire were played upon the foremost French positions.

Behind these sheets of flame came the grey-clad legions in massed assaults against the French lines. The force of the onslaught carried the French out of their positions in the southeastern part of Malancourt wood, about ten miles northwest of Verdun, but the German's efforts to debouch from the woods, were stopped abruptly by French artillery fire. Elsewhere there was no activity on the Verdun front last night.

"North of Bosinghe, a German reconnaissance party was put to flight," said the official statement. "French artillery has been very active on the southern edge of Cheppy wood."

RUSSIANS ADVANCE ON THE EASTERN BATTLE FRONT

Examiner Special:

LONDON, March 21.—Distinct Russian victories at both ends of the eight hundred mile eastern battle front this afternoon overshadowed the fighting around Verdun, where the Germans have made further advances.

The battering of heavy Russian guns against Von Hindenburg's front in the north has forced the Germans to withdraw from a salient south of Naroczs Lake. The German War Office admitted the retirement in an official statement this afternoon, declaring a retreat was necessary to avoid annihilation of the Germans by the encircling fire of the Slavs.

The German War Office admitted that the Russians are making heavy attacks on a wide front in the Riga-Dvinsk sectors, despite heavy losses. It is considered certain here that the power of the new Russian offensive will force the withdrawal of German troops from the western front, and possibly end the Verdun offensive.

Many Articles Are Prohibited

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, March 21.—King George to-day signed the Government order prohibiting importation for the balance of the war of automobiles, motorcycles, various musicall instruments, and all kinds of spirits, except brandy and rum.

The libel suit brought by Mrs. Herbert Asquith, wife of the Prime Minister, against the Globe, was settled by mutual consent to-day, and withdrawn from court. The Globe will pay $5,000 damages and costs, it was said.

The Globe had charged that Mrs. Asquith played tennis with German officers interned at Donnington Hall, and sent them gifts.

Austrians Give Up Position to Russians

Special to the Examiner:

BERLIN, March 21.—Austrian troops have evacuated Usciecavo Bridgehead and trenches to the northwest, after defending the position for six months against Russian attacks, the Austrian War Office admitted in a statement telegraphed here to-day.

The position had been battered into a heap of ruins by the heavy pounding of the Russian artillery in the recent fighting.

Russian Forces Again Successful

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, March 21.—Russian forces entered the Persian City of Ispahan Sunday, according to Teheran despatches to-day.

ELLIOT'S READY-TO-WEAR DEPT.

The many pleasant remarks, which are heard on all sides, regarding Elliot's style show, are very gratifying to the department.

The choice is unusually large and varied, and reflects the many decided changes in the fashions this season.

It is indeed surprising to see so large a showing of high-class styles and all made up in good qualities of all wool cloths.

Good all wool materials will soon be the scarcest thing in the trade.

Dame Fashion has decreed that pretty suits are to be worn more than ever this season.

The new fashions are very attractive and show decided changes.

The suit jacket fits snugly above the waist and flares generously below. In all its variations this is recognized to be the accepted style for Spring 1916.

Here and there you will se Norfolk and Bolero styles featured, but they are not numerous.

Many of the jackets are cut off either sectionally or wholly at the waist line, while others are fitted by gathers or cartridge pleats. A favourite for the bottom is a long point on either side. Belts are a feature of almost every coat. Buttons are used for trimming quite as much as for utility.

In dress-skirts it is found that separate skirts have grown greatly in popular favour. The gored skirt has almost entirely taken the place of the circular design, but the chief feature is fulness and flare.

Separate coats for women is the slogan in all the big centres. They will occupy a much larger place than usual for spring and summer wear. The full flare coat loose from the shoulder is the favourite. It is made to fit above the waist line, below the waist the flare is very pronounced.

There is a slight trend towards light shades, but this is not very pronounced, this season will be largely a white season.

Many middies will be worn, also quite a number of raw silks. But there is one feature that will most certainly make itself felt throughout all lines.

That is, prices will steadily rise, just last week again cottons went up from 10 per cent to 25 per cent., and there is every indication of all materials continuing to rise.

It is now more than ever going to be good policy to buy early.

FOE'S DESTROYERS CHASED INTO PORT BY THE BRITISH

FOUR BRITISH WOUNDED

LONDON, March 21.—Four British destroyers engaged three German destroyers off the Belgian coast yesterday, the Admiralty announced this afternoon. Two enemy boats were hit by shells from the British destroyers. Four British sailors were wounded. The clash between the speedy light vessels is the first engagement between British and German war craft in many weeks. The German destroyers are believed to have emerged either from the German base at ZeeBrugge. Belgium, or to have made a dash along the Dutch coast from Heligoland, hugging the shore line until they encountered the British patrol ships.

The Germans escaped into the naval base at ZeeBrugge, Belgium, after a running fight, the Admiralty announced.

"The Story of the Rosary" a Great Military Play

To Be Presented Here on Thursday Night—Will Be One of the Most Artistic Stage Productions Ever Seen Here

A living document on the many phases of a country's life in war time is, "The Story of the Rosary", the great military play which will be presented by George F. Driscoll, at the Grand Opera House here next Thursday, March 23.

The play in its shock of battle and noise of big guns, dealing as it does with the present conflict, lends itself to the unique use of the drama-reoruiting.

The play is set in many old-world places—four acts and twelve scenes and will be one of the most artistic stage productions seen here in some time. The scenic work of Gordon Hammond is eye-filling. The play opens with a scene of splendor—a regimental ball such as preceded the battle of Waterloo, and saddened by the same circumstances, a declaration of war, through scenes of the Royal Light Infantry in billets, part of the battlefield such as Shakspere always included in his historical plays, with noise of battle—big guns and falling walls, old world gardens where the romances accompanying the war were consummated, and the joyful celebrations when the war is over. The play deals with war and there many analagous situations to Canada at war. The play was written by Walter Howard, the great English melodramatic writer and produced at the Prince's Theatre, London, six weeks after the war broke out. The seats are now on sale.

THE VISIT OF THE SPORTSMEN WAS A BIG MILITARY EVENT

180th and 93rd Are on Very Friendly Terms as Result of Two Games---Visitors Were Entertained at a Most Enjoyable Banquet---Notes of the Visit---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

The visit of the 180th Battalion Sportsmen's team to Peterborough last night was a big event in military as well as in sporting circles and has placed the two battalions on a very pleasant and friendly footing. The Toronto party consisted in all of some fifty officers and men of the Sportsmen's Battalion in charge of Capt. Ritchie, and they were given a warm reception to Peterborough, being met at the C.P.R. station by the brass and bugle bands of the 93rd Battalion. Three hearty cheers and a tiger were given for the Sportsmen, and the Toronto soldiers came back with similar honours for the 93rd. Then a parade was formed, and headed by the two bands the visiting soldiers and a large number of the 93rd marched to Brock street rink. At the door of the rink the Sportsmen showed their appreciation by heartily cheering the band. The story of the game is given elsewhere. Suffice it is say that the Sportsmen lived up to their name on the ice and afterwrdas made more friends for themselves by their genial and friendly bearing.

Following the game the 93rd Battalion entertained their visitors at a most enjoyable banquet at the Empress Hotel. In addition to the members and officials of the two soldier teams there were present, Capt. Ritchie and Lieut. Oke of the 180th and Major R. P. Watt, Major K. G. Loch, Capt. J. E. R. Munro and Lieut. Stuart of the 93rd Battalion. Mine Host Graham had prepared a most appetizing menu to which the khaki clad gathering did ample justice.

After the toast to the King had been loyally honoured, Major R. P. Watt, who presided, expressed the great pleasure the officers and men of the 93rd Battalion had had in the visit of the Sportsmen.

Capt. C. R. Widdifield of the 93rd team, in proposing a toast to the Sportsmen's Battalion, spoke of the value of athletic games in developing a man's physique and character. The playing of such games as last night's did much to fit the participants for the bigger game in which they were engaged. The 93rd had thoroughly enjoyed the visit of the 180th and he called upon the members present to drink to their health. The toast was honoured by the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Capt. Ritchie of the 180th agreed with Capt. Widdifield's remarks in regard to the beneficial effects of sports and expressed the pleasure of himself and his men in the visit to Peterborough.

The Sportsmen then honoured a toast to the 93rd.

The banquet was then brought to a close with the singin gof the National Anthem.

A number of men well known to the sporting world accompanied the Sportsmen. In addition to the members of the team there were "Teddy" Oke, the professional hockey player, Pte. Dan Johnston welterweight boxing champion of Canada, Pte. Tommy Daly, the well known trainer and former boxing goter, and Pte. Billy Edson, who needs no introduction to the local sporting public.

A number of the Sportsmen's battalion visited the armouries this morning and were delighted with the accommodation provided and the general comfort of the building. The visiting soldiers also visited the band room and after hearing Bandmaster Hughes' aggregation play the overture to "William Tell" and "Reminiscences of Verdi," they were loud in their praises. "A real band" was the verdict of the Sportsmen.

Yesterday Pioneer W. W. Bailey of the 93rd Battalion was the recipient of two very handsome presents on the eve of his marriage. No. 5 platoon, to which he was attached before being transferred to the Pioneers, presented him with a splendid dinner set and shortly afterwards the Pioneers surprised him with a very handsome clock, the latter presentation being made by Corp. Lavery.

Bandsman R. Wood of 93rd Band, who has joined the ranks of the Benedicts, was presented with a beautiful clock by the members of the band on Saturday.

Lieut. Hills of the C.A.S.C., who has been supply officer in connection with the 93rd Battalion during the past winter, has left for Toronto. He is to go overseas at once with an Army Service Corps draft. Lieut. Hills made many friends during his residence in Peterborough and his departure will be regretted.

COUNCIL MODIFIES ITS PROPOSED SALARY CUT

Salaries Over $750 to Be Pruned 10 Per Cent. and Those of $750 and Under to Receive a 5 Per Cent. Reduction—Council Had a Series of Proposals Last Night

SOME WANTED NO CUT AT ALL

The Council's proposed pruning of the civic salary list was modified last night to the extent that the original ten per cent. cut applies to salaries over $750; and salaries of $750 and less receive a five per cent. cut. It is proposed that these changes shall take effect on April 1st. The reduction is from the yearly salaries, but the three months already passed and paid for diminish the actual cuts to 7 1-2 per cent., and 3 3-4 per cent., respectively. Thus were the prophecies once more fulfilled.

It now remains for the Council as such to finally adopt its committee proposal.

When Mayor Duffus directed attention to the salary question Ald Stratton remarked that the Council was once unanimously in favour of it.

Ald. Dobbin left no doubt of his attitude when he suggested that the entire propdsal of salary reductions be abandoned.

Coming immediately after the discussion of the band grant, Ald. McIntyre observed that this was brushing in with the big drum

Without any unnecessary preamble Ald. Evans moved, seconded by Ald Galbraith, that civic salaries over $750 be cut ten per cent., and those of $750 and under, five per cent.

Ald. McIntyre moved an amendment, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that all salaries of $750 or under be not cut; that those between $750 and $1,200 be cut five per cent., and those above $1,200 be cut ten per cent., to take effect April 1st.

Ald. Dobbin said he seconded the amendment to help out. If there were a better motion he would second it.

Ald. Edgar—"Can you make a better one?"

Ald. Dobbin—"I made one at the outset and nothing was done."

The resulting vote locked decision by reason of the fact that Aldermen Langford, Edgar and Saunders did not vote. Only Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Dobbin supported the amendment and the rest joined with Ald. Evans.

Ald. Edgar's Change.

Ald. Edgar prefaced a declaration of his complete volte face by emphasizing the limitations of a $600 salary's struggle against the high cost of living. Moreover, a discrimination had been suggested against the higher salaries. Ald. Edgar was of the opinion that the employees were earning their salaries or they would not have received them.

"Ald. Langford is not keeping house or he might know more of what it costs," said Ald. Edgar, who also claimed that he rarely changed his decisions. All the members were changing their minds and he was only going back a little further than most of the others. He moved that there be no cut in salaries, and Ald. Dobbin seconded it.

Some of the Aldermen asked Ald. Edgar about his former counsel not to be "pushed all around in this matter."

Ald. Langford said that at the last meeting.

Ald. Edgar had told of meeting citizens who had expressed their support and sanction of the Council's move.

"Apparently Ald. Edgar has struck a different crowd since the other night."

DISTILLERS WIN THE FIRST ROUND WITH GOVERNMENT

Teeth Removed From the Proposed Bill to Prohibit the Manufacture of Liquor—Preliminary Intention Frustrated

THE DOHERTY BILL

OTTAWA, March 21.—Brewers and distillers have scored a signal victory at Ottawa in turning the Dominion Government from its primary intention to prohibit the manufacture of liquor within the provinces which have enacted or may enact prohibition measures.

The Government was balked in its purpose when at the last Conservative caucus many private members declared against prohibition of manufacturing only favouring prohibition of importation. As a consequence the Doherty bill, a Government measure, introduced at Ottawa yesterday, goes no farther than to prevent the importation of liquors into prohibition provinces or districts of provinces in which local-option is in force.

M'LAUGHLIN MOTOR CAR DEMONSTRATION

Watch the New Local Dealer Introducing a New Record With This Popular Car

It will be interesting news to owners and prospective buyers of McLaughlin cars to learn that Mr. A Brown, the live real estate promoter, has secured the agency for this famous car, and expects to have a McLaughlin Six demonstration in the city during two days of the latter part of this week. It will be exhibited at the White Rose Garage, No. 183, Hunter Street. Mr. Brown has secured the services of Mr. Thomas Appleby, one of the most expert automobile men in the city, to look after the wants of McLaughlin users. The new McLaughlin cars will be all six-cylinder valve in head motors, which have sprung into such popularity on account of this valuable mechanical feature. Already Mr. Brown has sold a McLaughlin Six to Mr. R J. Kidd, manager of R. Neill's store.

With his well-known business methods Mr. Brown is determined to see that every McLaughlin customer receives the most satisfactory and efficient service possible. It looks like a good year for McLaughlin sales all over the country. All supplies for the McLaughlin car will be kept in stock at the White Rose Garage, where Mr. Brown's general office will be located in future, after Tuesday next. Office 'phone, 126; residence 'phone 1309.

SKATING AS USUAL AT BROCK ST. RINK

93rd Battalion Band Will be on Hand To-night—Good Ice

Skating is good at the Brock Street rink, and the rink will be open for skaters all this week. There is fine ice for to-night and no doubt there will be a good crowd. It is hardly possible there will be ice for more than a week to come.

Do Not Stir It.

Try a package of Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal. It contains 25 per cent flaxseed and 10 per cent. bran, both wonderful foods. The flaxseed is rendered absolutely odourless and tasteless by electrically depriving its linseed oil of oxygen and changing it into a resin. If porridge is made without stirring, it positively has no hint of flaxseed. If stirred while boiling the resin again takes up oxygen from the atmosphere and is changed back into linseed oil, tainting the porridge. Do not stir and Roman Meal Porridge is the most delicious nut brown breakfast known. It's very nourishing and prevents indigestion and constipation. Most grocers sell it.

THE DIFFERENCE.

The difference between British and German ideals and practices in making war are as opposite as light and darkness. When the British sink a German ship the crew of the sinking ship are rescued to a man. When the Germans sink a ship they not only leave the passengers, if any, or the crew, to sink or swim, as may be, but actually fire upon the victims struggling for life in the water. This difference in spirit and practice has been demonstrated throughout the war, but has been emphasized recently. The German air craft raided the Kentish coast of England on Sunday last, and, instead of bombing Dover, which, as a naval base, would be a legitimate target for an enemy, went inland and dropped death-dealing bombs upon the peaceful country, and upon non-combatants; upon children going home from Sunday Schools, with many fatal results; and upon a Canadian military hospital, to slaughter wounded men. This is nothing new. In the fighting in Flanders, in April last, Sir Max Aitkens tells us in his 'Canada in Flanders' how, in the ebb and flow of battle, a Canadian dressing station fell into the hands of the Germans. The Canadians counter attacked and recovered the station, and their [illegible] wounded men whom they had been compelled to leave with wounds comfortably dressed, dead to a man—they had been bayonetted as they lay helpless by the German hounds. In regard to aerial warfare, the difference of British methods is shown by the fact that reprisal was made on Monday, by sending sixty-five air craft to bombard from the sky the town of Zebrugge, a German submarine base. This is legitimate warfare; for the object was not to kill non-combatants and women and children, but to cripple submarines. It was to gain military advantage by legitimate and, as far as might be, by humane methods, instead of gratuitous and purposed maliciousness. Likewise, the French airmen bombarded the fortified city of Metz, in Germany, and ammunition depots. This is the form of reprisal the Allies take. Some hot-heads have clamoured for British retaliation by air-bombing German unfortified cities; but they will clamour in vain. The utmost form of reprisal Britain will adopt is air raids on fortified places. The British compulsion of civilization, the British sense of humanity forbids the useless slaughter of women and children, forbid mere murder, for the mere sake of killing. Britain has clean hands and a fair name in the world; and she will not compromise her civilisation by deeds of barbarity. Germany has her name blackened. It has become a stench in the nostrils of civilised, and even half civilized, nations. Even the terrible Turk, in his military methods, is infinitely more the gallant gentleman than the best of the German cut-throats. If Germany would only learn something she would see that in her policy of frightfulness of wanton slaughter and destruction she is only making a whip for her own scourging, and would try a little civilization in her methods. Her "frightfulness" has only recoiled upon her, and its accumulating weight of condemnation and recoil is slowly crushing, but surely, compassing her downfall, pushing her steadily towards the abyss of utter defeat, which is the only point at which the entente Allies will stop—and they will stop the sooner if you join the ranks of the 93rd to-day.

OFFER THAT SECOND HAND CAR AT A BARGAIN PRICE AND DEMONSTRATE THAT "ADVERTISING PAYS"

From wise statesmen in Great Britain—men who know—come appeals for economy along the full length of the national garment of expenditures, public and private. The echo of this call has reached Canada and the appeal comes to us all from our rulers to economize and even pinch in our spending. But it is "up to" the government to set the example, which they have so far not been rash in doing. This is not to be wondered at, for it takes some heroism of effort to come to a new level of habit. The government has been going at such a dizzying pace of expenditure that it may seem difficult to drop from a mad gallop to an amble. In his budget speech the Finance Minister said the government was "economizing." It is full time. In the matter of the post office, there has been a tremendous increase in expenditure since the Borden government took office in October, 1911. Then the balance between revenue and expenditure was not very even, but fortunately it tilted the right direction. There was a surplus in the post office department of $1,192,720. For the fiscal year 1915 it required $2,914,525 to cover the gap between revenue and expenditure, that is there was a deficit of that amount. Why this big difference in four short years? Was it because the government had turned over the Post Office Department to the cheerful exploitation of Nationalist ministers, who have "held down the job" a great deal better than they hold down the expenditure. Officials were appointed in battalions till they swarm in our big and smaller cities like flies over a honey pot. The post office revenue has increased over four million dollars in four years. Post office salaries in the Montreal post office, as an example, the last year of the Laurier regime amounted to a total of only $542,948, now they stand at $1,118,934. If the government is "economizing" as Sir Thomas White says they are, they are not using the post office department for their experimenting, nor, it seems, any other departments. The "Civilian," the organ of the Canadian civil service, say that the civil service is overmanned to the amount of $5,000,000 per year. Now we need soldiers badly. If the government wants to do a double stroke—perform patriotism and economy at the same time—let them take some measures to draw upon the civil service surplus of salary beneficiaries for enough men to overman the fighting ranks of Canadians to the same extent the civil service is overmanned. Economy, indeed! Left-handed economy is other than the etymological sense, is sinister economy.

Canada in Flanders

A Little Big Book of Details of the Achievements of Canadian Soldiers on the Battle Lines of the Western Front

Not for a long time, if ever, in our history, have 250 pages of a book been packed with so much reading of intense interest to Canadians as Sir Max Aitken's little book, "Canada in Flanders," just issued by Hodder and Stoughton, simultaneously at Toronto, London and New York. It is written by the Canadian "official eye-witness," and deals with the fortunes valour and victories of the 1st division of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the European war welter in Flanders. It is, as stated, saturated with interest to Canadians. It supplements the bald story of the despatches contemporary with the stirring events it covers with thrilling details of the three battles and connecting military incidents, in which Canadians played so prominent, so gallant, and to many, so fatal a part. We have recorded by a skilled observer and the pen of a ready, incisive writer, the details of the battles of Ypres, Festubert and Givenchy. How the Canadians were as steady as on parade under the intensest artillery and machine gun fire; how they had the steadiness of veterans of the line, with the resourcefulness, pluck and dash of Canadians. We are told of the splendid work of the Princess Patricias, from the January day they landed in France, a full battalion, till they marched back in May to reserve trenches, led by Lieut. Papineau, 150 strong. This was a type of the fierce fighting in all the battles in which the Canadians covered themselves with glory; and which the book describes in graphic pictures. In addition the several chapters are followed by records of individual exploits; Homeric in their bravery, eloquent of the courage, dash, resourcefulness and adaptability of the Canadian Tommy. Only a reading of the book will give one a realising idea of what the Canadians did and how they did it, a work which is summarised in paragraphs of the speech of Lt. General Alderson to the Canadian troops under his command after twelve strenuous days of fighting, from April 23rd to May 4th, 1915:—

"Now I feel that I may, without any false pride, think a little of what the Canadian Division has done during the past few days.

"I would first of all tell you that I have never been so proud of anything in my life as I am of my armlet with "Canada" on it. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the part each of you has taken in giving me this feeling of pride.

"I think it is possible some of you do not realise that, if we had retired on the evening of April 22nd—when our Allies fell back before the gas and left our left flank open—the whole of the 27th and 28th Divisions (40,000 men) would probably have been cut off. Certainly they would not have got away a gun of any sort, and probably not more than half the Infantry would have escaped. This is what the Commander in Chief meant when he telegraphed, as he did, that "the Canadians saved the situation." My lads, if ever men had a right to be proud in this world, you have."

If one would learn in detail how Canadians earned the right to be proud, and gave us home Canadians equal right to rejoicing and pride, he must read Sir Max Aitken's "Canadians in Flanders." The thrilling story is thrillingly written and well printed in a volume bound in cloth by Hodder and Stoughton, who have an enlarged and illustrated edition in preparation. Hot cakes would be a drug on the market compared with the sale "Canada in Flanders" should have.

The Schoolmaster Abroad

OTTAWA, March 20.—Captain J. H. Burnham, East Peterborough, confronted the Government, when the Parliament met this afternoon, with a new problem. He asked if the Administration had ever considered the question of education of the soldiers. It was a matter which, he submitted, should engage earnest attention. Considerable numbers of young men who had enlisted, said the military member for Peterborough, were men without education. It was most desirable that every soldier should read and write.

Captain Burnham added that he understood that in the 146th Battalion, stationed at Kingston, there were 76 members who were illiterate.

"That is Ontario for you," put in one of the French-Canadian members.

Hon. A. E. Kemp, Acting Minister of Militia, replied that the question of illiteracy had hitherto not been considered. Captain Burnham's was the Minister added, the first complaint of the kind the Government had received.

40,000 Children Not Properly Fed

School Luncheon Committee Urges Extension of Penny Sales to Pupils.

NEW YORK, March 21.—There are forty thousand school children in New York city suffering from some form of improper nourishment, according to a statement issued yesterday by the Board of Health, containing a report from the School Luncheon Committee of the society for Improving the Condition of the Poor. In a plea for the extension of the existing penny school lunches, Edward F. Brown, executive secretary of the committee, says that their value lies not only in the cheapness and wholesomeness of the food furnished, but that a lesson is taught in the kind of food to be eaten.

"One of the principal benefits of the plan," said Mr. Brown, "is that the children are taught what kind of food to eat. Many housewives are unfamiliar with the fundamental principles of feeding and the functions and use of food."

Bean soup, an egg sandwich and rice pudding or similar dishes are sold for three cents. Any deficit for the year is met by the Department of Social Welfare.

BABY BORN ON STREET.

Nurses Strike, and 210 Doctors Boycott Toledo Hospital.

Toledo, Ohio, March 21.—Miss Margaret Wallace has resigned as superintendent of Toledo Hospital. Hospital trustees will meet Tuesday to act on the resignation. On Jan. 11 40 nurses went on strike because of the harsh treatment they alleged was accorded them by Miss Wallace. The organized physicians of Toledo rallied to the support of the striking nurses, and declared a boycott on the hospital.

Miss Wallace came in for further censure three weeks ago, when the "Snow Baby" was born, in the middle of the street car tracks near Toledo Hospital during a storm, after the mother of the child, Mrs. Frederick Jones, had been refused admittance to the hospital by Miss Wallace, because, it is alleged, she was unable to pay for room in the hospital.

TRANSFER—

No. 196706—Pte. H. Dwyer has been transferred from "B" Co., to "C" from March 21st, 1916.

J. E. R. Munro, Captain, Adjutant 93rd Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.

Following are the After Orders to Battalion Daily Orders, Part 1 and Part 2, by Lieut. Col. T. J. Johnston, officer commanding 93rd, O. S. Battalion, C. E. F. Headquarters, Peterborough, March 21st, 1916.

PROMOTION—

The Commanding Officer has been pleased to make the following provisional promotion:

No. 196139—Lc.-Corp. P. Lavery to be Corporal from March 21st, 1916.

J. E. R. MUNRO, Captain, Adjutant 93rd Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.

Lieut. Wilfrid Stratton of the Canadian Army Service Corps, now stationed in England, has been selected with a draft of five officers, to proceed to France, where they will join the first or second contingent. Capt. W. H. Munro, formerly of the Peterborough Light and Power Company is among the number. Lieut. Reginald Stratton, who holds a commission in the Imperial Army, has been appointed to the 237th Field Company, Royal Engineers. He was successful in his recent examinations.

The following members of the local post office staff have enlisted since the outbreak of the war:

W. E. Gibson, killed in action at Langemarck, France.

T. L. Cuffe, in the trenches, in France.

O. W. Manley, with Battery, in France.

G. S. Carter, at Shorncliffe.

R. Winson, at Bermuda.

W. H. Hall, with 92nd Highlanders in Toronto.

James L. Bath and James S. Harrison, with the 93rd, Peterborough.

Ernest Mesley, a returned soldier, now employed in the Post Office.

Pte. Peter White of the 80th Battalion of Belleville, was home on a visit for a few days. This is the second brother to answer the call to war, as Pte. Harold White is with the 59th Battalion at Brockville, and was home about a week ago to say good-bye to his many friends before leaving for overseas.

The 93rd Battalion has gained a well-known local athlete in the person of Gus Rose, who was one of the star pitchers in the City Baseball League last summer. He will be of great assistance to the 93rd Battalion ball team this summer.

This morning a local citizen with a keen eye for a joke was in conversation with one of the visiting Toronto Sportsmen's Battalion, when he spotted a local militia officer (not in khaki) coming down the street. The local man "stumped" the Toronto soldier to try and enlist the officer. The visitor did not hesitate to undertake the task and after much hemming and hawing by the officer in question, the latter gave the information that his name was Jones and that his address was 101 Auburn Street, Needless to say neither name or address was correct.

SEARCHING FOR MURDERER.

MONTREAL, March 21. — The coroner's jury which considered the death of Private Pasquale Russo, of the 69th Battalion, who died from a wound in the jugular vein after a fight on Saturday afternoon, brought in a verdict of murder. The police are now seaching for a foreigner, believed to be either a Pole or an Italian, alleged to have stabbed Russo.

PLANES GUARD BLACK SEA

Jannus Says Russian Air Defense Checked Turkish Activity.

Anthony Jannus, a representative of the Curtiss Aeroplane Company and himself an aviator, who returned yesterday on the American liner St. Paul, after a long stay in Russia, said that one of the greatest triumphs the aeroplane had achieved during the war was the control of the Black Sea which it had given to Russia.

"It is the first time in history," he said, "that physical control of a large body of water had been maintained by the air. Russia now possesses a magnificent equipment of aeroplanes, both of the scouting and the battle plane type. The Russian Navy has done fine work in the Black Sea, but the great fleet of aeroplanes which Russia has there has made it almost impossible for a Turkish ship to make a few miles along the coast from one Russian town to another. Practically every Turkish ship that attempts to move in the sea in good weather is observed by an aeroplane. If the ship is not destroyed or driven back to its harbour by bombs, the aeroplane within a short time has several Russian warships in pursuit of it."

Mr. Jannus said he was on a Russian ship when the Turkish Black Sea port of San Godac was bombarded and destroyed by bombs dropped from aeroplanes. He said a Turkish submarine had crept up unobserved on a Russian seaplane which was resting on the surface, and launched a torpedo, which grazed one of the planes of the airboat but did not explode. Before the submarine could dive, he said that the airboat rose and destroyed it with bombs.

"Hundreds of thousands of people have been brought to Petrograd by the war industries and hundreds of thousands of others to escape from the privations visited by the war on some of the provinces," he said.

The St. Paul arrived a day late, because no ships were allowed to leave Liverpool on March 4 or 5 because of the discovery of mines near the harbour. The liner was the last ship to be permitted to leave England with Englishmen of military age on board. All who crossed with the St. Paul were forced to show that they had applied at a recruiting office and had been rejected before they could obtain passage.

$70,000,000 U-BOAT ORDER.

Russia Said to Have Made Contract With U. S. Company.

NEW YORK, March 21. — Wall street heard Sunday that the Submarine Boat Corporation has signed a $70,000,000 contract with the Russian Government for the construction of submarines in that country.

An officer of the company, when asked about the report, said that he could not confirm or deny it, as cable advices had not been received verifying the rumour.

If the report is true that a $70,000,000 order has been signed, it is said in the financial district, the boats will be constructed in Russian shipyards under the supervision of officers of the Submarine Boat Corporation and under a patent agreement with the Electric Boat Company.

INCREDIBLE NOW COMMONPLACE IN THIS GREAT WAR

NEVER SAW TURKS

How a Spanish Schoolmaster Found Out Truth at Last.

(By Herbert Corey.)

NEW YORK, March 21. — Not long ago a story of some unusual interest came over the cables from the war. An after dinner speaker in a club that night referred to it with a laugh:

"Of course," said he, "the story is incredible. It was made up by some newspaperman."

The only thing incredible about the story was the folly of the man who would make such a comment. Nothing is incredible in this war. Anything may be true and usually is. Stop and think for a moment. Britain and France and Germany and Austria and Belgium and Italy and Turkey—and so on distressingly—are at war.

Pretty nearly every man of the French and other armies has figured in a story which to office-whitened, table-fattened men would seem incredible. Here are some of them, taken at random from my notes.

"My particular hero in this war is a young Australian," said Frederick Roy Martin.

Mr. Martin is the war editor of the Associated Press. He has been stationed in London since the beginning. His friends know him as a man of warm human sympathies, but in no case a victim of maverick emotion. He is a profound believer in the value of facts. The Australian is nineteen years old, six feet two inches tall, intelligent and manly. He was a member of the famous Dardanelles force. Four or five of the boats carrying landing forces were sunk before it was his turn to attempt to reach the shrapnel-lashed beach. One moment his boat was sweeping along under the urge of the oars. The Australian dare devils were laughing and cheering while the reddened sea about them swam with the bodies of their comrades.

"There came a flash," said the Australian. "When I awakened I was in the hospital."

Every other man in that boat was dead. The Australain was blinded and he had never seen an enemy. Both his arms and both his legs were gone. Now comes the incredible part. To this point the narrative has been almost a commonplace.

"He is cheerful," said Martin. "Genuinely cheerful. He is making brave plans for his future. When I last saw him he was engaged in the task of breaking to his family the news of his mutilation, a little at a time.

"'When they know I have neither arms nor legs,' said he, 'I will tell them I am blind. Not until then. They could not stand it.'"

The German Spy.

There is the story of the German spy which Dr. Howard Gilchreest tells. Gilchrest is a Texas physician who for a time was connected with the Red Cross service with the British army. One is accustomed to think of the individual German as blinded to every other consideration by an obstinate faithfulness. This man was captured in Flanders in the disguise of a peasant. The drumhead court-martial ordered him shot. The English are decent to their foes. They asked him if he had a last request to make.

"An hour," said he, "and plenty of good cigarette. I've been without."

So that for an hour he smoked one cigarette after another and chatted pleasantly with the men who were soon to blindfold him and shoot him against a sunny wall. Some one asked him if he hated England.

"Not at all," said he. "I am very fond of England. This was a cold business proposition with me. If I had succeeded in what I tried I would have been on velvet all the rest of my life. It was a game worth playing."

By and by his hour was up. He threw away his last cigarette, walked to the wall, and helped adjust the handkerchief over his eyes. He spoke to the officer who knotted it.

"I might as well be conventional," said he, calmly, "'Hoch der Kaiser.'"

M. Frank Febvre, once the doyen of the Comedie Francais, received a letter from a pal in the other day. The soldier had once been an actor and often wrote to his old friend. He told of an incident at the front which by every rule of civilion life is incredible. At his sector of the front the opposing trenches were so near each other that the fighters could hear each other's voices.

"The brother of my captain, M. de V——," wrote the poilu, "had been a scandal in Paris. Years ago he disappeared and while we knew that he had joined the German army we had no other information. In yesterday's fighting I saw him in the German trenches. I heard his voice. I could not be mistaken."

That night a French mine was exploded. When the poilus rushed forward the writer devoted himself to a search. He gave a vivid description of his hunt through the charnel pit in the moonlight which need not be repeated. Finally he found the man he sought. He was dying.

"I dragged him into our trenches," he wrote to Febvre, "and as I was bending over him Capt. de V——, approached me.

"'This is singular——' he began to say.

"The dying man opened his eyes, and the brothers recognized each other. While the battle raged the French brother sat upon a mound, his chin in his hand. At last the agony was over. My captain took off his capote and stretched it upon the body of his brother.

"'At least,' said he, 'let him rest under the uniform of France.'"

Story of the Schoolmaster.

Finally is the story of the schoolmaster of Souchez. He was a quiet, slow-thinking, unemotional man. He played his part well, but he was not satisfied.

"It is nothing to me that my town should be ruled by Frenchman or German," said he. "I disapprove of our ardent nationalism. If I must fight, it should be for a better cause."

Those sentiments won no approval in the trenches, and he learned to be silent. At Souchez he took part in a charge that was repulsed. On the retreat he was wounded and fell in a hole excavated by a shell. He was in plain view from the two trenches. Perhaps conviction had been coming to him slowly. Perhaps his approaching dissolution brought illumination. But as he lay in the crater, helpless from his hurt, he suddenly half raised his body.

"Now I see," he shouted to his friends in the trench near by. "I know now why we are fighting. Vive la liberte—"

And so he laid there throughout the day. Now and then a bullet from the German lines struck his body. From time to time his voice could be heard, constantly growing fainter:

"Vive la liberte!"

Until at last the maddened Frenchmen swept out of their pits and took the German line. They would have carried him to the rear, but he would not permit them. "You are not fighting for me," he whispered. "You are fighting for liberty. Go on."

The very air of France is vibrant with stories that are incredible. They tell of death met happily and suffering bravely borne. The warmest smiles of French women are given to their husbands and lovers leaving for the front. Old men who have been ruined by the war work as servants in hospitals because that is all they can do for their country. Sacrifice has ceased to be sacrifice. Devotion is a commonplace. Things happen on every side every day that are incredible in a country which has been so long a peace that it has forgotten what war is. But they are true.

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

Take Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

FIND ANCIENT GALLERY.

Paris to Have Reproduction of Famous Gallo-Roman Circus.

PARIS, March 21.—In excavating for the opening up of the ancient arena of Lutece in the Rue Monge, on the left bank of the Seine, a deep gallery running parallel to the Seine and paved with stone has been discovered, and the engineers in charge are now occupied in exploring it. The work on these excavations is going on actively at this part. When they are finished Paris will possess an open air theatre capable of accommodating more than 10,000 spectators, and provided with a stage 100 yards long, to which an open square will add a marvellous decoration. It will be the reproduction of the Gallo-Roman circus at the very place where the inhabitants of ancient Lutece formerly witnessed the combats of gladiators and chariot races.

Prohibition Bill Down on Tuesday

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Ont., March 21.—Introduction of the Prohibition Bill it now seems certain, has been postponed until next week. The concensus of opinion among private members sees Tuesday as the most likely day.

The House will not sit on Thursday, an excursion having been arranged by Hon. James Duff, the Minister of Agriculture, to take the members to inspect Guelph's Agricultural College and Reformatory.

EMDEN PAST SALVING.

Famous German Raider Put Out of Action is Breaking Up.

LONDON, March 21.—All hope has been abandoned of salving the German cruiser Emden, which was run ashore and destroyed at Cocos Island by the Australian cruiser Sydney in November, 1914. About a year ago, during comparatively calm weather, a British warship paid two visits to the wreck of the Emden on North Keeling Island, and removed some guns and other gear.

A statement by the Australian Minister of the Navy, the Hon. J. A. Jensen, relates that H.M.A.S. Protector visited the scene of the action in November last. It was found that the stern half of the Emden had completely disappeared, and very heavy surf was still breaking over what remained of the vessel. The Protector waited a week at the island in hope of getting a chance to board the Emden, but this was never for an instant possible. Information was obtained from local residents that since the British warship's second visit no one had been near the wreck.

The funeral has taken place at Milton, Regis, England, of Mr. William Berry. Mr. Berry, who was ninety-five, was the oldest Britisher who had fought in the American War, and had been in receipt of a pension for about fifty years.

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE" AT THE GRAND TO-NIGHT

Barrett Greenwood and Some of the Chorus in the Big Musical Comedy Seen Here To-night

"When Dreams Come True," the first musical comedy written by Philip Bartholomae, author of "Little Miss Brown," and "Over Night," will be produced at "The Grand" to-night.

Silvio Hein, who composed the music, will be remembered as the composer of the scores of Marie Cahill's most pronounced successes and of other well-known works.

The three acts of "When Dreams Come True," are entirely different in outline, the first carrying some dramatic touches, as well as a number of comic situations; the second being farcical, and the third having musical and dancing features.

The play contains nearly a score of dancing numbers showing the newest inventions of the Castles as well as other famous dancers, in addition to the latest variations of the Brezilliene, Fox Trot, Tango and the other popular dances.

The song hits are many and include among others "When Dreams Come True," "Who's the Little Girl?" "Come Along to the Movies," "You, Dear, You', and "De ar World."

The acting company is one of the largest ever seen in a musical comedy, the principal parts requiring the services of more than twenty people, in addition to the chorus. The chorus numbers twenty-four exceptionally handsome and shapely young girls, who act as a background for the principals and wear some of the most stunning gowns ever shown on the musical comedy stage. A feature of the performance is in the youth of the majority of the company, nearly all of the people are still on the sunny side of thirty, and consequently, there is a youthful dash to the performances of "When Dreams Come True" that is a delight to the spectator. The Company arrived at 11:37 to-day from Hamilton.

Ald. McIntyre Peeved At the Whole Council

Ald. McIntyre tried to put one over on the Council last night when he urged that the estimate for snow removal be increased from $2,000 to $3,500. It shows to what measures the chairman are forced to get a few extra dollars to "come and go on."

"I want you to thoroughly understand," said the Chairman of the Board of Works, when the Council couldn't hear his snow argument "that if anything happens and damage claims come in, you can't blame me. I wanted to have a few extra dollars this summer to keep the streets in good condition; I wanted to have my nts in the roads and I needed a little extra to make sure of it."

The Council laughed all around the Board and Ald. Stratton remarked "We've got our eye on you."

And some people say that aldermen never do anything, when here was Ald. McIntyre forced to a legitimate subterfuge to provide better roadways in the city.

Fashionable coiffure is largely a matter of individual taste. The hair may be worn high or low, may be in wide or narrow effect.

Says the Germans Waut No Break

Portuguese Diplomatist Declares Their Sole Desire Is to Retain American Friendship

LISBON, Sunday, via Paris, March 21.—Dr. Sidonio Paes, Portuguese, Minister to Germany since the establishment of the republic, who left Berlin following the break between Germany and Portugal, arrived in Lisbon last night.

In an interview Dr. Paes alluded to the controversy between Germany and America over the submarine issue and declared he was convinced that the German government desired at all costs to avoid a break with the United States.

Dr. Paes said the financial situation in Germany was very bad and he predicted that the war would not last beyond 1917. A lack of men had not yet made itself felt, he added.

William Sloan ex-M.P. for Comox-Atlin is to be the Liberal candidate for Nanaimo at the coming provincial elections in British Columbia, and should the Liberals get into power will be Minister of Mines.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was very much interested in reading Mr J. H. Burnham's letter in your issue of yesterday, especially that portion relating to patronage. The question of Woman's Franchise does not concern me very much, although I certainly think that there are many women who could and would undoubtedly do the business of the country far better than it has been done in many instances by the male element. But I should like with your permission to answer Mr. Burnham's query on patronage. Mr. Burnham says "that of three applicants all may be technically and equally qualified and yet two of the three physically and morally unfit." "Are they to be placed on a par?" Emphatically No, in the first place any person physically and morally unfit is not equally qualified for a position with one who is physically and morally as well as technically qualified and in the second place it would not be business to give the position to any but the best qualified in all three tests.

On the other hand I cannot agree with Mr. Burnham that "to select and recommend is patronage" the selection of the best qualified applicant to a position is good business and is what the country wants and what the electors, I believe will soon demand. Just the same the placing an order for the best goods at the best price, is not patronage but business and if the government of whatever color run the business of the country on this basis there would be no kick. Patronage the dictionary tells us, is the bestowal of privileges and that is just where the shoe pinches, party followers have been given the privilege of taking the salary attached to offices they were totally unfit to fill, their only qualification being they had been strong for the party; men have been given orders for goods, contracts have been allotted for public works, prices have been given out of all proportion to the quality of the goods or value of the work done and all as reward or privilege for work rendered to the party, this is what has made possible such graft as has been exposed in the investigations into such affairs as Garland's, Foster's, Falkis's, The Trent Canal scandal, and many others. Both parties are guilty and both must find the system of handicap, how much longer the electors will consent to be bled for the benefit of a few, I do not know, but this is the patronage that we want cut out. I could not understand the statement of the Ontario Government the other day that the difficulties in the way of reform in this respect were insurmountable, and want to say that I believe the people will very soon demand with no uncertain voice a solution of this question. The tax morality displayed in business relations in the high places of the country is lowering the standard right down. We have a right to expect that our legislators both Provincial and Federal should not only make righteous laws, but give the people the benefit of an example of righteousness and a high moral tone in business life. Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain,

Yours faithfully,
GEORGE LEADER

Highest Offer For Market Tells From D. G. Maloney, $650

Three tenders were received for the position of Market Clerk by the Property Committee at a meeting last night. They were opened by Ald. Saunders, the chairman, showing the following offers:

D. G. Maloney	$650.00
Walter Fisher	612.00
J. Girven	630.00

The committee recommended the acceptance of the tender submitted by Mr. Maloney, a former Reeve of Douro, now residing in Ashburnham.

If you dip the knife in water before trying to slice hard boiled eggs for salads you will have smooth slices, which will not break into pieces and spoil the appearance of the salad.

Ald. Stratton—"Ald. Edgar told us to stick to our guns, boys, and we'll carry this through."

Ald. Dobbin—"It's all right, Edgar."

Ald. Edgar—"It's not often I go back, but I am quite prepared to do it this time."

Ald. Duncan—"I'm going to stay with Ald. Evans' motion."

Ald. Stratton pointed out that the original motion provided for a total cut of $3,400.00, Ald. McIntyre's proposal reduced this sum to $1,200.00.

Ald. McIntyre said he would vote with Ald. Edgar if his own motion did not carry. He would change his mind, too.

Ald. Stratton—"Every man has a chance to change his mind, like his shirt."

Ald. Duncan—"Only not so often."

The Voting.

When the vote was called Ald. Edgar and Ald. Dobbin were alone in support of their amendment to the amendment.

Mayor Duffus voted with Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Dobbin, on the amendment.

Ald. Evans' motion carried with seven members of the Council supporting it.

A suggestion to make the Evans' motion unanimous received scant attention, and there the matter stands until the Council holds its next meeting.

Military Wedding At Brockville

Pte. Percy Bullied a Peterborough Member of the 59th Battalion, Married on Saturday

A very pretty and quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Mabee, 14 Tunnel avenue, by the Rev. E. Allen, pastor First Baptist Church, Brockville, on Saturday, March 18th, at 12:30 p.m., when their only daughter, Lena Lois, became the bride of Pte. Percy Leon Bullied, of the 59th, second son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Bullied, of Peterborough.

The bride, who was very charmingly attired in a travelling suit of dark brown, with hat of a corresponding shade, was given away by her father, and was attended by Mrs. M. Dunkley, while Lance-Corp. Dunkley supported the groom.

Pte. Percy Bullied, whose home is in Peterborough, is attached to the 59th Battalion, now quartered in Brockville.

After dejeuner was served the happy couple left on the afternoon train for points east, followed by the hearty good wishes of a host of friends.

G. T. R. Benefit Society Gives Benefit

The Canadian-American Red Cross Society has received a contribution to its fund of $25, generously sent in by the members of the local Grand Trunk Employees Benefit Society. The ladies, in the interests of the cause they are working hard to help, wish to most cordially thank the railway men for their generous, timely and very acceptable gift.

ORANGE DAY SALES

It is stated on good authority that there were more oranges sold last Saturday, "Orange Day," than on any one previous day in Peterborough before. Three dealers are known to have sold twenty boxes each and over, viz:—G. A. Pringle, J. E. Lillico, and Joe Longo. Others are known to have sold as many as ten, seven and five boxes each. All these dealers advertised their fruit in The Examiner Orange Page on Friday last.

Protection of Children

Many people do not know much about the Children's Protection Act of Ontario, and as a result children are allowed to grow up in vice and ignorance, who might with timely intervention have been saved to a happy and useful career.

Under this Act a Children's Aid Society is organized in each city and county, while our aim is to cover the entire province with a network of friends who will assist in this great work.

Teachers, clergy, officials, etc., can give valuable aid, and information will be furnished on application. Homeless, neglected or delinquent children should be promptly reported so that the necessary improvement can be brought about.

This movement stands for social uplift, sanitary houses for the poor, playgrounds, vocational training, homes for the homeless, restoration and encouragement for the offender, friendly co-operation between rich and poor, the abolition of poverty and human wretchedness.

Write for literature to J. J. Kelso, Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent Children of Ontario, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario.

Another Attempt to Give 57th Band a Grant Defeated

An effort to give the 57th Band $450 for the present year fell by the Council's wayside last night, and the former proposal to grant $250 to pay for band music whenever required by the city was sustained.

Ald Galbraith moved seconded by Ald. McIntyre that the sum of $87.50 be provided for the 57th band for the entire year of 1916. This, it was stated, would be sufficient for the absolute necessities of the organization and would guarantee the summer concerts as usual and besides the city would have a band which it could call upon for public celebrations and occasions of that kind. Mayor Duffus and Ald. Langford voted for a motion.

Ald. Evans moved an amendment seconded by Ald Edgar that the grant for band music remain at $250. This carried.

Ald. McIntyre felt that the 57th was actually the citizens band and should be supported now when it most needed assistance.

Ald. Stratton took the position that the Salvation Army Band had also to be considered, and if one organization was assisted the other should not be overlooked.

Ald. Weir—"Cut out both this year."

Ald. Duncan—"I can't imagine how the 57th will turn out every time we would want them and do it for nothing. It would be unreasonable to expect the men to miss their work.

ADOPTS THE BICYCLE

The most significant triumph of the bicycle achieved this season, is its adoption by the most prominent society ladies at Palm Beach, Fla., this winter.

Ladies whose names and social achievements lead the society columns in their home towns and whose doings are chronicled with due eclat in society reports from the winter colony in exclusive Palm Beach were the leaders in taking up the bicycle as their favorite means of recreation along the Beach, and on all the palm-bordered highways on the Florida Coast.

Travellers arriving in Palm Beach were astounded at the number of fair cyclists encountered in and around this, the most fashionable winter resort of America. All the hotels, even the most high-priced and exclusive, were surrounded with bicycle racks crowded with machines, especially at lunch and dinner hours. And on every highway were encountered parties of happy, well-dressed ladies, married and single, pedaling and chatting gayly.

EIGHT MEN NEEDED TO POLICE FACTORIES

Messrs. E. G. Patterson, Jas. Kendry, Geo. Gladman, V. Richardson, J. J. Turner, Sr., and E. R. Wilson, representing local manufacturing establishments, met the Police Commission yesterday afternoon regarding the policing of the properties the soldiers have been guarding all winter.

Chief Thompson suggested that eight men would be required for the work. It was left with the Chief to make the best arrangements possible with the manufacturers, and to report at a subsequent meeting. It is understood that the manufacturers are prepared to provide for the protection, but some feel that the city is liable for the cost. This is one of the considerations to be discussed.

Judgment For Mr. Martin Hoover In Exceptional Case

His Honour Judge Huycke has given judgment in an interesting case in the Surrogate Court.

Many years ago Mr. Aaron Hoover, who was well known here as an organist and organ tuner, began to be afflicted with mental troubles. Mr. Martin Hoover, who was at that time a landscape gardener in Buffalo, came to Peterborough and made his home with his brother in order that he could take care of him during the periods that he was non compos mentis. Since then Mr. Martin Hoover has carried on business here as a picture framer and is a well known and respectable citizen.

Mr. Aaron Hoover's condition became gradually worse and from time to time he spent a few months at the hospital at Mimico. Since March 1914, he has been there constantly. During all this time Mr. Martin Hoover was the pillar of the Hoover home. The three people always lived in the closest harmony and Mrs. Hoover absolutely depended on Mr. Martin Hoover as the guardian of her husband and her closest friend.

On the 20th of April, 1915, Mrs. Hoover died, devising to her husband the house where she lived on McDonnel street, and making him executor of her will. Being non compos mentis Mr. Aaron Hoover could not act as executor and it was suggested by Mr. Martin Hoover who was a creditor of the estate for money advanced that a trust company be appointed to administer the estate; his idea was to keep the home intact so that if his brother became well again he would have the home to return, and he has paid for his brother's maintenance all along at the hospital. At this stage, however, the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities stepped in and assumed to have the right to absolute control of the property. The personal effects were sold by auction and an attempt was made at first to put Mr. Martin Hoover out of the house and sell it also. No consideration was given to him at all, and application was made to the Surrogate Court, here to give the administration of the estate to the Inspector.

Opposition was made to this application and the Inspector moved before Mr. Justice Kelly to have the matters transferred to Toronto. This was refused with costs against the Inspector who refuses to pay them. Then the case came before His Honour Judge Huycke who after reserving judgment for a week, gave judgment in favour of Mr. Martin Hoover and appointed the Trusts and Guarantee to administer the property.

Mr. Joseph Wearing acted for Mr Martin Hoover and Mr. Kenneth Wright of Toronto, with Mr. O. A. Langley as local agent, acted for the Inspector.

FIRE ON HIGH STREET

This morning about eight o'clock the Fire Department received an urgent call for assistance from Robert Dale, whose residence was threatened with destruction. Although located outside the city limits the chief and his men responded with the chemicals and by forming a bucket brigade and supplying the wells and cisterns of the neighbourhood succeeded in checking the fire before it had made much head way. The damage will amount to four or five hundred dollars.

The blaze started while Mr. Dale was thawing out the cistern pump and soon got beyond his control.

City Engineer's and Treasurer's Office Changes

Mr. F. Adams Gets Three Months Holidays on Account of Illness—Retirements Proposed Changes affecting City Treasurer Frank Adams, Assistant City Engineer T.A.S. Hay and Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine of the Engineer's office, recommended by the Finance committee, were adopted by the Whole Council in committee last night.

Mr. Adams, according to the report, gets three months holidays without pay dating from April 1st, and if at the end of that period he is physically capable of resuming his duties the position will be open for him. In the meantime the treasurer's office will be conducted by Miss Jessie Swinton and Miss Helen Burgess.

It was also recommended that City Engineer Parsons be given one assistant engineer and a stenographer replacing Mr. Hay and Mr. Quartermaine, the change to become effective on May 1st.

Ald. Stratton reported that he and Ald. Weir, on the instructions of the Finance committee, had interviewed Mr. Adams who had hardly been able to fulfill the duties of city treasurer for more than a year. He candidly admitted he had not felt able to perform the regular work, but hoped that in a few months he would be able to resume his position. Ald. Stratton stated that Mr. Adams had been city treasurer and had given faithful service and every satisfaction to the city. Miss Swinton and Miss Burgess had for some months been bearing the burden of the work in the treasurer's office and had consented to continue it for three months. Mr. Adams agreed that if he resumed his office he would get along with one assistant.

Ald. Stratton moved, seconded by Ald. Weir, the adoption of the report which was carried.

Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Board of Works, presented the report regarding the Engineer's office. He and Mayor Duffus had been appointed to take this matter up with Mr. Parsons. After doing so they concluded that the efficient and economical management of the office demanded a change. This they recommended to take effect on May 1st when Mr. Parsons, it is proposed, will secure a young assistant engineer and a stenographer. The report was adopted on motion of Ald. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Galbraith.

Plumbing Inspector Peter Thompson will be asked to meet Ald. Saunders' Property committee in the immediate future in regard to the affairs of his office. This was decided on a motion by Ald. Dobbin, seconded by Ald. McIntyre.

IT IS GOING TO BE HARDER TO BE SWEET

Sugar May Reach Ten Cents a Pound—It is Eight Now

In our nursery days we read of the cow jumping over the moon. Now it is sugar that is journeying thitherward.

A couple of years ago we could get all we wanted for $4.50 a hundred; to-day it is being quoted at $8.00, and the end is not yet.

The easiest way to explain the situation is to blame it on the war—and the Germans. To a large degree that is true. According to a local south-end dealer, who, for years, has made a special study of sugar and its vagaries, and who has several thousand dollars tied up in that most useful household commodity, Germany, Austria, France and Belgium, before the war, produced half the sugar consumed in the world. War conditions have practically reduced that to nil, with the result that we are now depending on the sugar planters of Cuba who are in control of the situation. They have a great chance to get big prices for their product and being human, they are determined to get the highest price they can.

Even if peace should be declared soon, there is no immediate relief in sight, for it would take a year or two for conditions to become normal.

If you need sugar—and what household does not?—a word to the wise is sufficient.

The "Adanac" Concert

The famous "Adanac" Quartette, which has been engaged by St. Paul's choir for their annual concert on Tuesday evening, 28th March, has forwarded a splendid programme for the occasion, and a rare musical treat is in store for all who attend.

When here last year, though only recently organized, the blend of these four splendid voices was well nigh perfect, but a year's work together has put the finishing touch on, and it is a perfect delight to listen to the artistic and delightful rendering of their various items. One of the quartettes to be sung next Tuesday evening is Toste's "Good-bye", which proves a rarely beautiful number.

Among the solos also to be contributed by all the members of the quartette is the weird, dramatic, and soul stirring song "The Pipes of Gordon's Men", which will be sung by Mr. George Dixon.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hawkeswood, 39 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using two boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

There are certain things women can do on the lighter and more fancy side of life on the land; but for a life on the land it must be such as will earn a living during the 12 months of the year, and this is restrictive.

FIRE IN THE HOTEL ST. LAWRENCE, PORT HOPE, YESTERDAY

Considerable Damage Done An Well Known Hostelry—Owned by Mr. W. H. Bradburn of this City

PORT HOPE, March 21.— About five o'clock yesterday morning fire was discovered in the Hotel St. Lawrence, which is owned by Mr. W. H. Bradburn, of Peterborough, and it was only through the heroic and persistent work of the firemen that a serious conflagration was averted. The fire, which is of unknown origin, started in the cigar stock room, situated under the stairway on the second floor. The first intimation was the smell of smoke and when the proprietor, Mr. Telfer, left his room to investigate, he found the hall a dense mass of smoke. With difficulty he made his way from one room to the other giving the alarm to the guests, boarders and help. At one place in the hall he had to jump through the flames and when his mission was completed, he was almost exhausted.

The woodwork in three of the bedrooms and the stairways on the second and third floors was badly burned and the halls, office and dining room were completely soaked with water. The smoke, too, did much damage all through the house. In addition to the loss in furnishings, Mr. Telfer will suffer greatly through the suspension of business. He has insurance of $3,000 in the George and Economical Companies.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. Today — over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Interfered With The Soldiers

In this morning's police court, Charles Perry, proprietor of the American House, Hunter street, was charged with a breach of the license act. After considerable evidence had been heard the case was dismissed. Perry was represented by Mr. G. N. Gordon, while Crown Attorney Hatton appeared for the prosecution.

Wanted to Enlist.

Bruce Gunn was the name of a witness summoned to give evidence against Herbert York, who was charged with being drunk and disorderly and with interfering with soldiers while in the execution of their duty.

"A son of a Gunn," commented Magistrate Dumble as the witness stepped into the box.

"I hope so," said Crown Attorney Hatton.

"A good name for a soldier," remarked Mr. Gordon.

Gunn said that York advised him to keep away from the recruiting officers and used some vile epithets to-ward them. He was arrested.

York pleaded not guilty. He said he came all the way from Parry Sound to enlist in the 93rd Battalion and would don the khaki if given a chance. He was fined two dollars and costs.

Thomas Halpin "guessed" he had a "few glasses." He paid a fine of two dollars.

BERLIN, March 21.—The capture of French positions ten miles northwest of Verdun, northwest of Avocourt, was announced by the War Office this afternoon. The War Office also announced the repulse of strong Russian attacks against Von Hindenburg's front south of Riga. French counter-attacks in the region of Avocourt were repulsed.

COPENHAGEN, March 21.—Russian troops are concentrating in large force in Volhynian district, probably for an attack on the Kovel-Czartorysk line.

Are Making Extensive Preparations Along the Roumanian Frontier

MILA, March 21.—A Bucharest despatch says that Bulgarians are making extensive military preparations along the Roumanian frontier. A number of boats laden with mines have arrived at Giurgevo, and it is believed that the Bulgarians intend to scatter mines broadcast in the Danube. The Bulgarian newspapers are becoming daily more threatening in tone toward Roumania.

OBITUARY

AMELIA SEMMONS.

Amelia Semmons, relict of the late Richard Hudson, passed peacefully away at 1.30 this morning, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, 116 Hunter Street, after an illness of about nine weeks. She was sixty-six years of age and was born in Camborn, Cornwall, England, but lived in Peterborough the greater part of her life.

She is survived by two sons, Edmund of Florida, Frederick of Belleville, and six daughters, Mrs. J. W Tranter, Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, Mrs. N. Jones, all of Peterborough, Mrs. F. D. Pillsworth of Cobourg, Mrs. C. E. Wood of Nelson, B.C., and Mrs. E. Ruth of Toronto.

The funeral will be held on Thursday at 3.00 p.m. from the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, at 116 Hunter Street.

MRS. ALICE E. JAMES.

Mrs. Alice Elizabeth James died last night, at her residence, 173 Edinburgh Street, after an illness extending over several months, in her 75th year.

The late Mrs. James, whose maiden name was James, was the widow of the late Michael Bell, before marrying Mr. Edward James.

Her childhood was spent in Newfoundland and later in Quebec. For a number of years she lived in New York, where she was a professional nurse. Three years and a half ago she came to Peterborough from Hespeler, where she had resided for twenty-seven years, having gone there from Peterborough the time the Brodie Woolen Mills were moved to that place.

Mrs. James was a woman who took a very prominent part in temperance, having lectured several times on the public platform in Toronto. She was also identified with the fraternal order of Chosen Friends having seen the Hespeler Circle grow from a membership of eight to be one of the largest in the Dominion, and its success is largely due to her organizing ability.

Her remains will leave Peterborough, Wednesday morning, via C. P. R., for Hespeler, where a public service will be held in the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Fogus held a brief service at the house last night.

Starting the Spring Selling of Home Furnishings With a Rush. Come To-morrow

MAKE SELECTIONS NOW AND HAVE THEM LAID ASIDE—If not prepared to complete your purchase just now, come and make your selections, for a small deposit will hold your order till required, and at the same time you make the big saving over regular values.

The Values Offered

You will appreciate the economy in purchasing your immediate and near future requirements of carpets, rugs, linoleums, shades, etc., from the stocks which are being shown for this sale, for if compared with to-day's costs would show savings of from 20 to 40 per cent., and in many cases could not be had at all, as many "Old Country" firms have found it utterly impossible to fill their contracts. This means when these lines are sold, an almost prohibitive price will have to be asked for re-orders. Come To-morrow and following days.

Upholstering

Visit the Tapestry Section and see the splendid assortment of French, English, and Canadian Coverings that are here in spite of the great shortage of such goods. Make a selection, and our man in charge of this work will call and give you a price on the completed work before the pieces are taken away.

Petition to the Council Disapproved Salary Cuts

Presented Last Night by Mr. G. R. Langley With One Hundred Signatures—Very Few Were Found to be in Favor of the Council's Proposed Action.

Mr. Gerald R. Langley and Mr. G. A. Salkeld, both C.S.E. employees, presented a petition to the Council last night opposing the reduction of the salaries of civic employees. One hundred citizens had been canvassed, one-third of them business men, another third mechanical and technical workers and the remaining third labourers. Only six would not express themselves definitely against the Council's scheme. All were in favour of the general idea of tax rate reduction but felt that the Council had been precipitate in selecting civic employees as a sacrifice. It seemed unfair that some would be affected while others escaped. It was felt that the majority of them were earning their salaries and a reduction meant that the city intended to pay the employees less than they were earning. Mr. Langley stated that the petition was presented because it was felt that the Council had not been able to otherwise obtain first hand information of how the workers of the city viewed the proposed reductions.

The petition follows:

We the undersigned heartily disapprove of the proposed scheme of making a 10 per cent. reduction in the salaries of the civic employees: J. A. Johnson, W. B. Crawford, J. G. M. Wilson, F. D. Armstrong, Paul Trebilcock, F. W. Trebilcock, W. G. Kester, F. Hanley, G. Evans, S. Rands, E. Maybee, S. D. Hall, F. C. Weber, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, J. H. Counsel, H. Dearle, G. F. Cairns, Fred L. COUNCIL NOTES

With a bill of $202.40 for the Board of Education investigation the Council had to increase the appropriation for Law and Legislation from $200 to $400.

Street oiling and watering cost $4,696.88 last year, and the Council has decided that $5,000 will be sufficient appropriation for this year.

The Property Committee, instructed the City Clerk to inform the Board of Education that they may have the use of the Council Chamber but no vault accommodation can be spared.

The Council is wondering whether the Speakers' Patriotic League will need the $200 granted them if recruiting meetings are to be discontinued.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

PETERBOROUGH SOLDIERS WIN AN EXCITING GAME FROM SPORTSMEN

Locals Had a 5-0 Lead in the Last Period But 180th Cut Loose and Tied It Up in a Sensational Spurt, the 93rd Just Winning Out

THRILLS WERE PLENTY

The biggest crowd of the season saw the 93rd Battalion team beat the 180th Toronto Sportsmen's seven by 6 goals to 5 at Brock street rink last night. It was an exicting game with most of the thrills concentrated in the last period. Throughout the first two sessions the 93rd had a big margin on their soldier rivals from Toronto. They had it 1-0 at the end of the first twenty minutes and 4-0 at the close of the second. When they opened the third stanza by once more beating Ferguson, a victory by five or six goals looked certain.

Then like a flash the game changed. Noble, Applegath and McLaren, who had shown very little of senior calibre in the first two periods, suddenly came to life and for the next seven or eight minutes they had the 93rd completely on the run. The rushes started when Lieut. Applegath, the right wing of the champion Riversides, grabbed a pass, jig-sawed up the boards and lobbed an easy one past Widdifield. The goal acted like a spur on the Sportsmen, for from the face-off Noble nailed the rubber, and dancing through the 93rd forwards, took Widdifield's measure cleanly with a shot from outside the defence. The 93rd goal minder, and in fact the whole team, proceeded to have a temporary balloon ascension and the visitors were all over them for a while. Applegath broke away again, and although closely checked by the local defence, took a pot shot from outside and found the nets again. That left it 5 to 3, with Toronto soldiers coming like wild horses, and Windsor did not make the situation any better when he took a crack at Lieut. McLaren and drew a five minute penalty. Soon after McLaren took a pass from Noble, and going up the centre, slammed a beauty past Widdifield. The 180th came right back, and McLaren and Applegath united for the prettiest two man combination of the night, McLaren taking a beautiful pass from Applegath at the net mouth and tying the score. After scoring the goal, the big Toronto centre man took a spill and was hurt and the delay that followed saved the situation for the 93rd, who took advantage of the opportunity to pull themselves together.

McLaren came back after four or five minutes' wait, but was unable to continue and was replaced by Lieut. Molyneaux. When play was resumed the 93rd had come down to earth and they had the edge for the balance of the game, Blewett putting them in front when he slammed one past Ferguson from a scrimmage.

The 93rd had more shots from close in than their rivals in the first period and should have had more than a one goal lead. Ferguson stopped some hot ones at close range and on other occasion the local soldiers lost chances by over anxiety. The only counter was scored by Montgomery on the most spectacular individual play of the night. He broke up a Sportsmen's rush, outskated their forwards, tore through the defence and went right in on top of Ferguson to score.

In the second period Sexton scored the first counter when he circled across the Sportsmen's defence and lined a beauty past Ferguson. Blewett added No. 3 when he scooped a hot one into the nets, and Windsor made it 4 to 0 when he took a pass in close and fooled Ferguson.

In the last period Windsor added the 93rd's fifth goal when he swooped in on a rebound from Sexton's shot and caught the nets with a quick shot. Then came the Sportsmen's sensational rally as already described.

The Sportsmen had a representative team in action with a senior forward line consisting of Lieut. Applegath and Pte. Noble of Riversides, Lieut. McLaren of T. R. and A. A. and Pte. Dow, formerly of Toronto Rowing Club. On the defence was Russell, last year with Riversides intermediates and Jack Murphy, who played for St. Michael's here in that memorable game, when Bricker's goal keeping saved the scalps of the Toronto bunch.

In the early stages Noble and Applegath found the going difficult and didn't show to advantage although the former's back checking was a big help to the defence. McLaren, the big T. R. and A. A. player, was the most effective of the visitors up to the last period, when Noble and Applegath cut loose and showed a bunch of speed. Applegath was in nearly every rush and Noble started many a dangerous raid, while McLaren, in spite of a number of bumps, kept up his good work in the last period. The defence was steady, if not brilliant, and Ferguson, the corpulent goal keeper, got in the way of a lot of shots.

For the 93rd Montgomery did grand work on the defence. The speedy northerner checked hard and intelligently, breaking up many bad looking rushes, and his dashes down the ice cleared the atmosphere. He had to his credit the best play of the night when he galloped through the Sportsmen for a close range goal. Ketchum also checked and rushed well. Sexton at rover, did some spectacular stick-handling and Windsor was good as usual in centre. Evans had a hard man to look after in Applegath, but he gave the Riverside star a great battle and fed his centre man steadily. Blewett played one of his hardest games of the season and wound up a fine performance by coming through with the winning goal. With the exception of the middle of the last period Widdifield in the nets played his usual good game.

WILLARD STANDS FAVOURITE WAGERING ON HEAVY FIGHT

NEW YORK, March 21.—The final week of the training season for Frank Moran and Jess Willard found the challenger two pounds lighter than the weight which he hopes to carry into the ring next Saturday night.

Willard, however, weighs close to 255 pounds, which is somewhat beyond the tonnage he expects to display when he fights his first battle in defence of his title. Willard's programme for the day called for ten rounds of strenuous sparring with his set of partners, in addition to the regular gymnasium work. Moran's afternoon, however, will be taken up in fighting a suit for $1,400 brought against him by Dan McKetrick, a former manager.

WILLARD FAVOURITE.

Realizing that the time for laying their wagers is growing shorter the betting fraternity began risking some of its lucre yesterday. The prevailing odds were 10—8 that Willard will win the decision. Here and there some bets of 2—1 on Willard's chances have been recorded, but most of them are small and made among friends. The odds of 1—3 that Willard will knock out Moran are still being offered, with a fair amount of covering by the Moranites.

The eagerness with which the backers of the challenger snapped up the offers of 6—1 that Moran will not knock out Willard caused a shift and the best offer now is 4½—1 against Moran's chances to slip over a Morpheus wallop.

SALE OF SEATS.

The promoters announced yesterday that they have banked over $85,000 from the sale of tickets and that reservations calling for $25,000 worth of seats are expected to be exercised within the next two days. Tex Ricard is confident now that the "house" will be sold out.

The unreserved seats will be placed on sale Thursday. This will be done upon order of the State Boxing Commission to do away with the confusion that always prevails whenever the cheaper seats are sold on the night of big fights.

There are approximately 12,000 seats in the Garden under the new arrangement. If all these were sold for cash the total intake would be close to $146,000. However, something like 800 of the choicest "squats" have been placed on the complimentary list, which means that if the "house" is sold out completely the receipts will be around $125,000 or $130,000.

Annual Meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club

Mr. J. B. Ferguson Was Elected President—Group Photograph of the "Fathers of the Peterboro' Curling Rink Company" Presented to the Club

Officers were elected and prizes distributed at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club which was held last evening in the Club Rooms on Charlotte Street. Mr. J. H. Ferguson was invested with the presidency, succeeding Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald. The latter retires with the rank of honorary president. Mr. W. D. Campbell becomes vice-president, while the manifold duties incident to the secretary's office will again devolve upon Mr. Felix Brownscombe, who has served in this capacity for the past three or four years. The Executive Committee is composed of Messrs. R. Neill, W. G. Ferguson, R. P. Best and J. W. McDermid. Representatives to the Ontario Curling Association are Messrs. W. G. Ferguson and W. G. Morrow. Mr. G. H. Giroux was re-elected to the position of auditor. The retiring officers were warmly commended for their untiring efforts to promote the welfare of the club. The financial statement showed a balance in favour of the club.

A PRESENTATION.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation to the club of a group photograph of Messrs. W. G. Morrow, T. F. Matthews, R. Neill and T. Brightman. The quartette was designated as "fathers of the Peterborough Curling Rink Company, to whose foresight and financial assistance, the present club is indebted for their handsome quarters." The presentation was made by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner on behalf of fifteen members of the club. Mr. Kenner has been identified with the curling interests of this city for upwards of twenty-two years. He alluded to the activities of the club in the past, and commended the four gentlemen named for the spirit that inspired them to come forward with the financial backing necessary to enable the club to secure new and permanent quarters. The picture will decorate the walls of the club-room.

PRIZES DISTRIBUTED.

The following prizes were distributed:

Inter-Rink Matches—

First prize—A. Webb, D. Eason, M. Comstock and W. M. Lang.

Second prize—J. M. McDermid, P. Fitzgerald, F. C. Cressman and Jas. Edgar.

Third prize—Dr. Wightman, A. Belleghem, G. W. Fitzgerald and W. H. Collier.

Vice-Skips' Bonspiel—

First prize—A. Archibald, R. Hicks, T. Hooper and A. Laidlaw.

Second prize—W. G. Read, W. Thompson, A. J. Grant and C. S. Woods.

Consolation—

Second prize—P. W. Fitzgerald, A. McNabb, John Anderson and J. H. Connal.

C. S. Wood was the sole representative of Skip Read's rink. He received a great ovation as he stepped forward in the uniform of the 93rd Battalion.

ACCUSED SPIES HEAVILY SENTENCED

Amsterdam, March 21.—Severe prison terms have just been imposed upon thirty Frenchmen by a German court martial in Belgium, says the Echo de Belge. Two were sentenced to life at hard labour; three to terms of five, six and nine years, respectively, and twenty-five others to terms ranging from five months to two years. All were accused of espionage.

N. S. NEEDS DOCTORS.

Premier Introduces Bill to Relieve the Situation.

Halifax, N.S., March 21.—Hardship and privation has resulted in some sections of Nova Scotia from the war's demands upon the physicians of the province, according to the Premier Mr. Murray who addressed the Legislature Saturday. He said that in many places adequate medical treatment could not be obtained, that only one physician was practising in all of Victoria County, and that in Guysborough County conditions were nearly as bad.

The Premier introduced a bill to extend the privilege of practising medicine to men who had studied at medical schools for four years, although not registered in the province.

The Feeling in Germany

ROTTERDAM, March 17. —From a neutral traveller who has returned from Berlin, a remarkable account and the present state of feeling in Germany has been received. Discussing the feeling aroused by the Verdun attack, this informant said:

"The public believes this offensive really is an attempt to end the war. German officers say openly that Germany cannot endure much longer if trench warfare continues, but if they can drive the British and French out of the trenches, they can beat them in the open field. 'Then,' they say, 'we may be able to get good terms. If not, and even if we can hold out much longer, we shall have to make very bad terms for us.'

"The tremendous rejoicings over the capture of Fort Douaumont was all because the public thought the taking of that fort was the first step in a great operation which would end the war. If it does not succeed, the disappointment in Germany will be terrific.

"It is impossible to exaggerate the depth of the longing for peace. I even heard officers say, 'We don't care who wins so long as it is over soon.'

"The Kaiser is more popular than he was, partly because of the change in the attitude of the public toward the Crown Prince, formerly the chief favourite, and there is a growing feeling that he was the principal culprit in bringing about the war."

SUGGESTS A TRIBUNAL.

Gen. Dandurand Thinks Commission Could Settle Bilingual Difficulty.

MONTREAL, March 21.—Senator Raoul Dandurand, in giving an address before the People's Forum, Montreal, on compulsory education, made incidental reference to the bilingual troubles at Ottawa, and suggested that if three educationalists were appointed to look into the question, one from Toronto, one from McGill University, and a third prominent man from Ontario, he thought the French people would be satisfied with the verdict which they would render.

Washington Report Says Germany Is Seeking To Make Peace With Her Enemies

Bill Introduced Into the Legislature Yesterday Afternoon to Provide For the Registration of All Males in the Province of Military Age.

TORONTO, March 22.—Premier Hearst said yesterday afternoon that the Prohibition Bill now in the hands of the drafters would be brought down not later than early next week.

TORONTO, March 22.—Dr. Forbes Godfrey, West York, introduced a bill in the Legislature yesterday afternoon to provide for the registration of all males in the Province of military age.

NEW YORK, March 22.—A despatch to the Evening Post from Washington says, Germany is seeking to make peace with her enemies, and has intimated that time is near when the services of the United States as the largest neutral will be needed in peace negotiations.

LONDON, March 22.—Sir Edward Grey said in the Commons that France, Russia and England, had given fresh assurances to Belgium that they would not cease fighting till her soil is free of Germans and she is indemnified for losses caused by the war.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 22.—General Funston yesterday asked the War Department for more troops for a campaign against Villa troops, wanted to guard a hundred-mile communication line.

Legislature Will Probably Bring Prohibition Into Effect Sept. 1st

LONDON, March 22.—Brigadier-General Lowther, formerly military secretary to the Duke of Connaught in Canada, has been appointed Chief of Staff of the British Home Forces.

TORONTO, March 22.—The Mail and Empire, the Government organ, announces that the Legislature will probably bring Prohibition into effect September 1st, as a war measure without a referendum, the vote to be taken after the war. The Bill will have its first reading before the House to-day.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—It is officially denied that any definite request has been made for peace by Germany.

LONDON, March 22.—A cable from Rotterdam says as a result of Allied air raids ZeeBrugge is now a crumbling mass of masonary.

LONDON, March 22.—Salonika despatches report clashes between German and French patrols on the Macedonian frontier. Germans are bringing up heavy reinforcements.

VON TIRPITZ MENTAL WRECK DUE TO HORROR HE ORDERED

PARIS, March 22.—Admiral Von Tirpitz has become a physical and mental wreck by brooding over the deaths of scores of his closest friends in the German navy, according to reports in general circulation in diplomatic and military circles in Lucerne and Berne.

A high Swiss military authority, who credits the report save me some of the information that has reached him recently, just before I left Berne.

"Von Tirpitz" he said, "resembles in sensitiveness the great Japanese military leader, who, overwhelmed by the memory of vast losses of Japanese soldiers he sent against Port Arthur, committed suicide upon the death of the late Japanese Emperor.

'Von Tirpitz has died a thousand deaths since the war began. He has bade farewell to hundreds of splendid young submarine officers who went out to perish miserably under the water. The code among German submarines requires that they shoot themselves when the situation of their U boat becomes hopeless. Von Tirpitz has pictured to himself—for such is the nature of his mentality—too many terrible under-water scenes involving his friends. It is known beyond a doubt that Von Tirpitz felt himself living in a world of horrors. Even the Kaiser himself was unable to calm his self-reproach.

"German military men say the Lusitania incident was the beginning of Von Tirpitz's breakdown. He did not visit the Admiralty office for three days after the liner and its helpless human cargo went down. Each new sinking of passenger boats only increased his depression. Subordinates made it a practice not to report the disappearance of submarines until Von Tirpitz demanded to know the whereabouts of each and such an undersea boat.

"The strain became too much. Both the foreign and German newspapers, the latter boastingly—connected the name of Von Tirpitz with submarine horrors. The thing became too personal. Von Tirpitz was a man of magnificent physique before the war but it simply broke him down."

PLOUGHING WILL START IN THE WEST

Western Farmers Are Getting Ready For the Spring Seeding —Patriotism Among Railway Employees

MONTREAL, March 22.—According to a telegram received in Montreal from Vice President Bury of the Canadian Pacific who is out west, ploughing will start on the south end of the Macleod subdivision and on Crows Nest subdivision by the end of this week and should be general next week. Some ploughing has already been done at Taber, Alberta and it is expected that ploughing will be general on the Lethbridge subdivision about the twenty fourth. There should be a great deal of ploughing done throughout Southern Alberta next week.

A prominent English politician now in Montreal comparing English and Canadian conditions says: "The patriotism of railway employees in Canada during the present war has been a matter of frequent comment in England. Thousands have enlisted for overseas service and substantial sums have been subscribed to the Patriotic Fund, the Red Cross, and other philanthropic institutions. But another form of patriotism which should not be forgotten is the entire absence of strikes among Canadian railway employees during the year 1915. The severe economies which the war forced upon nearly all industries could not fail to raise criticism among those who were the victims of retrenchment and there is no doubt that many of the 43 trade disputes in Canada recorded last year by the Labor Gazette were due to such friction. A railway strike, however, would have seriously embarrassed the transport of men, munitions and food supplies and the manufacturers for the Allies, and this consideration undoubtedly had its weight with your brotherhoods, with the result that the magnificent tribute of men, shells and food rendered by Canada to the motherland has gone to its destination over thousands of miles, without a hitch. The promise made by many of the railway companies that jobs would be kept open for those who enlisted could only have been fulfilled in some cases by men doing some of the work of those who had gone to the front. No more frequent cause of strike is known than the feeling that the employer is exacting more work for the same pay, but in this case the Canadian railway employees seem to have felt that the employers were doing the right thing by those who were fighting for their country and took up a little extra burden without a murmur."

GIRLS INJURED IN FIRE.

Orangeburg, S. C., March 21. — Forty-five girls were injured, several probably fatally, when fire destroyed the dormitory of The State Negro Agricultural College early to-day. The students were forced to jump from upper floors, seven of them suffering broken backs and limbs.

Villa Making For Santa Clara Canyon Following a Defeat By Cananzistas

Men Are Going Blind From the Glare of the Sands Under the Tropic Sun and Horses Are Dropping Dead From Exhaustion

EL PASO, Texas, March 22.—A great silence has fallen over operations of Gen. Pershing and his American forces in pursuit of Francisco Villa.

Cut off from the border when the field wireless failed and Villista bandits cuts telegraph lines from Juarez, nothing has been heard from Pershing early to-day, since he reported his command nearing the bandit forces yesterday. Villa at that time was reported making for Santa Clara Canyon following a severe defeat by Carranzistas.

The terror of the Villa hunt was emphasized to-day when reports were still lacking of two American aviators lost in Chihu-Ahua desert since Sunday. Men are going blind from the glare of the sands under the tropic sun, and horses are dropping dead from exhaustion.

Army men who declare that the expedition now faces most serious problems since it crossed the border, pointed to Villa bands harrassing lengthening American lines of communications as the reason for Funston's request for more troops.

HAS ASKED GERMANY FOR EXPLANATION.

COPENHAGEN, March 22.—Norwegian Government has asked Germany for an explanation of the sinking of the Bark Silius, which carried seven Americans among her crew, and the steamer Langeli.

Liquid Fire Attack By Foe Succeeded

Examiner Special:

LONDON, March 22.—Liquid fire played its most successful role since the beginning of the war in combats in which the Germans pushed forward, ten miles northwest of Verdun, according to despatches received here to-day.

German artillery bombardment in Avincourt woods was terrific, but ineffective, Paris reported. It was jets of flame bursting in long red tongues from billows of smoke that drove the French from several hundred yards of positions in the wood, southeast of Malancourt.

Latest despatches from Paris insist the shifting of the German attack is only a confession of failure.

News of Russian victories on the eastern front convinces Paris critics that the Verdun offensive of the Crown Prince must soon be abandoned.

General Cardona Reaches Paris For Conference

Serbian Crown Prince Due To-Day for Gathering of Allied Representatives to Discuss War Policies.

PARIS, March 22. — Lieutenant-General Count Cadorna, the Italian Commander-in-Chief, is in Paris to take part in the military and political conference of the Entente Allies. Crown Prince Alexander of Serbia is due here to-day with the Serbian Premier, Mr. Pachitch. He will be the guest of the French Government.

Great Britain will be represented by her Premier, Mr Asquith, several other members of the Cabinet and General Sir Douglas Haig, Commander-in-Chief of the British forces on the Continent. Mr. de Broqueville, Premier, will attend the conference for Belgium, and General Gilinsky, aide-de-camp to Emperor Nicholas, and the Russian Ambassador to France, Mr A. P. Iswolsky, for Russia.

Mr. Briand, French Premier, will preside. The conference is looked upon here as of the greatest importance, as it will decide the joint policies to be pursued during the next period of the war.

Berlin Now Buys Her Potatoes and Butter By Cards

BERLIN, (by wireless to Sayville, L.I.) March 22.—The new regulations in regard to distribution of butter and potatoes went into effect to-day and the people of Berlin are now able to purchase these supplies only on presentation of cards.

Each person will be permitted to purchase 125 grams (about five ounces) of butter weekly and ten pounds of potatoes each twelve days.

It is understood this measure is a temporary one, to remain in force until the local shortage is remedied by better methods of distribution.

An official decree was issued to-day to the effect that minors engaged in gainful occupations shall not receive more than 15 marks weekly of their earnings, together with a surplus amounting to not more than one-third of the amount paid in excess of 15 marks. The residue must be deposited in savings banks, not to be withdrawn during the war.

This measure was decided upon owing to the fact that exceptionally high salaries are being paid, and that in some instances the money has been wasted because the fathers or guardians of the minors, being at the front, are unable to exercise proper supervision.

Turks Identify War Prisoners

American Influence Causes Establishment of an Information Bureau.

LONDON, March 22.— Turkey has established a Prisoners of War Information Bureau under the Red Crescent as the result of urgent representations by the American Consulate in London which has received several thousand requests from relatives of British prisoners held by the Turks.

Unable to get action through the usual diplomatic channels the Consulate appealed to the Red Crescent with the result that the names of British prisoners known to the Turks are now supplied, and mail and gifts are delivered to them. No names of prisoners in Mesopotamia are as yet available.

Turkey is the last nation to establish such a bureau, which is provided for by The Hague Convention.

THEY REFUSE TO EAT

At some time in most childrens' lives they fail to relish their meals and refuse to eat even the delicacies prepared to tempt their appetites. They lack ambition, and growth seems impeded, which causes anxiety and worry.

To compel them to eat is a grave mistake, because nutrition is impaired. Healthful exercise in fresh air and sunshine is important, but equally important is a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion three times a day to feed the tissues and furnish food-energy to improve their blood, aid nutrition and sharpen their appetites.

The highly concentrated nutriment found in Scott's Emulsion supplies the very elements children need to build up their strength. They relish Scott's—it is free from drugs. Avoid substitutes.

VILLA DISBANDS TROOPS TO AVOID CAPTURE

WASHINGTON, March 22.—That Francisco Villa has practically disbanded his troops to evade capture by the American punitive forces was the word received last Friday by leading members of the local Mexican colony. They said that all of their information indicated that Villa, realizing that to maintain his forces at full strength inevitably would mean that he would be run down, has ordered his followers to scatter. Villa, with his picked body-guard of a few men, is said in these reports to be well on his way into the heart of the mountains, where there are many hiding places known only to himself.

PAY FOR REST OF HIS LIFE FOR BURNED MAN

MARTINEZ, Cal., March 20.—Andrew Pobar, line man in the employ of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company, who last April was terribly burned by a live wire and who, during his ten months' confinement in the hospital, submitted to five skin-grafting operations, will receive sixty-five per cent. of his daily wage for the remainder of his life, under the terms of the employers' liability.

Pobar, as an apprentice lineman, received $3.25 per day, and his compensation will be $2.11 for every day he lives.

YOU'RE BILIOUS! LET "CASCARETS" LIVEN LIVER AND BOWELS

Get a 10-cent box now.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, bad taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have a bad cold.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills of castor oil?

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children! They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

Former German Army Officers With Gen. Villa

EL PASO, Tex., March 22.— Francisco Villa has with him in the field four former officers of the German army who help him plan his battles, according to information given to the International News Service to-day by an American now in El Paso but who formerly served in the Villaista army. He also stated that Villa was plentifully supplied with ammunition and would be able to hold out in the hills for years unless betrayed.

"The four Germans have been with Villa for many months," said the American. "They attend every conference Villa holds. Through the help of their technical training and Villa's natural ability as a soldier, he will be able to make a stand for years in the hills toward which he is heading.

"I know that since the last trouble broke out Villa's agents have sent enough ammunition to him to fill 20 cars. He has this ammunition and plenty of food hidden away in the hills and is supplied for a long, long time."

Why Suffer With Backache, Kidneys or Bladder Now?

Letter Tells of Long-looked-for Prescription.

Dear Readers—If I can do any good in the world for others, I wish to do it, and I feel that it is my duty to write about the wonderful results I received from the use of "Anuric." I was suffering from kidney and bladder troubles, scalding urine, backache and rheumatism, and feet and ankles swelled so that at times I could not walk without assistance. Had taken several different kinds of kidney remedies but all failed. I sent for a box of Dr. Pierce's newest discovery, "Anuric," which I received by mail in tablet form. I soon got better and am convinced that this popular new medicine is good. I wish to recommend it to my neighbors and everybody suffering from such troubles.

Mrs. M. J. Sargent.

Note: You've all undoubtedly heard of the famous Dr. Pierce and his well-known medicines. Well, this prescription is one that has been successfully used for many years by the physicians and specialists at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for kidney complaints, and diseases arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, congestion of the kidneys, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine, and urinary troubles.

Up to this time, "Anuric" has not been on sale to the public, but by the persuasion of many patients and the personal demand for this wonderful healing Tablet, Doctor Pierce has finally decided to put it into the stores, or send 10 cents for large trial package or 50 cents for full treatment.

Simply ask for Doctor Pierce's Anuric Tablets. There can be no imitation. Every package of "Anuric" is sure to be Dr. Pierce's. You will find the signature on the package just as you do on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the ever-famous friend to ailing women, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, proven by years to be the greatest general tonic and reconstructor for any one, besides being the best blood-maker known.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

"But what grounds for quarrel exist between us?".

"Quarrel? I'm not quarreling. I simply curse you."

"But why?"

"I feel like that, and you are a suitable object."

"Yet no man breathing could be better disposed toward you personally than myself."

"To blaze with you and your disposition!" was the amiable comment, and Foadyke strove off into the gloom.

Raymond remained stock still until the tall, alert figure vanished round the bend where the houses surrounding the Place converge near the bridge. Then with chin sunk into the collar of his coat, he went in the same direction.

Jackson was distinctly amused, even edified. "Well, I'm jiggered!" he chuckled. "If that ain't a nice friendly w'y o' pawsing the time o' d'y—not 'arf! Real pire o' blighters, both of 'em!"

It was of course much later in the evening when Yvonne, a prey to deep tribulation of spirit, entered her mother's suite. Mother and daughter invariably kissed now at meeting and parting. On this occasion each was nervous and distrait; Yvonne because of foreboding on Madeline's account, and Mrs. Carmac by force of that vague and obscure subconsciousness which lurks ever behind the operations of the everyday mind,—that dim ghost as inseparable from the acknowledged senses as the shadow from the material body, yet impalpable as a shadow, and not to be defined in terms of human speech.

All day long this spector peered over her shoulder. Its influence was affrighting and oppressive. The woman who had regarded her conscience as dumb and deaf and blind during nearly twenty years had suddenly discovered that the gagged and bound prisoner had become a stern imperious master. Was it conscience, she wondered, that caused this disease? But conscience is a monitor that recalls past transgressions and threatens punishment, while her inward vision was aware rather of gloomy portents akin to that state of being fey, which is the unenviable attribute of the Celt. A Breton would understand, and dread; but, as Tollemache put it, the fumes of petrol seem to have banished such wraths from that outer world in which Mrs. Carmac moved and had her being.

Even Yvonne's presence did not banish the phantom. Singularly enough, she and her mother, each weighed down by premonition of evil, looked more alike than ever, and each the light of her own disturbed thoughts. Yvonne, accustomed all her life to unfettered frankness, took it that her mother was saddened by the prolonged absence.

"I'm sorry, Dear, I could not reach you earlier," she explained. "My father came back from Concarneau this morning, and he looked so overtaxed and worried that I resolved to take him for a long walk. He and I and Lorry—Mr. Tollemache, you know—went miles and miles. That is our cure for the blues,—an infallible recipe. We arrived home rather late, but feeling ever so much better."

"Your face shows it, Yvonne," was the answer; though the quiet cynicism was softened by a wistful smile.

"Honestly we were lively as crickets during the second half of our tramp. But, where I am concerned, something that occurred during the last few minutes undid all the good. Tell me, Dear, what sort of man is Mr. Foadyke?"

In the conditions few questions could have been more surprising. Her nephew's name was the last Mrs. Carmac expected to hear on Yvonne's lips, since the girl seldom alluded to him, and had shown by her manner that the handsome Rupert made slight appeal, if any.

"Why do you ask?" she said.

"You have heard me speak of Madeleine Demorst, a village girl, one of my greatest friends?"

"Yes."

"Well, Mr. Foadyke has made her acquaintance—through me, as it happens,—and now he is meeting her constantly. They are together at this moment."

"Isn't that what one rather expects in village girls?" Mrs. Carmac, borne down by her own ills, could spare scant sympathy for any flighty maidan who had fallen victim to the fascinations of her good-looking relative.

"It may be so elsewhere, but not in Brittany," persisted Yvonne, who was keen-witted enough to understand how different she and a woman of her mother's world might view Madeleine's folly. "Here such behavior is unforgivable. A girl may not walk out with the man to whom she is engaged, far less with a stranger. I—I hardly know how to act. You cannot imagine how completely her friends and neighbors will condemn poor Madeleine if it is spread abroad that she was seen in Mr. Foadyke's company. As for Peridot, if he knew, he would kill him!"

"Kill Rupert!"

"Yes."

"Peridot may find consolation elsewhere."

Yvonne winced; but she had a purpose in mind, and persevered bravely. "Oh, please don't say such things!" she said. "I want you, Dear, to try and look at this affair through my eyes. I know my Bretons, and Madeleine must be saved, in spite of herself. Can you persuade Mr. Foadyke to leave Pont Aven tomorrow?"

"He is going; not to-morrow, perhaps, but soon."

"Are you sure—quite sure?"

"He told me so himself today."

"If I could be certain he would go, I shouldn't speak to Lorry."

"How does it affect Mr. Tollemache? Is he too an admirer of Madeleine's?"

Then, despite her perplexities, Yvonne laughed. "No, of course not," she cried. "Didn't I imply that Peridot means to marry her?"

"In that event why appeal to Mr. Tollemache?"

"Oh, I see your difficulty now. When aroused Lorry is a very convincing person indeed. He would tell Mr. Foadyke to 'quit,'—that is exactly what he would say,—and if Mr. Foadyke didn't quit he'd jolly well make him—which is also what Lorry would say."

Mrs. Carmac seemed to consider the point for a few seconds. "My difficulties, as you put it, cover a larger area," she said, with a bitterness that had its pathetic side. "Don't forget, Yvonne, that I am debarred from sharing your confidence. Dare I ask, for instance, if at some future date you will probably become Mrs. Laurence Tollemache?"

The girl flushed under this wholly unexpected thrust. First her father, now her mother, had voiced such a far-fetched notion! "I don't know," she said simply. "The events of the week have taught me the unwisdom of thinking that we can forecast the future, but I can say now, with the utmost candor, that I will never leave my father."

At the moment she had no other thought than a disavowal of her prospective marriage with Tollemache, or any other man; but her mother cowered as though flinching from a blow, and Yvonne was instantly aware that the words had conveyed a meaning far beyond their intent.

"Oh, dear!" she sighed. "How easily one can be misunderstood! Now it is stupid that you and I should be at cross purposes in a matter of this sort. Will it help if I tell you what my father said this morning? He asked me why you had decided that Mr. Carmac should be buried here, and I gave it as my opinion that you meant to remain in Pont Aven a considerable time. Was I mistaken?"

The older woman's face became a shade whiter; but she replied steadily enough, "Something of the sort had certainly occurred to me."

"But you must abandon it, Dear," said the girl earnestly, dropping at her mother's feet, and taking one thin hand in both hers. "If you do that, everything will go wrong. Dad and you cannot possibly live in a small place like this, where everybody knows everybody else, where the history of each family or individual is common property, and where gossip would soon find flaws in the pretence that you and I are aunt and niece. If you continue to reside here, it means that Dad and I must go. No, you shan't weep, or be allowed to fret yourself into some misleading notion as to what I really mean. Once and for all, the possibility of that kind of lamentable thing happening must disappear.

"Dad is a fair-minded man—I don't think his enemies, if he had any, would deny that,—and he admits that it would be cruel to keep you and me apart, now that we have been brought together in such an extraordinary way. He will let me come and visit you often, I am sure. But, Dearest, if you drive him away from a spot he had made his own, if he is shut out of the one tiny bit of earth he has learned to love, I shall go with him, and I'll feel so deeply that you have treated him harshly that I will never see you again.

"Now isn't it better that we should examine the present position of affairs clearly and honestly? A great many years ago you left my father of your own accord. He suffered terribly,—how much I have learned only during the last week,—but he gave himself up to art, to a few friends, and to me. He has taught himself to be happy in a quiet way. You, taking part in that social whirl I have read about in books, and dimly imagined from paragraphs in newspapers, can have no idea of the pleasant monotony of life in Pont Aven. Why, an excursion to Le Faouet is an event to be talked of a whole month before and after the great day itself, and a sold picture supplies a week's excitement! Existence on those lines cannot possibly appeal to you.

"Mother dear, you cannot undo the past; but you can and will leave my father undisturbed in his work and his few joys. You must go away from Pont Aven and never come here again. Write to me as often as you like, and I for my part will try to recite our small histories so as to interest and amuse you. Arrange that I may stay with you sometimes, and I'll come. I promise you that Dad will never prove unreasonable if you feel lonely and want me. But it would be unjust both to you and to him if I did not say now that I shall always put him first. I am not reproaching you. Why should I? You have never caused me any unhappiness, because it would be monstrous to charge you with responsibility for the series of misfortunes that began with the wreck. I mean to look on you as a mother, and indeed, indeed, my love and respect will never waver unless they are brought into conflict with the greater love and duty I owe my father."

Yvonne's voice broke on those concluding words. During the long walk by the shore of the Belon she had planned the arguments she would use in urging her mother to adopt the only course that would restore serenity to her father's declining years. She had plenty of opportunity for leisured thought. The Belon rivulet gives its name to an estuary far wider than that of the Aven, and the violet light of a December evening had led Ingersoll into a discussion with Tollemache on the nature and limits of realism in art. But all her carefully couched phrases had fled when she looked into her mother's sorrow-laden eyes, and that pathetic appeal had welled forth tumultuously from her heart.

Are Troubled With BOILS

ALL OVER THE BODY,

When the blood becomes impure the first symptoms manifesting themselves are a breaking out on some part of the body of various sorts of bad blood troubles, such as boils, pimples, abscesses, ulcers, etc.

How many times have you met a friend with a handkerchief tied around his neck, and have asked him: "What is the matter with you?" "Oh! I have a boil on the back of my neck; I guess I will have to take something for my blood."

The best blood cleansing remedy on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters and the speediest and most thorough method of expelling all the useless and disgust matter from the blood is to use this old and well tried remedy that has been on the market for the past forty years.

Mr. W. E. Cockerill, Golden, B.C., writes: "I was troubled with boils all over my body, and my blood was very bad. I tried all kinds of medicines and advice, but got no relief. I had to quit work, as I could not stoop to do anything. My boss told me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, after I had told him I had tried nearly everything else. I got one bottle of B.B.B., and before I had finished it the boils were all gone. It is the best blood cleanser I have ever taken. I have told several others who were suffering with boils and they all say it is great medicine. I am forty-seven years of age, but I feel like sixteen since I got rid of the boils."

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

White Violets

By VIRGINIA BLAIR.

Out of the darkness Margaret said, "Then every one knows it?"

"Every one but you, my dear. Over at the Country club it is common talk."

"But, Aunt Clara," vehemently, "they gossip so at the hotel."

"This isn't gossip. I've known it for a long time, Margaret."

"Oh"—the sigh was almost a sob—"he has always seemed such a gentleman."

"He has the training of one," Mrs. Kent affirmed. "His mother is charming."

After a moment's silence Margaret broke out, "But he saved my life, Aunt Clara."

There was a rustle of skirts as Mrs. Kent moved impatiently in her chair. "Yes, and that's the worst of it."

Mrs. Kent ended the longer silence that followed by ringing for lights.

"No, no," Margaret protested. "I like it better with just the fire."

"But I must go, dear, and dress for dinner, and you will be so dreary alone in the dark."

As she rose and stood by the couch her caressing fingers touched Margaret's cheek and found tears on it.

"You'd better have the lights," she said, and there was a worried note in her voice. "I hate to leave you here alone."

"Oh, I shall be all right," Margaret said. "I'll lie here in the dark and pet Toodlekins."

Still protesting, Mrs. Kent found her way out, and after a time in the big room there came the sound of a stifled sob, and another and another, and after that everything was very quiet. The flame of the fire died down. The green eyes of the little cat, snuggled close to her mistress, glowed in the blackness.

The click of an electric button and the flare-up of lights brought Margaret's head out of the cushion where she had buried it. She shielded her face with her hand.

"You are early, Uncle Dick."

"I'm late. What's the matter with the lights? Why didn't you get somebody to look after them?"

"I like the dark."

"Queer taste." He gave her a keen glance and sat down in the chair by the couch. "How's the foot?"

"It hurts a little, but it's going to be all right."

"Everybody at the club is talking about your accident. They are making a regular hero of Ridgeway." He settled himself back in the big chair and smiled at her genially. "He must have had the strength of a Hercules to hold those horses back."

"He's awfully strong," Margaret said and sat up. "His college record in athletics is fine."

"He flunked in some of his studies, though," Mr. Kent teased.

Margaret's face flamed. "I know." She smoothed the little cat with nervous fingers. "Is—is he very ill, Uncle Dick?"

"Who—Ridgeway? Um—well, that depends. He's a mighty nice fellow, Peggy." He caught the eagerness of her eyes and pulled himself up. "That is—oh, well, your Aunt Clara wouldn't exactly approve of him, and—and—I don't know that he's just the friend for you, Margaret."

"Oh!" came in fluttering protest, and after that Margaret lay with her eyes closed, and nothing was said for several minutes.

"Tired, little girl?" asked her uncle finally, and when she nodded he stood up.

"I must go and dress for dinner." He hesitated by the couch, looking down at her until she opened her eyes and held out her hand and said, "Dear Uncle Dick," and then he patted her cheek and said a little huskily, "Cheer up."

This time there was no friendly darkness to hide the tears, so Margaret dabbed at them with her handkerchief and stared until a ring of the front door bell brought her to an upright position.

"It's Mr. Ridgeway," the maid announced.

"I'm afraid I can't see him!" Margaret said nervously.

"Please," boomed a big voice from the hall—"please don't turn me out like that."

"Oh, well," Margaret agreed, and the maid's place between the curtains was usurped by a young man as big as his voice, who came over and picked up the fussy cat and dropped a small square box in its place. "If you'll let me pet Toodlekins I'll let you have some flowers," he said, and as he sat down the little cat curled into the hollow of his arm and sang her song of contentment, unruffled by the change.

There were white violets in the box, and Ridgeway said, his big voice softened by some fine emotion, "They always make me think of you."

"Oh, don't, don't!" Margaret said with quick caught breath, and Ridgeway stared at her in a puzzled way.

"Don't you like them?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Well, it's a funny way to show it." There was so much of the boy in him that Margaret smiled in spite of herself.

"It's because I like them so well that I don't want you to bring them to me any more."

"You don't"—

"I mean it," she said faintly. "You mustn't bring me any more flowers."

"Why not?" sharply.

"Because I can't take them."

"Why can't you take them?"

"Because"—

"That isn't any reason," he flung out. "Do you mean that you don't want me to come?"

She held out one slim hand to him. "Don't," she said beseechingly—"don't speak to me like that. We must always be good friends, but you mustn't come."

He took her hand. "It's to be just—friends?"

"Yes."

"Never anything more?"

"Never."

"And yet that night after the accident you let me kiss you—Margaret."

"Yes," very low.

The fire flickered and sapped. The little cat, disturbed somewhat, slipped down from Ridgeway's arms and curled herself up on the rug.

"Would you mind," Margaret said at last, "turning off the upper light? The strong glare hurts my eyes."

The rosy halo of the lamp made dark the distant corners of the room. Margaret on her couch was a dim outline. The little cat was invisible except for her emerald eyes. Ridgeway came back and sat down; then he bent forward.

"Margaret," he said sharply, "you are crying."

"Yes," she sobbed, "I'm crying—oh, because you are such a black sheep, Justin."

He drew his breath sharply. "So that's it?" he said at last.

"Yes. I didn't know until tonight. Aunt Clara told me."

He stood up. "Then there's nothing more to say. Goodby."

He went to the door, hesitated and came back.

"Look here, Peggy," he said grimly, "if I were a story book hero I'd take my medicine and go away and suffer in silence. And it would all be very tragic and romantic, but it wouldn't be sensible."

He threw himself into the big chair and knitted his brows. "The sensible thing is to get over the difficulty. Let's begin at the beginning. Everybody says I'm a black sheep?"

"Yes," she murmured.

"Well, I am. I've wasted my time in riotous living, as the Bible says of the prodigal, and when I flunked in my studies I got what was coming to me. But that was before I met you, Peggy. I don't think my worst enemy could accuse me since the night I saw you at the junior prom in your white gown, with your hair twisted up in a big braid like a crown. You seemed the princess in a fairy tale, and I made up my mind then and there that I'd win out."

He drew a long breath and went on: "But now I know I'm not good enough, and I know, too, that I have not any right to ask you to wait for me. All I'll ask is that you don't condemn me utterly, don't shut me out from your life."

His voice broke. Then as she held out her hand to him he went on steadily:

"I'm only going to ask that you will believe in me and if, after two or three years, no one else has come into your life that you care for and I have made good, that you will let me plead my cause again."

He stood looking down at her. Her cheek was laid against the bunch of white violets. Their delicate fragrance was roundabout her.

"Dear little girl," he said, "I'll stick it out at college another year, and then I'll go into business with dad and show him what I can do. And if you will have faith in me"—

She sat up, her eyes shining. "Oh," she said, "I felt that back of it all there was a man in you, Justin—and then—when you saved my life—I felt that it belonged to you."

"I'm not half good enough," he said humbly.

She took from the bunch of violets a half dozen blossoms and held them out to him.

"They shall be a talisman," she said, "of faith and hope and love. You must let them keep you from all evil, Justin."

And as he knelt beside the couch the rapture in his eyes answered her.

The sports hats should be of simple design, gaining distinction by their contrasting materials and colours.

WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten year old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DEWITT SINCERBAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.

Sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, backache, headaches, dragging sensations, all point to female derangements which may be overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A SUFFERER FROM KIDNEY TROUBLE
FOR TWO YEARS.

When the kidneys get ill the back gives out. But the back is not to blame. The ache comes from the kidneys, which lie under the small of the back.

Therefore, dull pain in the back, or sharp, quick twinges, are warnings of sick kidneys—warnings of kidney trouble.

Plasters and liniments will not cure the bad back, for they cannot reach the kidneys which cause it.

Doan's Kidney Pills reach the kidneys themselves. They are a special kidney and bladder medicine. They heal the diseased surface of the kidneys and bladder, and help them to act freely and naturally.

Miss Mary A. Northrop, Cole's Island, N.B., writes: "I have been a sufferer from kidney trouble for two years. I tried quite a number of remedies, but they did me no good. My mother got me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, and they did me so much good that I got the second one, and when I had taken that I was completely cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills, are the original kidney pills. See that our trade mark, "The Maple Leaf," is on every box. Price, 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

A Most Extraordinary Cure of Epileptic Fits

Mother Had Appealed to Three Doctors in Vain—Cured Four Months Ago By Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

This letter from Mrs. Noxel is endorsed by Mrs. H. J. Mahaffy, druggist, Port Colborne, Ont., as being true and correct. While it reports a most remarkable cure of epileptic fits by use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, it only goes to corroborate similar cures reported by others.

Mrs. Hamilton M. Noxel, R.R. No. 1, Humberstone, Ont., writes: "I cannot help writing to you, as I want you to know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills have been to my boy. He was taken with very violent fits, would twitch all over, his eyes would turn towards his nose his jaws set and his lips turn almost purple. He would clench his fists tightly, become unconscious and then go into a long sleep. After several hours he would wake up sighing and so weak he could not stand. I was afraid he would die and took him to the doctor, who pronounced his case epilepsy. As his medicine was not effective and the fits continued, I took him to another doctor at Fonthill, but his medicine seemed to make him worse.

"As the boy's nerves were in such a state he could not sit down or lie down, and the fits continued, I took him to a third doctor, who said that he would not undertake to cure epilepsy, as no doctor could cure it. That night I went home very much discouraged, and when I took my dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I gave my boy a dose, and that was the first night in weeks that he slept well. I kept on giving him the Nerve Food three times a day and occasionally a Kidney-Liver Pill to keep the kidneys and bowels active. I can, with a clear conscience, say that he has not had even one fit since beginning his treatment. I give him no other medicine. He looks and feels well, and as there have been no returns of the old trouble for four months, I believe he has been cured. I can never cease to be grateful to the manufacturers of these medicines, for I am sure I would have lost my boy if it had not been for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Mr. H. J. Mahaffy, druggist, Port Colborne, Ont., writes: "This is to certify that I am acquainted with Mrs. Henrietta M. Noxel, and believe that the statement she has made in regard to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is true and correct."

"VILLIAN" STABBED BY "HEROINE" SISTER

Slip of the Knife Wielded by Catherine Trainor, Ten, Causes Injury to Brother, Fifteen.

NEW YORK, March 21. — Everything went entirely wrong in the little melodrama, "The Bank Robber," in which Joseph Trainor, fifteen, was the male part of the cast, and his sister Catherine, was the heroine and villainness. Just when Joseph was supposed to rob the bank, which by the way was the baby's, and Catherine, as heroine, was to stab him, the play became reality. Through a slip of the knife Joseph was actually stabbed.

Up to this point Joseph was strong for the theatrical professors. Right there his Tespian ambitions vanished and the scream that he uttered brought his parents, a policeman and, finally, Dr. Willinsky from Polyclinc Hospital, to the home of No. 502 West Fifty-seventh street. Had Catherine been a little huskier as a heroine Joseph might have been seriously hurt. As it was the knife merely entered Joseph's epidermis and after the wound was dressed he was able to return to his play in the role of a wounded soldier, with his solicitious sister as a Red Cross Nurse.

CANADIAN'S GREAT TASK

Montrealer in Charge of Factory Building For Lloyd-George

Mr. John Hunter is a case of a Montreal boy who has reached almost the highest post under the British Crown in connection with munitions. He is Director of Factory Construction in the Munitions Ministry. Mr. Hunter came as a boy to Montreal, and was educated at the British-Canadian school and at the High School. His father represented the famous firm of J. and P. Coats, Ltd., of Paisley. The son completing his education, went into business in Canada. When he was 25 he went to Scotland and his later career was brilliant.

The Minister of Munitions finally found his ideal in Mr. John Hunter, until lately managing director of the great works of Sir William Arrol & Co. (Limited), engineers and contractors, Glasgow. On the invitation of Mr. Lloyd-George, Mr. Hunter resigned his seat on the board of directors of that company, and accepted the invitation of the Minister to become "Director of Factory Construction in connection with the national projectile factories now being erected in various parts of the country." There is a great deal in which Mr. Hunter's experience in the control and organization of large industrial enterprises will prove invaluable; while, through him, the experience of his firm in the erection of large buildings, will be indirectly at the service of the Government. Than Sir William Arrol & Co., no firm has done more important or more extensive steel constructional work, and as before the death of Sir William Arrol early in 1913 Mr. Hunter was secretary of the company as well as joint managing director he is thoroughly conversant with the commercial as well as the industrial side of just the work which he has to superintend and direct.

NEW YORK NEWSPAPER LAUDS CANADA'S PART

Canadian Soldiers Worth Two of Some Other Nations—Rich Reward For Britain's Policy

The following remarkable tribute to Canada for her share in the war is from the New York Globe: Canada is the bright shining jewel in the glittering crown of Imperial Britannia. With a population no greater than our city of New York and its immediate surroundings, she has given to the fighting ranks of the allies a quarter of a million men; she will give them a quarter of a million more.

She is sending to the front her wheat and other foods in cargoes which fill many ships on many voyages. In hundreds of industrial plants she turns out arms and ammunition, clothing and equipment to make countless argosies of other war supplies plowing the waters all the days to the ports near the embattled lines in France and in Flanders, in Russia and in the Balkans, perhaps next in Egypt and in India.

Canada has not asked for money to pay her share of the war; she herself has provided it. Since the day she became a British colony she has been financed for her swift industrial and commercial expansion by London. But now, arranging her funds here in the neighboring United States, she pays her own way through the war, sending her munitions and other supplies as she sends her men to the front, with a prodigal hand.

And those Canadians are men! Strapping big, brimming with the vigor and strength of their young race, keen-edged by nature and hardened by their sturdy northland life, half a million Canadians are worth in the war perhaps a million of some of the others on the battle lines of either side.

England, in the matter of all her overseas colonies, cast her bread upon the waters for rich returns in loyalty, courage and power, with none more so than with Canada.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisons, waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles become loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish tyinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.

Portland Outplays and Blanks Canadiens

MONTREAL, March 21.—Smothering the National Hockey Association champions with speed, and outplaying them in all departments, Portland, Pacific Coast Hockey League champions, easily mastered the Canadiens last night in the first game of the 1916 series for the Stanley Cup winning by 2 to 0. Their easy victory was a surprise, for they had had little rest up after the railroad journey from the coast, and were playing the game under rules with which most of the visiting players had little experience. Canadiens played their hardest, but could not keep Portland checked, nor could they manage to get the puck past Murray, Portland's goal-tender, on the few occasions they did succeed in breaking through the visitors' defence.

Eleven minutes after the game started, Harris, Portland's fast left wing, scored the first goal. Nine minutes after the second period began Uksila, substituting for Irvine, tallied the second. There was no scoring in the third period. The teams:

Portland — Goal, Murray; defence, Johnson, Irvine; centre, Oatman; wings, Tobin, Harris.

Summary:

First period—Portland, Harris, 11 minutes.

Second period—Uksila, 9 minutes.

Third period: No scoring.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will not stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

With the Advent of Spring Comes Fun of Cyling

Now that spring is opening the outdoor world to the motorcyclist and bicyclist, bringing with it the maping out of plans for a season of cycling enjoyment, every club and every unaffilisted bunch of riders should begin to get ready for camping parties.

Camping has gradually been gaining in popularity with cyclists, year by year, as riders have learned that one of the most important uses of their machines is to take them from the city to the country.

Brings Country to the City.

Thanks to the speed and dependability of the bicycles, any city chap can jump upon his machine on a Saturday half holiday and in two hours be miles away beside the banks of a stream or lake, or beside the seashore, or within the cooling shades of an inviting wood, where he can camp and enjoy nature's refreshing comforts over Sunday, then, if necessary, hie back to the city at sun up, bright and fresh Monday morning.

As a concrete example of how cyclists manage camping parties, take the riders of San Angelo, Tex. These West Texas lads live in a city of 16,000 inhabitants in the midst of ranching territory, abounding in good hunting and fishing. Twenty-five miles from town is a pecan grove located on the beautiful Concho river. Here the lads set up their tent, to be used only in the rare event of rain. They carry their camp impediments, including tents, poles, cots, bedding, guns and cooking utensils on their bicycles. As the roads were good, they make good time back and forth whenever they have occasion to replenish their supplies. As they are employed every day, all but the one returns to the city in the morning, do their work, and ride back to the camp in the evening. This gives each an hour for fishing daily, when the fishing is at its best, and also the man left in charge puts in his spare time fishing through the day, so that there is always plenty of fresh fish for lusty camping appetites. There is also good squirrel hunting, because of the pecan nuts—so that game is a drug on the market.

Entertain Friends With Camping Parties.

Occasionally the campers invite some of their friends in town to spend the night in camp and sleep in the cool fresh air. After dark there is singing, games, smoking, reading and other outdoor festivities. The headlights of the bicycles furnish all the necessary illumination of the camp.

Could anything more enjoyable be imagined? There is not a rich man in the country who could have more enjoyment than these West Texas working lads, and the bicycle was the vehicle that made such enjoyment possible.

In the suburbs of every city and village of this country are many beauty spots by forest, lake and stream, easily reached by bicycles. Usually, permission can be secured to camp there, provided the applicants go about it in a gentlemanly manner.

If present indications hold good, before the spring is far advanced, every club and bunch of riders will have their summer camp easily accessible by bicycles, to which riders may resort every evening, returning to town refreshed for work, every morning.

REFUSED ADMITTANCE.

Wives of Convicted Thieves Stopped by Immigration Authorities.

TORONTO, March 21.—Refused admittance into the United States, Mrs. Ike Cohen and Mrs. Jake Gold are in somewhat of a predicament. Their husbands were sent down a few days ago to Kingston penitentiary on a charge of stealing diamonds.

Although the two men have lived in the United States for about 18 years they never became naturalized, and are still classed as Russian citizens. One of the women has children in the States, and wanted to go back to them, but they were stopped at the border by the immigration authorities.

Back they came to Toronto to see what they could do to get back there again, and they have appealed to the police department. They could get no help there, and their case was turned over to the immigration authorities to deal with.

Toilers in France Now Better Paid

More Substantial Increase in Wages Blocked by Uncertain Conditions

More Than 90 Per Cent. of Establishments Open, As Against 57 in Fall of 1914.

PARIS, March 20.—The tendency of men's wages in France is upward, now that industries have recovered from the early perturbations of the war. If the workingman's income is not proportionate to his high war budget, it has responded to the law of supply and demand, and is likely to remain higher than before the war.

Charles Piquenard is a study of the war's effect upon economic conditions says there would have been a more substantial increase in wages if industries were not working under the most uncertain conditions; they are unable to make any definite plans for the future and operations of great scope requiring big credits are impossible so long as the moratorium lasts; they are obliged to pay cash and sell for cash. The encouraging feature is that orders are more regular. What the readjustment of things will bring after the war is the great uncertainty that stands in the way of a complete revival of such industries as are able to procure the raw material they require and find a market for their production.

There are about 11,000,000 wage earners in France, including 2,500,000 engaged in agriculture. Of the remaining 7,700,000 there are a million clerks and office employees, 800,000 Government employees, and 600,000 house servants, leaving 5,000,000 industrial workmen. 2,000,000 of whom were deprived totally of their incomes by the war, and 3,000,000 of whom had their resources reduced either by the diminution of working hours or through lessened production of piecework by reason of changed conditions.

The principal reductions were in the purely feminine industries, such as dressmaking, in which 85 per cent. of the establishments reduced day wages from 25 to 50 per cent. This discrimination against women is explained by the fact that men are better organized for resistance against wage reductions. Had the seamstresses of Paris been organized in unions the employers' syndicate would perhaps have hesitated to fix the general reduction of wages at 50 per cent.

In the retail and wholesale trade the reductions were quite general, and ranged from 20 to 50 per cent.

900,000 Servants Suffer.

A considerable number of the 900,000 servants found themselves out of employment by reason of the breaking up of families and reduction of household expenses. The simple law of supply and demand operated to decrease the wages of the others.

More than 90 per cent. of the commercial and industrial establishments of France are now open, as against 57 per cent. in the fall of 1914. The proportion of help employed by those establishments has risen from 84 per cent. of the normal in August, 1914, to more than 75 per cent. The average proportion of mobilized men in such establishments being more than 24 per cent., it follows that the entire unmobilized staffs are again employed.

The wages of the small employees have gone back to the normal figure in 90 per cent. of the establishments. The higher wages still suffer certain reductions.

The increase in the number of working hours has automatically increased the earnings of workers paid by the hour in all factories whose production is taken by the army. In some cases the wage scale has been increased, making a double gain. The piece work scale also has been increased in many industries working for the Government. The reasons for these increases are found in the comparative dearth of skilled workmen, and in the zeal of manufacturers to push their output to the maximum on the pressing demands of the Government.

The spinners and weavers of Normandy and the North are earning from 10 to 20 per cent. more than before the war. The remaining 10 per cent. of the embroiderers and tulle makers unmobilized at Calais, who earned 50 to 60 francs a week, are earning from 70 to 90 francs a week.

Local conditions enterin ginto consideration produce remarkable variations in the wage scale of the same trades in different regions.

The construction of barracks for the English Army in Normandy nearly doubled the wages of carpenters and day labourers. The urgent need of dock hands to handle with maximum speed the incoming army supplies pushed their wages up 50 per cent. at some places.

Women whose earnings in distinctly feminine trades were cut are abandoning the sewing machine for the machine tool in growing numbers. What permanent effect the innovation may have upon the labour problem is a question the union leaders are studying.

Fewer Strikes Reported.

Decreased number of strikes was a noticeable effect of the new conditions. Only ninety-seven cases, involving a total of 9,110 strikers, were reported to the Department of Labour in the first sixteen months of the war. There were 1,073 strikes, involving 220,000 workmen, in the year 1913. This comparative tranquility is attributed in some quarters to the contentment of the workmen, in others to the absence at the front of the younger and more aggressive labour leaders.

It is estimated that there are 830,000 women employed in piece work at their homes, and these are excluded from the beneficial operation of the lack of help upon the wages in other industries. Makers of artificial flowers earn from 1 franc (20 cents) to 1 franc 10 centimes (22 cents) a day. Women working on linen garments make from 2 to 4 cents an hour.

An inquiry into the exploitation of these women by contractors in the region of Paris showed that a large proportion of them worked an average of fifteen hours a day to earn from 20 to 25 cents. The difference between fair wages that the manufacturer would pay and what the woman got took into the pockets of intermediaries.

Senator Herriot, Mayor of Lyons, was the victim of an instance of the kind. He took from a contractor 200 pairs of trousers to be finished, and turned them over to women out of work. The contract prices was 20 francs. Instead of remitting the sum on receipt of the garments, the contractor presented to M. Herriot a bill for 24 francs for so-called "bad work" and 9 francs 80 centimes for thread furnished, leaving the women with nothing for their work and a debt of 3 francs 80 centimes. Senator Herriot paid the women then set about framing a law fixing a minimum scale for piece work at domicile that has every chance of going through Parliament at an early date and of making precarious the situation of the intermediary in garment-making trades.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

KILLED BY FLAMING DART.

It Set Fire to the Aeroplane of Count de Cazes.

PARIS, March 20.—Count Jacques de Cazes, military aviator and brother of Duke de Cazes, has been killed in an air battle.

He had just succeeded in bringing down a German aeroplane after a long duel when his own machine was struck by a inflammable dart, fired by another German aeroplane. The count's machine burst into flames and fell inside the German lines.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the additon of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored, and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

IN LINE FOR BUTTER.

Eight Hours Required to Get Pound in Berlin.

BERLIN, March 21.—It takes on the average eight hours of time to get a pound of much coveted butter in Berlin—that is, eight hours "standing in line," according to statistics of the Vossische Zeitung.

The statistician gives the record of eighty-five families, thirty-one of these living in the workingmen's section of Berlin, embracing 370 persons. To get what is now called "standing butter" the eighty five families "stood" a total of 306 hours. The "standing" produced 28 1-4 pounds. Four families embracing fourteen persons, stood fifteen hours without results.

New regulations are going into effect next week to do away with this loss of time.

How You May Throw Away Your Glasses

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one Bon-Opto tablet in ¼ glass of water. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind, or nearly so, or who wear glasses might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

"A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: 'Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to scientists and many people who wear glasses could, if they took it, discard them for ever.' It can be obtained from any druggist and is sold by the very few prescriptions that have been put on sale, it bids fair to become a household remedy in almost every family."

Thin Men and Women Can Put on Flesh by Getting 100% Efficiency from Their Food

Failure to absorb Flesh Making Materials in Body Waste Keeps Weight Down. How to Make the Food Work and Stick.

Most thin people eat from four to six ounces of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It seems all back to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Dieting won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. A great part of the fat-producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people eminently need is something that will so act upon these fatty food elements that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will positively check red blood corpuscles, and multiply their blood's carrying power.

There is a preparation known to physicians as Sargol which is unsurpassed for this purpose. It is a scientific combination of the principal elements needed by the blood cells and to help them convert food into rich fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Sargol and it aims through regenerative, re-constructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken-down cells and tissues of your body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight, the cheeks fill out, hollows about neck, shoulders and bust disappear and from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh is added to the body. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Leading druggists of this vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every large package.

Why not make the test. First weigh yourself. Then take Sargol—just one tablet at every meal and before you go to bed—for two weeks—then weigh again and note the difference. Let the scales tell the story.

The tablets are small, easily swallowed, produce no disagreeable effects, contain no habit drugs, and are not at all expensive as compared with results obtained.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the Sargol Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal and a full-size box of this treatment will be sent you postpaid, in plain wrapper.

No Infantry Attacks On Western Front

Prohibition In Ontario Without Any Vote

ARTILLERY BOMBARDMENT BUT NO INFANTRY ACTION AROUND VERDUN

Bombardment Especially Heavy in the Region of Malancourt Where Germans Made Gains in Monday's Fighting--Enemy Continues to Pour Shells in Upon Esnes Village.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PARIS, March 22.—Violent artillery duels occurred last night on the front northwest of Verdun, the War Office announced this afternoon, but the Germans did not renew their infantry attacks.

The bombardment was especially heavy in the region of Malancourt, and on Haucort Hill, where the Bavarians made gains in Monday night's fighting. The German gunners continue to pour shells in upon Esnes village, south of Bethincourt.

Slav Troops Continue the Offensive

Special to The Examiner:

BERLIN, March 22.—Russian troops, commanded by Gen. Kuropatkin, continue their violent assaults against Von Hindenburg's front on a wide sector south and southeast of Riga, the War Office announced this afternoon. All Russian attacks, however, have been repulsed.

German troops have captured more trenches in the Avocourt woods, northwest of Verdun.

LONDON, March 22.—A wireless despatch from Rome to-day asserted that the Austrians have abandoned Czernowitz, capital of Bukowina, because of Russian victories on the Dniester.

Russian Warship Sinks Vessel in Black Sea

Examiner Special:

LONDON, March 22.—The sinking by a Russian warship of the steamship Esperanza off Kaliakra, in the Black Sea, is reported. The Esperanza, a 7,000-ton vessel flying the German flag, is said to have been loaded with foodstuffs for Constantinople. The crew was captured by the Russians.

The despatch also reports the sinking of a score of small sailing ships with cargoes of food.

HAVANA, Cuba, March 22.—The Australian cruiser Sydney arrived here to-day, supposedly for the purpose of obtaining coal and provisions.

She will sail within the prescribed twenty-four hours.

TURKS EVACUATE ERZENGAN

Examiner Special:

AMSTERDAM, March 22.—The Turks have evacuated the Armenian City of Erzingan, where they established headquarters after the fall of Erzerum, Bucharest despatches stated to-day. They first blew up their munitions depot.

"SEVENTY-FIVES" BURST HOSE FOR THE FLAMING LIQUID

PARIS, March 22.—Among the wounded brought to Paris this morning from Verdun was a Territorial Corporal who spent the year 1907-08 in New York. He gives a description of the German flame attacks. "The general effect of the 'flamenwerfer' is just the opposite to the effect of water being thrown on the flaming ground. I once saw the New York firemen fighting a fourteen-storey warehouse fire. The water spurted up in bright columns whose ends were lost in smoke. The flame jets in the daylight look exactly the same from a distance. One sees little groups holding a hose with a bright jet spurting before them into the rolling, billows of smoke. Only this time our trenches were in the midst of the smoke clouds. We carried big oblong shields of interwoven osier, covered with dry clay, against which the flaming liquid fell powerless, but the smell was terrible, almost suffocating although we were wearing masks.

BOSCHES ADVANCE IN GROUPS

"Our battalion held the trenches just inside Avocourt Wood. Sunday night's bombardment had smashed them badly, but we were sheltered in the holes, and our artillery so disorganized the enemy when they were massing for the attack that we had time to link up the shell holes with boyau lined wire into our position. About eleven o'clock word came to expect an assault, when suddenly my lieutenant, peering at the enemy through his glasses, cried: 'They are trying that again'—we had an experience of flame attack before near Neuville—passed me the glasses, and at the same time ordering the men to get the shields ready. I saw the Boches running forward in groups of four or five to series of small mounds in front of their trench and about twenty yards distance from ours. Sheltered by the mounds they stood with their legs wide apart exactly like the firemen. Then, just as the Lieut. grabbed the glasses, the flame began spurting along the line from north to south. Of course our sharpshooters were firing all the time, but the enemy kept sweeping us with a hail of bullets. After that it was a nightmare of smoke and flame.

"SEVENTY-FIVES" SAVE DAY

"We could never have held the line—for the enemy charged almost immediately, the flame-throwers advancing with them—except for the seventy-fives, which made utter havoc of that attack. One shell exploded a flame-juice container or tore the hose and the blazing liquid caught a big block of "Boches" who ran madly screaming in all directions. Other flame-throwers fell, turning the hose against their comrades with like results. Then our turn came. We riddled their whole line with bullets. When the smoke cleared their front was carpeted with dead, while we could see others running about shrieking or rolling on the ground in an effort to extinguish the flames. They must have lost the best part of regiment on a sector only half a kilometer long.

WORSE THAN USELESS.

"The flame attacks against the French trenches, supported by French guns, were worse than useless. The attackers nearly always suffer more than the defenders. We had about seventy men burnt altogether, less than a score of whom were bad enough to evacuate. I stopped a shell splinter that afternoon, as I missed the night attack, but we heard that they took our position later by a regular massed charge after two more flame attacks had broken down. It is a useless, beastly way of fighting. It accomplishes little save to make the defenders more savage and determined. Please add: I also heard my battalion was not beaten, but pushed back by numbers. None save a few badly wounded was taken prisoner."

PROHIBITION TO GO INTO FORCE WITHOUT A VOTE

Mail and Empire Says That The Bars Will be Closed Around Sept. 1st—No Referendum Will be Taken

AS A WAR MEASURE

The Toronto Mail and Empire, the official organ of the Ontario Government, says to-day:

The definite prohibition proposals of the Ontario Government will be submitted to the Conservative caucus this afternoon, and if expectations are realised the bill will be before the House for first reading during the day.

The Government will announce its decision to bring prohibition into effect as a war measure without a referendum with a vote at a stated period after the war to determine whether prohibition shall continue or not. The province will remain "dry" until the matter is decided permanently by the people.

Licensees will be given an extension of about four months from the 1st of May —the end of the present license year. The province will be dry some time between the 15th of August and the 15th of September.

The Prohibition Bill follows in the main the Manitoba Act. The chief improvement or additions are clauses incorporating the most valuable enforcement provisions of the local option section of the Ontario License Act which will of course be superseded. Distilleries and breweries will be permitted to sell in wholesale quantities to wholesale druggists subject to restrictions as to quantity. The quantities allowed will it is stated, be less than under the Manitoba Act.

Druggists wholesale and retail, will be licensed, the latter being permitted to sell only upon a physician's orders.

The administration of the new Act will probably be placed in charge of a board composed of three members. The bill itself will not, it is stated, contain such a provision, this step being possible by regulation. The board, it is expected, will have control of the issuing of licenses and of the department through which the Government will make good the pledge given by Hon. Mr. Hearst to enforce the Act to the limit of the Government's ability.

When the bill is taken up by the House a diversion will be created by Mark Irish, member for North Toronto who has given notice of a resolution asking for the appointment of a commission to investigate and determine the amount of compensation that should be paid to licensees for their financial loss. The North Toronto member states that he will press for a division in the House. It is stated that the Government will definitely refuse to consider the question of compensation.

HAVE THE POSTMEN CALLED ON YOU YET?

The Postmen are leaving at each house in the city a small card for subscriptions to the Over-Seas Tobacco Fund. These cards will be called for a day or two after they are delivered, and money will be collected monthly. Subscriptions can be paid to the Postmen, to any Bank or paid to Mr. W. H. Dunsford (Manager Bank of Commerce) Treasurer of the Tobacco Fund. If you wish to send your Tobacco to any particular soldier please write full name and address on back of card. Peterborough now has approximately six hundred soldiers at the Front, and each one of these men must get his SMOKES regularly each week.

YOU CAN LOOK AFTER ONE SOLDIER FOR $1.00 PER MONTH. PLEASE SIGN THE CARD.

MANY ENTRIES FOR ASSAULT-AT-ARMS OF THE 93rd BATTALION

Possibility That the Sportsmen's Battalion of Toronto Will Send Down Some of Their Crack Boxers--Local Officers Successful in Passing Examinations---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Arrangements are making rapid headway for the assault-at-arms, which the 93rd Battalion will hold in the near future. The members of the Battalion are taking a keen interest in the event and some lively bouts may be expected. Every platoon in the Battalion will likely have one or more representatives, and the rivalry in the boxing and wrestling events promises to be great. There is a possibility that the Sportsmen's Battalion of Toronto will send down half a dozen or more of their boxing champions to put on exhibition bouts in connection with the assault-at-arms.

Col. Ogilvie, A.A.G.A., of Kingston, paid a visit to the 93rd Battalion to-day.

The Lindsay Warden Says: For some time past there has been a rumor to the effect that the 109th Battalion of Victoria and Haliburton, supplemented by three other battalions, would camp at Sturgeon Point during the summer months.

It was thought that all the Battalions would hold a big military camp in one central spot in the Dominion, but apparently it has been decided to scatter the soldiers, much in the same manner as a few years ago, when the 45th Regiment's annual summer camp was held at Sturgeon Point.

Many good locations for such a camp can be found along the Scugog, or Sturgeon, and it is to be hoped that the rumor is no idle one.

J. E. R. MUNRO, Captain,
Adjutant 93rd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

Pte. Thomas Parrington who is now at the convalescent home at Kingston writes to the secretary of the Soldiers' Aid Branch in Peterborough, stating that he will be able to obtain his discharge from the home early in April. He is returning to Peterborough, and hopes to take up civil work after his experience on the field. His right arm was shattered so he writes, but it is getting into shape. He wishes to get a suitable employment to go on with. Any one who can offer any work, or a position that would enable this partially disabled soldier to get to work, might send or phone particulars to the Patriotic Fund office. Pte. Parrington will be advised of any such as soon as he reaches the city.

The results of the last course at the Kingston Provincial School of Infantry are announced. Among the officers successful were the following:

Qualified for the rank of Captain, W. C. Thompson, 40th regiment, (93rd battalion); T. W. B. Marling, 46th regiment, (93rd battalion); C. R. Widdifield, 57th regiment, (93rd battalion); J. H. Eastwood, 57th regiment, (93rd battalion); V. Eastwood 57th regiment, (93rd battalion); M. G. Hamilton, 57th regiment, (146th battalion.)

Qualified for the rank of lieutenant: W. W. Armstrong, 57th regiment, (93rd battalion); G. O. Burnham, 3rd dragoons, Peterborough; A. E. Choate, 57th regiment; A. E. Gardiner, 57th regiment; G. N. Milburn, 57th regiment, (93rd battalion); A. B. Mills, 57th regiment, formerly 2nd battalion, C. E. F.; R. N. Payne, 57th regiment, (93rd battalion) A. A. Nichardson, 57th regiment, (93rd battalion).

The new equipment for the Canadian forces has many peculiar features, chief among these being its compactness, the manner in which it can be discarded by the undoing of a single buckle and resumed instantly without the discarding of any of the remainder of the soldier's equipment. Another big advantage is the distribution of the weight whereby there are no straps to chafe or cut the man on his shoulders or arms. There are no straps across the chest and the weight of the pack rests evenly on the top, front and back of the shoulders.

The equipment comprises waist best, water-bottle carrier with attachment straps, haversack, pack, ammunition pouches and shoulder brace. The back is made to contain greatcoat, comforter cap, socks, mess tin with cover, towel, holdall containing tooth brush, shaving brush, razor and

Enthusiastic Recruiting Rally in Ennismore

His Honour Judge Huycke, Rev. Father McGuire and Mr. B. O'Connell Were Among the Speakers —The Great Outstanding Demand for Men.

THE PRESENT CRISIS

A very enthusiastic recruiting meeting was held at the Township Hall, Ennismore, last night. The large hall was filled to its capacity.

Reverend Father McGuire, who acted as chairman in opening the meeting, delivered an eloquent address, and made a strong plea to the young man to respond to the call of duty. He pointed out, in forcible terms, the great need of men, and urged the young men of military age, to enlist themselves in their country's cause. Undoubtedly there was more or less demand in the country for labour, but yet, notwithstanding this fact, there was still a great number of men available for military service, who had not yet offered themselves.

A Common Cause.

Many of the animosities of the past, were being rapidly obliterated by this great war, in which men of different races and creeds were fighting in a common cause, and that a new and better understanding, and harmony would result in Canada, and other parts of the Empire as a result of this common struggle.

Judge Huycke followed with a clear and comprehensive address in which he paid tribute to Father McGuire for the good work he was doing in the cause of recruiting. The Judge appealed to the sense of duty of the young men present, and pointed out in the face of the present great crisis there was really no substantial excuse for any young man of military age without most important duties at home, for not enlisting.

A Participant.

Mr. O'Connell delivered the last address of the evening. He placed before the audience the gravity and extent of the great conflict that is taking place, and in which this country is, at the present time, a participant. That the great outstanding demand, was for men, and that it was clearly the duty of every young man who could possibly enlist to do so.

A musical programme was provided by the Ennismore orchestra, and Private Luther of the 93rd Battalion. At the close of the meeting, several men gave in their names to the recruiting officers. Two of the men of the 93rd Battalion will spend a couple of days in Ennismore and there is every indication that their recruiting efforts will be most successful.

Robert Davies Passed Away To-day at the Age of Seventy Years—Was a Well Known Brewer

A GREAT HORSEMAN

TORONTO, March 22.—Robert Davies, the second richest man in Toronto, and well-known in Ontario, died to-day, at the age of seventy years. He was owner of the Thorncliffe stable of racehorses, including winners of the King's Plate, in recent years, and was director of many companies as well as one of the best known brewers in Canada.

Dr. Caroline Brown To Speak Here

Under the Auspices of Mothers' Clubs' Department of the Local Council of Women

Attention is again drawn to the open meeting of the Council of Women to be held to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A.

This meeting is given over especially to the consideration of the work of the Mothers' Clubs, and Dr. Caroline Brown, of Toronto, will speak on "The Relation of the Home to the School."

A special invitation is given all parents of school children, whether belonging to Mothers' Clubs or not.

A silver collection will be taken to defray expenses.

Few Better Shylocks Have Ever Been Seen

Than That Enacted by Mr. John Kellerd, the Eminent Shakesperian Actor Who Appears Here on Friday and Saturday

John E. Kellerd, the eminent Shakesperian actor, will appear here on Friday night and Saturday matinee and evening, presenting on Friday evening, "Macbeth" and on Saturday afternoon, "The Merchant of Venice," and at night "Hamlet."

Referring to Mr. Kellerd's interpretation of "Shylock" in the Merchant of Venice, the Mail and Empire recently said:

"Few better Shylocks have been seen here than the performance given at the Grand Opera house last night by John E. Kellerd, when he presented The Merchant of Venice as the second play of his Shakesperian repertoire. Mr. Kellerd is an actor who impresses one at once by his scholarly reading of Shakespere. In Hamlet he gave a thoughtful and consistent performance, but in the trial scene last night he rose to greater heights. He made the Jew an impressive and moving figure. He presented a Shylock who had dignity and who did not cringe even when thanking the young judge for appearing to side with him. His malignant hate had something majestic in it, and when he found that his enemies had been too clever for him, he did not become a servile and utterly broken creature. There was genuine pathos in his grief at the knowledge that he was at the mercy of the man he loathed, and as he left the court he faced his defeat with the self-control of a proud race. Mr. Kellerd wins all the sympathy there is for Shylock, and to a modern audience he is by no means only a figure worthy of dectation. Mr. Kellerd's acting in the trial scene alone would stamp him as a player of fine discrimination."

It is recommended that in planting cherry orchards several varieties be planted together, and that these varieties be selected with due regard to their pollenizing one another.

LIBERALS IN CAUCUS

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Ont., March 22. — The Liberals were in caucus for a while this morning considering the remaining business of the session. While no official statement was given out it is understood that no opposition will be offered to the Government's proposed Temperance Legislation. Liberal members will be allowed to talk and vote as they please. It is also understood that there will not likely be any amendments to the Finance Minister's tariff and taxation proposals in their final stages of consideration.

Royal Theatre

We present an entire change of pictures for to-day and to-morrow, with ten reels of first run goods, specially selected from best makers of three continents. There is something new every day, as we are now running forty reels a week. Our patrons know that the Royal presents the best picture show in Canada.

THE RIGHT MUST WIN.

German, in its new spasm of offensive, is using liquid fire as an application of frightfulness. Is this somewhat natural to expect? Who has any reasonable doubt that the Kaiser has a close alliance with a power that has an unlimited supply of liquid fire—a very lake of it! Seriously, the Teutonic powers are plainly in league with a power that represents the supremest elements of evil. Have you read all the stories of the actions of the Germans, especially been devilish and damnable? The outrages and inhumanities that Germany has practiced could never come from the most degraded human passions and influences. Nothing but Satanic help could have suggested this. We have grown up and been trained, and lived in the belief that Turkey, and the Turks, were the embodiment of atrocity, and many thought that in allying herself with Turkey, Germany had degraded herself and outraged humanity and civilisation. But as things have come to pass, Germany was honoured more than degraded by the Alliance, since moslim Turkey is inferior in morals and humanity, superior to "Christian" Germany. Apart from our trust in the strength, valour and resources of the Allies, our hope of victory can reasonably rest in the certainty that the divine authority will not permit so monstrous an embodiment of evil and wrong to triumph. It cannot be that wrong can effectively and permanently overcome right.

THE 57TH BAND.

We can heartily commend the ambition of the City Council to keep down expenses, which means keeping down the tax rate. They are certainly making heroic efforts at paring the civic estimates and, in the main are not succeeding badly in keeping down the rate of taxation to a certain figure. But it is questionable whether the main body of the citizens would not rather have a fraction of a mill higher assessment than do without some things they would like to have. It is necessary to economize, but it does not seem to be a popular thing, nor a thing in popular interests, nor a fair and grateful thing to concentrate so much economy upon the 57th Band by bisecting its grant. The city fathers should bear in mind what we owe this organization. For the past forty years or so the Band has catered to, and contributed to, the pleasure of the citizens. It has for years been a rallying point of the 57th Regiment and with that has, in turn, been the rallying point of the plentiful recruiting Peterborough has done in the past twenty months. Both the Regiment and the Band have contributed largely, personally, as well as morally, to our contingents. Considering what the Band has done in the past, in the public interests, is it grateful to turn the cold shoulder now, and cripple it to the point of depriving the public of the pleasure of the weekly concerts given? The women of Peterborough are doing noble service for our soldiers. Some of them are keeping themselves tired out with their war work. Couldn't a park concert, when they, as many would do, would take their knitting and knit and listen, be made some sort of compensation for the splendid work they are doing? We do not want to interfere injuriously—heaven forbid!—with the work of economy the City Council has undertaken; but it is to be hoped that they will find some way to keep down the rate to a popular point, without doing the unpopular action of cutting off the band with a shilling. Here is a suggestion that may help: The civic appropriations contain $200 for tree trimming. Now, our trees need trimming far more than the Band grant does. But could we not postpone tree trimming for a year at least and turn over the $200 to be voted for that purpose to the amount we are willing to give the Band. That would make the grant $450, and by a little straining, we might arrive at the normal grant of $500. We want the strictest economy, but there is an economy that amounts to waste. We have the moral effects upon the city's good name to consider. One point in this connection to consider is, what value in reputation Peterborough would lose by keeping the tax rate down by downing the Band. Would a tax rate a fraction high give more injury to our reputation than the fact that a flourishing city of 25,000 had to show a spirit of economy that would eliminate, practically, a Band that we had supported for forty years, and had considered essential to our pleasure and position among civic communities.

THE CANADIAN SPIRIT.

When Canadians entered this war—with both feet—they felt impelled by duty; but they hardly expected that ordinary Canadians, the men we meet from day to day, as prosaic, every-day citizens, would put on the spirit of heroes with their khaki, and not only valiantly help our cause but give us grounds for the pride we can legitimately feel that Canada is the breeding ground of heroes. If we seek for an explanation of the fact that men, fresh from the plough, the bench, the yard stick, the desk, should, after a few months' training develop a military efficiency that has made them capable of holding their own, and more than their own, and at big odds, too, against Germany's life-drilled, professional soldiers—if we seek an explanation of this, shall we not find it in the spirit of the Canadian, whether a civilian or a soldier? Our robust climate, our vast, our continental out-of-doors, our free, full life, our reliance upon ourselves, our love of right, our pride of racial ancestry our inborn, inbred and ingrained faith and trust in the beauty and benefit of British freedom uder British institutions—all these—have created a spirit of confidence without bumptuousness, a spirit of justified trust in ourselves, which, strengthened by trust in the righteousness of our cause, adds strength to the arm and fills the mind with resource, the heart with courage. It is the Canadian spirit that shines out in the achievements of the battlefield, in the patient and hardy suffering of hardship, and pain, and wounds, that is an asset of the Canadian soldier makes him the best fighter, having regard to all-round qualifications in this great world war.

How the Canadian spirit conquers in the greatest extremities and in the most trying conditions, is well illustrated by two or three incidents related by Sir Robert Borden in a speech delivered to the Canadian Club, Ottawa, on his return from a visit to the Canadians at the front in Flanders. Sir Robert says:

Might I relate one or two brief incidents? Those visits were so crowded with incidents which never can escape my memory that I could speak of them to you all the afternoon.

One Canadian officer, who had passed through the great battle of Ypres untouched, was wounded at Festubert. He received three bullets in his right arm, four in his left leg. I saw him when he was just out of hospital. He could hardly use his right arm at all. He was returning to his home in the West, in order to assist in harvesting the crop on his farm, and thence to the front as soon as his wounds would permit. He had offered his services—not only offered but pulled wires to get to the front—in the very first week of the war.

I said to him, "Did the surgeon remove all these bullets at one operation?"

"Well, Sir," he said, "he missed a few of them the first time—he missed a few."

"Tell me about it," I said.

He replied: "My left shoulder pained me and it would not heal."

"What happened?"

"I insisted that the surgeon should open it up again."

I asked: "With what result?"

"Well," he said, "he found three little pieces of shell and a piece of my shirt, and after that I got well."

Why Is the Kaiser Fighting, With All Hope of Victory Gone?

The complete collapse of the German campaign in the East is of deadly significance to the German people. The Turks are still keeping up a feeble, half-hearted warfare in which they are suffering the same steady succession of defeats as the Germans are meeting in France. The Teutons seem to have left the Turks to their fate; and scarcely take the trouble now to chronicle that there is "nothing to report" from the eastern field. The Huns are beaten, or being beaten, all along the line. Even the vaunted submarine campaign against merchant shipping is a complete failure. Nobody will believe that the Grand Admiral and Lord High Baby Killer resigned because the submarine warfare was a success. It is all very well to say that the resignation implies no change in policy, but if so what was the row about between von Tirpitz and von Behman-Hollweg, and what does the Chancellor's victory consist? The Kaiser may try to keep up appearances by bestowing iron crosses and honours upon the fallen monarch of the canal, but it will not alter the fact that another pilot—or pirate—has been dropped. That von Tirpitz is a sick man is probably true, but monumental failure is enough to make any man sick.

The defeat of von Tirpitz is a big victory for President Wilson, the United States, the Imperial German Chancellor, and even for the Kaiser, whose evil genius he has been for many years—and it is one of the few victories the Kaiser has scored in the war. Even the German people are to be congratulated. The resignation of the Grand Admiral removes from an influential position the man who was referred to years ago as the greatest mischief-maker in Europe. How he secured his extraordinary influence over his sovereign is a mystery—it may have been by his consistent flattery of the great potentate who has an insatiable appetite for that kind of taffy. If His Majesty wants to complete his moral victory, and partly restore himself to the good graces of the American people, he should now recall Count von Bernstorff, the greatest mischief maker in America—and then abdicate himself; he having been second only to von Tirpitz as a mischief-maker in Europe.

Why the Kaiser is prolonging the war after all hope of victory has gone is an interesting problem. The longer the war lasts the worse off Germany will be. Perhaps to stave off for a time the coming German revolution which will end the Hohenzollern dynasty. Dr. Anton Nystrom, a popular Swedish author, says: "Failing war with other powers, there must be a devastating revolution, with civil war in Germany, when the workers, reduced to desperation, will find themselves disappointed in their expectation of German power and prosperity. In this revolution, which will be the work of the Socialists, the Government will no longer be able to count on the present universal discipline amongst its soldiers, for millions of them are Socialists and Republicans, and millions will rise to fight under the stress of starvation." The French Revolution over again, but worse in its immediate effects. The Kaiser may postpone the evil day, but he cannot avert it, and the longer it is postponed the worse it will be; because the army and the people will have the more time to realize how they have been betrayed and humbugged to their own ruin.—Montreal Herald.

I saw another Canadian—let me speak of him for just a moment—a man who was wounded in the most shocking way, in the brain, with shrapnel, while he was delivering an order under the direction of General Currie. I would not undertake to describe to you that wound as it was described to me. That man walked between three and four hundred yards to give a message to General Currie, and fell unconscious. Everyone thought he was dead. His wife, almost frantic, succeeded in getting to France through the indefatigable efforts of Sir Max Aitken, who went to Lord Kitchener, himself, before he accomplished it. She found him in a British hospital in France. They had to remove parts of his brain, and the physician said, "That man will never be able to speak." He was not able to speak for a long time, but, fortunately, as the wound healed speech came back. I had him at my rooms in London; took him to dinner at a celebrated inn, "Ye Cheshire Cheese," and, so far as I could observe, he had thoroughly regained his speech, except for the occasional misplacing of a word, which he usually corrected.

We received this morning a pamphlet containing a collection of speeches delivered by Sir Robert Borden, in England, Canada, and the United States, since the war came. While these speeches, eloquent, patriotic and appreciative of Canadian help in the war, and of the quality of the Canadian soldiers are inspiring and encouraging, perhaps none of them, or all of them contains nothing to arouse Canadian pride and confirm Canadian confidence than the demonstration of the spirit of Canadian soldiers revealed in the little incidents quoted above. They reveal a spirit that is indomitable, even when the arm of flesh fails. We, at home, enjoying peace and plenty; with the current of our lives unruffled, above the deep flowing under-current of our interest in the war, may think we make sacrifices. But we can count them as trifles when we see what our fighting lads do and suffer with unshaken courage and cheerfulness; and we can picture ourselves as willing to endure still greater sacrifices when, as in the case of our soldiers, the test may come. The courage of our soldiers should give us courage, and spur us to still greater exertions to help the cause for which they are so gallantly fighting.

VERDUN A TERRIBLE GERMAN DEFEAT.

Demoralization has set in among the German troops before Verdun. Every report of an infantry attack by the Germans now states that the advance was made in spiritless fashion, as though the men were convinced beforehand that it was doomed to failure. One French officer is reported as saying that the very sight of the piles of German corpses over which attackers must pass has spread terror among the German forces, against which all efforts to rally the men to the charge are vain.

We are now in the fourth week of the Verdun battle, and there is every indication that it may now be definitely proclaimed as a great defeat for the Germans. This battle represents the maximum effort of Germany. Never before in all history have so many guns and so many men been massed for an attack of a single point. Never has there been such a vast expenditure of ammunition and of human material for the purpose of crushing a way through an opponent's ranks.

But against the mightiest efforts of Germany, the French line has stood as firm as a wall of steel. The Germans have sought to pour such a rain of high explosive shells on Verdun that nothing could live upon any square inch of the country. They have been answered shell for shell by the French. They have tried to choke the French cannon by pouring human beings upon them in vast numbers like clouds of locusts. The famous French "seventy-fives" have proved that they can belch death faster than Germany can belch men. Verdun stands stronger to-day than ever it did. It has had the maximum test applied to it, and has come through triumphant. Germany has suffered the most terrible defeat of the whole war. In the crumpling up of the German military power before Verdun we see the beginnings of demoralization and disintegration for a military power that less than two short years ago believed itself to be in a position to conquer and enslave the world.—Herald.

RIO JANIERO, March 21.—Dr. Lauro Muller, Brazilian Minister of Foreign Affairs, in an interview with a representative of the Imparcial, who questioned him regarding the statement made in the Nacion, of Buenos Ayres, that the American republics are exchanging views on the question of utilizing German and Austrian vessels, said that so far no common action had been attempted. He added that there would be no motive for surprise, however, if a common or parallel action in this sense were undertaken by the different countries which are working under the same inspiration.

146th Battalion of Kingston to Meet 93rd on Friday

Peterborough fans will have an opportunity of seeing another good hockey game this week. The 146th Battalion team of Kingston, fathered by Capt. Jas. T. Sutherland, the President of the O.H.A., has challenged the 93rd Battalion to home-and-home games for military honours, and the local soldiers have promptly accepted the duel. The Kingston khaki lads will be here Friday night for the first game, and they expect to tear the Peterborough soldiers from off their pedestal. The 146th include in their line-up some of the stars of the Kingston Frontenacs, and Friday night's game should be every bit as interesting as Monday's game with the sportsmen.

Another good game is scheduled for Monday night, when the Lindsay Athletic Club will clash with the Electrics.

comb, another holdall for needles and thread and mending equipment, soap and cleaning materials. There is a strap attached for carrying the blanket or waterproof sheet. The haversack contains the washable ration bag and both pack and haversack are designed to absolutely protect the contents from dust, wet or loss. The water-bottle can be detached and restored to its position with great ease and there is no necessity of removing the bottle from the container to use it.

This equipment, which is to be known as the Canadian 1916 pattern, is the latest word in designing for soldiers' comforts, and the 93rd battalion will be equipped with the 1916 pattern.

His many friends will be pleased to learn that "Billy" Allen, a Peterborough boy, who left here with the 39th Battalion, and who is now on the firing line with the 39th Battalion, has been promoted to corporal at the front. His battalion has seen some hard fighting, and Corp. Allen has had some narrow escapes.

The officers and non-coms. of the 93rd Battalion are to clash in a basketball game in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Friday night.

Soldiers Life at Camp.

Some time in the near future the 93rd Battalion will be going to camp, where the life will be very pleasant for the soldiers. The hours for training are not very long and there is plenty of time for sports and other forms of amusement. Athletic contests are always being arranged between the different platoons and companies as well as the different battalions. In camp the men learn to know each other and everyone looks upon the other as his "pal," for whom he would make every possible sacrifice and upon whom he can rely in time of danger.

Every facility will be given to the men for making life pleasant and agreeable for them such as to allow chums to occupy the same tent and to be together as much as possible. The mainstay of the Canadian expeditionary forces is their wonderful courage and moral and this can only be attained by all the men knowing each other and fully realizing that they are all one body, who are fighting with the one end in view. The 93rd Peterborough Battalion is very happy in this respect, as one has only to walk through the armouries to satisfy themselves on this point or to attend one of the Battalion hockey games and see the esprit de corps that exists between all the members of the unit.

If you are short of baking powder, sift together one part of bicarbonate of soda and two parts of cream of tartar.

Colonel Allen, the New Zealand Minister of Defence, is explaining the conversion of the New Zealand Expeditionary Force into a division says that reinforcements have so accumulated that there will be no difficulty in keeping up the numbers provided the present rate of recruiting is maintained.

KING GEORGE'S MEN

(By Mrs. Jean Blewett.)

I.

We bade farewell to the hills of home
With a cheer that echoed back,
And we cried Hurrah for Canada,
Hurrah for the Union Jack,
Hurrah for the lads in the khaki coats,
For the soldiers true and bold,
Hurrah for the sweethearts left behind,
Hurrah for the hearts of gold.

CHORUS.

Oh, we're off to fight for our country,
We march to the bugle's call,
With a thundering cheer for the world to hear
We are Britons, one and all.
Oh we dare to do and we dare to die,
We lads of the hill and glen.
God Save the King is the song we sing,
We are all King George's men.

II.

The bit of God's earth that gave us birth
Bred us loyal to the core.
And we'll never cease nor cry for peace
Till the foemen fight no more.
For we take our stand with a purpose grand
While the brutal enemy cowers,
We'll stand for Right, and strike for Right,
And fight till the day is ours.

III.

It is good to fight in Freedom's cause,
So we make that cause our own,
And we'll do our best at the King's behest,
Till our foes are lying prone.
And low in the dust they soon must lie,
When their schemes have comes to grief,
For we stand to win in the battle's din,
We men of the Maple Leaf.

HIDES WITH HER BABY IN ABANDONED MEXICAN MINE

EL PASO, Texas, March 21.—Mrs. Wallace Rogers of Detroit, Mich., arrived here to-day with her infant, fifteen months old, and told how she had hidden with her baby for two days in the shaft of an abandoned mine near Cananea from Mexican bandits. Mrs. Rogers' husband is interested in the mining property near Cananea but was away from home when the little colony fled on the approach of the bandits.

"The whole country around where I was living," said Mrs. Rogers, "was filled with abandoned mines, the shafts of some of which had been sunk two thousand feet or more. Most of the American men were away when we heard of the approach of the bandits. We fled to one of the abandoned mines, carrying whatever food we could snatch up. One of the men took my baby and we crawled down an abandoned shaft by ladders until we reached the 1,000 foot level. Here we remained for twenty-four hours.

"Finally as we heard no shooting, one of the men ventured to the surface. He reported everything quiet, and we returned to our homes. We had hardly reached there, however, when we again heard that the bandits were coming. This time we went down to the 1,500 foot level, where we remained another day. We were in a little slope about ten feet square. We had no light of any kind and I had only a couple of cans of condensed milk to feed my baby. We just sat there on the floor in the blackness and prayed. At last we could stand it no longer. I think we would have all gone mad if we had stayed there. We crawled up into the sunshine. There was no sign of the bandits and we made our way safely to Cananea, where we got a train.

Mrs. Rogers declared that the Mexican bandits not only had no respect for the American flag but that it actually incited them to outrages. The only flag that offered any protection at all she said, was the British flag.

"I am bitterly ashamed to admit it," she said, "but whenever trouble started we began to hunt for a Union Jack. It was by no means a bullet proof shield, but it was the only flag I ever saw that the Mexicans paid any deference to. There was a young Englishman who committed suicide where I was. The Mexicans thought he was an American and they hurriedly dug a shallow hole and were going to put him away without ceremony when the officer in command overheard some one say: 'I wish we knew where his mother is, so we could notify her. She is somewhere in England, but I do not know where.' The officer stopped the burial, and asked if the suicide was an Englishman. When he learned that he was he ordered the body embalmed and tried for four days to get in touch with an English Consul."

Another refugee, who reached here to-day, had travelled two hundred miles through Mexico on a motorcycle in search of safety. He was employed on the "O. T." ranch, in Eastern Chihuahua.

"There were three of us on the ranch," said the refugee, "when we heard that a band of Mexican soldiers were going to pay us a visit. We were told they were Carranza followers, but we did not stop to inquire their politics or anything else about them. I jumped on my motorcycle and travelled about ten miles in as many minutes. Then I got lost and wandered over the country for hours trying to find the border. Twice I was pursued by mounted Mexicans, but my 'cycle was too fast for them. I was fired at a couple of times, but the bullets went wild. My gasolene was almost exhausted when I at last saw the Rio Grande."

Refugees continue to arrive here and at other points along the border but the majority of them refuse to discuss conditions in Mexico in any way, as they fear their property in that country would be destroyed if they aroused the resentment of the Mexicans.

Greek Inefficiency Causes High Prices

ATHENS, March 15.—"Greece is much more likely to be starved into war than Germany is to be starved out of it," said a prominent official of the present Greek Government to The Associated Press correspondent. The expression is scarcely accurate, for while the prices of the ordinary commodities of life, and especially foodstuffs, have in many instances doubled and in virtually all instances greatly increased in the last year, the fault is largely with Greece. If there be serious discomfort in the country it is quite as much due to bad internal management as to the mastery of the Mediterranean maintained by the Franco-British fleet. The "starving" process, therefore, is much more likely to lead to trouble for the present Greek Cabinet than, unaccompanied by any other circumstance, to Greece's enforced participation in the war.

For the common people of Greece the situation is rapidly growing desperate. The streets of Athens are alive with beggars. The island of Samos is in a state of sporadic revolt. Piraeus and Patras have had disquieting demonstrations of popular discontent under the increased cost of living. While a million and a quarter pounds of potatoes rot on the ground in Thessaly for lack of transport, the price of potatoes in Athens has risen from 24 cents to 48 cents a pound in the last year.

It is much the same with almost every other article of food normally within reach of people of moderate means. No cargoes of rice have been held up by the police boats of the Allied powers—yet rice which in January, 1915, was 4.9 cents a pound to-day brings 10.2 cents. Marcus, the principal meat consumed in Greece, was 10 cents a pound a year ago; now it fetches 19 cents—and Greece supplies her own mutton and to spare. Beef was 9.6 cents; now it is 21 cents a pound. Pork was 12.8 cents; now it is 30 cents; chickens were 80 cents, now they bring 72 cents—and the beef, pork and chickens consumed in Greece are raised in Greece. Fresh fish, in a country where fishing is one of the leading occupations, brought 13½ to 15 cents a year ago—and now runs from 75 cents to $1.00.

Onions for the peasant's soup cost 1.3 cents a pound in January, 1915; to-day the peasant must pay 4.6 cents a pound—or eat his soup unflavoured. Bread, when it can be had at all, which is by no means always, and even then only after hours of waiting in line before the bakeries, is 4.8 cents a pound, against 3.4 cents a pound a year ago.

In some instances this anomalous situation is due to the control exercised by the Allied fleet over the commerce of the Mediterranean. Notably has this been the case with coal and, until recently, with petroleum. It is not that the Allied powers deliberately hold up shipments of coal to Greece in order to cripple Greek internal transport, but that the Allied nations themselves have none too much coal to spare and certainly no very great number of vessels available for its carriage. If coal is high in Greece, so it is also in France; but the French Government has had the foresight to provide against anything like a coal famine, while the Greek Government has not.

It is on this account that from $40 to $80 a ton has been frequently offered for coal at the water's edge in Piraeus, with none to be had even at that price. For whenever coal does reach Greece it is snapped up by members of the present Cabinet and their friends to run their own factories—while the Greek Navy lacks the coal to enable its ships to police the Greek territorial waters against violations of neutrality.

Outside the questionable integrity and the unquestionable inefficiency with which Greece's resources are partitioned, the next leading cause of the rise in the cost of living in Greece has been the mobilization. With all the most able-bodied men of the country under arms, men are lacking and labour is high. The extraordinary advance in the fresh fish market is due largely to the fact that the greater part of the fishermen of Greece are mobilized. Olive oil has risen in Athens from 9½ cents in January, 1915, to 16.4 cents in January, 1916, owing to the scarcity of field labourers—for Greece exports olive oil in normal times.

TO USE 30,000 ALIENS IN GERMAN ARMY SERVICE

LONDON, March 20.— An Amsterdam dispatch says the municipal authorities in Germany have been instructed to take a census of all neutral foreigners who have lived in each city for more than five years.

Male foreigners who have lived uninterrupted for five years in Germany will be considered as having lost their previous citizenship and will be regarded as Germans, and therefore liable to military service. Men of fighting age, who number about 30,000 will be put to work in military offices so as to release men of the landsturm for the firing line.

EXQUISITE NEW MILLINERY

DAINTY NEW WASH GOODS

IT'S a perfect delight to view the New Summer Materials shown in the Wash Dress Goods Section of the Hall Store. They are all exclusive to us and come direct from the best makers in Europe. Don't fail to visit this Section of the Store on your next visit down town.

ONE of the first things you will notice about the New Hats is the beautiful color combinations which have been introduced. Rarely indeed are Hats and Trimmings of one shade. Delightful effects have been introduced by the adroit mingling of dark and gay tones, sometimes there will be as many as half-a-dozen shades on one hat but the colors will all be beautifully blended to form a very harmonious model.

Almost as varied and original as the colorings are the many New Shapes which the New Season has brought us.

Come and look them over. Moderate Prices rival beautiful styles in making this exhibit noteworthy.

SHIRKER CANNOT ESCAPE BEING CALLED TO COLOURS

Sir William Robertson Revises War Office Methods—Exemption Claims Granted Less Than 1 in 1,000

LONDON, March 20.—Sir William Robertson, Britain's hustling chief of the Imperial General Staff, the man who rose by merit from a trooper in the Ninth Lancers to a position in the British War Office, where for all practical purposes he now supersedes Lord Kitchener, is shaking John Bull from his lethargy in a way that bodes no good for Kaiser Wilhelm II.

Once he reigned supreme at the War Office Robertson set to work to change words into deeds. To the great surprise of every single man in this country who has not yet donned khaki, he has already called all the single men in the country from the ages of 19 to 40 to present themselves for military service by the end of the month of March, and if he has not then enough men in training he is going to call up also all the married men up to the age of 30. He means to have in hand by the beginning of April at the very latest the million additional men for the army which Parliament has given him authority to raise.

Sir William has stopped all the leaks by which single men enlisted under Lord Derby's scheme and the Military Service Act could escape service, and he means to have under arms at the earliest possible moment every man he needs for the successful prosecution of the 1916 campaign.

PROMPT TO ACT.

When Premier Asquith appointed Sir William Robertson chief of the Imperial General Staff he knew what to expect. He knew that whereas the country might resent any politician demanding the immediate mobilization of all the remaining single men and even of a large proportion of the married men. Sir William Robertson, backed by the authority of Lord Derby, could do the job and overcome the resistance of all the civilian government departments. One of Sir William's first acts has been to compel the revision of the long lists of single men who had been exempted from military service on the ground that they were indispensable to national industry, and has appointed a War Office committee to strike out all those occupations which ought never to have been classed as indispensable.

24,000 ASK EXEMPTION.

One local tribunal covering only a very limited area received the other day no fewer than 24,000 demands for exemption in the first two days during which it sat. Spurred by a general circular from the War Office that only men that absolutely cannot be dispensed with are to be declared absolutely exempt, it has freed completely from military service only half a dozen men.

The City of London Military Service Tribunal on the first day it sat found itself faced by no fewer than 19,000 demands for exemption; it allowed only three or four of them. A typical case in which exemption was allowed was that of an income tax expert who has to deal with some of the most complicated income tax claims in the city of London and whose services have proved invaluable to the Inland Revenue authorities for nearly ten years past.

WAR FIRST CONSIDERATION.

How the word "indispensable" has been misinterpreted by thousands of business firms, however, was shown by the appeals made by employers on behalf of workmen whom they considered indispensable to the conduct of their businesses. The employers entered long statements of claim urging that if the man concerned was taken from them and enrolled in the army their businesses would collapse.

"If you cannot do without this man," Sir T. Vesey-Strong, chairman of the City of London Tribunal, told a number of employers, "you must shut down your business. We have got to win the war whether your business go to the wall or not, and we must and mean to have the men."

When Lord Derby reported the result of his recruiting scheme it was stated that, married men and single, there were 1,606,000 "starred" or exempted workers.

As a result of the additions to the list of exempted occupations it is now computed, according to one of the leading members of Lord Derby's advisory committee, that there are no fewer than 2,500,000 men of military age who at present are as free as a parson from active service. This fact, taken in conjunction with the fact that the total number of men eligible for military service on the same date was 5,011,000, means that one-half of the men eligible for military service thought themselves safely hidden away in "indispensable" occupations.

INJUSTICE ENDED.

This is the glaring injustice which the indefatigable Sir William Robertson has wiped out. Many of the applicants for exemption seemed amazed when they were told that they were required for service immediately, but in justice to the men themselves it must be said that they accepted the verdict without a murmur of complaint.

The chairman of one London military service tribunal remarked: "These fellows are perfectly willing to go, but the fact of the matter is that they have been deceived by the politicians as to how soon their services would be required.

Photographed a Ghost in Weston Village, Says Yorkshire Vicar

LONDON, March 22.—A claim to have photographed a ghost was made by Rev. Charles Tweedale, vicar of Weston, Yorkshire, in an affidavit made before the Commissioner of Oaths and supported by Mrs. Tweedale and their son. Rev. Mr. Tweedale, who a few years ago attracted attention by his reports of psychical phenomena at the Weston Vivarage, told a correspondent of the Yorkshire Post that on December 20 last his wife, son and himself were at lunch about 1:30 in the afternoon, when suddenly his wife cried out that she saw an apparition of a man with a full head of hair and beard standing at the other side of the table, to the left hand of their son. Mrs. Tweedale directed attention to the figure, but neither he nor his son could distinguish it. Crying out hastily to his wife to keep it there, although on reflection he admits he does not know how Mrs. Tweedale could have compelled the figure to remain, he rushed off into an adjoining room and picked up his camera. Fortunately this was loaded with quarter plate slides, and without a moment's delay he returned to the morning room where they were lunching. He then placed the camera on the window sill and focussed it up some distance between the camera and the position where his wife still said she saw the figure. He gave an exposure of 25 seconds.

A Little Man.

Mrs. Tweedale described the man as a little man, and said the top of his head appeared to be about on a level with her son's shoulder. Mrs. Tweedale and the boy continued sitting at the table during the time the plate was being exposed. The resulting negative appears to have corroborated Mrs. Tweedale's vision. Mr. Tweedale explained that he personally developed the plate shortly afterward and it had not left his possession in the meantime. The negative, which was shown a reported by the vicar, is of quarter-plate size, and reproduces the corner of the morning room. In the foreground is the dining table, the white cloth on which reflects the light into a corner. Sitting at the table is Mr. Tweedale's son, and opposite him, towards the edge of the plate, there is the shadowy but distinct impression of the head and shoulders of a little old man with abundant hair and flowing beard. The figure, which appears to be in semi-recumbent position, almost hides that part of a piano which lies behind it, and this, in Mr. Tweedale's view, conclusively proves the apparition had definite objectivity, although invisible to the normal vision of himself and his son.

In response to a suggestion that the camera may have played a trick upon him, the vicar stated he had carefully examined the conditions as they were. At the time the camera was in perfect order, and the plate was taken from a new box of quarter-plates, and had not been previously exposed. No person of similar appearance ever has been photographed by him, and none of the family recognized the figure disclosed on the negative. His wife clairvoyantly saw the figure which she described, and upon a sensitive plate being exposed a figure was disclosed, and was recognized by Mrs. Tweedale as being like the man she saw.

FROMAN'S BABY STAR PLAYS ESSANY LEAD

Ann Murdock, young dramatic star, who appears in the leading feminine role of "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," Essanay's five-act comedy, taken from Clyde Fitch's fantastic comedy, is the youngest star ever picked by Charles Frohman to lead his companies in any big play. Miss Murdock is known as the "baby star" because of her extreme youth. The choosing of her by the dramatic impressario was the result of a year's furtive watching of her work. She was under the Harris banner when Frohman saw her first. He watched her for signs of genius and evidently he found it. Two years ago, she was offered a contract and signed immediately. She brings to the Clyde Fitch satire, all the whimsical talent that has made her famous and successful on the stage. Richard C. Travers plays the title role.

At the Empire Theatre To-morrow, Friday and Saturday. Two performances each afternoon and evening.

Four Ennismore Holsteins Give 89,503 Lbs. Milk

A short time ago 'Betilla of Riverside' (12854), one of the great producers in the Hirh-Lawn herd, owned by Joseph O'Reilly, R. R. 9, Peterborough, drew the attention of the Holstein world, when she completed her great record of 24,130 lbs. of milk and 1,055 1-4 lbs. of butter in one year, giving her the title of champion of the Holstein breed in the Dominion of Canada. Hardly had this record been realised by the admirers of the breed, when "Calamity Johanna Nig" (9006), a member of the same herd, completed a record of 25,443 lbs. of milk and 1,007 1-2 lbs. of butter, displacing the former cow by 1,313 lbs. of milk. This is the third time inside of three years that the herd has broken the Canadian record, and the fourth member to cross the 20,000 lb. mark in one year Average for the four, 23,373 lbs. of milk; a showing not equalled by any other herd in Canada. Aggregate weight of milk given by those four cows in one year, 89,503 lbs. Were they owned by a retailer selling milk at seven cents a quart, in the city they would bring the owner $3,103.69, besides producing four calves, worth over $300.00 each.

BROCK STREET RINK STILL SKATING THERE

This Week Will Likely See a Lot of Skating at the Rink

Yesterday, the 21st of March, is looked upon as the first day of spring and it felt that way. Skating will undoubtedly be over in a short while. As long as there is ice there will be skating at Brock street rink. Good skating to-night. 93rd Battalion Band in attendance.

SEE OVER TELEPHONE.

Dr. Bell Talks of Future Feats on the Telephone.

BOSTON, March 22.—In one of the very few interviews ever granted, Dr. Alexander Bell, inventor of the telephone, told Monday an interesting story about his efforts to find an ear in connection with the telephone, and incidentally dents the old belief about early to bed, early to rise.

Prof. Bell surprised those who talked with him by saying that for more than forty years his retiring hour has been from 3 a.m. to 4 a.m.

Dr. Bell prefers to do his thinking after midnight, when the world is asleep. He says that he has always been able to do better work from midnight until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning than at any other time.

Dr. Bell says frankly that he never dreamed of wireless telephony.

Prof. Bell said that before long he looked for the transmission of sight over the telephone.

Dr. Bell also said that he looked forward to a wonderful development of telepathy, when men will go about with coils of wire in their hats sending and receiving messages.

BRITISH REGAINED BOMBING POST.

LONDON, March 22.—A British official statement tells of the enemy rushing a bombing post after heavy artillery fire, but were immediately driven out and that there was considerable artillery fire about the Hohenzollern redoubt, north of Ypres, and near Loos.

GIRLS! HAVE WAVY, THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Save Your Hair! Double Its Beauty in a Few Moments—Try This!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

Arts and Crafts Column

In this column, conducted by Mr. Hughens Johnstone, painter and decorator, 320 College Street, will be answered on Wednesdays—questions of the kind given below, for the benefit of those who, in this period of strict economy and enforced and supported economy, might like doing their own work. Questions relating to painting, sign-writing, paperhanging, furniture polishing, and decorating, may be sent to The Examiner, and will receive attention in due course.

W. J. B., Peterborough, Ont.: Is there any way to mix plaster paris so that it will not harden so quickly? There are a lot of holes and cracks in the plaster of my house. But the plaster paris gets hard so awful quick I cannot use it, and, moreover, it seems to crumble and fall out. What will make it stick in its place?

Ans.: Plasterers sometimes mix lime and sand with plaster paris. Painters often mix whiting and sometimes glue. For an amateur I would suggest this: Mix whiting and water to a stiff paste. Then mix an equal quantity of plaster paris and vinegar to a paste, after which, thoroughly mix the two pastes. Now wet the edges of the holes or cracks, then plaster them level. If you follow the above you will find the plaster paris will not set or harden so fast.

Andrew, Cavan, Ont.: Please tell me how to get bubbles out of the paper on the wall. I am not a real paper-hanger, and have only a few sheets on, but they are all bubbles. I am waiting for an answer.

Ans.: There are a great many causes for blisters. What caused yours I cannot tell. Some papers blister if soaked too much with paste, others require to be soaked or they will blister. One has to be familiar with the respective nature of the particular paper to know how to handle it. I would advise you to experiment. Paste a sheet and apply it to the wall quickly. If it blisters at once, wait until it dries. They may dry out. If not, try soaking the next one for 10 or 15 minutes. You will in that way learn which is best. A bed castor makes a very handy little roller to roll out the blisters.

Wee Wun, Peterborough, Ont.: Kindly answer the following: (1) What does "stippling" mean and how is it done? (2) Is there more than one grade of turpentine? The other week you said to specify a certain brand of white lead and a particular kind of oil, but do you really know there is more than one kind of turpentine? (3) Are there only boiled and raw linseed oil? and which is best for priming?

Ans.: (1) Stippling is a process following the application of paint, distemper, varnish, etc. If paint is used, a good full coat is laid on, then with the butt end of the bristles of the stippling brush, the surface is patted all over, giving a full effect and destroying brush marks. (2) Yes! I really know there is more than one kind of turpentine, and in the article referred to I said "pure turpentine" and "pure linseed oil." It would be just as reasonable to expect me to specify where the flaxseed should be grown from which the linseed oil was to be made, as to specify where the tree should grow from which the turpentine was to be extracted. I think the designation "pure" should suffice, especially when the turps is used as a vehicle for paint. It may be Georgia, American, or Southern turpentine. Certainly no sane person would think of using the other kinds of turpentine, such as Venice, Canada balsam, Chio, Bordeaux, etc., to thin paint with. (3) There are more kinds than simply raw and boiled linseed oil. For instance, pale boiled, double boiled, cold pressed, hot pressed, or, as it is usually termed, "cold drawn." Raw linseed oil is better than the boiled for most priming, when used in the proper proportion.

A WONDER WORKER.

"It heals like magic!" is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, Scarlet's fever, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic it prevents blood poisoning.

Music & Drama

WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE.

The musical comedy, "When Dreams Come True" a melange of melodrama, farce and spectacle, pleased a large audience at the Grand Opera House last night. Bright and lively with an abundance of pretty music, pretty costumes and pretty girls and plenty of unusually good dancing, Philip Bartholomae's production was enjoyable from curtain to curtain. Barrett Greenwood was scored heavily both in musical numbers and his dances while Miss Lorraine Lester was delightful as "Beth" the "dream girl." The chief comedy was supplies by Harlem Briggs as "Hercules Strong" a detective, and Miss Marguerite Wolf as "Matilda." The most successful song number was the waltz, "When Dreams Come True." A violin specialty was one of the most enjoyable features.

WILL GOVERNMENT OFFER STREET RAILWAY TO CITY?

It Was Announced in the Eight Million Dollar Purchase and Will Likely Be Offered to Peterboro' at a Very Favourable Price.

Considerable interest has attached to the Peterborough Radial Railway since the Provincial government announced its purchase as one of the properties acquired with the Trent power plants and distributing systems at an outlay of $8,250,000. Passing from private to public ownership, the street railway may become one of the city's growing list of public utilities. Not that Peterborough has shown of late any strong desire to increase its indebtedness but Mayor Duffus and ex-Mayor Boller both expressed the opinion that the government would be inclined to offer the railway to the city at the most favourable terms. Mr. G. F. Robertson, the general manager, Toronto, went over the local lines yesterday and it was reported that it is the intention to make no change in the executive staff that has been managing the railway for the company.

There has been no announcement whatever of the government's plans locally, and it is unlikely that the disposition of the railway has been discussed definitely or that any decision has been reached in that direction. Probably there is no special significance in this purchase and its relation to the proposed Hydro radials in Eastern Ontario. It is understood that the question of radial routes and other details are now under consideration and certainly the acquisition of the chain of power units necessitates numerous sources of revenue, among which it is believed a rural radial system would not be the least productive. It might be expected that the local street railway was regarded as the nucleus of the radials promised for these counties but the other opinion appears the more probable that the city will be given an opportunity to purchase and presently own the local system. Some of the City Fathers have on occasion turned envious eyes toward it but the cost usually dulled the edge of their ambitions.

Pennant Club Entertained

The Pennant Club of Murray St. Church entertained the young ladies to a concert and the shooter last night, at which a large number was present. Mr. Walter Irvine gave a talk on the manufacture of aprons, whitewear, etc., which was intensely interesting. Miss Doris Rathbone was in fine voice, singing an old-fashioned song that just suited the occasion. Mr. W. F. Moule, with his usual store of humor, acted as master of ceremonies. The presence of the pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb, and Mrs. Webb, was greatly appreciated, as they kept things humming by their jollity. Their youth was renewed last night, for, when all joined hands with crossed arms, singing patriotic songs, they roused the young folks to jolly laughter. After singing the National Anthem all went home happy and with a satisfied feeling only obtained after pie and cocoa.

2,000 VESSELS THE WAR'S TOLL OF SHIPPING

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 22.—The European war has taken from the seas more than two thousand merchant vessels of nearly 4,000,000 tonnage, according to figures published by the Department of Commerce. Germany, with six hundred vessels sunk, captured or detained, heads the list of losers.

Two hundred and twenty-five of the 500 British vessels lost were sunk by submarines. Great Britain's Allies lost 80 and Turkey 134. The total of neutral losses is put at 736, but most of these were released after being reported captured.

Ninety-two neutral vessels have been submarined and 94 sunk by mines. Twenty-three have been damaged by submarines and mines.

Old Families Selling English Estates

LONDON, March 21.—Thousands of stately homes of England are changing hands, according to the real estate authorities. The old owners in many instances have been forced by increased taxes to seek more moderate places. Some of these estates are being purchased by persons who have profited by the war through contracts.

There is talk of wholesale migration with predictions that country life will undergo a revolution such as perhaps England has not witnessed since the Norman Conquest. Many of the estates may even be cut up and parcelled out among disbanded soldiers whose jobs are gone and for whom no other employment can be found.

In discussing the effects of the war upon the landed gentry, Frank Hirst, a widely known economist, said that it was only a natural result and that these persons would feel the pinch more than the poorer o'asses for many years to come.

"It is impossible," he said, "to arrive at anything better than an approximate estimate of the economic cost of the war. The more economic effect of the loss of hundreds of thousand of young men in the prime of life and vigor is almost incalculable. We may safely assume that by November we had lost through the war about a tenth of all the wealth we possessed.

"The present public expenditure of the Government is believed to be about equal to the whole of the private incomes of the inhabitants of the United Kingdom put together. We are now adding to the national debt every five or six weeks what we added during the three years of the Boer war. We spend as much in a minute as we then spent in half an hour.

"If Alfred the Great had lived till now, and had throughout his long life of more than a thousand years buried one five-pound Bank of England note every hour of the day and night, he would not have destroyed nearly as much money as is being added every fortnight to the national debt."

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—You have at different times favored me with printing what I have written. I request the same favour once more, being a reader of the Examiner.

Now, forty-two years ago this winter, the late James Stratton came and conducted a temperance meeting, or helped to, about one mile from where I lived in Otonabee. I think he was at that time Manager of the Examiner. So if, with your increased circulation, you have gone back in any way from those principles I, for one, am sorry, as I believe we have taken the paper ever since that time and, perhaps, before. One other thing about James Stratton impressed me very favourably: Some years ago I was standing on the Market selling, or trying to sell, farm produce, and talking to another man, when Mr. Stratton came along. He spoke and passed on a piece and stopped until the first man left, and then came back and told me how sick he had been of late. I said to him, you thought the end or close might be near; (yes). I pressed further. How did things appear in regard to the great future; and he gave me assurance that all was bright, through the merits of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. He passed away soon after. Some things appear very clear to me. "Call upon Me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee and thou shalt glorify Me." Although mixed with much bungling in a membership in a Christian Church or Churches for upwards of 53 years, I have had abundant chance to prove the first part of that verse, true, in my own experience. Jesus died on the Cross to make freedom from sin possible. The Holy Scripture dwells within me to make freedom from sin actual. The Holy Spirit does in me what Jesus did for me, or if you would like it this way: The Lord Jesus makes a deposit in the bank on my account. The spirit checks the money out, and puts it into my hands.

I have a never-failing bank,
A more than golden store;
No earthly bank is half so rich.
How then can I be poor?

'Tis when my stock is spent and gone,
And I without a groat;
I am glad to hasten to my bank,
To beg a little note.

Some times my banker, smiling, says:
Why don't you oftener come?
And when you take a one-pound note,
Why not a larger sum?

Why live so niggardly and poor?
Your bank contains a plenty;
Why come and take a one-pound note
When you can have a 'twenty'?

Yes twenty thousand ten times told
Is but a trifling sum
To what my Father has laid up
Secure in Christ, His Son.

Since then, my banker is so rich,
I have no cause to borrow;
I live upon my cash to-day,
And draw on Him to-morrow.

All forged notes will be refused;
Man's merits be rejected.
There is not one single note will pass,
That God has not accepted.

Should all the banks of Britain break;
The Bank of England smash.
Bring in your notes to Zion's bank,
You will surely get the cash.

In regard to this awful war, it has seemed to me that I could see some super-human influence at work at some times to stop the Germans; and though I could never say, as man have said, they were willing to go into the fighting line, and, if need be, die for the country, I believe there is a power vastly superior to sword, shell, or submarine.

As the Archbishop of Canterbury pointed out: England on her knees at home can accomplish more, perhaps, than England fighting in or out of the trenches.

When we learn from Isaiah: "Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doing from before mine eyes. Cease to do evil; learn to do well.

While this doubtless applies to the individual, doubtless it is also for the Nation. Do we not all admit that the liquor trade is an evil? Will a Holy God favour us with victory while we shelter what we know and believe to be an evil in the Nation?

"Billy" Sunday says, if you live wrong, you cannot die right; and he also says, no man has any business to be in a bad business.

Rome Resents Greece's Action

ROME, via PARIS, March 22.—Advices received here from Athens that a royal decree has been issued proclaiming the annexation of Northern Epirus, Albania, to Greece is causing some concern, the annexation being regarded in official circles as a violation of the decision of the London conference concerning Albania.

A despatch from Athens on March 8 said Greece had decided to proceed to the complete financial and administrative assimilation of the province of Northern Epirus, Deputies from which had already been seated in the Greek Chamber.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine loose the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Sherwood, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

Byersville Sunday School Pupils Awarded Prizes

Making a Total of 190 Childr n Who Are Receiving Prizes For Regular Attendance at the Army's Three Sunday Schools.

The first annual presentation of prizes to the pupils who most regularly attended Sunday School during the year took place last night in the Byersville Sunday School. Twenty-three children were rewarded with valuable souvenirs of their regularity and promptness in attending Sunday School. Adjt. McElheney and Sergt.-Major R. C. Braund were present and greatly encouraged the scholars. The Boys' Band played during the evening, and a feature of the programme was the Red Cross act presented by the Corps Cadets under the direction of their Guardian, Mrs. T. Lang. This first year's success of the Byersville Sunday School is largely due to the faithful and careful supervision of the Superintendent, Mr. J. J. Cunningham.

The young folks who won the prizes late night were:

Prizes will be presented shortly to the children at Brailey's Sunday School, which will make a total of 190 prizes from the Salvation Army to their most diligent pupils in the three Sunday Schools at the Simcoe St. Temple, Byersville and Brailey's, in North Monaghan. The advancement of the Sunday School has always been one of Mr. R. C. Braund's main concerns, and the success it has attained may in a large measure be attributed to him.

JEAN CRONES INDICTED.

Gigantic Anarchist Plot to Murder 200 Guests Disclosed.

CHICAGO, March 21.—Evidence tending to disclose a gigantic anarchist conspiracy to murder two hundred or more guests attending the banquet tendered Archbishop Mundelein was presented to the March grand jury yesterday. Jean Crones, the alleged poisoner of the soup which was served to the guests, was indicted.

While Crones was the only person indicted, it was admitted in the State Attorney's office that five other persons are being sought, some as witnesses and others as principals.

Defy Dyspepsia!

Among the symptoms of Dyspepsia or Indigestion may be mentioned a heavy, cutting pain soon after eating; a distended, full feeling of the stomach and bowels; belching of wind and flatulence; a burning sensation in the stomach, which indicates acidity; heartburn; palpitation of the heart; oppression of breathing; pain under the ribs and shoulder-blades; headache through the temples and eyes; dizziness, coated tongue and constipation; sometimes nausea or vomiting.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt is the natural specific for all these conditions. Being an antacid, it immediately relieves the acidity of the stomach and stops the fermentation. It stimulates the secretion and muscular action of the stomach and bowels, and overcomes the constipation. When its use is kept up the normal action of all the organs of digestion is re-established.

ANNUAL DANCE WAS A SUCCESS

Members of 93rd Battalion Took Part in Concert That Was Held in Keene

KEENE, March 22. — The annual skaters' dance that has for several years been held in the Town Hall on the night of St. Patrick's day, March 17th, Friday last, was a night enjoyed by a large crowd and was greatly helped out by a number of the boys in khaki from the 93rd Battalion. A vote of appreciation was extended to Messrs. D. McFarlane, J. Miller and Miss Graham, pianist, who furnished the music for the evening. Also to David Moore (Pony), floor manager.

Personals.

Mr. Lorne Robertson, who has been for several days under quarantine for measles, is now able to be out again.

Miss Josephine Kennaley, who has been visiting friends in Campbellford, Hastings and other points, returned home last Friday.

Mr. Harold Roach, who has been for several weeks on the sick list, will soon be able to resume work at the anvil.

Mr. Walter Humphries and wife of Asphodel, spent Friday and Saturday last at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Humphries.

Mr. William Wedlock has sold his fine residence on Main street to Mr. Nelson Redpath.

Miss Annie Smith left on Monday to visit her parents at Bridgenorth.

F. A. Eason, deputy reeve, is reported very sick at his home with an abscess in the throat.

Pte. John Wedlock of the 93rd Battalion, after several days at home with his parents on Main street, returned to Peterborough Monday last.

Mrs. Wesley Montgomery of Villiers, spent a few days in the village last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wedlock.

Will Retire.

Mr. Gilbert Hewson, a member of the township council, owing to bad health, has rented his farm to Richard Doris, and a sale of his thoroughbred stock of cattle, and farm implements will be offered for sale on April 11th. Mr. Howson is retiring for a year or two under the doctor's care.

SUICIDE TO AVOID ARREST

Olean Man Suspected of Receiving Stolen Goods Drinks Poison.

OLEAN, March 22.—When Deputy Sheriff R. T. Mallery and Detective Ed. Sommers went to arrest Charles Henry, a rag picker, living on the Cranberry Road, near this city, yesterday afternoon, Henry drank eight ounces of chloroform mixed with rock and rye, and died from the effects of the poison in the Higgins Memorial Hospital here at 5.15 o'clock.

Evidence secured by the officers led them to believe that Henry had received property stolen some months ago from two cottages on Cuba Lake, one owned by Samuel Binney and the other by Ed. Mores, both of Olean.

Henry was known locally as "Hi Henry." He was about 55 years of age and lived alone with his aged mother on the road from Olean to Allegany. It is expected that other arrests will be made in connection with the cottage robberies.

SIXTY YEARS OF THE VICTORIA CROSS

Sixty years ago, January 29th, Queen Victoria signed the royal warrant for the conferring of the Victoria Cross, and for the first time it became possible to realise by decoration acts of bravery by privates and the lower ranks of officers in both services. The Crimean war, which was then nearing its end, had awakened the country to the need for a step which should have been taken long before, and 111 men who had served in the combined operations in the Baltic and the Crimea received the little bronze trinket made from the guns of Sebastopol which they had helped to silence. The peculiar value of the cross lies, of course, in the fact that while any member of the services may win it, the bestowal of it has been marked by a care unusual in the case of decorations. Since Lord Roberts's son gave his life in South Africa in circumstances that would have deserved it, it has been given to the next of kin of those who would have won it, and in 1911 our Indian army was rightly included as eligible for it. But in the sixty years of its history not 700 men have gained it. Even in this war the number of crosses granted has not yet exceeded the 169 of the Mutiny, though it soon must. It is unique among our decorations in being given solely "for valour." Neither rank, nor long service, nor wounds, nor any other circumstance or condition whatsoever, save the merit of conspicuous bravery, shall be held a sufficient claim," said the original conditions, and they have been rigidly kept. Valour may not be the determining factor in modern war, and the clearest proof of it may sometimes, from the military point of view, be even unwise, but it is the noblest quality evoked by war, and in all war it is essential to victory. As these if for no other reasons the cross is, and must remain, the greatest of our military honours.—Manchester Guardian.

When a warring nation "is on its uppers"—groggy; nearly knocked out—the signs appear in the shortage of ordinary necessities. It seems to be this way in Germany now, when the allowance of butter in Berlin is placed at five ounces per week,—about a quarter of an ounce for each meal. Something like this obtained in the U. S. Civil War in the Confederate States, when they were almost beaten. Mr. J. H. Barringer of the Examiner composing rooms, has two interesting samples, or rather, relics, of envelopes, used in the dying days of the "lost cause." So precious and scarce was stationery then that one envelope, an official letter, dated Columbia, S.C., "Headquarters of the Conscript Department," was sent to Hardeeville, S. C., on June 29th, 1863, apparently steamed open and reversed, and used again; for it bears, on the other side, another address, and the date, Hardeeville, August 13th. This bore no postal stamp, but was stamped, "paid 10c." We grumble about a 3 cent postal war rate in Canada; but the Southern chivalry had to wrestle with a ten cent postal rate, when they were otherwise so hard up that they had to turn an envelope and use it the second time. Another evidence of the scarcity of stationery in the same year was an envelope of small size; home-made—from a scrap of wall paper. Things were pretty bad for the plucky Southerners about that time. The letter enclosed in the wall paper envelope was posted on July 19th., 1863, at Manchester, S. C., and this postoffice had no date stamp, for the date and place was written on the envelope, and the 10c postal stamp cancelled with a pen.

Canon Horsley, of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, writes in protest against the army custom of drinking healths at mess every night, and says: "In a certain officers' mess of a Canadian regiment, I am told, only one officer drank wine on arriving in England; but in three months 'healths' had helped mightily to make every one of them wine-drinkers."

GREAT MOTOR SHIPMENT FROM CANADIAN PLANT.

A special Grand Trunk train carrying one of the largest single shipments ever made by a Canadian motor car plant, left Oshawa, Ont., March 10th, for Western Canada. This train is carrying two hundred automobiles made by The Chevrolet Motor Car Company, and they are consigned to Breen Motor Car Company agents of the Chevrolet Motor Car Company at Winnipeg and points on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in the West. This is one of two big shipments made to supply the Spring demand. The train is moving via North Bay and Cochrane, and over the Transcontinental Line, and when the cars are unshipped they will make a procession nearly three miles long. A notable feature in connection with this special train, shipment is that The Chevrolet Motor Car Company only started manufacturing automobiles in Canada last December.

WEDDING BELLS

WOOD—BRISTOW.

A pretty military wedding took place at St. John's Church on Monday evening, March 20th, between Bandsman R. Wood of the 93rd, and Miss Annie Caroline Bristow, both formerly of England. The bride was daintily attired in white silk, veil looped with orange blossoms. The bridesmaid, Miss Smith, wore cream looped with pink roses. Both carried shower bouquets of carnations. The best man was Corp. H. Wood of the 93rd.

Mrs. Wood, the groom's mother, was attired in green silk.

Private E. Brazendale gave the bride away.

After the wedding all proceeded to the groom's mother's home, where they partook of a dainty supper, and a merry evening followed.

The Kitchener Club's Successful Concert

The Director and Staff of the Conservatory Made the Kitchener Club and a Fair Sized Audience Happy

It was the Conservatory's treat last night; that is the Conservatory of Music put $50 net into the hands of the Kitchener Club—to buy yarn for soldiers' socks. In the first place, Mr. Gliddon generously donated the use of the Conservatory hall, free of charge, and to the financial end of the treat the staff of the Conservatory added the musical treat in the shape of the splendid programme they presented.

The Conservatory orchestra contributed several selections and made one wonder at the musical enthusiasm that keeps this fine organization up to concert pitch in personnel and musical efficiency.

The remainder of the programme was chiefly vocal and contributed chiefly by Miss Kilmaster. She sang in duo with Miss Logan two charming duets by Cornelius—"When Starry Night" and "Love's Secret Betrayed." Miss Kilmaster, who is on the staff as a teacher of singing, further revealed, incidentally, her qualification as a teacher, and her artistic capabilities as a vocalist by singing two groups of songs, "My Heart is a Lute"—Woodman, and "The Parting Rose"—Pontius and Cuckoo—Liza Lehmann. Her second circle of songs was "Blossoms"—Carse; "Rosebud"—Drummond; "Irish Lullaby"—Needham; and "Dear Lad O' Mine"—Gena Branscombe, the Canadian composer. She also sang Massanet's "Elegie." In al ther singing Miss Kilmaster showed both the artistic vocal capacity and sympathetic interpretation. She has a voice of fine purity, flexibility and sweetness and of effective practical range. To her natural excellent quality of voice are added excellent method and mastery of production. These qualities and conditions combined make her singing finished vocalism that can be, as it was last night, heard with delight. She is also a high class pianiste, and her presence on the staff as a vocal teacher, promises as much success as her vocal triumphs in public.

AT THE HALL MILLINERY OPENING

Which is now in progress you are offered the much desired opportunity of viewing the spring like greeting of the new models. Surely there never were dresses and suits more alluringly lovely nor hats more delightfully becoming than those which were shown at the Hall Opening to-day. Each one a charming example of the last suggestions that have come from the makers of fashions and again demonstrating that the Hall there is to-day, as always, the leaders in the realms of Fashion for Women.

Decrease In The Population

The Call for Men is Responsible For a Shrinkage in the Population of Peterborough

The 1916 street directory, recently issued, gives 9,873 Peterborough names which multiplied by two and a half, gives a population of 24,682 for the city and outskirts.

The number of names given in the 1915 directory in 10,045 which multiplied by the same number gives a population of 25,112.

The above figures indicate a decrease in the population due no doubt to the number of men who have joined the colours and left for the front. Few cities in Ontario but what have suffered a shrinkage in population due to the same cause. The decrease so far as Peterborough is concerned is in the neighborhood of four hundred persons, but as the directors was prepared early last year it does not indicate accurately the number who have left the city.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. H. C. Stratton, of Montreal, is in the city to-day.

Dr. Caroline Brown, of Toronto, will be the guest of Mrs. Frank C. Neal, Rubidge street, while in the city.

Mrs. Ellison has returned to Toronto, after attending the funeral of her aunt, the late Mrs. Edward James.

The following Torontonians are spending the day in the city: Messrs. M. Fletcher, F. Cuffs, J. E. Merrill and C. C. Wallace.

(Miss Lina Adamson and three of her pupils— Miss Edwina Palmer, Miss Kathleen Wallis and Miss Kathleen Reid, and Master John Mallon, aged eight—gave a delightful programme of music for the Red Cross in the Heliconian Club rooms— yesterday Mr. Blake Lister adding to the enjoyment by his singing. Miss Adamson herself played charmingly, and programme and object brought a generous response when Miss Norah McLennan, and, Miss Jean Hanna, dressed as Red Cross nurses, "took up the collection." In the audience were Lady Moss, Mrs. Oliver Macklem, Mrs. A. W. Austin, Miss Adele Austin, Mrs. D. B. Hanna, Miss Mary Hanna, Mrs. Wallis and her son, Lieut. Harold Wallis, who is home on leave and was greatly complimented on his sister's playing; Mrs. William Goulding, Mrs. George Dickson, Mrs. R. H. A Powerful Story of the War Told in This Play

Theatre-goers Should Not Fail to See "The Story of the Rosary" at the Grand To-morrow Evening —A Thrilling Tale of War-Time

Theatregoers have a treat in store for them to-morrow evening when the play, 'The Story of the Rosary," of special war time interest, will be presented here to-morrow evening:

Referring to the production the Hamilton Herald had the following flattering reference, after its presentation in that city:

"The Story of the Rosary, produced last night at the Grand Opera House, is a touching and pretty play of love and war. The author, Walter Howard, has knit together a powerful story of the war, which will take a place with some of the well known melodramas of G. R. Sims. Following these familiar lines there is a manly hero and a villain, the latter being as despicable a character as could well be imagined. Both are strongly marked characters, while the heroine is a sweet and lovable woman, who throughout the play holds the entire sympathy of the audience. She may be regarded as a type of the British women who have sacrificed so much in this war by giving up to their country those they love the most. She is wooed by two cousins, Capt. Philip Romain, and secretly loves the former. The outbreak of the war brings about a succession of incidents which makes it necessary for her to declare her love for Paul, and they are married just as his regiment is about to start for the front. A tender and touching farewell follows their hurried marriage in the church of the convent, and she bids adieu to her husband-officer in these words: "I believe, yes, with all my soul, that God will watch over you and keep you safe, and send you back to me. No, I am not weeping; be my true soldier, my true knight, and God will send you back to me."

Venetia, daughter of Prince Van Sabran, is disowned by her father because she has chosen Paul instead of Philip, and is cared for during the war at the convent. She gives her husband one present, her rosary, which she places around his neck.

The incidents in act three take place in August, 1916, when the war is supposed to be over. Mr. Arnold, who splendidly took the manly role of Karl LaRose, effetively recited a stirring little poem, Were You There? a smart piece of satire on those who, while physically able, had declined to take their part in the empire's war. In the final victory Paul falls, and, believing him to be dead, Venetia is just about to take the vows of a nun and say good-bye to the world for ever, when Paul appears upon the scene. He had been taken prisoner by the Huns and had escaped.

Venetia was sweetly and unaffectedly played by Miss Templeton, Paul and Philip were both excellent in their respective parts and the touches of comedy which relieve the play were well brought out by Mr. Bashame as Lieut. Peterkin and Miss Preston as Wilhelmina. All the principal characters were ably sustained. The play is full of touching and stirring incidents and the scenery is beautiful.

Annual Roll Call To-night

The annual roll call of Murray St., Baptist Church will be held this evening at eight o'clock. his time honoured custom of this congregation loses none of its interest as the years go by. Each member of the church is notified by mail of the late chosen for the meeting when every member is expected to be present to respond to his or her name with a few words, or a verse of scripture. Those who are unable to be present because of illness or distance send a message to be read when the roll is called. It is expected that a large audience will assemble on this occasion.

Usually, states Doctor Robertson, Medical Health Officer of Birmingham, the proportion of births is 1,060 to 1,040 boys to every 1,000 girls. For the last quarter the propertion was 1,110 boys to every 1,000 girls. There has been a fall in the birth-rate which, if it continues a year, will, he says, represent a decrease of 4,000 babies.

TIZ-IT THEATRE

The new management of the Tiz-It Theatre wishes to announce to the many patrons who were anxious to attend the show yesterday to-day, that it was no fault of the manager, but owing to the delay of the new machine which we have purchased not arriving in time to get started. We expect without a doubt to be open to-morrow. We have secured from one of the best film companies in Canada an excellent programme of high-class photo plays, not forgetting the funniest comedies in which will please the most refined critic; also we have made a special effort to secure a good orchestra and other extra attractions. We cordially invite all theatre-lovers to attend the pretty little Tiz-It Theatre, and we will endeavour to promote the comfort and conveniences of its patrons in every possible way.

Casgrain to Retire?

OTTAWA, Ont., March 22.—It is reported here to-day that Hon. T. Chas. E. Casgrain, the Postmaster-General, will shortly retire from the Government. Mr. Casgrain, it is said, is dissatisfied. Some attribute his dissatisfaction to the bilingual issue, but others are more inclined to the view that the reversion of the department to a basis of political patronage in so far as appointments and the letting of contracts is concerned, is distasteful to the minister.

It is said that rather than be made responsible for conditions now prevailing in connection with the administration of postoffice affairs, Mr. Casgrain would prefer to retire once more to private life. It will be recalled that the Government had some difficulty in inducing him to accept a portfolio. IK

A NEWSPAPER 152 YEARS OLD

Mr. W. H. Bradburn Shows Examiner Copy of First Issue of Quebec Gazette—An Old Peterboro Paper

Mr. W. H. Bradburn showed the Examiner to-day two most interesting souvenirs of newspapers of bygone ages. One was a copy of the Peterborough Chronicle of the date, Dec. 2, 1845; a weekly paper published by Mr. Jas. McCarrol, whose office was on Brock Street. The Chronicle contains much of interest to many residents of Peterborough, especially among the advertisements, wherein appear names that are familiar ones in Peterborough's history, including those of the father of Mr. T. A. S. Hay and the father of Mr. E. H. D. Hall. The other paper shown the Examiner by Mr. Bradburn was a copy of the first issue of the Quebec Gazette, published on June 21, 1764, a year after the accession of Canada from the French. The copy, although one hundred and fifty-two years old, is in a splendid state of preservation. The papers were sent to Mr. Bradburn by his mother.

Silver Tea Service From Friends to Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Scollard

Are Moving to Peterboro' After Nearly Thirty Years of Successful Business in Ennismore

Mr. P. J. Scollord has recently disposed of the thriving business which he conducted in Ennismore during the past 28 years and he is about to take up his residence in Peterborough.

On the evening of the 20th inst., a number of friends called on him at the residence of his mother to say farewell to him and his esteemed wife and family. During the course of a pleasant evening Mr. and Mrs. Scollord were epresented with a beautiful silver tea service and the following address was read by Rev. P. J. McGuire:

To Mr. P. J. Scollord, Ennismore, Ont.:

Having learned that you are about to leave the township we cannot allow you to depart without expressing our deep and sincere affection for you and bidding you and your good wife and family a formal farewell.

For nearly thirty years you have been in business here, and during that time you have by your ability, incessant work, integrity and good fellowship accumulated a generous store of wealth, but, what is much more sacred, you leave with the consciousness that you stand high in the esteem of your fellow citizens of this township. You are still in the prime of life so that we may expect to hear of your greater achievements in a wider field where you can use your splendid talents to greater advantage for God's honours and the upholding of our great Dominion.

No family in St. Martin's parish is held in higher esteem than yours; you were reared in a home in which the Irish Catholic spirit predominated, and you have maintained those sacred traditions in your own family, the influence exercised by you and your amiable wife has always been for good throughout the community in which it is needless to say you will be very much missed. You will be long remembered too for your work in connection with everything that pertained to the welfare of the church, and particularly for the consistent and active part you have taken in the interest of total abstinence.

In saying "good-bye," we ask you to accept, as a slight token of our respect for yourself and Mrs. Scollard, this silver tea service, and our assurance that our prayers and good wishes accompany you to your new home.

Signed on half of your friends,

P. J. McGuire, Parish Priest.
John Flood.
James Scollard.
Maurice Twomey.

Mr. Scollard in a brief but touching reply expressed his gratitude for the kindness shown himself and Mrs. Scollard by their many friends. In his references to Father McGuire he was particularly grateful, referring to him as a self-sacrificing priest who had done much effective work in the upbuilding of this diocese, and in promoting the welfare of the church in the various parishes in which he had been engaged, and, with the hearty co-operation of the people of St. Martin's parish which the speaker had no doubt would be freely given, he predicted for the future of Ennismore the same progress and prosperity in the affairs of the church which had characterized Father McGuire's work wherever he had laboured.

Brief addresses were given by Mr. John Flood, Rev. Father McGuire and others, in which splendid reference was made to Mr. Scollard's mother, one of the highly esteemed pioneers of the township.

BOLIVIO GETS 20 YEAR TERM

Man Accused of Burying Victim Alive Pleads Guilty at Batavia.

BATAVIA, March 23.—Antonio Bolivio, of Batavia, 26 years old, pleaded guilty in Supreme Court to murder in the second degree, in killing Luigi Matroni, at Darien on May 9, 1914. He was accused of burying his victim alive in the cellar of Matroni's home. Justice Taylor sentenced Bolivio to Auburn State Prison for not less than 20 years.

Brown Owls in The Trenches

Big Birds Flap Around at Night Seeking Rats and Mice That Are Abundant

LONDON, March 23.—An officer writing from the front:—"When I was up in the trenches recently I saw numerous owls; they used to flap about among the trenches at night, quite regardless of shells and snipers, getting a fine harvest of rats and mice, with which the trenches literally swarm. They were the big brown owls. They always disappeared two hours before dawn; I never could make out where to, but I suppose to woods behind the lines."

One more proof that any game preservers who allow owls to be destroyed are simply injuring their own interests as well as the interests of agriculture.

SUED FOR A WAR COMMISSION

Philip Runciman and Others in Litigation Over Horse Deal.

LONDON, March 23.—Philip Runciman, a member of the shipping firm of Walter Runciman& Co., and two members of the Baltic Exchange, Fraser Goodbody and Cyril Bennett, are being sued in the Court of King's Bench by Alexander Ferguson for £20,000, the commission claimed on the sale of 40,000 American horses to the French Government at £50 a horse. The plaintiff alleges he introduced the purchasers to Mr. Runciman, and that the contract was concluded in the latter's office.

Sir Walter Runciman, head of the shipping firm, is the father of Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade.

Cecil Hayes of the plaintiff's counsel said that Philip Runciman had declined to sign any note for a commission. Counsel added, that as Sir Walter, the head of the firm, was a Member of Parliament and his son, who recently had been a member of the firm, was a Cabinet Minister, it would have been unwise for the firm to sign anything or give a note.

The defendant's counsel protested against Mr. Hayes's statement as absolutely untrue.

Mr. Hayes continued, declaring that at a meeting of the parties in a London hotel Philip Runciman stated that Sir Walter declined to let anything be done in the firm's name, but that Philip Runciman said that "on the word of a Runciman" the commission would be paid. The contract was signed by a representative of the French Government, and Mr. Runciman, said the attorney, and afterward Mr Ferguson wrote, asking to whom he should apply for his commission of ten shillings for each horse and Mr. Runciman replied, "I have absolutely no knowledge of the commissions mentioned."

The horses eventually were not supplied, the attorney said, suggesting the rise in freights as among the reasons.

HEALTH AND INCOME.

Both Kept Up on Scientific Food.

Good, sturdy health helps one a lot to make money. With the loss of health one's income is liable to shrink, if not entirely dwindle away.

When a young lady has to make her own living, good health is her best asset.

"I am alone in the world," writes a young lady, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk, and through close application to work and a boarding-house diet I became nervous, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to keep up in the office.

"A friend suggested to me the idea of trying Grape-Nuts food which I did, making it a large part of at least two meals a day.

"To-day I am free from dyspepsia and the ills of an overworked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health, and the ability to retain my position and income." "There's a Reason." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

One Million, Four Hundred Thousand Recruits Needed to Maintain Army in 1916

Military Age May Be Extended to 45 Years---Norwegian Bark Lindfield Has Been Sunk---Brief Despatches

LONDON, March 23.—The Norwegian bark Lindfield, built in 1891, 2,276 tons, has been sunk. Thirty of her crew were rescued and brought into Queenstown to-day.

ROTTERDAM, March 23.—Count Zeppelin, speaking in the Prussian House of Deputies, warned the German people not to expect too much of his airships.

"The Zeppelins are not as near perfect as I might wish," said the aged inventor. "They should have greater carrying power and should be able to reach still higher altitudes. We are now testing new types of motors by which we hope to make a nearer approach to perfection. In the meantime, a certain percentage of losses must be reckoned with."

LONDON, March 23.—Sir Sam Hughes was the King's guest at Buckingham Palace, where an entertainment was given on behalf of the wounded Canadian soldiers.

LONDON, March 23.—One million four hundred thousand recruits are necessary for 1916 to maintain the army. The military age may be extended to 45 years.

PETROGRAD, March 23.—Fierce battles are raging along the entire Russian front. Several towns and trenches have been captured from the Germans. The Austrian front has broken in several places.

LONDON, March 23.—The Galloper lightship was sunk by a submarine near the mouth of the Thames.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The British have captured or sunk 127 German submarines since the war started.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Many of Carranza's government troops have joined Villa, and grave anxiety is felt for the United States expedition.

Lincoln Asserts He'll Break Jail

But Department of Justice Sees Threat as Only an Attempt to Gain Further Notoriety.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 23.—"I am going to break jail" is the latest threat uttered by Ignatius Timothy Trebitch Lincoln the so-called German spy, who is in the Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, pending extradition to England. He actually believes he can, is the information received here. But the Brooklyn officials have heard this more than once from his lips, and this time they are not going to let Lincoln go.

Officials of the Department of Justice believe that Lincoln desires to get further notoriety and therefore has written this threat, which was received to-day. They are aware that Lincoln, who refused to give out any interview at the time of his arrest because he thought he would be able to collect a quarter a word for all he could write while in prison, now has thousands of dollars worth of interviews, all neatly written in his cell. But that's as far as they get, as no newspaper men have been even wishful of getting a talk with him.

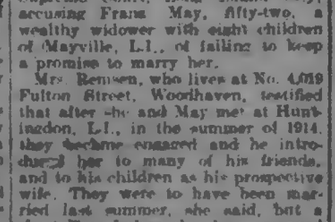
The Department of Justice officials have declared that Lincoln, who is wanted in England on a forgery charge, possesses little information of value in prosecuting neutrality cases in the United States. Therefore it was hinted that his deportation will not be long delayed.

WIDOW SUES FOR $25,000

Mrs. Remsen's Breach of Promise Action Against Frank May is Conspiracy, He Declares.

NEW YORK, March 23.—The shattered heart of Mrs. Mary A. Remsen, forty-nine years old, and the mother of three grown children, is valued at not less than $25,000, according to the testimony in her action in the Supreme Court, Long Island City, accusing Frank May, fifty-two, a wealthy widower with eight children of Mayville, L.I., of failing to keep a promise to marry her.

Mrs. Remsen, who lives at No. 4,019 Fulton Street, Woodhaven, testified that after she and May met at Huntingdon, L.I., in the summer of 1914, they became engaged and he introduced her to many of his friends, and to his children as his prospective wife. They were to have been married last summer, she said, but a short time before the date arranged she testified he broke the engagement saying his children objected to him taking another wife. May has submitted answering affidavits stating he is the victim of a conspiracy to obtain money from him.



Steel Helmets Save Many Lives

British Correspondent Gives Instances of Their Great Value.

LONDON, March 10.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—"Soup plates" is what the British soldiers at the front call the helmets with which they are now equipped as a protection against shrapnel. They are of steel and painted grey. In appearance they resemble an inverted bowl and are far from ornamental. They afford protection to the neck as well as the head. A British correspondent testifies to their efficacy in reducing casualties, as proven in the recent stiff fighting for the recovery of the "international trench" north of the Ypres-Comines canal.

"I saw eight dented or pierced helmets to-day," he writes, "the wearers of which suffered no worse injury than slight scalp wounds, and some escaped entirely. All would have been killed had they worn an ordinary khaki cap. One helmet had been dented eight times by fallinc shrapnel while a jagged two-inch hole marked the entry of a shell fragment which caused a flesh wound.

"Another bore a deep fissure made by the butt of a German rifle during the hand-to-hand fighting in the captured trench. The wearer of the helmet was not even stunned and he was able to kill his antagonist. Still another had been dented by shrapnel unknown to the wearer. Several had been cut through by pieces of shell, but the net effect was no more than a smart blow across the skull with a club."

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON.

The blood must be filtered, otherwise the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid, you are poisoned. If the kidneys fail you get both these filtering organs working right, and also ensure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

ECONOMY IN FASHIONS.

German Army Authorities Open War on Women's Elaborate Costumes.

BERLIN, March 21.—The German army has opened hostilities on a new foe—women's fashions. The large consumption of cloth under the prevailing styles has inspired the army authorities to call a conference to deliberate measures designed to influence future fashions in the direction of greater economy in materials.

The Ministry of War, with true military astuteness, is not attempting to affect styles already in vogue, or to forbid women their flowing skirts.

STEW FOR THE SOLDIERS.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 23.—An order for 500,000 cans of Irish stew for shipment to Halifax for the use of the Canadian troops in Europe have been received by the Laug Canning Company here.

PRISONERS SHOOT PRISON GUARDS

Fifteen Others in Party Drive Van to Rhode Island Prison and Surrender.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. March 23.—While Deputy Sheriffs Tillinghast and Colvin were escorting thirty-one prisoners, including one woman, from the Providence County Court House, in this city, to the prison in Cranston, the prisoners overpowered them, shot Tillinghast and beat Colvin into unconsciousness. Sixteen of the thirty-one then took to the woods about a mile from the prison.

The remaining fifteen cared for Tillinghast as best they could and then drove the van in which they were being transported to the prison, where they surrendered.

Sheriff Wilcox sent posses through the woods and at six o'clock to-night five of the fugitives had been returned to the prison. Later five more were locked up in suburban stations. Neither of the men with the revolvers taken from the sheriffs had been captured.

Tillinghast was removed to the Rhode Island Hospital, where an X-ray was taken of the wound. The bullet struck him in the left shoulder and passed into his neck. At the hospital it is stated his condition is critical.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will soon act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it is no longer irritated, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

TEUTONS LEAVE ROUMANIA

Russian Warships Conducting Energetic Search For German U-Boats.

Rome, March 23. Reports from Bucharest state that the Germans, Austrians, Hungarians and Bulgarians are leaving Roumania en masse.

Russian warships are carrying on a resolute hunt for German submarines, which have made several raids from Bulgarian ports. Attempts by the submarines to attack Russian convoys on route to Alma have failed.

Who Uses Crisco?

CRISCO is not a new, untried shortening. It has been on the market for nearly five years. It is used in thousands of homes, hotels and hospitals.

It is taking the place of butter, lard and other cooking fats because it is better and purer and more economical.

Each year the amount of Crisco that is used is greatly in excess of that used the year before.

That shows what women think of it.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

Mrs. Carmac was visibly shaken. swept into ruin the structure built of vain longings and fantastic dreams. Yet what else could she expect? She had known her own mind on that never-to-be-forgotten night in Paris when she deserted her husband and child, and fled to secure "freedom". Her action was deliberate; she had not felt a tremor of remorse when she wrote that cruel letter to her husband. What reason had she now to hope that the closed night might reopen?

She beat her graceful head over Yvonne's, and made the first real sacrifice that life had demanded from an essentially strong if inordinately vain temperament.

"Dear, she murmured, "why should we torture each other more? I agree to your terms. Tell you father that when I go from Pont Aven it shall be forever."

For a little while neither could speak. Mrs. Carmac was the first to recover some semblance of composure.

"Don't let us endeavor to-night to peer any more deeply into the coming years," she said, smiling wanly. "When I reach London my affairs will demand a great deal of attention. I shall write to you every week. Dear. Sometime in the spring, when England is at its best, you shall come to me, and I'll strive to render your visit enjoyable, because you have so much to see, and there is so much worth seeing. Your presence will make me young again.

"Now I must explain why it is absolutely necessary that I should remain here until it is ascertained whether or not anything can be recovered from the wreck. I care little about the jewels and money that went down with the yacht. Of course, if they are found, so much the better. But the really important thing is a despatch box full of documents that was in one of Mr. Carmac's cabin trunks. It contains papers that I would not wish others to see. Will you, then, tell your father that I shall leave here the day after that case is put into my hands, or, if the sea refuses to disgorge, when I am assured that further effort at salvage is useless? The local notary, as well as the people at Brest, agrees with Captain Popple that if the remains of the Stella are lodged on the reef a close search is possible, and may yield results; but if the two parts of the hull have been washed into the tideway, we may as well abandon the project altogether. In a word, if the weather remains fine, the matter will be settled within a week, or even less. To show my gratitude to your father for his concession he has made with refer ence to you, I am willing that he and you shou'd go away to-morrow, should he think it advisable. You can give me your address, and I shall let you know the date of my departure. Of course I shall be sorry——"

"No, Dearest, you are not to cry any more," and the strong young arms were flung impulsively round the grieving mother's neck. "You will only make yourself ill again. I am sure everything will work out all right in the end. Scheme and contrive as we will, it is God who decides. All that we can do is but strive to act right, to atone for mistakes, to help one another. For the rest, the future is in God's hands."

"Ah, my dear one," came the tremulous words, "a kindly Providence has given you wisdom beyond your years. It was well for you that you were reared by a man like John Ingersoll. Some day, when present bitterness is dead, and he realizes that at least I am repentant, you must tell him that in restoring to me a daughter such as you he has only shown me the depth of my folly. I little dreamed that I should ever be taught such a lesson. Yvonne, when you marry, marry for love. May Heaven pardon me, I did not! I married your father because I thought I should have what we thoughtlessly call 'a good time.' I left him, not for love of another man, but in the hope that I might secure a wealthier husband. I have never known what it means to love anyone but myself. Perhaps I shall learn now—too late!"

When Yvonne went out she found Raymond awaiting her at the doorway beneath.

"Miss Ingersoll," he said deferentially, "if you are going home, may I walk with you as far as the bridge? I would not inflict my company on you if I had not something of importance to say."

"Your company will be no infliction, at any rate, Mr. Raymond," she answered readily; though she would have vastly preferred to be alone, if only during the few minutes' interval that separated a very trying interview with her mother, from the calm and smoke-laden atmosphere of the studio, where her father and Tollemache would surely be expecting her appearance at any moment.

"But it must be rather a bore that you should have to accommodate your lively pace to my slow march," said Raymond. "You see, I dare not step out quickly over these rough stones. I——"

"Please walk as slowly as you like," she cried, with a quick sympathy which the man had counted on as establishing a species of comradeship between them. He too, like Yvonne herself a few hours earlier, had rehearsed every syllable of a conversation to which he attached the utmost importance; but unlike her he was following the "lines" with the glib perfection of a skilled actor.

"I hope you will pardon me also if I reach the heart of my subject without preamble, as the lawyers say," he went on. "You have met Mr. Rupert Fosdyke several times of late, and I think I am not mistaken if I assume that you are neither greatly impressed by him nor inclined to view with indifference the ridiculous flirtation he has been carrying on with Madeleine Bemoret. Am I right?"

Yvonne was momentarily tongue-tied with surprise. The last thing she expected was any interference by this plausible-spoken little man in the affairs of the two people he had named. She knew that her mother disliked him,—that fear was now added to her dislike,—but she could not guess that Raymond was actually counting on her knowledge as a successful factor in the campaign he opened that night during the short stroll between the Hotel Julia and the bridge.

"Pray believe that I have intervened in this matter with the best of motives," he added hurriedly. "It is often the fate of meddlers to be misunderstood—I have been an innocent victim in that respect once already in this very place. But I felt it was due to you that I should explain the action I have taken to-day. You may be angry with me. I cannot help that. My own sense of right and wrong tells me that I am justified; so I may only put the circumstances before you, and leave you to decide whether you approve or condemn. In a sentence, then, I have ventured to remonstrate most openly and emphatically with Mr. Fosdyke. You may not be aware of it, but he is tempting your friend Madeleine to meet him secretly. Of course she is your friend because of the simple conditions of life which obtain in Pont Aven. In America or England you and she would fall naturally into widely different social strata. But here—in Arcady, if I may so express myself—close intimacy between you and a peasant girl is permissible, even advantageous. The case of Rupert Fosdyke is wholly outside this small local circle. His association with Madeleine must inevitably lead to a grave scandal. I have tried to put a stop to it: not without success. He assures me that he has seen her to-night for the last time. Now, Miss Ingersoll, I want you to tell me candidly, first if I have done right, and in the second place if you command my action."

"Mr. Raymond," cried Yvonne impulsively, "I thank you from my heart. I cannot find words to express my relief at your news. You have accomplished something wonderful. Really, I am more than grateful."

"That is good to know," he said, stopping in the roadway and bowing as humbly as his tightly strapped arm would permit. "You have said all I wished to hear, and more."

"But won't you come with me to our cottage?" she said, aware only of deep joy because of Madeleine's salvation, since it was nothing less that this queer-mannered stranger had brought about. "I have not dared to speak of this matter to my father and Mr. Tollemache. I or ntell them now, and make light of it, while giving you some of the credit that is your due. Do come!"

"Not to-night, if you will excuse me. I am yet far from strong, and to-day's experiences have been somewhat exhausting. If you will ask me to meet Mr. Ingersoll tomorrow, or next day, I shall feel bolstered."

For a rascal—which he undoubtedly was—Harvey Raymond exhibited a restraint that marked a rare capacity for intrigue. He had not anticipated such a long stride in advance as an invitation by Yvonne to make her father's acquaintance then and there. But a lightning flash of clear judgment had shown that he would gain immensely by a display of modest reticence. The story would not suffer in its telling because he was not present to receive congratulations from the artist and what would be tantamount to an apology from Tollemache.

So he bowed again, with a murmured "Goodnight!" and involuntarily as it were, stretched out his left hand, which Yvonne seized and wrung warmly. Then, apparently shocked by his own boldness, he turned abruptly, and hurried back to the annex.

During a few seconds Yvonne stared after him. "Well," she breathed, "I have never before been so deceived in anyone—never!"

Which shows that even the brightest and most intelligent girl of nineteen may have a lot to learn of human nature before she can form reliable estimates of its own true inwardness, because the time was not far distant when she would as soon have thought of crediting one of the horde of vipers then hibernating among the rocks of Brittany with any lofty conception of duty of service to mankind as Harvey Raymond with similarly benevolent intentions toward his fellow creatures.

MONTREAL, March 21.—Corporal Pascual Rousseau, of the 69th Battalion, Montreal, was murdered on Saturday afternoon by a stranger, said to be a Pole, while the soldier was standing in front of Napoleon Joly's home, 29 Ste. Agatha lane, in company with Napoleon Joly and another friend, Edouard Marsereu, Rousseou being stabbed in the neck with a pocket-knife.

The stabbing was the outcome of a brief encounter between Corp. Rousseau and the Pole, the former preventing the Pole from entering the residence at 29 Ste. Agatha lane, afterwards pushing him around and slapping his face.

Coughed Almost All Night

WITH THAT

DRY, TICKLING SENSATION

IN HER THROAT.

How many people have lost a good night's sleep by that nasty tickling sensation in the throat?

The dry, hard cough keeps you awake, and when you get up in the morning you feel as if you had had no rest at all.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a specific for just this kind of a cough, as it is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant herbs, roots and barks known to medical science.

Mrs. Joseph Hiley, Orangeville, Ont., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. I took a severe cold, and coughed almost all night with that dry, tickling sensation in my throat. The first bottle did me so much good I thought I would try the second one, and I am pleased to say "Dr. Wood's" resulted in a complete cure."

There is nothing that can take the place of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. There is nothing "just as good."

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past twenty-five years.

Gin Pills
FOR THE KIDNEYS

Why Recommended

"My case was very serious and I was so sick that everybody expected my death any day. No suffering could ever be worse than what I had to endure.

I could feel at first the gravel passing through my bladder but now I am as strong as ever. I weigh about 20 lbs. more than when I started to take Gin Pills.

I beg you to publish my letter so that people may know what Gin Pills had done for me. The first box relieved me a good deal, eight boxes were sufficient to cure me entirely, and bring me back to perfect health.

(Sgd.) ISIDORE THOMAS,
Fillet Road Glen, N.B."

GIN PILLS are sold by all druggists, 50c. a box; six boxes for $2.50.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE REBEL'S RUSE.

By EUNICE WINSOR.

During the American Revolution a regiment of Continentals were placed in Westchester county to "observe" the British then occupying New York. Deaton Woodworth, a bitter Tory, living near the patriot force, discovered that his daughter Evelyn and one of the captains, Elderkin, had fallen in love with each other. Woodworth was so horrified at his daughter marrying a rebel that he decided to leave his place in Westchester county and take his family to New York city. The evening before their departure Evelyn and Elderkin met clandestinely in a wood near the house, then and there plighted their troth and before parting arranged a method of correspondence. The next day the Woodworth family crossed the Harlem river, were admitted within the British lines and occupied their town house near what was then and is now Bowling Green.

It was not long after their settlement in their new quarters that Evelyn received a letter from an intimate friend of hers, living near her home in Westchester county. It had been sent in with a number of others under a flag of truce. Her father, thinking that the missive might contain some word from Elderkin, opened and read it before giving it to his daughter. It was written in a woman's hand and contained no mention whatever of the rebel captain.

Amelia Woodworth, a sister of the head of the family, was as bitter a Tory as her brother and as deeply interested in breaking up the love affair between her niece and the young rebel captain. The evening of the reception of the letter from beyond the lines, when Evelyn was in bed, Aunt Amelia concluded to do a little detective work. Going into Evelyn's room, she asked her if she would let her read the letter. Evelyn's heart stood still; but, outwardly retaining her equanimity, she told her aunt where to find it, and the old lady sat down by a candle to read it. After trying for a long while to discover some code in it she fell asleep. When she awoke the candle had burned down to the socket, the letter lay near the flame scorched, and across its face was the fragment of a sentence that had evidently been written in green ink—"That old cat, your Aunt Am—."

Indignation struggled with joy at the discovery for a time; then the old lady extinguished the candle and stole away with the letter. Evelyn was awake and saw what she did, but did not dare oppose her. Mr. Woodworth had gone out to Frannce's tavern for a tipple and to learn if there was any news of the military situation. His sister waited patiently till he returned, then showed him the letter. To her surprise the green letters had disappeared.

Now, the old man loved his daughter, but did not get on with his sister. He looked the letter over carefully, then told Miss Woodworth that she might be in better business than in spying—that she had in her mind a belief that she would make a discovery and, suddenly awakening, had seen the writing only through her distorted imagination. Then he ordered her to take the letter back to Evelyn's room.

Evelyn knew that something had happened, but what she was not sure, since her aunt kept her own counsel. Evelyn dare not destroy the letter for fear of making matters worse. She left it in her writing desk, and a few days later, when the rain was pouring down and the air laden with moisture, the old woman, rummaging in the desk, came upon another surprise. There was the letter, and this time it was covered with pink letters. Indeed, she read a love letter written across the other from Captain Elderkin to her niece, in which he warned Evelyn to beware of "that old cat, your Aunt Amelia."

Taking the letter into her own room, she sat down before a warm fire on the hearth, laying it on a table beside her. She was rejoicing at the prospect of convincing her brother that she had been right after all. Then it occurred to her to copy the pink words lest they fade like the green ones. Turning to the letter, what was her surprise to find that they had already disappeared.

Defeated again, she replaced the letter where she had found it. Thinking to discover some means for bringing back the secret missive, she went there next day for it, but Evelyn had meanwhile concluded to burn it.

A month later another batch of letters was sent into the British lines and among them one for Evelyn from the same friend who had written her before. Unfortunately for the lovers, it fell into Miss Woodworth's hands. Meanwhile she had confided her secret to a friend, a professor in King's—the name was at that time changed to Columbia—college. The second letter she took to him. He heated it and moistened it with no effect. Then he tried the application of chemicals, and a solution of iodide of starch brought out another love letter, this time in blue.

Soon after this the British evacuated the city, and Captain Elderkin marched in with the patriots. Evelyn finally overcame her father's opposition and married her lover. Then the method of their correspondence was explained.

The first love letter was written with ink mixed with gum arabic and a chloride of cobalt, making pink letters, which disappeared when the ink dried and reappearing green under heat. It again disappeared under cold and became pink again when dampened. The second love letter was written in rice water, the ink of which, after being brought out, will disappear forever.

Tobacco Heart

CURED BY

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Tobacco does not seem to affect all alike. Many men enjoy their smoke, live to a good old age, and apparently suffer no ill effects from the use of the weed.

There are others, though, on whose heart and nervous system tobacco produces the most serious results.

It causes palpitation, pain in the heart and irregularity of its beat, makes the hands tremble, sets the nerves on edge, and the breath becomes short.

To counteract this demoralizing influence on the heart and nerves there is no remedy that equals Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

They make the heart beat strong and steady, restore tone and vigor to the nerves, and remove all the evil results caused by the tobacco.

Mr. Nelson Young, Brampton, Ont., writes: "I have had, up to about a month ago, a very weak heart, which I suppose came from smoking cigarettes. When I heard of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as a cure, I immediately gave up smoking, and started using them. It does you justice to be the founder of such a great remedy. They made me feel like a new man."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Three Victoria Cross Men Killed In Action

The Glasgow Maid and Record of Feb. 19th says:

Sergeant David Finlay, V.C., 2nd Black Watch, has been killed in action. The week that has passed has been a black week for winners of the Victoria Cross. First there was the death of Private Dunsire; next Sergeant Finlay's and, according to the week-end casualty lists, Lance.-Sergeant Kingsley, of the Lancashire Fusiliers, has also made the supreme sacrifice. There was, and still is, a peculiar air of romance hanging around the daring Sergeant Finlay, who bearing the proudest honour a soldier may wear, nevertheless reached his home and his ain folk stealthily in the dark of a July night, when by all custom and precedent the country-side would be asleep or about to turn indoors for the night. Most of our brave heroes have shown the greatest reticence when button-holed by the ubiquitous news-gatherer. But few even of our V.C. warriors have been able to thwart so successfully the artifices or resist the wiles of the insistent newspaper representatives.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN MACPHERSON.

A very sad and unexpected death occurred in Clydesdale on Saturday morning, Mar. 11, of one of the oldest and most respected residents of this place, in the person of Martha Campbell, beloved wife of John Macpherson, aged 74 years and 11 months, cause being due to heart failure.

The late Mrs. Macpherson had been in splendid health up to the time she died. On Friday she went about her daily work as usual, and retired at night in the best of health, and the next morning was preparing for her daily work when death closed in, and before aid could be procured she passed away. One daughter, Mrs. F. J. Bullied, and her sorrowing husband were at her bedside when she died.

The late Mrs. Macpherson was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in the year 1842, and when only two years old she immigrated with her parents to Canada, settling in the Township of Wellesley, Waterloo county. After living there for a number of years she moved with her husband to Chandos, Peterborough county. Chandos then was nothing but a wilderness, having for roads only blazed paths through the forest. But as time went on and their family grew up, Mr. and Mrs. Macpherson retired from farming, and lived very happily together.

The deceased was the mother of six children, two having died when young, and four surviving. They are Duncan, of Clydesdale, Ont.; Mrs. D. S. Campbell, Clydesdale; Mrs. Henry McCaskie, Belleville, Ont., and Mrs. F. J. Bullied, Clydesdale, Ont. She was also the grandmother of twelve grandchildren, and the great-grandmother of three great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her residence to the Presbyterian Church, thence to the Presbyterian Cemetery for interment. Mr. Carr, of Apsley, conducted the funeral services at the church and also at the grave.

The deceased's host of friends extend their deepest sympathy to the sorrowing husband and bereaved family.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The latter rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff, and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

THOUSANDS WATCH GREAT AIR BATTLE.

BASLE, via Paris, March 22. — When twenty-three Allied aeroplanes raided Mulhouse, Upper Alsace, the greatest aerial battle of the war took place. Accounts just reaching here declare that more than fifty machines were fighting at such close quarters that the German anti-aircraft guns had to cease fire in order to avoid hitting their own machines.

One French airman rammed a German machine, which fell in flames. Five German aeroplanes and three French fell, the occupants of all being killed. Even while the Allied airmen were fighting, they dropped a number of bombs upon military positions.

Many thousands of persons witnessed the combat.

How To Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly. Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or about cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes 16 ounces—a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 64 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. It also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent hoos cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex"—do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Butter and Eggs Locally.

Butter eased off a little last Saturday, the majority of it selling around 26 and 26 cents, though a few held out for 27 and even 28 cents.

Eggs, during the early part of the market-hour, were quoted at 27 and 28 cents, the former price prevailing, though one city buyer informs us that before the noon-hour they were selling as low as 24 cents.

Here is her letter: "In the market report of Saturday you quoted eggs at 27 and 28 cents a dozen. From eleven to a quarter to twelve there were baskets of eggs at 24c a dozen. It hardly seems fair for us to have to pay the highest price received on the market. Some of the farmers are there at 9 o'clock and get the highest price from those who have to set home by eleven. (Signed) "One Who Knows."

In the first place we are deeply indebted to this lady for drawing our attention to the fact, but it is a condition of which we have always been aware, and one that can hardly be overcome, since it would not be profitable to keep a man hanging around till the "amen" for the possible drop of a cent or two in butter or eggs. Last Saturday was somewhat abnormal in that the supply greatly exceeded the demand.

We usually attend market between ten and eleven, doing the outside section first, and ending up in "hall" about eleven. One or two Saturdays we tried a later hour, but found that the cream of the stuff had been snatched up and we were thus unable to get the prices at which it had been sold.

However the purpose of these market reports, both weekly and on Saturday and we are gratified that a great number of people follow them closely—is to keep both buyer and seller in close touch with quotations, in order that the producer may not sacrifice his produce, and that the buyer may not pay too much for what she wants.

We agree with "One Who Was There," that it hardly seems fair that there should be such a difference in prices at the hours stated, but it is only an example of the old saw that "the early bird gets the worm," and the farmer who gets up early and arrives at the market at 9 o'clock ought to get a little more than the one who "sleeps in" and arrives at the eleventh hour.

This could be overcome to a large extent by the city buyer waiting till the late hour to make her purchases, but, judging by her letter she is unable to do this. It is unfortunate that she is thus a victim of circumstances.

It must not be forgotten, however, that the late buyer gets "what is left," and this usually means poor butter and small eggs, though it does not always obtain.

A Comparison.

Butter is practically at the same level this week as a year ago, at Toronto, but eggs are nine cents higher. The lateness of Easter, the bad condition of the roads and the continued cold weather may have quite a bit to do with the high price of eggs.

However, we may look for lower quotations right along.

Grains, Hay.

Spring Wheat, bushel	88 to 90c
Wheat, bushel	95c to $1.00
Oats	38c
Barley	56c
Peas	$1.00 to $1.40
Buckwheat	70c
Rye	80c
Shorts, ton	$28.00
Bran, ton	$25.00
Flour, cwt. (retail)	$3.25 to $3.50
Flour, cwt.	$3.25
Baled hay, ton	$20.00 to $22.00
Loose hay	$20 to $22

Cereal wheat at Toronto sells for 98 cents to $1.00, a decline of one and two cents.

Winnipeg wheat is also down six cents, being quoted at $1.07.

Coarse grains are: Oats 47 to 49 cents per bushel; barley, 60 to 62 cents; rye, 76 cents; buckwheat, 65 cents; peas, $1.20 to $1.25 a bushel.

Flour, on the outside, is a trifle lower, acting in harmony with wheat.

Seed Grain.

Red clover, cwt.	$27.00
Alsike, cwt.	$25.00
Alfalfa, cwt.	$27.00
Timothy, cwt.	$12.00

Toronto prices to farmers are:

Red clover from	$16.10 to $17.00
Alsike	$12.50 to $14.00
Alfalfa	$18.00
Timothy	$5.50 to $6.00

Fruits and Vegetables.

Apples, per bag	$1.00 to $1.50
Apples, per barrel	$2.25 to $5.00
Potatoes, per bag	$2.25
Onions, peck	30c
Onions, white pickling, qt.	15c
White beans, lb	10c
Carrots, peck	15c
Turnips, bag	40c
Parsnips, peck	30c
Beets	3 to
Celery, head	15c
Cabbage, head	5c
Cabbage, doz.	50c
Oranges	30 to 40c
Grapefruit, three for	25c
Lemons, doz.	25c

Potatoes on the local market brought their old price of $2.25 a bag. In Toronto they declined, selling as low as $1.70 to $1.75 a bag. Dealers are of the opinion that prices will be easier than formerly until the demand for seeds opens up then prices will be higher again. It is expected there will be a big demand for seeds due to two reasons first a shortage of seed, and second the prevailing high price will induce many to grow a large acreage.

Meats and Hogs.

Beef	11c. to 12c.
Bacon, per lb.	28c. to 30c.
Ham	30c.
Cooked hams	35c.

Veal	13c. to 15c.
Rib roast	18c.
Sirloin steak	25c
Round roast	20c
Mutton	13c. to 14c.
Lard, lb.	18c. to 20c.
Small pigs, cwt.	$10.15
Live hogs, cwt.	$10.15

The Toronto live stock market went on a rampage last week, having advanced 25 cents a hundred. Beaves stood at $8.50, butchers, $7.75 to $8.10, choice milkers at $55 to $60. Calves brought $10.00 to $12.50. Lambs ran from $10.15 to $13.50. Hogs gained 70 cents during the week, and sold around $10.35 to $10.50 fed and watered.

Wools and Hides.

Wool (no market).

Sheep skins, each	$1.25 to $1.60
Calf skins, lb.	12c. to 13c.
Beef skins	13c. to 14c.
Tallow, rough	2c.
Tallow, refined	6c. to 6c.

Toronto prices are:

Sheep skins, each	$1.80 to $2.50
Calf skins, lb.	16c
Beef skins, lb.	16c. to 17c.
Tallow, refined	6c. to 7c.
Wool	45c to 47c

General.

No. 1 granulated sugar, cwt.	$7.65
Honey, lb.	18c
Shelled walnuts	60c
Currants	12 1-2c.
Raisins	10c
Dripping	20c
Head cheese	8c.
Lamp burners (Great White Light)	20c
Hardwood 4 ft. per cord	$5.50
Hardwood, 2 ft. per cord	$4.25
Mixed wood, 4 ft.	$4.00 to $4.50
Mixed wood, 2 ft. per cord	$4.75
Ladders, ft.	20c

Sugar is sugar these days. The situation is steadily growing worse, and before very long we may be up against ten-dollar sugar. Indeed, wholesalers are advising retailers to quote $8 now for a hundred pounds, and some are doing so, especially those who were caught "short." Others who have a supply on hand are running it off a little less than that.

The Cuban planters have us at their mercy, since Germany, Austria France and Belgium, who produced half the world's supply, are not growing sugar just now. Being human, they are trying to get the last cent. Conditions will not become normal for some time to come, even after the war it will take fully two years for things to right themselves. Of course when peace is declared, there will be a slight flurry, but it will be only temporary.

If will pay to watch The Examiner "ads" closely for there may be some local dealer who has a big stock "up his sleeve," and will be willing to "sacrifice" it at a price less than eight dollars.

Comparison in Prices

With this time the last two years:

	1914.	1915.	1916.
Wheat	1.00	1 40	1.00
Oats	.46	.66	.38
Butter, dairy	.25	.31	.28
Butter, creamery	.28	.33	.30
Eggs new laid	.21	.10	.28
Cattle	9.25	8.50	8.75
Hogs	9.35	8.70	10.15
Sheep	7.25	6.00	6.50

EAT BIG MEALS! NO SOUR, ACID STOMACH, INDIGESTION OR GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" is Quickest, Surest Stomach Relief Known—Try It!

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

Even Hospital Treatment For Kidney Disease Failed

Well-Known Commercial Traveller Says That Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Undoubtedly Cured Him

News of his recovery from kidney disease will be welcomed by the many friends of Mr. L. D. Griffin throughout the lower townships and the adjoining district of the United States.

Mr. Griffin has travelled this section for 35 years and what he says will be accepted, as proven by all who know him best.

He tells in his letter how relief was obtained by treatment in Sherbrooke and Montreal hospitals, but the old kidney trouble returned again and again until by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure was effected. As he says, these pills "undoubtedly did the work."

Mr. L. D. Griffin, Bulwer, Compton County, Quebec, writes — "I can add one more statement of kidney disease cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For about twenty years I was bothered more or less with the kidneys, then the disease became worse and I was sick in bed for one year, took doctor's medicine to no avail, and on his advice went to Sherbrooke Hospital, where I was benefited, but the old trouble returned, and I tried a Montreal hospital. Got a little better, but the help was only temporary, and I was soon bad again.

"On the advice of a friend, I began to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I now thank that friend for to-day I am as free from kidney disease as I ever was in my life. I owe the cure to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, for they undoubtedly did the work. I am 68 years old, and have spent 35 years as a traveller, calling on the drug trade. Everywhere I am told that Dr. Chase's medicines are the best sellers and give the best satisfaction of any medicines on the market. Shall be glad to answer any questions in regard to my cure if people care to write me."

Misses Anderson, of town, spent Monday last in Campbellford

ALL CHILDREN LOVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Give It When Feverish, Cross, Bilious, for Bad Breath or Sour Stomach

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food, and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

MINORS MUST SAVE WAGES.

German Decree Limits Amount to be Paid to Young Workers.

BERLIN, March 21.—An official decree was issued to the effect that minors engaged in gainful occupations shall not receive more than eighteen marks ($4.50) weekly of their earnings, together with a surplus amounting to not more than one-third of the amount paid in excess of eighteen marks. The residue must be deposited in savings banks, not to be withdrawn during the war.

This measure was decided upon owing to the fact that exceptionally high salaries are being paid and that in some instances the money has been wasted because the fathers or guardians of the minors, being at the front, are unable to exercise proper supervision.

Quick, Safe Way To Remove Hairs

(Toilet Talks)

Keep a little delatone powder on your dressing table and when ugly hairy growths appear make a paste with a little of the powder and some water, apply and let remain on the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hair have vanished. This treatment is harmless and rarely more than one application is required, but to avoid disappointment care should be used to buy the real delatone.

CAPT. EVERETT BIRDSALL MAKING A GOOD RECOVERY

Sgt.-Major Arthur, Recently Returned From the Front, Addressed a Recruiting Meeting at Hastings

HASTINGS, March 22.—A letter has been received from the front by Colonel Birdsall, intimating the good news, that his son Everett is steadily improving and that he is very hopeful for a complete recovery.

The report of the Public School for the month of February shows the entrance class as follows:

Everett Greenley, J. Murray, Edwin Parsons, James Hormel, Reta Dod dand Christie Hatherly (even), Margaret Orr, Blanche Williams and Vera Hadlow Even, Beryl Montgomery, Lomiel Anderson.

The soldiers attended divine service in the Methodist church on Sunday morning last and were addressed by Mr. Winters of Campbellford, the pastor being absent.

We are pleased to see Mrs. (Rev.) Snell out after a severe attack of la grippe.

It has been formally announced that Friday and Saturday 24th and 25th March will mark the Spring opening of Miss Butler's millinery parlours, with Miss Garbutt, of Toronto in charge. All the ladies of Hastings and vicinity are invited to attend.

The recruiting meeting on Sunday evening was addressed by Sergt. Major Arthur, who has returned from the front and who pleased the audience with the vivid report of conditions as they are.

The Hastings Platoon were the guests of honor at the "At Home" on Friday evening given by the local chapter of the I.O.D.E.

The Epworth League accepted the invitation of the Bethel Society for Monday evening and report a pleasant time. The visitors furnished the entertainment and the home society the refreshments.

The wintry weather still continues with little sign of change.

Mr. Lloyd Hess is in Toronto taking a short course of instruction with the Chevrold Auto Company.

Dr. Wade, of Roseneath, called on us duing the week.

M. Boyes is appointed to fill the vacancy on the Toronto Bank Staff caused by the removal of Mr. Moulds.

We understand that Mr. Moulds has enlisted for overseas service.

Mr. Harry Chapman has left for Kempville for a season.

Ptes. H. Shorter and W. West of the 93rd Peterborough, spent a few days here last week.

Miss Jessie Martin has gone on a short visit to Toront.

Mr. John Patterson of Norwood, spent Friday in Hastings, purchasing horses for the Western Markets.

Mr. Stewart of Fort William is the guest of Mr. Thos. McKee.

Friday being St. Patrick's Day services were held in some of the village churches.

Miss Eva Moore has been visiting friends in Lakefield.

Dr. Huycke has been appointed Medical Health Officer by the Asphodel council.

Mr. Richard Walsh shipped a lot of live stock to the city markets on Tuesday last.

ONE CHIVALROUS FOE

Hungarians Misplaced With the Huns, Says a Writer

The Hungarians have more Hun in their name than any of our present enemies, but there is good reason to suppose that they have less of it in their nature. Those of them who dwell in our midst have behaved themselves, since the war began, in a manner becoming to gentlemen in a delicate position, and have not given the slightest trouble. In the United States they have, with the possible exception of a few laborers in the employ of German or Austrian spies, observed the duties of neutrality to the utmost. The author of "The Note-Book of an Attache," an American, who when the war broke out, associated himself with the diplomatic service of his country in France and afterwards visited all the warring countries, is very positive in the statement that the Hungarians throughout have shown themselves to be more sportsmanlike than any of the other combatants. This is a disinterested opinion, for the author's sympathies are on the side of the allies, and it seems to be borne out by the evidence.—Bock's Weekly, Montreal.

Any odd morsels of asparagus left over should always be folded into an omelet. The same thing can be done with bits of cold boiled tomatoes, green peppers; only they should be minced.

SAYS FRENCH WON AT VERDUN

British Commentator Thinks They Checked Germany's Utmost Effort.

PARIS, March 20.—That the battle of Verdun must now, after twenty four days of fighting, be reckoned a French victory seems beyond doubt. France by herself has defeated the strongest host her ancient enemy can send against her. As a sheer trial of strength between major adversaries it is the clearest result of the war yet given.

Verdun represents the utmost possible output of the Prussian military machine in ideas, in men, and above all, in material of war. Months were devoted to the preparation of the attack. Every resource of the empire was called into play. The allies of France did not attempt to interfere. Falkenhayn and his fellows had complete liberty in the choice of their objective.

Is the enemy capable of another offensive, and, if so, will his remaining reserves be used in this way or to prolong a defensive campaign? The battle of Verdun, upon which we can now look back more coolly and with fuller information, offers some indications that are not without value, though they do not warrant any positive answer to these questions.

The substance of the French victory consits in the overwhelmingly heavier enemy losses, probably now amounting to 250,000 men hors de combat; for if military victory consists always and solely in destroying the enemy army, it matters not a whit whether this result be obtained by offensive or defensive tactics. In a defensive operation the seal of victory is the breakdown, not of any particular attack, as at Douaumont but of the total plan of attack; and the plan of the attack upon Verdun is certainly in ruins.

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.

RUSH ON SHELL ORDERS.

Time Clause to be Inserted in Contracts for $7,000,000 Worth of Shells Received This Week.

OTTAWA, March 21.—New orders for seven million dollars' worth of shell contracts have been received this week by the Imperial Munitions Board, in addition to twenty millions that came last week.

This announcement was made today at the offices of the board. Contracts, it was stated, are being awarded gradually. The great fault with Canadian munition makers here today has been the delays in delivery. It does not apply to all the firms but to a large number of them. The new contracts will be given only to such concerns as are in a position to guarantee quick delivery.

The munitions are needed, not months hence but just as soon as possible, and in the new contracts time limits will be imposed. Some new contracts have recently been awarded, but the stipulation of early delivery operates to many firms seeking them being debarred.

The orders cover all sizes of shells, and it is stated that they will be very heavy, providing quick execution of contracts can be guaranteed.

NO NEW ATTACKS BY THE GERMANS ALONG THE FRENCH FRONT AT VERDUN

French Troops Attacked Enemy's Trenches at Fayenhaye Taking a Number of Prisoners---Bombardment Northwest of Verdun Has Slackened Perceptibly, the French War Office Reported This Afternoon.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PARIS, March 23.—The Germans made no new attacks on the western bank of the Meuse last night, and the bombardment northwest of Verdun slackened perceptibly, the War Office announced this afternoon.

Near Fayenhaye, east of Pont-a-Mousson, and about 50 miles southeast of Verdun, French troops attacked German trenches taking a number of prisoners.

The French maintain their positions on the slopes of Haucourt Hill between Malancourt and Avocourt. The Germans made no new attempts to enlarge their positions at this point. Violent bombardments occurred at several points last night, particularly east of the Meuse. There was intermittent cannonading in the Woevre region.

RUSSIANS ATTACKING ON A 150 MILE FRONT

LONDON, March 23.—Half a million well equipped Russian troops, under the direct command of General Kuropatkin, are now assailing Von Hindenburg's line on a front of 150 miles.

The Russians, it is officially announced at Petrograd, have dented the German line in half a dozen places. Unofficial despatches to-day reported battle raging with great fury forty miles south of Dvinsk. The Slavs on this sector are driving westward toward the Vilna-Dvinsk railway.

Whether Kuropatkin's heavy blows are the beginning of a great offensive or merely an attempt to lift the pressure on Verdun, it is too early to determine. The Petrograd correspondent of the Morning Post cabled today that "The great Russian move has begun," pointing out that Kuropatkin is employing large forces.

Other despatches from Petrograd described the Russian offensive as an attempt to butter in the dangerous German wedge in the Dvinsk region, removing the threat of a German offensive on that sector when weather conditions are more seasonable. This is the view held by the majority of London critics, who believe the weather in the Dvinsk region will not be favourable for a great offensive for at least a month.

Northwest of Verdun the Germans are striving desperately to capture a dominant height in the Avocourt region, from which to bring gunfire to bear upon the French positions. Emerging from the Avocourt woods, the Bavarian regiments found themselves upon an open plain, raked by the fire of scores of French guns.

The German attempt has met with some success. The official statement from the French War Office last night admitted that the Germans gained a foothold on Haucourt Hill between Avocourt and Malancourt.

SERIOUSLY CONSIDERING USE OF STATE MILITIA ON MEXICAN BORDER

WASHINGTON, March 23.—For the first time since the Villa man hunt was ordered, the Government to-day seriously considered the possible necessity of using State Militia on the Mexican border. Every available man of the regular army may be needed by General Funston to cope with the Villistas reported reinforced by the deserting Carrangistas. If the entire regular army now in the United States is thrown into Mexico, it is believed the President will have to call for a national guard or volunteers for border patrol work. Reports from General Funston that General Luisherrera Carranza, Military Governor of Chihu-Ahua, had deserted to Villa with 2,000 men, presented grave possibilities, the officials admitted.

Russians Rolling Up Heavy Forces in East

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, March 23.—Von Hindenburg's front is being heavily assailed by the Russians on a gradually widening front now reaching nearly 200 miles in a southeasterly curve from Riga.

The German War Office this afternoon reported heavy Russian assaults last night in the region of Jacobstadt and along the Mitau-Jacobstad: railday, north of Widey, and in the region of Lakes Narocz and Wisniew, south of Dvinsk. General Kuropatkin is rolling up heavy forces to the attack against German railway positions, but the German War Office claims that the attacks have been repulsed.

Hamburg-American Liners Prizes of War

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, March 23.—A British Prize Court to-day ruled that the Hamburg-American liners Prinz Adelbert and Kron Prinzessin Cecilie, seized by British warships, are prizes of war.

ST. JOHN, N.B., March 23.—The Allan liners Sicilian and Corinthian, docked almost simultaneously this morning. Both ships brought a large quantity of mail. The Sicilian brought one hundred and forty-nine returned and wounded officers and men of the Canadian forces in France, and the Corinthian brought seventy-six returned officers and men.

LONDON, March 23.—The steamers "Sea Serpent" and "Kannick" have been sunk. Their crews were saved.

PARIS, March 23.—The Chancellor of the American Legation at Sofia has been arrested by the Bulgarian authorities. He was charged with bribing a police official to issue certain passports. The American Minister has demanded his release.

LOCAL SOLDIERS WILL TAKE PART IN BIG PLAY

Number of the 93rd Battalion Will Be Seen in Battle Scene in "The Story of the Rosary" at the Grand To-night

HOCKEY TEAM THERE

A number of the 93rd Battalion will appear in a new role to-night, when some forty of them will be seen on the stage of the Grand Opera House, taking part in the big military play "The Story of the Rosary" which will be seen to-night. As theatre checks are good as late passes to-night it is expected that a large proportion of the battalion will be on hand. The hockey team of the 93rd Battalion, who play the 146th of Kingston here to-morrow night for the military championship of Ontario, will be the guests of the management and will occupy boxes. "The Story of the Rosary" comes very highly recommended.

The Ice is as Good As It Can Be

Brock Street Rink is Giving the Best Skating of the Season Just Now

There will be skating to-night and Saturday night at the Brock Street Rink, and the ice is as good as it has been any time this year. A large crowd was out last night and enjoyed the 93rd Battalion Band, which will furnish the music to-night and Saturday night.

Evangelist Hickson At the Gospel Hall

Evangelist I. Hickson Irvine spoke last evening in the Gospel Hall to a fair audience. His subject was the perfection of the one offering of Christ of himself for the putting away of sin, contrasted with the imperfect offerings offered under the Levitical priesthood. He expounded at some length Heb. 10:12-14. "But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down on the right hand of God . . . for by one offering hehath perfected forever them that are sanctified."

To-night is Mr. Irvine's last address. Those who have listened to his simple, clear and powerful expositions of the glorious Gospel of the Blessed God could heartily join in the expressing of the poet when he said:

Should all the forms that men devise
Assault by faith with treacherous art,
I'd call them vanity and lies,
And bind thy gospel to my heart."

Come and hear Mr. Irvine to-night in Gospel Hall, 8 o'clock. All welcome. Everything free.

PETERBORO' LADIES SLEPT IN STATION

Two Peterborough ladies visiting in Toronto a few days ago fell asleep in the North Toronto station and almost missed the 9.0 p.m. Montreal express by which they were returning. After dinner at the Queen's the husband of one of them went out to transact some affair and arranged to rejoin them at the North Toronto station. They arrived there a trifle early, decided to rest awhile, removed their hats, chatted, blinked once or twice, grew drowsy, dosed a bit and finally slumbered. It was close to ten o'clock when the husband arrived. The train was all but ready for its long run to Montreal. The ladies were missing. But just in time the Peterborough man found them sound asleep in the ladies' waiting room. Another minute and the train would have been off without them.

Austria has made an arrangement with Petrograd by which books can be forwarded to the German prisoners of war in Russia to dispell the monotony of their confinement by reading.

THESE TWO BROTHERS ARE DOING THEIR BIT

PTE. T. BARRELL, No. 4 Company, 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., France. Pte. Barrell, whose home is at 718 Harvey street, has come through nine fights, including Ypres and Festubert, without a scratch.

PTE. GEO. BARRELL, A Company, 39th Battalion, C.E.F., West Sandling Camp, Kent, England. Pte. Barrell's home is at 718 Harvey street and he enlisted here with the 50th Battalion, going over with a draft from that battalion which went into the 39th Battalion.

A CLERKS' PLATOON WILL BE ORGANIZED FOR 93rd BATTALION

Arrangements Are Being Made to Enroll Them Together --Recruiting Improves Again, Nine Men Being Sworn in This Morning---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

A clerks' platoon for the 93rd Battalion is the latest possibility, and the recruiting committee from the 93rd Battalion and the Speakers' Patriotic League are already making arrangements for its enrollment. It is felt that many young men in the local stores and offices would welcome an opportunity of getting away together. By organizing a platoon of fifty men they would be able to drill, eat and sleep together along the same lines as the Pals' Battalion in Toronto. It is proposed to ask the young men to sign a pledge expressing their willingness to join in the event of a specified number of clerks offering their services.

Recruiting for the 93rd Battalion which last week had considerably fallen away has picked up again this week and this morning nine recruits were sworn in and outfitted. Five of these were recruits from Apsley, where the detachment now is 60 strong. At Havelock there are 50 men for the 93rd.

A detachment for the 93rd Battalion is to be located at Chemong Indian village and it is expected that at least a score of the Chemong Indians will join the 93rd. Several have already done so and proved excellent soldiers and this morning two brothers of Pte. Samson Taylor hailing from Chemong Village were sworn in.

Lt.-Col. Johnston, O. C. 93rd Battalion paid a visit to the Norwood detachment.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Strength Taken On—

The following men having enlisted are taken on the strength of the 93rd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F., and posted to the companies placed opposite their names from the dates mentioned:

No. 196235 Pte. Wm. Jas. Long, March 22nd, 1916.

No. 196236 Pte. Wm. Jas. Armstrong, March 22nd, 1916.

4—Transfers—

No. 196488 Sergt. A. H. Gower is transferred from "B" Company, 93rd Overseas Battalion to "C" Company, 93rd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F., from the date placed opposite his name, March 23rd, 1916.

5—Transfers—

Lieut. G. Matthews 93rd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F. is struck off the strength of the Battalion from the 15th March, having been transferred to 3rd Divisional Ammunition Column. Authority H. Q. telegram dated March 4th 1916.

Notices—

The Commanding Officer has been pleased to allow seat checks in lieu of late passes for the "Story of the Rosary" at the Grand Opera House this evening.

J. E. B. MUNRO, Capt.,
Adjutant 93rd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

Sergt. Curry of Kingston is here looking for chauffeurs for the 3rd Divisional Supply Column for overseas service within the near future. Sergt. Curry will be at the White House for the next day or two. This is a good opportunity for local motor car drivers to do their bit. Sergt. Curry can give them any necessary information at the White House.

The members of the 93rd Battalion are very grateful to the ladies of Trinity Methodist Church for the gift of a large number of delicious pies, which helped to elaborate the supper menu yesterday. The ladies were present to assist in the serving of the pie and were rewarded for their kindness by three rounds and a tiger of the heartiest cheering that has ever rattled the windows of the Armouries.

The Havelock Standard says: Wednesday's casualty list of last week brought the information that Pte. Jas. S. Steenburgh of Cordova, had been killed in action at the front. Pte. Steenburgh enlisted at Belleville and went to the front with the second contingent. He was just 20 years of age and his only near relatives in Canada are two sisters, Mrs. Stanley Cooper of Cordova and Mrs. I. Smith of Campbellford.

Memorial services for the dead hero will be held in the Cordova Free Methodist church on Sunday afternoon next at 2.30 o'clock, and the local platoon of the 93rd Battalion will attend in full strength.

Mrs. Isadore Darrah, 590 Chamberlain street, Peterborough has received the following letter from Pte. Norman E. Darling, No. 113010, 1st Battalion, C.M.R., 9th Canadian Infantry Brigade, 3rd Canadian Division, B.E.F. France.

Feby. 27th, 1916

Dear Mrs. Darrah,—It was with real pleasure I received your letter of February. I have chummed with Dave ever since leaving Kingston last June, that I don't feel as if it came from a stranger and when he and I get back to the old town I feel sure you and I will meet as only old friends can. And I am looking forward to having a second home at your place

THE GOVERNMENT PROHIBITION BILL

Importation for Private Use Will Not Be Interfered With—Bill Effective Without Vote of the Electors—License Board Reconstructed.

A REFERENDUM LATER

PRINCIPAL FEATURES OF PROHIBITION ACT

Prohibition will go into effect in September—probably on September 15—by direct legislation.

All licenses, with a few exceptions, will be extended after May 1st until date fixed, upon payment of nominal fee of $5 or $10.

Referendum will be taken after war and a considerable time after return of soldiers.

Wholesale druggists will be licensed to sell in wholesale quantities for scientific and mechanical purposes, upon production of affidavit as to uses to which liquor will be devoted.

Retail licenses will be issued permitting sale to individuals upon a doctor's prescription, and to a doctor not more than a pint at a time or a veterinary not more than two gallons at a time.

Ontario License Board will be reconstituted with membership of three, and charged with administration of new laws.

Bill will not interfere with importation of liquor for private use or keeping it in the home.

Heavy fines ranging up to $1,000 and sentences up to eight months are provided for infractions of the law.

Prohibition will be in force in Ontario before the end of the coming summer and remain in force until after the war. On September 15th if not earlier every hotel bar and liquor shop and club in the province will cease the sale of intoxicating liquor.

The Ontario Government's temperance proposals were announced by Hon. W. J. Hanna in the Legislature yesterday afternoon following consideration of the matter in caucus that delayed the opening of the House until 4 o'clock. The Provincial Secretary in introducing the "Ontario Temperance Act"—as the new legislation will be known—outlined in a general way its most important provisions, and explained the policy of the Government upon several points not mentioned in the bill. He made no attempt to make "a speech" contenting himself with briefly reviewing the course of the Government in respect to temperance matters since ten years ago, when Sir James Whitney introduced the first License Act amendments.

Hon. Mr. Hanna referred to the fact that since last session a good deal had happened, public opinion not only in Ontario, but throughout the Dominion and the world, had been affected by the terrible war. The Government had never had the matter out of its mind, and the result had been the decision to pass legislation that would voice the public opinion of the province.

Will Extend Licenses.

"Our proposals are briefly this: New licenses will not be issued after the 1st of May, but as a matter of some degree of fairness to the trade, there will be some extension of licenses from the 1st of May in order to enable those engaged in the trade to have some opportunity to dispose of their stocks and make such arrangements as may be necessary in order that they may continue or quit business. We have not determined exactly when that will be, but the date at present in the mind of the Government is somewhere about the month of September.

"There is also a suggestion that as a small measure of justice these licenses be extended for this period for a nominal consideration."

GAVE A SCHOLARLY INTERPRETATION OF ROLE OF "HAMLET"

Mr. John E. Kellerd Makes the Character Very Human in the Scene of Pretended Madness —Appears Here Friday and Saturday

Referring to Mr. E. Kellerd's performance of "Hamlet" during his recent engagement in Toronto, the Mail and Empire says:—

There is no city on the continent that, in proportion to its size, takes as keen an interest as Toronto in the plays of Shakespeare. It is rather odd, therefore, that in this season, when so many famous actors and actresses are making important revivals to celebrate the Shakespearean tercentenerary, we would have been completely overlooked if it had not been for the visit of Mr. John E. Kellerd to the Grand Opera House this week in two of the tragedies and one of the comedies of the Bard of Avon. "Mr. Kellerd opened last night in "Hamlet" the drama in which he made his much discussed run of over a hundred nights in the Garden Theatre, New York, a couple of seasons before the war. Mr. Kellerd is an actor of intelligence and he presented a difficult role. It was a scholar's reading that aimed to illuminate the motives of the Prince of Denmark, and to bring the rich meaning to his lines. Mr. Kellerd's stage manner is natural and easy, and he is quite free from the theatrical strut and the rhetorical elocution that mar so many of the lesser-known Hamlets. He makes the character that he depicts very human in the scenes where the Prince pretends madness, being particularly happy in his treatment of the short snatches in the ironic moments. His reading of the address to the players was excellent, as was also the "Alas poor Yorick" speech.

He was probably at his best in the scene with Hamlet's father's ghost, in the first act. Mr. Kellerd uses the acting version of the play which closes with Horatio's words, "Good Night, sweet prince," and other eliminations, such as the scene where Hamlet spares his uncle at prayer, bring down the final curtain shortly after 11 o'clock. The company surrounding Mr. Kellerd gives him satisfactory support. He has an excellent Horatio in Mr. Philip, Quinn, who reads his lines in excellent style. Miss Helen Barry met the requirements of Ophelia's mad scene much more satisfactorily than one might have expected. She made the demented girl chant the snatches of old songs, and her Ophelia was a thoroughly pathetic figure. Without being elaborate, the scenic equipment proved quite adequate.

In the last decade we have seen the inimitable "Hamlet" of Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson, and also the performance given by E. H. Sothern, which had beauty, even though it lacked bigness or power. We are, therefore, inclined to be hypercritical and rather suspicious of new-comers. Mr. Kellerd does not challenge these two men, or does he pretend to have a production or a company to equal theirs. He is, however, quite the best of what we might call the minor "Hamlet" that have come our way, among whom we must include Mr. Benson. He has a clear conception of the role, and he conveys it to his audience in a scholarly manner. There are times when he becomes decidedly pathetic.

Mr. Kellerd and his talented company appear in Shakesperean plays at the Grand Opera House, Friday and Saturday of this week.

A Fine Film at the Empire

Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines Balance of This Week

Thirty of the prettiest chorus girls in the "Follies of 1915" worked in Essanay's five-act feature, "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines." They appear as ballet dancers on the stage with Ann Murdock, the well-known stage star, who is playing the leading feminine role in the production. The title role is played by Richard C. Travers. The play is adapted from Clyde Fitch's fantastic comedy and is at the Empire Theatre today, to-morrow and Saturday. Two shows each afternoon and evening. Prices 10c. and 10a.

THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1916

NO JOKE.

Hon. Mr. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, is not a Bourbon—he learns and has learned, a good deal of the force of public opinion, and besides, has taken the lesson to heart. He is today the sponsor of the rather drastic prohibition measure introduced into the Legislature, though four years ago, when Mr. Rowell moved his first "banish the bar" resolution in the House, Hon. Mr. Hanna pronounced it "a joke." Mr. Rowell and the temperance interests he represents in sentiment, and advocacy, if not specifically, have good reason to be grateful at the practical progress temperance sentiment has made in recent years, not only in Ontario, where the new prohibition bill, backed by both parties, is evidence of the fact, but in the other provinces of the Dominion. In the face of this intensified sentiment no public man holding a responsible position would risk calling a demand for decided temperance measures, a "joke." This time advance in temperance is no joke.

ENCOURAGING.

Things are coming our way very satisfactorily these days, and the evidence accumulates that the Kaiser has shot his bolt, and sees a disastrous finish inevitable, if not immediate. He threw his sword into the balance at Verdun, and has lost it. He has lost the battle of Verdun and paid a terrible price for the loss. Of course he is slow to admit it. He keeps banging away round Malincourt way, but that is only to soften his fall—by a show of offensive which can have no effect in modifying the situation. Germany is practically beaten. H. after months of preparation—massing troops, and guns, and munitions—he has failed, and in the process, very seriously exhausted his strength, he would be madder than he has always been, to expect success against the Allies, who are growing stronger every day, and especially with Russia's fierce offensive on his eastern flank, Russia victorious in the south, and Italy giving his chief ally (Austra) a little more than it can do. The doom is closing in. Germany's proud slogan at the opening of the war—"World domination or downfall"—has been shortened to "downfall."

THE PROHIBITION BILL.

The bill to make Ontario "dry" was submitted to the House yesterday and was given its first, or formal reading. The bill follows the Manitoba bill, so strongly endorsed by the people of that province, with such improvements as mature thought and the experience of this province might suggest. It will embody the chief provisions, as to enforcement, of the Ontario License Act which after holding the boards for nearly half a century is superseded and becomes nul. The bill itself in its prohibitive provisions, generally meets the approval of temperance people, while license holders and those interested in the traffic cannot find anything but condemnation of it—some holding it to be as bad as a Zeppelin raid.

It is declared unjust that there is no provision for compensation of the trade, for the inevitable loss that prohibition will bring it. The only attempt at compensation is the provision that the law shall come into force some four months after enactment, in order to give dealers time to get rid of their stocks with a minimum of loss. This pleases neither the temperance people nor the trade. The former got their monster petition signed with the understanding of a "dry Ontario by Dominion day." There is reason in this if we are to get the fullest benefits of prohibition, as a measure in the interests of the country during the war.

The extension of time to permit of the disposal of stocks is the only form of compensation the bill provides for—a compensation that in justice and fair play should be provided. An easy way to settle the matter and to a certain extent please both parties is to provide for the immediate application of the prohibition bill and also to provide some other form of compensation in lieu of the extension of time. This compensation might be in cash or its equivalent ,and if prohibition is of an importance to warrant the demand for its immediate enforcement it may easily be worth the cost of compensation. It may cost something to provide compensation; but isn't it worth something to do the right thing. We and Great Britain are pouring out uncountable millions to keep British fair play and British justice as elements in our national life and in our civilization. On this ground a claim for compensation of some kind and to a reasonable extent, is reasonably founded. Some extremists denounce the idea altogether. So sane a journal as the Globe dismisses the compensation idea with the remark to the effect that compensation, rather, is due to the victims of the traffic. That is very true; but with whom does the responsibility of compensation for the victims of the traffic belong? Hasn't the state, which legitimatized the traffic shared the responsibility. The assassin is not all to blame; the man that puts the knife into his hand and makes its use lawful should largely share the responsibility of the assassin's crime.

The state must logically bear the blame and the responsibility for the evil results of the traffic. It has legalised, fostered, encouraged and protected the traffic. If the liquor traffic—and there is no doubt in the matter—has resulted in great evils, the government and the people who make governments \are participes criminis. But in shaking off responsibility— in making reparation, via prohibition—extinction of the liquor traffic—it does not seem a square and sportsmanlike thing for the government and people to desert their "pals" in the work of evil the traffic has wrought; nor for the people to get all the benefits and throw all the loss upon men engaged in a traffic which the people themselves created, legalised and made legitimate. St Paul had very strong objections to doing evil that good may come; the temperance people and all the people have achieved a great triumph in bringing about, as their persistence has doubtless done, the triumph implied in prohibition. They should not stain their laurels by even the semblance of wrong or injustice.

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE—AWHILE.

The visit of Premier Hughes of Australia to England, and his propaganda of reconstruction of the Empire, as well as the action of those who rush to the discussion of the questions involved or evoked, without intelligent knowledge of them, is untimely—as untimely as a war time election. The Empire is too busy in the struggle to maintain the status quo; to save itself and guard the interests it represents and is responsible for, to turn aside to the discussion of abstract and academic questions of empire reorganization even if it has to do with "the influence of the 'colonies' in matters of Empire." Consideration of such questions are not only untimely in relation to the empire's adequate conduct of the present struggle, but because there does not seem to be much need—no clamant need, anyway—for a change in the relations of the "colonies" or Dominions and the authoritative centre of the Empire. The Empire in the matter of constitutional bonds is, it is true merely "slung together"; but it splendidly holds together, nevertheless. If we needed any proof of the justification of the present relations of the component parts of the empire, we have it in the resultant outcome of this war which has magnificently demonstrated the unity, the oneness of the empire in every aspect and relation, physical as well as sentimental. What improvement do we want in the structure of an empire that has showed itself to be, one and undivided, in a way to make the world wonder. There is as much loyalty to the Empire, the cause of empire and humanity in the remotest and most insignificant dependancy as there is in the heart of the empire.

SOCKS AND SISSIES.

The question up to a great many young men right now is whether they will enlist for the war or stay home and learn to knit socks for soldiers.—Toronto Star.

FORD BULL'S EYES.

Within a period of ten years, the Ford car has been responsible for building up a business from a plant employing a dozen men to one employing over two thousand and has made it the largest automobile factory in the British Empire.

When the whistles blew on Friday night, the 10th of March, Ford shipments were just one hundred and forty-four (an even gross) ahead of the whole of their 1915 season.

There appears to be no limit to the demand for Ford cars.

Over a million Ford cars sold to date proves conclusively that such a number of sales could never have been made unless Ford owners everywhere were receiving SERVICE.

EFFECTS OF NEW TAXATION UPON THE INTERESTS OF THE MINING INDUSTRY

Sir Robert Borden has had addressed to him a memorandum on taxation and mining by Mr. F. A. O'Farrell. The Herald has been favoured with a copy of this memorandum which is probably one of the most sensational disquisitions on the subject which has ever appeared in Canada. Mr. O'Farrell registers the strongest possible protest against Sir Thomas White's new scheme of taxation, which leaves out of account vast unearned incomes and puts heavy taxes on efficiency industry, economic invention, and discovery. He thinks it is also iniquitous to exempt from taxation ranchers on the Canadian prairies who own thousands of acres and reap enormous profits, and wealthy individuals and corporations who own vast tracts of the richest farm lands—aliens, many of them.

But what he regards as particularly unfortunate is the scheme to make miners contribute 25 per cent. of all legitimate profits above a seven per cent. capital, while exempting incomes from real estate, bonds, and preferred stocks. He declares that already this proposal has done great harm by stopping or curtailing all mineral prospecting or development, and he holds that if it is persisted in it will halt mineral and metal production for a decade. One of the anomalies to which he draws attention is that while the Government have made what he declares is careful and deliberate provision that the Standard Oil Company shall be allowed to import crude oil into Canada free they tax heavily the refined oil of independent companies, and are now putting a heavy tax on the production of crude oil in Canada. This, he says, is playing into the Standard Oil Company's hands by keeping out of development the mineral oil shales of New Brunswick, which alone are capable of producing "from two to three hundred million gallons of gasoline a year." He declares that the Ontario Government is the mere tool of Standard Oil, that this company has "marked and branded Canada for conquest and plunder more completely than the Kaiser had mapped out Belgium and France," and that the new tax on mineral oil production will hand the Canadian people completely over to this monopoly. To show how the Standard Oil Company is draining money like water out of Canada, he says that of the $60,000,000 of gasoline, illuminating and lubricating oils, and other by-products of mineral oils that Canada buys every year $56,000,000 at least goes into the treasury of the Standard Oil, which, since the war, has raised the price of gasoline 10 cents a gallon, and by this device increased Canada's tribute for gasoline alone from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 annually.

Turning next to mining, Mr. O'Farrell charges that the Rockefeller, Krupps and Guggenheim interests are "exploiting and plundering the mineral wealth of the Dominion, not for the benefit of the Empire, but for the profit of those who are leagued to destroy it." He asserts that Krupps are at the back of the International Nickle Company which is exploiting Ontario's wonderful stores of nickel, that Krupps hold 25 per cent. of the stock of the International Nickel Company through bankers who are trustees for them and that they are fooling the Ontario and Federal Governments by a showw of innocence. He maintains that the Rockefellers and the Germans are conspiring that every metallurgical plant in Canada shall be penalized in order that Canadian metals may be driven across the border to enhance their profits, and he adds: "The paramount question, therefore, is shall the natural resources and the mineral wealth of Canada be developed and exploited by and for American and German oil trusts and metal trusts or shall they be conserved for the people of Canada and the Empire? The proposed Budget blasts Canadian metal and mining and mineral development, and the closer it is scrutinised the more odious it appears."

We must confess that Mr. O'Farrell's arguments are impressive. It will be doubly unfortunate if as would appear, the oil producing industry in this country is to be penalised in such a way that the Standard Oil Company, importing without any duty whatever, can cut the ground from under Canadian companies. It will also be unfortunate if the effect of the new tax is to penalize the refinement of metal in this country, and actually make it profitable to ship out ores in a raw state to refineries on the other side of the border, where the profits in refining will not be taxed by Canada. Considering the hazards of mining, it is doubtful economy to put a special tax on the luck ventures, and thus to curtail the inducements to this highly speculative industry. As regards the allegations of Krupps' connection with the Ontario nickel mines, whether these are true or not, nobody who knows anything about the nickel supply of the world and the nickel needs of Germany must see that Krupps would have been fools if they had not long ago tried to control Canada's almost world monopoly. Not an ounce of this nickel ought to be allowed to go out of Canada in an unrefined state.—Montreal Herald.

CAN'T WAIT FOR MEN

Every Briton Should be Ready to Defend His Country.

LONDON, March 23.—"The German Emperor won't wait and the War Office cannot wait, or we might be able to consider and even concede some of your demands."

This was the gist of a brief reply given by the Earl of Derby to a deputation of married men who had attested and who demanded the enrollment of every unmarried man before calling up the others. The deputation also urged the substitution of general military service as an alternative to the existing system. Lord Derby added:

"No matter whether married or single, every man should be prepared to defend his country."

FIFTY PER CENT. OF CITY LEAGUE PLAYERS SERVING THE EMPIRE

Many of Last Year's Baseball Stars Are Now Playing the Big Game in France---93rd Battalion Has Nucleus of Good Team From the Local City League Aggregations

A discussion the other night as to the possibilities of a City Baseball League this season, disclosed the interesting fact that fifty per cent. of last year's City League players are now serving the Empire. If there is any league this year it will contain practically new outfits. The 93rd Battalion will have a team, but where the other teams are coming from is hard to say.

The Thistles, runners-up for the championship, were the hardest hit. Harold Morrow, who was slated for a position on the team last season, is in France with the Canadian ge mounts. "Merry" Huycke, the Thistles' clever pitcher, is now Lieut. Huycke of the Canadian Field Artillery, and is playing the big game in France. Harold Hill, the Thistles' catcher, is an officer with the 38th Battalion, in Bermuda, and Orme Cavanah, who alternated behind the bat and at shortstop, is in France with the Canadian artillery. Harold Knapman, left fielder, is now Sergt Knapman with the C.F.A., in England. Right-fielder Joe Munro is now Capt. J. E. R. Munro, adjutant of the 93rd Battalion, and Gordon Matthews, second baseman, is with the C. E. F. at Toronto. Ernie Rahmel, who played second base part of the season for the Thistles, is doing his bit in making ammunition at the Ross Rifle factory at Quebec.

Of the champion East City team, Second Baseman Alf. Hagerman and Third Baseman Alex: Butcher are both overseas with the 33rd Battery, as is Outfielder Sam Clancy, who started the season with the East City team. Shortstop Frank Barrie of the East City team, is in England, engaged on munitions, as was, until a short time ago, Outfielder Art Premeau of the same team.

Of the Classics, Pitcher Gus Rose, Shortstop Stan. Anderson, and Outfielder A. Frost are all with the 93rd Battalion, and Infielder Jack O'Dette is overseas with the 33rd Battery.

Alan Wade, who pitched a no-hit game for the Empires, in the season's opening game, went overseas with the 39th Battalion, while Alf. Taylor, who caught most of the games for the Empires, is in France. He went over with a draft from the 33rd Battery. Joe Dineen of the Empires, is with the 93rd Battalion.

Incidentally it might be mentioned that Harry Carr, the genial Secretary of the League, is also overseas, having joined the 33rd Battery.

GRAHAM MADE A GOOD SHOWING IN JUNIOR ALL STAR GAME

Freddy Graham, the Electrics' rover, made a good impression upon the Toronto fans in last night's game, according to the following from the Toronto Globe:

The East defeated the West 9 to-5 in the annual All-Star junior game at the Arena last night. The winners were favourites because the majority of the players had at one time or another been seen in action by local hockey followers. Harry Watson, the clever centre man of the St. Andrew's College team, was the star of the game. This boy played up to his best form last night, and when he does that there are few better hockey players in junior or senior company. He scored five of his team's nine goals and figured in the majority of the others. His stick-handling and speed were clever to watch, and he back-checked splendidly.

Jimmy Green Plays Well.

Wright at rover, an Aura Lee boy, was also good, but he has played better games. He missed a number of chances to score by poor shooting, something which he very seldom does. Jimmy Green, also of Aura Lee, who replaced Sheldon on the defence, as the latter was unable to play, was conspicuous throughout. This boy has developed wonderfully since the first of the season. He has weight, knows how to body, has an effective poke-check, is a fast skater, a clever stick-handler and is unselfish. These, of course, are about all the qualifications of a hockey player, but Green needs a little more seasoning.

The defence was the strength of the West, although at that both defence men were better on the attack than on the defence. Brown of the Berlin Union Jacks showed a lot of speed and clever stick-handling, and Foulis of Collingwood was good in the same respect. Young Meeking of the 76th Battalion of Barrie, a younger brother of Gordon and Harry Meeking, was the best of the forward line. He did not show anything extra good in the stick-handling line but managed to get goals all the same. Joe Smith of the C.M.R., Hamilton, was good also, but the other forwards did not show very much.

Little Graham a Star.

One of the features of the game was the work of Graham of the Peterborough Electrics. He was the smallest man on the ice, did not weigh one hundred pounds, but he was in practically every play while he was on the ice. He is an exceptionally clever stick-handler. He holds his stick about half-day down the handle, but he can carry the puck all the same. Rowden of Port Hope was very good also, in fact, he should have been a regular instead of a spare. The teams:

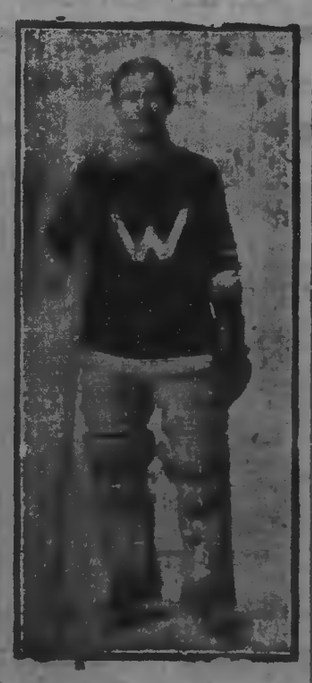
Referee—Lieut. Lou E. Marsh, Toronto.



CHILDS—The goalkeeper of the Western All-Stars. He has held that position for three years.

CURLING

Representatives of the old Granites and Thistles will meet at the Curling Club to-night on four ices as they used to, perhaps, in the days of the old rink, and its opposing clubs.

Mr. R. M. Waddell is trying to arrange for three or four rinks ot go to Lindsay on Friday night.

FRONTENAC STARS TO PLAY HERE WITH THE 146th TO-MORROW NIGHT

"Bouncer" Brouse, Milan and other well-known Kingston, Frontenac stars will be here to-morrow night, with the 46th Battalion, when they clash with the 93rd Battalion for the military championship. Capt. Jas. T. Sutherland of the 146th, who is the President of the O. H. A., always has a good team, and his soldier seven are confident that they can anbex the scalps of the 93rd, who have already put away the 109th of Lindsay and the Sportsmen's Battalion of Toronto. To-morrow night's game at Brock Street Rink, should be on a par with the game with the Sportsmen, as the Kingston seven are of senior calibre and are in good shape. The 93rd are confident of taking the fast Easterners into camp and the game promises to be a memorable one. The cool weather makes good ice a certainty, and the fans should be out in large numbers to cheer the 93rd, who have given Peterborough a wide amount of advertising during the winter. Captain Sutherland will face the puck. The game is called for 8.15 o'clock, and as the 146th will reach here at 5.30 o'clock there will be no delays.

OPENING OF THE MUSKRAT SEASON

Local Hunters Are Preparing for the Season's Catch

Local hunters of fur bearing animals are getting ready for the opening season, when the muskrats will emerge from their winter quarters.

The season for muskrat commences on the 1st day of December each year and ends on the 1st day of May.

The law specifies that no muskrat shall be hunted; taken or killed, or had in possession of any person, between the 1st day of May and the 1st day of December following, except, as provided for in the next succeeding subsection hereof, and any traps, snares, or any contrivances set for them can be destroyed without liability to the person so doing. This shall apply to Indians in respect to private or leased lands.

Section (3)—No muskrat shall be shot during the month of April or speared at any time, nor shall any muskrat house be cut speared, broken or destroyed at any time, according to law.

The law regarding the taking of mink reads that no mink shall be hunted, taken or killed or had in possession of any person between the 1st day of May and 1st day of September following.

Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D Accepts An Invitation to First Methodist Church, London

Rev. R. G. Peever, Pastor of George Street Methodist Church, has received a unanimous invitation from the Board of the First Methodist Church, London, to become its pastor for the Conference year, commencing June 1st, 1917, a year from the coming June.

First Methodist Church, London, has the distinction of being the largest church in the London Conference, having a membership of 1,400. Its organization is designed to do affective institutional church work, having an assistant pastor, and a secretary who devotes all his time to the detail work in connection with the church.

That the Rev. Peever has been chosen for this position, is a tribute to his effective work in George Street Church during the past three years.

The invitation has been accepted by Mr. Peever, and the George Street Board has given Rev. Dr. Flanders, who is now in the First Church, London, an, invitation to George Street Church.

"NO BILL" IN CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY

Against Sir Rodmond Roblin and Hon Messrs Coldwell and Rowden Three Cabinet Ministers of the Manitoba Government

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Man., March 23.—Startling rumors from the Assize Court this morning is to the effect that the Grand Jury is about to return "no bill" in the charge of conspiracy against three former Cabinet Ministers, Sir Rodmond Roblin, and Hon. Messrs. Coldwell and Howden.

The Jury has been hearing evidence of witnesses for two weeks. The majority of the jury have political affiliations in keeping with tinge of ex-Ministers on trial.

LOCAL ARTISTS ON PROGRAMME

Took Part in Big Patriotic Concert in Havelock

The Havelock Standard says—About $70.00 for the funds of the Women's Relief Committee was the result of the patriotic concert in the hall on Friday last. The event was exceedingly well attended and all were delighted with the programme. The different college selections by the Glee Club were enthusiastically received. Spirited, patriotic and timely readings by Pte. W. J. Andrews of town, Miss Mathers of Peterborough and Miss Anderson of Norwood, were given well merited encores. Pleasing solos were rendered by Mrs. H. F. McNichol, and Mrs. Mac Foley of town and Miss Worth of Peterborough, the latter making a big hit with the local patoon in her song, entitled "Join the 93rd," the chorus of which ran as follows:

"So fill up the gaps in the brave 93rd,
Come put on the khaki and pledge them your word
You will sail o'er the sea to keep Canada free,
And fight for the flag that protects you and me."

Miss Bentley of Peterborough gave a solo in which the warmth and sweetness of her voice was heard with admiration. Miss Hanson of Peterborough, and Mrs. Danard of town captivated everyone in their soprano solos, both ladies possessing voices of beautiful quality and fine expression. The two-act comedy, Dr. Cure-All, by local young people, proved to be a most mirth provoking one, and all those who took part in it, made the most of their parts.

MET THE PEOPLE OF ST. JOHN'S

At the close of the usual Wednesday evening Lenten service last night the congregation met in the Sunday School hall and were introduced to Rev. Canon Cornish, who has taken charge of the parish in the absence of the rector, Major Davidson on active service. Col. Stevenson and Mr. J. J. Howden, church wardens introduced the people their new rector.

SMUGGLERS MADE $25,000

Twenty-three Jailed For Sneaking Opium From Canada to U. S.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 23.—With confessions from nearly all of the principals, federal officials announced that they expected most of the twenty-three men in jail, on charges of smuggling Chinese and opium from Vancouver, B.C., to plead guilty and end one of the biggest smuggling conspiracies ever discovered on the Pacific Coast.

The officers expect to arrest several others, and hope to capture another swift launch used in the smuggling operations. Government agents said that during the last four years the smugglers brought in $1,000,000 worth of opium and enough Chinese laborores to net them a profit of $200,000.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

SPECIAL ENGAGEMENT OF CREATORE'S BAND

This Excellent Musical Organization Will Be in Peterborough the Middle of May

A musical attraction of unique interest and unapproachable excellence will be heard in Peterboro on May 18 the shape of the world-famed Creatore and his wonderful Italian band. This organization, the finest military band available for concert in America today, and one of the greatest bands in the world is being booked throughout Canada by Mr. F. A. Veitch the well-known Montreal impresario, and will be in Peterborough on May 18th at popular prices. The band will be heard here in its full strength precisely as it played at the Toronto Exhibition last autumn, and at series of concerts at the Montreal Arena, which attracted the largest audience ever known in that city for band concerts. Guiseppe Creatore, the conductor, first came into notice by the violent and eccentric methods of his conducting some twelve or fifteen years ago; he throws his whole soul, and all his limbs into the business of inspiring his performers, waves his body to and fro, crouches, leaps, runs up and down in front of the orchestra and in climaxes acts like a madman in a state of frenzy. It was speedily discovered, however, that no matter how peculiar these methods might seem, Creatore certainly elicited an extraordinary and unequaled amount of expression and vigor from his band, and at his last Canadian tour in 1915 the critics were unanimous that his arrangement of the British National Anthem, was the most soul-stirring achievement in the way of an emotional climax that any band had ever performed in Canada. His programmes on the present tour are largely military and patriotic.

A Store of Helpfulness and Service

NEW---THE LEADER IN ITS LINE

ANY LADY can see a very choice and individual display of READY-TO-WEAR GARMENTS, carefully selected and prepared, representing the last ideas in quiet, refined and correct modes, which appeal to a particular clientele, and that are not priced at figures any greater than has been the custom to pay even for common goods.

Styles in Suits, Coats, Dresses, Gowns, Skirts and Blouses

In Wool and Silk Fabrics are shown, not in wasteful or bewildering variety, but rather in a selection of the best and most correct—each one individual, no two being alike—which helps towards selecting more comfortably and with less uncertainty.

We ask the Ladies to have a look through. Each day brings in something that is INTERESTING, NEW and EXCLUSIVE with us.

Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P. Elected President of the Children's Aid Society

Mr. E. L. Goodwill Resigns as Solicitor-Secretary, and is Succeeded by Mr. Joseph Wearing—Twenty-two Boy Wards of the Society Serving the Empire

A special meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Bank of Montreal Chambers with Rev. Father Phalen in the chair, at which the usual reports of the Solicitor Secretary, Mr. E. L. Goodwill, and the Treasurer, Mr. Horace Walkey, were presented.

"The purpose of calling the meeting" Mr. Goodwill explained, "was to appoint a President to succeed Mr. R. W. Travers, who had been transferred to London, and to elect the other officers as well.

"In the removal of Mr. Travers the Society had lost the most energetic and resourceful President in its history; Mrs. Travers, too, would be greatly missed in the Ladies' Department, where she was a most enthusiastic worker.

Demands Increasing.

"The demands of our Society," continued Mr. Goodwill, "are not lessening, and at times our accommodation has been taxed to the utmost but we are happy in the realization of the great blessing it is for the city to have such an institution where children can be properly cared for. There is no work which calls for a broader sympathy than that of the Children's Aid Society, in its endeavours to give every child adequate protection and an opportunity to grow up amid proper surroundings. In the last few years the work has trebled, and the cost of maintenance has greatly increased, so that some method outside of Tag Day must be adopted to meet the increasing needs."

The appointment of the Ladies' Auxiliary, with their large experience in household matters, was a move in the right direction, especially their services in making purchases and in supervising the shelter.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry deserve credit for the efficient manner in which their duties are performed.

Dr. Amys, too, came in for a word of praise for the large amount of time given the children while ill.

The Juvenile Court.

The work of the Police Magistrate, the Chief of Police and the Matron was much appreciated, and it was unfortunate that the public could not be more fully informed regarding the numerous cases that come before them, but as it is an established principle, and one that works out well in practice, not to divulge any of the proceedings that go on behind the doors of the juvenile court, the world outside can form little idea of the depths of degradation touched by the Society, which, sometimes, are beyond description.

Splendid Results.

The results, however, are marvelous when it is considered that less than 5 per cent of these cases are lost to good citizenship. The purpose of the Society, it must be remembered, is not to take children away from, and break up, the home, but rather to keep the home together.

Police Force Should be Increased.

Speaking in reference to the reduction in the Police Department, Mr. Goodwill held the same view as expressed eight or nine years ago: That the city looked adequate police protection in the outlying districts and parks. "Personally, I would regard it as a most lamentable circumstance if the police force is reduced at the present time."

Larger Grants Needed.

In the past the Society received a small grant from the County Council and Warden Kindred has promised the consideration of an increase at its next meeting.

The city allowance should be augmented, for every child saved from the Industrial School represents a saving to the municipality, since each inmate sent there is a direct charge of twenty-five cents a day. If this increase is not forthcoming it may be necessary to take what the law allows in such cases, namely, $2.00 a week for every ward in the Shelter.

Secretary Resigns.

Owing to circumstances which have been developing for some time, Mr. Goodwill explained that it would be impossible for him to act as Secretary in the future, though he would always have the interests of the Society at heart.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon.-Pres.—Mayor Duffus.
President—Mr. E. A. Peck, ex-M.P.P.
First Vice-Pres.—Mr. W. H. Dunsford.
Second Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Birdsall.
Treasurer—Mr. H. W. Walkey.
Solicitor-Secretary—Mr. Jos. Wearing.
Physician—Dr. Amys.

The appointment of an Agent was left in abeyance for the new Executive to deal with. Mr. George Cochrane, who has been Agent of the Society for so many years, feels that he is physically unable to give the work proper attention. It was hoped, however, that he would soon be able to undertake his duties again.

Committee of Management.

The President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Mrs. W. H. Gibbs, Mrs. W. Stocker, Mrs. Scott, and Mrs. W. H. Hopwood, respectively; Mrs. McElheney; Chief Thompson, Chief Howard, Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble and O. A. Langley, the Warden of the County, and with power to increase their number.

Financial Statement.

Mr. H. W. Walkey, Treasurer, presented the following statement of finances, as of Nov. 30th, 1915:

Receipts.

Balance	$631.36
City grant	300.00
County grant	250.00
Tag Day	1165.72
Subscriptions and donations	398.94
Board and wages	186.85

	$3,083.80

Disbursements.

Board	$1749.75
G. Cochrane, salary	250.00
Ladies' Auxiliary	265.00
Light, fuel, water and telephone	80.23
Tag Day expenses	66.67
Sundry	109.28
Balance	372.87
	$3,083.80

Twenty-two Boys in Khaki.

It was with considerable pride that Mr. Goodwill drew attention to the fact that twenty-two boy-wards of the Society had answered the call of the Empire and are now in active service. If these lads can be saved from the penitentiary and lives of crime it is an immense saving to the country, (since it is estimated that each inmate costs us $1,000.00 a year), as well as an uplift to humanity.

Another case, which was a fair sample of the work of regeneration accomplished, was that of a family of five children who were taken care of about a year ago. The father was in jail, and the mother a physical wreck. To-day that father is at the front, fighting for his king; the mother is well, and living with her children, who were restored to her some time ago. Truly, they are living a new existence.

Chief Howard and Fire Protection.

At the request of the Executive, Chief Howard made an inspection of the Shelter, and owing to its distance from the centre of the city, and the inflammable nature of the building, he recommended, and had installed, an apparatus known as "Fire Barrel and Buckets." It consists of a barrel containing about thirty gallons of water, with a number of pails inside, one in the other, and each pail is full of water as it is pulled out of the barrel.

Chief Howard expressed his regret at the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Travers, and suggested that a letter be sent them in London, conveying the Society's regrets at their removal and appreciation of their splendid work in Peterborough.

Chief Thompson.

The two "Chiefs" were in a happy mood yesterday, and vied with each other in scattering their shafts of humor, which afforded a pleasant relief since the major portion of the reports dealt with "pictures from life's other side."

Chief Thompson felt that something should be done to interest the citizens of Peterborough in the work of the Society, for its claims stand ahead of any other work.

"These children," said he, "are going to be the future men and women of our country. Could the citizens see and know the heartaches that go through my office it would arouse them to a sense of their duty. Children drifting on the downward course come into our hands in the juvenile court, and we try to deal with them as men having the highest ideals for their future welfare.

Chief Thompson voiced his approval of the work of Mr. Cochrane, and trusted he would soon be restored to perfect health and able to resume his work with the Society.

Mrs. McElheney's Splendid Work.

If anyone doubted the magnificent results accomplished through the medium of the Children's Aid Society, they would be quickly disillusioned by listening to a report by Mrs. McElheney, whose heart is in her task.

"This work among juveniles," said she, "is a labour that angels might covet. There are in this city a great many neglected children, and their only hope to be made clean and strong and true, is to put them in an environment which will lift their standard of life higher and give them purer desires."

Several cases she cited, the filth and degredation of which beggar description. If any citizen who has the interests of humanity at heart could become cognisant of these conditions there would be given more practical sympathy and assistance.

Help the Mothers.

Before concluding her excellent address, Mrs. McElheney drew attention to the necessity for missionary work among the mothers of these children. "If there were some way of educating these women to be thrifty and neat, where they now lack ability to do anything, either for themselves or their families, there would be greater hope for the children."

Secretary's Resignation a Calamity.

Chief Howard and others regretted greatly the loss of Mr. Goodwill as Secretary; in fact it was viewed as almost a calamity, so faithful had he been. Always ready to do his part he had been a tower of strength to the organization.

In replying, Mr. Goodwill regretted the circumstances which made it necessary for him to resign, but he would always have the work of the Children's Aid Society at heart.

Mr. Goodwill was added to the Board of Managers.

The President Elect.

Mr. Peck, after expressing his appreciation of the honour done him gave it as his opinion that the Government did not contribute enough to the funds of the Society, and it would be his endeavour to see that these are increased. There were other ways in which the Society could be helped, such as legacies from people of wealth or grants during life. The needs of the Association should be kept before the people.

MILITARY NEWS

with Dave as a twin brother which is about what we are now.

Not being in the Gun Section where he and Butcher are I don't see him as often as while in England but whenever possible we get together and time spent in Peterborough is the main topic. When writing to mother I never fail to mention their welfare as well as my own and she has come to regard us as three friends who intend to stick to each other through thick and thin, and always asked for them. Only a mother can realise what a good friend means to her boy in these dangerous times and she is pleased to know I have two of the best. It may relieve your anxiety to hear from me that Davy has a good job with his officer and is well liked by him and being an officer who knows his business looks after his men in such a manner that barring those things no man can forsee they are protected in every possible manner. In fact, no regiment in active service has anything on the first as regards the men who lead us and we have every confidence in their ability to lead us to the end of the war without that needless loss of life, which often takes place through foolish orders.

I intended paying a visit to the Gun Section to-day being Sunday but its half raining and half snowing, so unless it clears up its rather too miserable to go out. Often have to go out but being in rest camp just now make the most of the comforts we have while we can, I will surely demand my share of that box you mentioned, for having had my fingers in some you sent before I realise the treat in store and don't intend being left out of this one.

Glad to hear Dave writes to you so often for we realise how much worrying you mothers do when we fail to answer and let you know we are O.K. and although often we are on duty for days at a time and writing almost is an impossibility, like myself, he knows mother is our truest friend after all and other friends wait until she gets her dues.

Now Mrs. Darrah don't do any unnecessary worrying for none of us take any foolish chances.

Rather, thank God you've got a son who is a man and is doing his duty and look forward to his return with all a mother's pride for he surely is a worthy son and when he comes marching home you will be so proud of him that the sacrifice you have made and the many heartaches you have suffered will be amply repaid by his pleasure in getting back to such a mother.

Write again for its good indeed to hear from one who from now on I look upon as a sincere friend.

Yours sincerely,
NORMAN E. DARLING 1st C.M.R.

Pte. J. D. Jones of the 4th C. M. R., writing to his uncles, Ald. Geo. Duncan, says he has been up in the front trenches twice, found them as comfortable as could be expected, ad there is no kick coming from anybody. He had collected quite a few souvenirs, but had to throw them away because they were too bulky to carry around. Pte. Jones is "somewhere in France" with the Mounted Rifle, serving as infantry.

A number of the officers and noncoms of the 93rd Battalion are going to Montreal early next month to take a special course in bayonet fighting and gymnastics. Physical culture is one of the big items in the training of the overseas forces and the Peterborough officers and non coms should come back crammed with new ideas.

Canadian General Electric Makes Excellent Report

Year's Figures Show Thirty Per Cent. Gain in Gross Profits—Banking and Bonded Indebtedness Reduced Radically

TORONTO, March 22.—Partly because the company has been known to be extensively engaged in munition manufacture more than ordinary interest attached to the statement for 1915 presented at the annual meeting of Canadian General Electric shareholders to-day.

Its most striking feature is that the company's financial position has been most strongly reinforced in the fiscal year, ended December 31, 1915. Reserves have been strengthened to a very material extent, and if there is anything at all in the theory of "preparedness," then surely the company is now in a position to stand a long and a hard siege.

As compared with the 1914 statement, gross earnings increased more than 30 per cent., amounting to $1,219,514, as compared with $914,528 in 1914. From this year's gross a deduction of $416,222 has been set aside for depreciation. In making this allotment it has apparently been figured that the entire amount is to be applied to depreciation of machinery, tools, and patterns, as the report points out that the increased valuation of the lands owned by the company may easily be regarded as in excess of any depreciation in the buildings for the reason that the latter are always kept at a very high standard of repair. A further amount to be deducted from gross earnings is a sum of $38,912 for interest, compared with $180,967 in the year previous. Net profits, therefore, deducting these two amounts, figure out at $764,379, as compared with 1914 net profits of $723,571. From net profits, in turn, have been deducted $698,022 for dividends paid during the year, leaving a surplus of $66,357, as compared with $26,830 at the end of 1914. Adding surplus earnings to the undivided profit as shown at the first of the year, brings total profit and loss up to $1,007,119, as compared with $940,762; $300,000 has been taken from this surplus to be applied to reserve, whereas no such allotment was made in the 1914 statement. This brings total reserve up to $3,000,000. Amount carried forward to credit of profit and loss is $707,119, as compared with the amount at the end of the previous year of $940,762.

A comparison of the statement of 1915 with that of 1914 and 1913 shows a wonderful improvement in the company's liquid position. Cash on hand and in banks now amounts to $477,631, an increase of nearly $400,000 in the last year, and whereas bonded and banking indebtedness at the end of 1913 amounted to $1,949,838, this amount at December 31st last amounted to only $750,000.

The company may justifiably take pride in the fact that it has raised and maintained a detachment of twenty-five electrical and mechanical engineers for war service, and that 638 members of the staff have enlisted for overseas service.

Canadians Show a 4 to 1 Preference For Ford Cars

Recent figures show that of all automobiles licensed in the nine provinces of the Dominion during the past year, the Ford car was chosen in a proportion of four times to one of all other makes combined.

There were 22,070 cars sold in Canada in these twelve months. Of this number 17,870 were Fords, leaving a balance of 4,500 cars of other makes.

Indications show a still wider popularity for the Ford this year since, to meet the demand already evinced, the Canadian Ford Company is building twice as many cars this year as they did last. This means that the number of Fords in the Dominion will be increased by nearly 40,000 by August 1st, 1916.

It is likely that this is a result of that stricter adherence to economy that the Government has been urging the public to follow during the last year or more. People are buying automobiles without quite so many frills—they are demanding that maximum of motor car service at a minimum cost so well represented by the Ford car. 14-70-1w-18

The Government Prohibition Bill

Must Consider Soldiers.

"If a referendum were submitted without the soldiers' vote being taken —I care not how big the majority, one way or the other—the matter could not be permanently settled. It would always be said that we had no right to disfranchise the 150,000 men who are away fighting for us.

"Therefore, although sometime earlier in the consideration of this question we had in mind the possibility of a referendum yet as a result of the best consideration we could give the subject we came to the conclusion that it was better in the interests of the whole question that this House should adopt, without a referendum the legislation that is submitted and that the question of a referendum be deferred until after the war is over and until after the soldiers have returned."

Hon. Mr. Hanna stated that the period for taking the vote had not been decided upon, pointing out that it would have to be some time after the end of the war until the soldiers had returned and had time to get settled and upon the lists. It would be thought, be two or three years from now at the best. There would in all probability be two or three more sessions before the time came for a referendum, and there would be better occasions for fixing definite provisions for taking the vote than at present. The bill, however, would contain a definite section providing for a referendum later.

The referendum when taken would be the vote of all those entitled to vote at a Provincial election and would be upon a straight majority basis.

Hon. Mr. Hanna in closing, stated that it was the intention of the Government to entrust the administration of the law to the License Board, though not as at present constituted. "It is the intention to continue at least some of the members of the present board and leave them in charge of the special duty of administering the law and proceeding against violations," he said.

Mr. Rowell Endorses Bill.

The Liberal Leader showed that he was in hearty sympathy with the Government's proposals although he reserved the right to criticize details when the bill was distributed.

"I heartily concur in the views of my honourable friend," said the Liberal Leader, referring to the reasons for deferring the vote. "It was the view I took in the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, that we should not have a vote now, but after the war."

Mr. Rowell suggested that since the legislation was a war measure, it would be better to allow extensions only until July 1st.

"With regard to the other provisions of the bill, we will be glad to give them our full and sympathetic considerations. We hope that when the bill comes down we will be able to give its different provisions our whole and hearty support. Our attitude is one of sympathy and our desire to work out the best possible bill to accomplish the purposes the bill has in view."

The Liberal Leader had a little fun with Hon. Mr. Hanna by reminding him that it was just four years ago that he had introduced his first resolution for the abolition of the bar, and was told it was a joke.

"I am glad to see that both sides are now agreed on the question," he concluded.

MUST PAY A FINE OF $100

Charles LaMantia Convicted of Entering Canada by Misrepresentation - Similar Charge Was Withdrawn

It's worth a hundred dollars to be allowed to live in this country" said Magistrate Dumble in this morning's police court. With this the Magistrate imposed a fine of one hundred dollars on Charles La Mantia, who through his council, Mr. G. N. Gordon pleaded guilty to a charge of entering Canada by misrepresentation. Until a couple of months ago, La Mantia resided in Chicago. His parents originally came from Italy whil eLa Mantia is an American subject having been borne in the United States. He is also a brother-in-law of Mr. Joseph Longo of this city. It was a desire to visit his sister in Peterborough that first brought La Mantia into conflict with the immigration authorities.

The accused sought to enter Canada by way of Windsor but was rejected for not having sufficient funds. A short time later La Mantia sought to enter by way of Sarnia which he did, having taken the precaution to arm himself with the necessary fifty dollars. In filling out the application form for entry into Canada, La Mantia is said to have replied in the negative when asked if he had ever previously attempted to enter Canada and been rejected. This the authorities claimed constituted a direct violation of the regulations.

"Most astounding," commented Mr. Gordon, I will appeal the case.

'You can't play fast and loose with the regulations" countered Magistrate Dumble.

A similar charge against Mary C. La Mantia, mother of the accused, was withdrawn with the consent of Immigration Inspector Reynolds who was present on behalf of the Department.

"She's an elderly woman and can't do much harm in this country" observed the court.

Comments Upon the Economizing Efforts of the City Council

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In your edition of the 21st inst., under the heading "City Engineer's and Treasurer's Office Changes," I note, re the proposed changes in the Engineer's office that Ald. McIntyre and Mayor Duffus had been appointed to take up this matter with Mr. Parsons. Mind you, gentle reader, Mr. Parsons was one of those appointed to pass judgment upon himself.

The changes they recommended are to take effect on May 1st, when Mr Parsons, "it is proposed, will secure a young assistant Engineer and stenographer; the raport was adopted on motion of Ald. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Galbraith."

With all due respect to His Worship Mayor Duffus and to Aldermen McIntyre and Galbraith, allow me to inform them that there should be no young Civil Engineers employed by the Municipal Government of this city or by any other Government in Canada at the present time. The City of Peterborough should have no place for any young man physically fit to perform the duties of an Engineer at the present time.

I would also like to point out to the wise men of our Municipal Government, led by their City Clerk, who are so anxious to save a few dollars, and (who have just built a three or four thousand dollar bridge on private property, and where it will not be needed for the next twenty years) that there is no man at present in the employ of this City who holds the diploma of "Civil Engineer."

Mr. Hay has to his credit the design and construction of the Smith Street bridge, the only work ever done in this Municipality requiring any real engineering ability. As far as I am aware, Mr. Parsons' ability as an Engineer in Peterborough is yet to be put to the test, and I think it will be ample time to make a change in this office when we know that the sewage is running down Park Street and is being properly treated at the river. Mr. Hay has had a long and varied experience as an Engineer, first with the Grand Trunk Railway, then with the Department of Railways and Canals, and for a good many years as Engineer for this City. He is a faultless draughtsman, and as an Engineer is certainly head and shoulders over any one employed by this city, to-day.

It seems very strange to me, just at the present time, when we hear so much of the British born and British fair play, that a young American (I do not like to use the term, Yankee) can come over here, and in a year or two, be able to place himself in a position to oust out of a responsible position, which he is well able to fill, an old and respected citizen of this city.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am

Your's truly

TORONTO GLOBE SPEAKS WELL OF KELLERD

The following is taken from the issue of March 10:—

John E. Kellerd and his company changed their bill at the Grand Opera House last night and produced "The Merchant of Venice." Mr. Kellerd gave an impersonitation of Shylock that had much originality. He was no decrepit, bowed down Jew, with a falsetto voice, but an upright man, with plenty of virility, who does not pretend to cringe to either Antonio or Bassanio. At the same time he does not suggest when he makes his bargain with Antonio any depth of malignancy. In the scene where he is deserted by his daughter, Jessica, he invested it with pathos that was not exaggerated. Philip Quinn as Bassanio was a little over-impulsive in his dialogue, but on the whole commanded attention. George D. Winn as Antonio was not an aggressive figure, but a dreamy merchant. The Portia of Georgiana Wilson, the Narissa of Helen Barry and the Jessica of Beatrice Beecroft were attractive impersonations. The remainder of the cast had many points of distinction.

MR. D. O'CONNELL IS THE LOCAL NOMINEE

Sixty-eight candidates ask the votes of the legal profession for election to the honoured body of benchers who guide the fortunes of the Law Society of Upper Canada and constitute its government. In the hands of the benchers is placed all power to deal with education, discipline, and other matters affecting the well-being of the profession. Eighteen hundred Ontario lawyers are eligible to vote. Of the sixty-eight candidates only thirty are to be chosen. Twenty-nine benchers, whose terms are expiring, seek re-election. If they are successful it means that the remaining thirty-nine candidates will have a contest for one seat in convocation.

Mr. Daniel O'Connell has been nominated by the Peterborough Law Association.

Those members of the legal profession who have gone to the front will hardly be able to vote, as ballots are to be returned to the Secretary of the Law Society by April 12th.

"STORY OF THE ROSARY."

"The Story of the Rosary" was presented again at the Grand last night before another large and appreciative audience and this excellent war drama is arousing considerable interest in Hamilton. The play will be repeated to-night for the last time and there should be a bumper house, as it is without doubt a most interesting story. The Company leave to-morrow morning for Peterborough, where they appear to-mororw night. —Hamilton Spectator, March 22.

ANOTHER CAMPAIGN

Evangelist Sharpe Returning to Peterborough on Sunday

Evangelist G. M. Sharpe, who conducted the "Big Tabernacle meetings" on Hunter Street, last summer, is returning to Peterborough for another campaign. He will begin services in Bethany Tabernacle next Sunday and expects to continue about three weeks.

Mr. Sharpe has a host of friends in the city who will no doubt be pleased to know they are to have the privilege of enjoying his preaching again. He is now using the song book which is used in the big "Billy" Sunday campaigns, and the singing is expected to be a special feature of the meetings. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

Never hurry with the family mending. It is not worth doing unless it is done well.

WEDDING BELLS

McKENZIE—PHELPS.

A quiet wedding took place on Monday in Haileybury, when Winifred Elizabeth Phelps, B.A., second daughter of Rev. I. and Mrs. Phelps was married to Arthur Pearson McKenzie, M.A., Lieut. 136th Battalion, C.E.F., (the Pals), son of Rev. Dr. D. S. and Mrs. McKenzie of Tokyo, Japan, the ceremony being conducted by the bride's father. The bride wore a travelling suit of brown gabardine with old gold roses and was attended by her sister, Miss Gladys Phelps, dressed in blue taffeta with crimson roses. The groomsman was Mr. Mackenzie Williams, Toronto, cousin of the groom. Miss Miriam Burwash played the wedding march. After the wedding breakfast the bride and groom left for Toronto, where they will stop till the Battalion goes overseas. At the close of the war Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie will reside in Tokyo, Japan, where Mr. McKenzie has an appointment on the staff of the Imperial University of Japan.—Toronto Globe.

Wife Admits She Created "Scenes"

NEW YORK, March 23.—Declaring that she had to create a scene with her husband every time she wanted a new hat, pair of shoes or any article of clothing and had to get food from her own family, Mrs. Bijou J. Call, obtained from Justice Gavegan, of the Supreme Court, an allowance of $20 a week and $200 counsel fees pending the outcome of an action for separation brought against her husband, Richard E. Call, a professor of chemistry in the De Witt Clinton High School.

Mrs. Call in her affidavit maintains that her husband failed to provide for her properly, indulged in excessive drinking and put her out of his house on various occasions. She asserts she was compelled to leave him on Monday of last week because it had become unsafe for her to remain with him longer. The complaint states that "since their marriage the defendant has failed to properly support the plaintiff." It has been impossible for her to get a skirt, a pair of shoes or a hat or, in fact, any article of clothing without creating a scene to get the same, and in most instances it has been necessary for her to depend on her family to secure articles of clothing or, at times, sufficient food upon which to subsist."

Professor Call in his answer to his wife's allegations says:

"The plaintiff showed from the very first day of her marriage that she repudiated her duties and used her relationship as a means of extorting money from the defendant."

They were married in Montclair, N. J., on April 19, 1906. The defendant says his wife disappeared two weeks after the wedding and he did not see her again for two years. He characterizes his wife's allegations as a "tissue of falsehood" and denies her statements of excessive drinking.

About four years after the wedding, says the defendant, when he and his wife were living apart, he saw in a newspaper a notice of the death of his wife's father. He said he mailed it to her and correspondence ensued that resulted in a reconciliation. They went to Bayshore to live, but their reunion soon terminated, the defendant says, when in his absence his belongings were put out into the yard. Professor Call returned to the city, he says, and a month later his wife followed and remained with him for two days.

"Then," he says in his affidavit, "she obtained her monthly allowance from the defendant and disappeared. Since then she has not lived with him more than four days a month, coming only to get money, then leaving. When she was living with him she would leave about nine o'clock, generally returning abut one to three o'clock in the morning. She never did any cooking or cleaning and the defendant himself had to do such work."

Professor Call further declares that his wife has carried off and disposed of many things from his apartment, including books, on which she said she obtained money. He says he gave her money to redeem the books, but she failed to do so. Further, Professor Call declares, his wife has written letters to the Board of Education defaming him.

Chorus Girl Bride Files a Complaint

Dorothy Gates Herrmann Alleges Husband's Parents Alienated His Affections—To Sue, $100,000.

NEW YORK, March 24.— Dorothy Gates Herrmann, nineteen years old, Winter Garden chorus girl, whose stage name is Dorothy Gray, filed a complaint in a proposed alienation action for $100,000 against James S. Herrmann, of No. 230 West Seventy-first street, her father-in-law. Her attorney, Frederick E. Goldsmith, of No. 41 Park row, applied to Justice Gavegan in the Supreme Court for the appointment of a guardian ad litem to enable her to prosecute the action. Mr. Goldsmith was appointed.

Justice Gavegan recently refused to annul the marriage of the chorus girl and Philip Herrman, dismissing an action brought by young Herrmann's parents. The couple were married a year ago, when young Herrmann was a student. In her complaint Mrs. Herrmann alleges that her husband's parents alienated his affections, and that since the estrangement she has lived at No. 230 West Fiftieth street. She was born in Charleston, S. C.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts, and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes, and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.

PLEDGES ALLIES TO RETAKE SERBIA

PARIS, March 24.—"Paris, a city that the knavery of our enemies represents daily as presenting aspects of discouragement or disorder, you have crossed in the midst of enthusiastic throngs, proud to offer hospitality to a young Prince who has not let himself become downcast by misfortune and who has not despaired of justice," said President Poincare in giving a toast to Crown Prince Alexander of Serbia at the palace of the Elysee on the occasion of a luncheon there Wednesday noon.

After referring to the "sacrifices offered by Serbia in the interest of the peace of Europe" in reply to the Austrian ultimatum, and reviewing the gallant struggle of the Serbian army during the war, President Poincare continued:

"With the Serbian army escaped from the grasp of the enemy and now ready for new combats, the Allies will liberate Serbian territary, re-establish the sovereignty and independence of your noble country and revenge oppressed right."

"To-day, as yesterday, we are struggling for the liberty of our entire race and to work retribution for rights that have been trodden upon, and we perceive the dawn of our final liberation," said the Crown Prince in reply after eloquently acknowledging his cordial reception by the Parisians.

"It is sweet to my ears above all," added the Prince, "to hear that promise from your lips. His Majesty the King, my father, taught me from my cradle to love France, and made known these sentiments to the youngest of our soldiers, and I would like to have my grateful feelings made known to your soldiers and sailors. I embrace them all while drinking to your health and to the grandeur of France and to our victory."

Will Erect Monuments of Historic Importance Upon Port Dover Sites

Will Mark La Salle's Landing—Cost of Undertaking is Assured.

BRANTFORD, March 24. — Arrangements are being made for the erection of monuments at Port Dover to commemorate the landing of La Salle, 243 years ago, and one to retain the spot where the first huts were built in which to spend the winter, ruins of which are still to be seen.

A deputation from Brantford, representing the Brant Hill Improvement Society, went to Simcoe yesterday and met the Norfolk Improvement Society. They arranged to have a joint deputation meet the Port Dover council in reference to sites for these historic monuments. If arrangemets can be made the expense of the erection will be maintained by David Ross McCord, of Montreal.

While in Simcoe the party had the privilege of viewing a number of antiques recently excavated from a ruined house. They included death mask busts of two negroes hanged there in 1856, and a bust of Chief Joseph Brant, made in 1850.

Germany to Hold Brazil's Money

$30,000,000 Ordinarily Would Have Gone to London, Berlin Explains

BERLIN, March 24.—(By wireless to Sayville, L.I.)—Referring to the recent reports from Rio Janeiro that Germany owes Brazil 120,000,000 ($300,000,000) for coffee which was stored in Germany and taken over after the outbreak of the war, the Overseas News Agency states that the coffee was purchased in open sale and paid for in cash. The money was transferred, under the terms of the loan contract of 1913, to the authorized German banking house.

Ordinarily the money would have been forwarded to the Brazilian loan trustees in London, but this payment has been delayed until after the war.

GERMAN MINES CLOSING BALTIC

Copenhagen Believes Mine Laying Is Forerunner of Teutonic Operations in the North Sea.

COPENHAGEN, via London, March 24.—The Kreuzzeitung of Berlin, a copy of which has been received here, says the new German mine field which has been laid in the southern part of the Sound "will cause no interruption to shipping, but will compel all vessels to report to the German guard ships at both ends of the field."

The minelaying is believed here to be the forerunner of German operations in the North Sea which necessitate the closing of the entrance from the Baltic into that sea.

Two Swedish steamships, the Sodasverrig and the Nordenskield, have been taken into Swinemuende.

Two Bits Buys Shave, Haircut and Shine

Barbers Throw in Stamps and Mail Letters for Patrons.

ENFIELD, March 24 — Two bits will buy a lot in Enfield (Illinois) these days. Travellers reaching town remark on the well-groomed appearance of the male population. There have been rumors that the postmaster is receiving a higher salary because of increased cancellation at his office, and all these things because the town's two barber shops are engaged in a bitter trade competition.

Nobody in Enfield bothers about the price of a haircut any more. In Enfield a haircut, shave and shine can be purchased for the small sum known locally as two bits. As an extra inducement, just to prove that the patron's trade is highly valued, the barber at either shop obligingly will mail any letter the heft of which can be carried in Uncle Sam's mail for a two-cent stamp, and will furnish the stamp. Business at both places is picking up rapidly.

Eating for Pleasure, Eating for Strength, are two distinct propositions—but both operations are combined in Shredded Wheat Biscuit, the food that is pleasing to the palate, that makes healthy tissue and gives strength to mind and body. It is what you digest, not what you eat, that nourishes the body. Every particle of Shredded Wheat Biscuit is taken up by the digestive organs and converted into muscle, bone and brain. Try it for breakfast with hot or cold milk or cream, or for any meal in combination with sliced bananas or other fruits.

Tsar's Forces Compel the Evacuation of the Capital of Bukowina

Austrians Have Quitted Czernowitz, Says Report---Sivas Also is Menaced---Pursuing Turks Through Asia Minor

LONDON, March 24.—Abandonment of Czernowitz, capital of Bukowina, by the Austrians was reported in an unofficial wireless despatch received here Wednesday from Rome.

A Bucharest despatch, forwarded from Amsterdam by Central News, says that the Turks have evacuated Erzinjan, a fortress of Asia Minor, 120 miles west of Erzerum, in the direction of Sivas, the Turkish fortified base, which is about 130 miles still further west.

The official statement issued from the Russian General Headquarters Wednesday follows:

"Western (Russian) front—A series of actions is progressing along the entire front. In the Riga sector, near the village of Piakonen and the district southward of Dalen Island, our troops fought engagements with strong enemy outposts.

"In the Jacobstadt sector we captured after a fight a village and wood to the east of Augusthof, and also a wood between the forest district of Duisterneck and the village of Delcinck, in the Buschhof region. Below Dvinsk gun fire was exchanged. To the south of the Dvinsk region sharp artillery and infantry fighting continues.

"Our artillery successfully bombarded the region to the north of Mintzunny, where our aviators had observed enemy concentrations.

"After silencing the fire of the enemy's batteries in the Mischkele region our troops captured a line of the enemy trenches in the Mintzinny-Tiret-Sekly sector. Enemy attempts to take the offensive to the south of Tveretch were repulsed by our fire.

"In the region of Vilieta and Mojeika, north of the town of Postavya, desperate infantry fighting is proceeding. The enemy here launched violent counter attacks against our troops, who had at various points dislodged the enemy from his trenches and had captured some of his machine guns.

"In the Tchernity-Lotra region, north of Lake Miadziol, after vigorous artillery preparation, the enemy attacked our positions, but was repulsed by our fire.

"On the southwestern shore of Lake Naroez the fighting is developing in favour of our troops, who, despite German asphyxiating gases and a murderous fire, forced three lines of wire entanglements and captured by a series of fierce attacks three lines of the enemy's trenches.

"The enemy's attempts to execute a counter attack were stopped by our fire and by our use of projectiles containing asphyxiation and poisonous gases.

"We are engaged in appraising our captures, which include, up to the present, seventeen officers and more than one thousand soldiers, twelve machine guns, a searchlight and trench mortars."

"In the Smorgon region there has been violent cannonading. The enemy energetically bombarded the sector adjacent to the river and village. In the region of Baronovitchi and Dieliatitchi a German aeroplane flew over our positions.

"In the neighbourhood of the Moscow-Brest road and north of the village of Tleechany, a lively reciprocal bombardment occurred Southeast of Kelki our scouts captured an enemy post.

"According to supplementary reports, we took in the region of Mikhaltche two cannon, six undamaged trench mortars, large quantities of rifles and munitions, as well as 106 prisoners."

FIRST TEST OF ARMY AIR SQUAD TERMED FIASCO

Fifty Per Cent. of Machines and Aviators Out of Action, Is Referred to by Gen. Funston as "Very Poor Work"

SAN ANTINO, Texas, March 24.—An army aero squadron 50 per cent., disabled in three days, tells the story of the first test under conditions of actual warfare of the United States From March 19, when the squadron army flying corps.

of eight left Columbus, until the last report received by General Funston was given out, three machines have been disabled and one is missing.

Lieutenant Gorrell, piloting machine No. 52, last seen over Colonia, Juarez, south of Casas Grandes, is still missing and grave fears are felt for his safety.

Machine No. 43, operated by Lieutenant L. T. Lillis, was disabled at Pearson, some 50 miles south of Casas Grandes, giving rise to the report that he was missing. Major Samples, at Columbus received a report that he was safe.

Machine No. 48 was disabled when it fell with Lieutenant Bowen of Casas Grandes.

LAID UP AT CASAS GRANDE

No 42, operator not named is laid up at Casas Grandes with a broken axle.

Army officers at headquarters are not backward in declaring the aviation campaign to date "dangerously near a fiasco."

A wireless despatch to General Pershing, urging him to file an immediate report on Lieutenant Gorrell was filed at Fort Sam Houston early to-day. Whether the missing aviator is the first of the American aero squad to fall a victim to Villista bullets, or is still alive perhaps lying injured with a disabled machine somewhere in the vast vacant spaces of the desolate Mexican desert country, is a question causing General Funston and headquarter officers great uneasiness.

General Funston to-day referred to the work of the machines comprising the first aero squadron as very poor.

Will Supply Fish To the Troops

Major Green Has a Unique War Work to Perform.

LONDON, March 24.—"Canada's Fishmonger-General" is the title of Major Hugh Green, who has arrived in England on a special mission from Major-General Hughes, the Canadian Minister of Militia, to organize the entire fish supply of the Canadian troops. The appointment is said to be without precedent in the history of warfare, and the introduction of the fish ration to the Canadian troops is expected to improve the health of the men, save the Dominion thousands of dollars each week, and revolutionize the fish industry of Canada.

Major Green is said to have interviewed the Dominion authorities with a frozen fish under each arm. He had brought the fish two thousand miles, so the story is told here, and so impressed the Canadian officials that they lost no time in laying the plans for carrying out his scheme.

Green, who is but 28 years old, has caught fish nearly all his life in the waters of the Great Lakes. He arrived here with forty tons, and before leaving organized the business so that the same amount will arrive each week, all ready for cooking. Much of the fish which will come from Canadian waters of the Great Lakes, and consist of salmon, halibut, soles, cod, smoked haddock, whitefish and herrings.

Major Green has engaged many Indians in the unsalled northern Canadian lakes to assist in the catching of sufficient fish to keep the Canadian troops in England and on the Continent well supplied for the duration of the war.

Does 60% of the Strength In Your Food Go To Waste? For Thin Men and Women Who want to Gain Weight.

Why Fleshmaking Food does not always Produce Flesh on Thin People. Full Directions Given.

This man and woman—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate yesterday. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? Possibly you haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food probably passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The materials for flesh, fat and strength were there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth may be, you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of many thin folks the world over. Their nutritive organs, their functions of assimilation, are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

To those who are in this class and who would like to add from ten to twenty-five pounds of good, firm healthy flesh, fat and muscular tissue to their weight, the following test is suggested.

First, weigh yourself. Then continue regular meals as before but eat with every one of them a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks weigh again and note the difference and see what increase in weight may be the net result.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food it aims to turn the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe, fat-producing nourishment, for the tissues and blood—prepare it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. Much of this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol works to stop the waste and do it quickly and to make the fat-producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop flesh between your skin and bones.

The best of any theory is practice. What do the people who have used Sargol say about it? Reports have been received from every part of the country. A lady from California wrote: "I never in my life before weighed more than 127 lbs. Now I weigh 146 and feel fine. My face is filled out and rosy and I feel better than I have for years." A patron from Wisconsin reported, "I can speak wonders for Sargol, having gained 20 pounds from its use." A man from New York said "I have gained 12 pounds and look and feel like a new person."

NOTE—Sargol is not an ready believe, a single guaranteed drug, but is instead a skilful combination of six well recognized flesh building agents and assimilative aids. Leading local druggists who sell it, say that there is a large demand for it here among people who wish to gain weight and that it is always sold in accordance with a guarantee contained in each large package of money back in any case if satisfactory weight increase is not attained.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the National Laboratories, 20 St. Antoine St., Montreal and a complete ten days treatment will be sent you postpaid in plain wrapper.

Farmers of Manitoba Will Sow Less Grain

Lack of Help Responsible For Decrease In Acreage.

WINNIPEG, March 24.—Many of the farmers of Manitoba, who cannot secure sufficient help, have decided to put in a smaller acreage of grain. Wages will be beyond the reach of a large percentage of the farmers. The help to be expected from the soldiers will not be as extensive as expected.

Quite a number of men have been drifting into the city from woods, camps and others places, but the farmers, not knowing when the seeding will start have been unwilling to secure these men at once and the result is that they are being snapped up by contractors.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

COST OF FAMILY FOR A YEAR

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Husband, wife and three children of school age cannot live for less than $439.80 a year. These figures were worked out by Prof. E. R. Kelly of George Washington University.

LOOKING FOR WORK

Everywhere men complain about work; even boys and girls in school or business find work tedious and irksome, but it isn't the work half so much as their own lack of physical strength that makes it hard.

Rich blood, strong lungs and healthful digestion make work pleasurable in business, in school or even housework, and if those who are easily tired—who are not sick, but weak and nervous—would just take Scott's Emulsion for one month and let its pure concentrated food create richer blood to pulsate through every artery and vein—let it build a structure of healthy tissue and give you vigorous strength—you would find work easy and would look for more. Insist on Scott's.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

CHAPTER X.

Madeleine's Flight.

Rupert Fosdyke departed by the earliest train next day. He did not see Mrs. Carmac again, and it was assumed by those who gave any thought to the matter that he would make for London. Bennett's clerk, however, travelling to England by the same train, did not set eyes on him again after the local tramway had delivered its passengers at Quimperle. Fosdyke might or might not have gone home via Paris. What was quite certain was that he did not cross the Channel between St. Malo and Southampton that night, because the clerk ascertained from the purser that no one of the name was on board the steamer, and telegraphed to that effect to his employer, who wished to be kept posted as to Fosdyke's movements.

Meanwhile Raymond was so concerned about Mrs. Carmac's health that he suggested the hiring of a hotel automobile, and a run to Lorient for luncheon. Yvonne and Bennett agreed readily to accompany her, and the secretary was commissioned to order a car to be in readiness at ten-thirty a.m. Now there were three automobiles in the garage,—a small runabout, a limousine to hold three and a chauffeur, and a huge touring car, which would accommodate six easily. He chose this last.

"As the day is bright, and there is no wind, I have selected an open car," he said on returning. "I hope you approve. Plenty of fresh air should be the best of tonics."

Yes, his mistress was pleased, if only because Yvonne must be decked out in some of the magnificent furs that the thoughtful Celeste had brought from Paris. Very charming the girl looked in a long sealskin coat with sable collar and cuffs, and a sable toque. Her mother's appraising glance spoke volumes as to plans for the future, when Yvonne came to England, and would need dressing in accordance with the new scheme of things. But Mrs. Carmac was genuinely surprised when she saw the size of the car.

"Couldn't the hotel provide a smaller one?" she asked.

"Only a closed car," explained Raymond.

"Well, since there is so much room to spare, hadn't you better come with us—that is, if your arm permits?"

"I am more than inclined to risk it," said Raymond smiled ruefully, as though tempted by this unexpected invitation. "Yes, please, I'll come. I'll only delay you a minute while I get a coat and an extra rug."

Tollemache happened to stroll out of the hotel the moment the secretary's back was turned. He shook hands with Mrs. Carmac and the lawyer, and nodded to Yvonne, on whom he permitted his eyes to dwell in an admiring if somewhat critical survey.

"Where are you off to?" he inquired.

"Lorient," said Yvonne.

"Why Lorient?" and his eyebrows rounded.

"I really don't know." She turned to Mrs. Carmac. "You tell," she said.

"Mr. Raymond has arranged everything," said Mrs. Carmac. "But why not Lorient?"

"Because it's an uninteresting place, notable only as containing the most inartistic statue in France."

"Very well. Come with us, and be our guide. We don't care where we go."

"Is Mr. Raymond joining you?"

"Yes."

"Then be a good Samaritan, and take that poor fellow, Jackson. He hasn't been out of his room since he was brought ashore, and his game leg will keep Mr. Raymond's crooked arm company."

"Bring him, by all means."

"Take him,' I said, Mrs. Carmac.

"No he must be your guest. Even then we have a spare seat."

"Done!" cried Tollemache.

Thus when Raymond appeared, the party was larger than he had bargained for. He was all smiles, however, even when he found himself placed by the side of the lame steward, and behind the chauffeur. Tollemache sat in front; while Mrs. Carmac, Yvonne and Bennett occupied the spacious back seat. Tollemache promptly varied the programme by striking into the broad Route Nationale leading to Quimperle. They reached the quaint old town about eleven o'clock, and luncheon was ordered at that famous posting house, the Hotel du Lion d'Or. While the meal was being prepared they went on to the beautiful Chapelle Saint Fiacre, with its remarkable rood screen of carved and painted wood and rare sixteenth century stained glass.

Tollemache insisted, too, that they should return before sunset, or the evening chill might prove dangerous. The excursion was voted delightful. The only person who felt that his projects had been completely frustrated—for that day, at any rate—was Harvey Raymond. He had hardly exchanged a word with Yvonne throughout the journey, and was hard put to it to maintain an agreeable conversation with Jackson during a five hours' run.

The steward, however, was not neglected. His manner of speech, however was an unfailing source of amusement to Yvonne, whose acquaintance with the Cockney dialect had hitherto been derived solely from books. He was by way of being a humorist, too. When he hobbled into the Chapelle Saint Fiacre, and gazed at the history of Adam and Eve as depicted on the screen, he raised a laugh by a caustic comment.

"That ain't exactly my idee of the Gawden o' Paradise, Miss," he said, when Yvonne told him what the carvings symbolized. "You wouldn't expect Eve to be chewin' a crabapple—now, would yer, Miss?"

"But what makes you think Eve is eating a crabapple?" she cried.

"Why, Miss, look at 'er face!" he said. "Tork abart lemons! One bite has given 'er a pine!"

In the hotel at Quimperle, too, he created a good deal of merriment on discovering "the English name of a dish which looked and tasted like chicken but figured in the menu as vrenouilles a la financiere.

"W'at!" he cried, some natural embarrassment because of his surroundings yielding to horrified surprise. "Me eat a frog? Well, live an' learn! But I tell you strite, I'd as soon 'ave eaten a snike!"

"What is a 'snike'?" inquired Raymond.

"It's a squirmin' reptyle w'at eats frogs," said Jackson instantly, and, as the secretary had partaken freely of that particular course, the retort did not lack point.

But Raymond laughed with the others. He would have guffawed cheerfully if someone had bumped into his injured arm by way of a joke.

Bennett, being a lawyer, was not dull of perception. He claimed the front seat for the return journey; so Tollemache sat between Yvonne and her mother.

In some respects, therefore, Raymond regarded the day as spoiled. But it was far from being a failure in a general sense. He had established a precedent. During the remainder of her stay in Pont Aven, Mrs. Carmac, weather permitting, would surely hire the car every day, and, as she was hardly likely to revert to a smaller and much inferior vehicle, he in all probability would be invited to join her; while Yvonne's presence was assured.

As for other additions to the party, he must take such fortune as the gods gave. The chief and vital consideration was that he would almost infallibly be thrown into Yvonne's company during many hours daily. If he contrived also to establish himself on a friendly footing with her father, he had taken the first long stride toward the goal now clearly visible to his mind's eye.

With Rupert Fosdyke disinherited and discredited, why should not Harvey Raymond consolidate all warring interests by marrying Yvonne? Truly a brilliant notion! It followed the lines of high finance. Better than running counter to your enemy, absorb him! Though he believed he held Mrs. Carmac's millions in the hollow of his hand, were it not for Yvonne, he could act only through Fosdyke, who had flouted him openly, and would assuredly be disdainful, no matter how greatly beholden he might be to an informant. But the fact that Yvonne existed changed all that. Money talks, indeed! Money would shriek in ecstasy if the despised secretary married Mrs. Carmac's daughter.

There were obstacles in the way, of course; first, Tollemache? Raymond had weighed this possible rival's claims carefully, and did not find them overwhelming. Yvonne was the young artist's close friend of five years; but that did not necessarily mean that they were lovers. If anything, such intimacy was favourable to the newcomer. The girl herself? Well, Raymond knew he was no Adonis; but keen-eyed students of human nature had established the axiom that exceedingly pretty women often mated with the plainest of men. Here again the difficulty was not insuperable.

There remained Mrs. Carmac. Willy nilly, she must range herself determinedly on his side. Very gently very unwillingly letting the fact be dragged out of him with the utmost reluctance, as it were, he must make her understand that he held the power to crush her financially. During the last few days he had left no stone untumed to secure proof of an astounding romance which depended for credence otherwise on the unsupported testimony of a woman's raving. He had neither blundered nor spared expense.

That very morning, and not before, he knew. The knowledge had sustained him throughout a trying day. Each time he thought of the irresistible weapon now safe in his possession he chortled. No wonder he laughed, even when that impudent steward likened him to a snake! There was truth in the joke. One person at least, seated at that luncheon table would feel his fangs. Mrs. Carmac, if left in undisputed possession of her wealth, would be his puppet! She must choose between comparative pauperism and Harvey Raymond as a son-in-law! So, where she was concerned, the money that Fate had showered on her would prove a most potent factor in his behalf.

Once again, then, would money talk. If necessary it might even sing the song of the sirens in Yvonne's ears. With her experiences that day, the very wearing of those costly furs, and the swift whirling over the Breton roads in a luxurious car, were not negligible quantities in the arithmetical calculations that bemused the man's subtle intellect. There was no discernible flaw in them. British law would pronounce the American divorce invalid. It followed that an estate held almost exclusively in Britain would go to the next of kin. And he alone held the key that would unlock this treasury!

Snatches of talk came to him from the three in the back seat. He could make little of it, because all three were speaking French; but when he listened occasionally he gleaned that Yvonne and Tollemache were telling Mrs. Carmac the legends of wayside chapels,—how this saint protected the crops, and that the horses and cattle, how Saint Barbe arranged love affairs and Saint Urlou cured the gout. Each ill, each blessing, had its patron, who exercised demons or dispensed favours at will.

Nearing Pont Aven, Yvonne startled him by leaning forward and touching his shoulder. "Why in such a brown study, Mr. Raymond?" she inquired pleasantly, thinking that perhaps the queer little man might feel he had been somewhat ignored. In her thoughts he figured invariably as a "queer little man." Her woman's intuition had suspected that queerness as something underhanded and evil; but his action with reference to Madeleine Demoret had obliterated an unfavourable first impression. Now she regarded him as an eccentric who did good by stealth.

The slight pressure of the girl's fingers thrilled him. "I was hoping there might be a healer of broken limbs in Brittany. Now I know there is one," he answered readily enough.

"Dr. Garnier is really quite skilful," she said, and Raymond had the wit to remain silent.

WONDERFUL TALE OF AN ACTRESS

Struggled with Sickness and Discouragement; How Relieved.

Dayville, Killingly, Conn.—"I shall be glad to have every woman know what I know now, after using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Although I am only 24 years old, I have suffered for the past eight years. I hated the doctors, for a doctor told me to give up the stage where I was playing with my husband. I had bearing down pains, my health failed me, and I could not work on the stage, and wasn't able to tend my baby or even get around myself. I was always downhearted and discontented with the world, and only lived for the sake of my little girl. The doctor said to move to some quiet little town away from the noisy city, and I might be able to live and feel well, so I went to Dayville in November. At that time I was so sick I could not walk around, and my husband kept house and I stayed in bed. One day in January I read your advertisement in a newspaper, and I sent for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and started taking it. Within two weeks time I was a different woman, could get around, and felt so good that it was a pleasure to do my housework. I felt contented and happy, and now am the picture of health, and am tempted to return to the stage. We appreciate my health as the most precious thing on earth."—Mrs. H. L. KLEMETT, Box 85, Killingly, Conn.

PERSONAL.

St. Catharines, Ont.—"Two years ago I was in a very nervous, generally run-down condition, so that I awoke in the morning more tired than when I retired. The doctors thought I had heart trouble and treated me for it but I got no benefit. I heard of Dr. Pierce's remedies through a friend who had been to your Invalids' Hotel for an operation (which proved entirely successful) and I at once got the 'Favorite Prescription.' I took three bottles altogether and at the end of three weeks I felt entirely cured and have been well and strong since, without a single bad spell. I stopped taking it about three months ago and am glad to tell any one how splendidly your medicine has healed me."—Mrs. JOHN LEWIN, 53 Niagara St., St. Catharines, Ont.

The mighty restorative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from nature's roots and herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotic to wreck the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

Had to Dodge Ink Bottles, Wife Says

NEW YORK, March 23.—Charging that her husband beat her with a cane threw ink bottles at her, blackened her eyes on twelve occasions and introduced another woman to her as his sweetheart, Mrs. Catherine McCrackin obtained from Justice Finch, of the Supreme Court, an order requiring Samuel H. McCrackin to show cause why he should not be required to pay counsel fees and alimony pending the trial of an action for separation.

Mrs. McCrackin lives at the Ansonia Hotel. In her affidavits she says her husband has managed the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circuses for several years. They were married at Niagara Falls on October 23, 1900. She says his annual income is $10,000.

Mrs. McCrackin alleges that her husband struck her and deserted her in Philadelphia in April of last year; that he drank to excess and in this condition attacked her; that he threw a glass at her in a hotel and that he blackened her eye with an ink bottle.

"On March 11 last," the plaintiff alleges, "defendant publicly struck her in the McAlpin Hotel, causing her face to bleed, and thereafter hit her across the face and breast with a cane."

In Los Angeles, she states on information and belief, her husband lived with an actress.

Miss Helen Haldeman, niece of the plaintiff, tells in a statement of having called at a hotel to see her aunt and uncle and being told that they did not get up early. Later she returned with the plaintiff and they made their way into the presence of the supposed wife.

"Who is this woman?" inquired the plaintiff, according to the niece's statement.

"This is my sweetheart," is the answer the defendant gave, according to the niece. "If you dare say a word to her I'll break this cane over your head.

Cotton crepe table napkins are a convenience in the summer cottage. They require no ironing.

Not one crumb of bread should be thrown away. Watch the bread box. The dry pieces should be collected and carefully put into a bag made for the purpose. This should be kept in the bread box. These pieces can be fried, toasted, made into pudding, used for filling or rolled into bread-crumbs.

Suffered Constantly FROM HEADACHE.

To suffer from headache makes life miserable, and it takes a person who has been or is subject to headache to describe the suffering and agony that goes along with it. The dull throbbing, the intense pain, sometimes in one part of the head, sometimes in another, is caused by some disturbed condition of the system. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but whatever the cause, the presence of headache clearly shows that there is something wrong somewhere, and unless the cause of the headache is removed, some serious trouble is very liable to assert itself.

The fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches the seat of the trouble, and banishes the headache is due to its success in first relieving, and then permanently curing the cause of the trouble.

Mrs. Wallace J. Boyd, Millstown, N.B., writes: "Several years ago I was a constant sufferer from headache. I was all run down, and nothing seemed to do me any good. I read of Burdock Blood Bitters, and decided to give it a trial, and the result was marvellous. The headaches stopped at once, and I feel better in every way since. I recommend it to all sufferers."

B.B.B. is the oldest and best known blood medicine on the market to-day, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

His "Future Wife."

By Nellie Cravey Gilmore

The judge fingered the dainty note reflectively, narrowed his keen gray eyes, breathed a little faster—and startled himself by blushing. Yet the contents of the missive were very simple, very commonplace and ran as follows:

Pecan Grove, Oct. 31.

My Dear Judge—Billy is very anxious to have you run down for the week end and has asked me to write and urge you to come.

There is to be quite a jolly crowd—about a dozen of us—and we are going to wind up with a big Halloween ball Saturday evening, the 41st.

Come and learn who is to be your future wife. With best wishes,

DIANA LANDIS.

Judge Underwood was abruptly conscious of a vain and frivolous desire to be young again. He even took out his pocket mirror and studied his reflection critically, noting the little furrows between his straight black brows with an apprehensive heart.

Would Miss Landis have written so cordially had she dreamed of the reckless tide of emotions surging within him at the bare sight of her well remembered little scrawl? Would she have written at all? He thought not, for Diana was but nineteen, and he was hovering very close to forty!

Ten years ago he had taught her the three R's in the village school at Pecan Grove, and five years ago she had been the first to discover the half dozen silver hairs that had since grown into the little tuft of gray above his left temple.

Still, he could no more control the feelings that obsessed him than he could clip off the years that stood between him and his heart's desire, so with an impulsive hand he seized a pen from the rack and dashed down his answer:

New York, Oct. 32.

Dear Miss Landis—Your kind invitation reaches me at a most opportune time, and you may be sure I shall enjoy taking a week off down at the Grove.

The prospect of finding a life partner appeals to me almost as much as the anticipation of the visit, as I am beginning to need ballast very badly. Sincerely yours, R. H. UNDERWOOD.

As soon as he had dispatched his letter the judge thrust aside the clamoring pile of briefs on his desk, picked up his hat and hurried down to his tailor's.

When informed by his sartorial excellency that the pearl gray, just completed, made him "look like a boy" the judge was again so foolish as to allow his face to grow red, but he merely scowled in reply and ordered the suit sent to his rooms at once.

The next morning at 9 he left on his journey, reaching Pecan Grove at 3 in the afternoon. Billy Landis was at the station with a smart little trap, and they had an exhilarating two mile spin through the hectic autumn woods.

The judge longed to ask some questions about Diana, but kept craftily silent, hoping that Billy would presently volunteer a little information.

And after thrashing out every other subject under the sun—so it seemed to his guest—Billy finally remarked: "We have six girls—angels, all of them—and six of the opposite variety of brute, including you and myself. Di has planned no end of thrilling stunts for every day in the week, she and Teddy Carstairs."

The judge felt his heart drop like a leaden plummet, but he forced himself to say, matter of factly: "I don't think I ever heard of the name down here. Is he"—

"Of course you didn't," interposed Billy quickly. "They're a nice English family who have leased the adjoining plantation. Teddy is the oldest boy. He's a brick too."

Judge Underwood was keenly conscious of a desire to kick himself clear back to New York. Why ever had he succumbed idiotically to the temptation of the moment in allowing himself to be inveigled down here? He had permitted himself to be made a fool of by a girl's offer of friendly hospitality, by a tailor's stupid drivel, by his own arrant imbecility.

But he managed adroitly to box up his feelings and observe with a surprising degree of enthusiasm: "It was awfully good of you all to have me down. I was just on the verge of stagnation, and this little breath of fresh air will set me up considerably."

Then with the deadliest sensations he had ever experienced the judge pulled a smile to his lips and a light to his eyes as they drove up with a flourish under the porte-cochere.

The first person his gaze rested on was Diana herself. She ran out with both slim brown hands extended in welcome and a beautiful flush showing vividly through the apricot tan of her cheeks. "I'm so glad to see you, judge," she said. "It seems like a century since you went away, yet it's been only two years, hasn't it?"

"By facts and figures," he replied, crushing her fingers warmly, "otherwise—eternities."

They both laughed and stood on the porch chatting till Billy returned and dragged Judge Underwood off to his room. After they had gone Diana stood still in the same spot for several minutes. Presently she drew a deep breath and shook her head.

"No," she mused softly; "it's made a difference. What with legal honors and money and New York people"—

At this juncture Teddy Carstairs came up and interrupted her reflections, claiming her for the next tennis match, and, gulping her irritation, Diana smiled and accompanied him down to the court.

From his upstairs window the judge, with the little "green god" at his elbow, watched them cross the lawn and disappear. Half an hour later, having exchanged his dark traveling suit for the delectable gray, he went downstairs and joined the crowd on the veranda.

"We are going to bob for apples first," announced Diana, who was adorable in a pink lingerie frock, "and afterward run around the square one at a time. Then there's the looking glass stunt and the 'face in the well.'"

"Let me suggest," remarked Teddy Carstairs from a sprawling position on the sofa, "that as we have only to 12 o'clock to dance we divide up on these honors. I choose 'bobbing.'"

"Your idea is in order, Ted," approved Diana, with a charming dimple which the judge registered against her in his heart. "Are there any more volunteers?"

There were five. Four more were started out separately to walk around the square in quest of their affinities, while Teddy and Molly Perkins disappeared in search of a looking glass.

"It looks as if we are in for what the well will reveal," laughed Diana as Judge Underwood came up to her.

"You are the general," he said, "and I'm reporting for orders." The week's intimacy had put them on terms of the most friendly companionship, although long ago the judge had consigned his foolish hopes to the dead past.

But Diana, who had never been very astute in arithmetic, was doubly so in mind reading, and she penetrated the judge's most sacred thoughts with subtle divination. "Then," said she, "if you're a good soldier you will go down to the old well in the corner of the cabbage field, glance in and turn away quickly, coming as fast as you can back to the house. Wait till you hear the clock strike 9." And she left him before he could protest.

For an instant the judge stood gazing after her with wistful, troubled eyes. Then, summoning his dignity—and his courage—he slipped, unnoticed, through one of the low windows and walked leisurely down to where the old well loomed, a dilapidated hulk, from which all water had been drawn, in the half light of the dilatory stars.

He paused a second, with his hand on the crumbling bucket shelf. Then he took a deep breath and looked down into a solemn pair of unwinking brown eyes. His heart gave a terrific, most unmagisterial throb, and then the judge did a very arbitrary thing. He deliberately struck a match, throwing its bright yellow glare across two crimson cheeks, a shining nest of golden brown hair and clouds of pink dimity.

At this juncture the judge quite forgot that he was almost forty, that he was wearing his immaculate pearl gray, that a million stars were looking on, for he vaulted lightly the inclosure of the well and dropped down, four feet, into the soft sand beside his "future wife" and folded her, regardless, in his arms.

"But you were to look and run right away," protested Diana in a muffled tone. "You didn't play fair; it's all a joke."

"It's a sublime reality," the judge cut in luminously, "and six automobiles couldn't have dragged me away."

Diana gurgled softly as he kissed her again. Then they scrambled out together.

The Tulip Craze.

About the middle of the seventeenth century the tulip became known in Germany, and a scientist named Gesner gives the first description of his flower. First only the yellow variety was known, and then other colors were produced by crossing. The Dutch, particularly the citizens of Haarlem, produced the most wonderful varieties of this flower and obtained enormous prices for them.

In 1634 the trade in tulips assumed a peculiar turn. It degenerated into a sort of a game of chance, so that in 1673 the authorities felt called upon to interfere and to issue edits against extravagance in tulips, as they formerly had against trains and laces. This interference would seem to be justified if one reads that in 1608 a single flower of this sort, called the Viceori, was paid for with two cargoes of wheat, four cargoes of rye, four fat oxen, eight fat hogs, twelve fat sheep, two casks of wine, four barrels of beer, two tons of butter, 1,000 pounds of cheese, a complete bed, a suit of clothing and a silver tankard.

Another bulb, the Semper Augustus, was paid for with 4,000 gold guilders and a coach with a double team of horses. In Haarlem the tulip craze reached its height in the decade from 1630 to 1640, when a price of 12,000 gold guilders (about $2,000 American money) is recorded for a single bulb.

Many Women Suffer FROM EXCRUCIATING PAINS IN THE BACK.

Do you ever feel that you must have some rest for that lame and aching back?

Do you ever feel that those shooting, stabbing, darting pains must be gotten rid of before you can get into condition, whereby you can attend to your household duties without a pain or an ache?

When the back begins to ache it is a sure sign that there is something radically wrong with the kidneys.

What you want is a kidney medicine, and a medicine for the kidneys only.

Doan's Kidney Pills know nothing but kidney disorders, because they are manufactured solely for the purpose of relieving and curing the kidneys.

Mrs. L. Melanson, Plympton, N.S., writes: "I am sending you this testimonial, telling you what a wonderful cure Doan's Kidney Pills made for me. For years I had suffered so with my kidneys I could hardly do my housework. I used several kinds of pills, but none of them seemed to be doing me any good. At last I was advised to try a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. When I had taken the first box I found relief. I have used five boxes, and to-day I feel like a new woman. I cannot recommend them too highly."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

BULGAR PREMIER SHOT AT TWICE

Drive Teutons and Bulgars from Neutral Zone—Greeks Now Expect Roumania to Join Allies.

LONDON, March 23.—General restlessness is pervading the Balkans after the long period of winter quiet. An attempt has been made to assassinate Premier Radoslavoff of Bulgaria; the French at Salonika by a sudden advance have ejected Teuton and Bulgar forces from villages they have occupied in the neutral zone established by agreement between the Governments of Greece and Bulgaria and now are facing their trenches on the border; the failure of the great German offensive at Verdun has created a profound impression on the Greeks, who are now convinced that Roumania will join the allies in the near future.

A Bucharest despatch to the Fournier Agency says that the attack on the Bulgar Premier was made by a Post Office employee named Ivanof, who fired two shots at the Premier while he was returning to his home in Sofia in an open carriage. One of the bullets wounded the coachman in the arm and the other lodged in the carriage. Ivanof was disarmed by a student.

The villages on the Greek border seized by the allies are Macikovo, Karadagh and Kosuna. They were occupied by a strong French column with light infantry from the Salonika intrenched camp according to a Reuter dispatch from Salonika dated March 18. The French had only a few casualties. Forces of the Central Powers and of the Entente allies are face to face the dispatch adds and shelling, sniping and grenade throwing are in progress in the neighbourhood of the above mentioned villages about thirty miles north of Salonika as on the other fronts where the adversary forces are in contact.

Should Roumania enter the war, as the impression is growing in high political circles in Athens she soon will do Greek officials would be placed in an embarrassing position, the force of which already is felt. Military representatives of the Entente allies do not disguise the fact that at present they have no need for Greece and do not desire to assume responsibility for the maintenance and equipment of the Greek army unless they are assured definitely of co-operation in the event of an allied offensive in Macedonia.

The course of the fighting at Verdun has produced a marked impression on even the most determined noninterventionists, and the royalist press is changing its tone in regard to participation of Greece in the war. The feeling of allied diplomatists seems to be that if Greece desires to enter the war now she will have to do so on her own initiative and with no conditions with respect to territorial compensation.

TRAINS TO GO DRY.

No Liquor In Diners in Ontario After June.

WINNIPEG, March 22—As a result of the "drying" of the West, Canadian railways may discontinue the sale of liquor on their dining cars early in the summer. This decision affects not only Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, which have prohibitive laws already, but also British Columbia and Ontario.

Manitoba will be "dry" next June and Alberta will follow suit in July. This will cut down the places in which liquor could be sold on the railway diners to Quebec, British Columbia and parts of Ontario.

THRILLING FINISH MARKS DOG RACE

Record Made for 180 Mile Dog Event —Pace is Gruelling—Favorite Beaten.

The Pas, Man., March 23.—Barely 50 feet separated Albert Campbell and Jack Hayes at the finish of the 180 mile dog race. Hayes clung to his carriole all in, and Campbell tumbled over in a heap as he crossed the finishing line, and his dogs ran off blindly. He was the winner by seconds. His total mushing time for the distance was 22 hours and 18 minutes. Bill Hayes was third, and the others are straggling in in a pitiable condition. Hayes carried one of his dogs on the carriole for over half the distance. It went lame at the commencement of the race and he ran over three-quarters of the way with four dogs. Campbell and the Hayes Brothers made Beaver Landing under eleven hours on the first leg of the race. The other entries were closely bunched and arrived all within an hour of Campbell. A snow storm had completely obliterated the trail, and the going was hard. Conditions were against the mushers, and the time made is considered a world's record for a no-stop race for 150 miles.

Hayes Passes Leaders.

On the go off, Jack Hayes got away in sixth place and Campbell seventh. At 20 miles Hayes passed the leaders and was going rapidly for a record, when his wheel dog went lame from the cutting ice, and was taken on the carriole. Campbell caught and passed the field at Rocky Lake and then passed Hayes within a half mile of the Landing.

A feed of cooked whitefish was given the dogs at the Landing and the mushers got away fairly well bunched on the return to The Pas. Hayes held his lead for the first fifty miles with Campbell close at his heels. At Rocky Lake on the return it was neck and neck between them, but Hayes managed to hold his advantage. Shortly after he put the lame dog in the harness and Campbell passed him. Hayes figured the dog was fresh, and despite his lameness he would inspire the other animals with courage. He caught Campbell again within five miles of the finish but could not pass him. Campbell made a great spurt within 200 yards of the finishing line, and with whip and frozen chunks of ice he drove his team to victory. The Indians are coming with their dogs lame and sadly cut from the ice and themselves completely exhausted. It has been a gruelling race on both men and animals, but no dogs were lost.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hips, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

DISCOVERING A FRIEND.

(Edgar A. Guest, in Detroit Free Press.)

If sorrow never happened and trouble never came,
The only thing you'd know about your neighbour is his name;
If all your days were bright and fair and certain was your place,
You'd only know a fellow by the features of his face.
Acquaintances upon this earth are all you'd ever own
If care had always passed you by and grief you'd never known.

Time was I used to nod to one who lived across the way,
I knew his name and he knew mine; we passed the time of day.
But nothing did he mean to me and nothing I to him,
Until one morning sorrow came and all my world was grim.
I saw his face, I felt his hand, and knew he'd come to lend
The strength I needed—and right then I found I had a friend.

'Tis not in sunshine friends are made but when our skies are gray,
The splendid souls that men possess we never on display.
We cannot tell what lies behind the lusty nod or smile.
Now what of worth will come from it in just a little while:
We only know that when we face the cares that life must send
We realize the passerby has changed into a friend.

If postage stamps, gummed labels or jam pot covers have become glued together, do not soak in water, but lay a thin paper on top and pass a hot iron over. They will then come apart easily and the gum will be intact.

PERMANENT CURE OF PILES CERTIFIED BY MINISTER

Sixteen Years Ago This Man Was Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment —Had Suffered Keenly For Twelve Years

You might almost say that there is only one actual cure for Piles, and that is Dr. Chase's Ointment. Every day this conclusion is corroborated by reports from persons who had tried one thing and another without success. Some have even been operated on, only to have the old trouble return, and finally to obtain cure by use of this ointment.

Why not avoid waste of time, waste of money and needless risk with operations by using Dr. Chase's Ointment at once?

Some will say "that is all very well for itching Piles, but my trouble is from bleeding Piles." Well, here is a letter from a man who had bleeding Piles for twelve years and suffered most keenly. For sixteen years he has had no return of the old trouble and naturally considers the cure permanent.

Mr. O. B. Peters, Salmon Arm, B. C., writes: "I was troubled with bleeding Piles for about twelve years, and suffered everything but death. I was so bad I could scarcely walk about and though I tried many things, could get no relief. At that time I lived at Sharbot Lake, Ont., and a friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, saying he would guarantee cure. Less than two boxes of Dr Chase's Ointment cured me. That is sixteen years ago, and I am O.K. yet, so think you can consider the cure permanent. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment enough, as it saved me from a great deal of pain and suffering."

Rev. W. J. Beamish, Salmon Arm, B.C., writes: "I have been acquainted with Mr. O. B. Peters, and have always found him to be a man of his word. I can therefore most thoroughly endorse what Mr. Peters has written concerning the merits and value of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

A test of Dr. Chase's Ointment will soon convince you of its merits. Relief comes almost immediately and every day's persistent treatment. For sale by all dealers. Sample box free if you mention this paper and write direct to Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

GERMAN LEATHER IN SHOES.

Footwear is Imported into England From Switzerland.

London, March 21.—The English people are beginning to believe that they are wearing shoes made of German leather through the fact that many of their shoes are imported from Switzerland, where the manufacturers are known to use large quantities of German leather. Their suspicions were recently confirmed by the fact that British imports of shoes from Switzerland during February were nearly double those of the corresponding period in 1914. Information was given in the House of Parliament recently that the use of German leather to the extent of 5 per cent. in shoes imported from Switzerland is permissible.

"TIZ" FOR SORE, TIRED FEET--AH!

"Tiz" is grand for aching, swollen, tender, calloused feet or corns.

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet; no more swollen, aching, tender, sweaty feet. No more soreness in corns, callouses, bunions.

No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "Tiz." "Tiz" is the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. "Tiz" cures your foot trouble so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore and swollen. Think of it, no more agony from corns, callouses or bunions.

Get a 25-cent box at any drug store or department store and get instant relief. Wear smaller shoes. Just once try "Tiz." Get a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents. Think of it.

NOT ALL GERMANS BRUTAL, SAYS BRYCE

Sure They will Join the Allies in Efforts to Regulate Warfare in Future.

LONDON, March 22.—Lord Bryce, in The Westminster Gazette, reviews a book entitled "German Atrocities; an Official Investigation," by Professor J. H. Morgan, published last week.

He begins by saying that the natural question: "What is the use of multiplying tales of horror?" needs an answer, which is that it is an urgent duty to do all that can be done for the regulation of methods of warfare and the mitigation of the suffering it causes. Lord Bryce, apparently with his mind's eye on the United States, then develops his argument as follows:

"Now the cruelties that have been perpetrated on land, no less than the ruthless murder of innocent passengers on unarmed vessels at sea, are an aggravation of those sufferings. They are a reversion to the ancient methods of savagery, a challenge to civilized mankind, to neutral nations as well as to the belligerent States. The neutral nations ought to be fully informed of the facts of these methods, for they themselves are concerned. The same methods may be used against them if they are attacked by Germany or by some other nation which sees that Germany has used them with impunity. If the public opinion of the world does not condemn these methods war will become even a greater curse than it has been heretofore. Unless all effort is made, as soon as over the present conflict ends, to regulate the conduct of hostilities between combatant forces and—which is of even greater importance—to provide more effective safeguards for noncombatants, there may be a terrible relapse toward barbarism everywhere. The allied belligerent nations, who are now fighting in the cause of humanity, are called upon to take up this matter and deal with it effectively, so are the neutral nations; it is a pity that they did not project long ago.

"But a word may be said regarding the German people also. Professor Morgan thinks they share in all the guilt of their Government; but the reasons he gives for this belief do not warrant so melancholy a conclusion. The behavior of the mobs that were wont to insult and ill-treat the prisoners of war led through the streets of German towns and the ferocious language of creatures like von Reventlow and some other writers in the German press, shocking as they are, cannot be taken as evidence of the sentiments of the whole people. Neither do we suppose that the declarations of professors, the victims of a doctrine and practice which compel them to approve every act of the State, are more to be accepted as expressing what may be felt by less vocal Germans. We must remember how severe is the German censorship, how accustomed Germans are to believe what their Government tells them, how habitually mendacious the military authorities have been in the accounts they supply of the conduct of the allied powers and their troops. The German mind believes—absurd as the belief is—that it is the innocent victim of unprovoked aggression. When any voice is raised in Germany to proclaim even a part of the truth and to plead for humanity and good feeling, that voice is instantly silenced.

"Silence will doubtless be enforced as long as the war lasts; but we may well venture to hope that when, after the war, the facts hitherto concealed from the people have become known and can be reflected on with calmness, there will be condemnation of practices I have described, and that in Germany and Austria, as well as in all neutral countries, there will be a wish to join in the efforts which both the Allies and the leading neutral powers are sure to make to regulate and mitigate the conduct of the war.

"In order to call forth these efforts by showing how great is the need for strengthening the existing rules of war and providing more effective means of securing their observance, it is essential that the fact should be made known and studied, and that the world should see how the present rules, imperfect as they are, have been trampled under foot by the German authorities."

The matter of increasing the pay of the motormen and conductors was also considered, and an increase was made by making 22 cents the maximum wage. Certain others of the employes will also benefit by the increase.

TIRED WORKING MEN

A Local Druggist Suggests a Remedy for Overworked, Run-down Men.

The following letter from Manager Hodes recounts the experience and condition of many Peterborough men. Read this letter and our offer which follows:

Brooklyn, N.Y.: "I am a general office manager, and became so nervous and run-down in health that I lost my appetite and finally my health broke down completely, largely because of overwork. I tried Beef Iron and Wine, and other remedies without help. I saw Vinol advertised and soon after taking it I noticed an improvement. I now have a hearty appetite, sleep better, feel better and have gained considerable in weight." Samuel Hodes, 391 Stone Ave.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the three oldest and most famous tonics, viz.: the medicinal elements of fresh cod livers without oil, peptonate of iron and beef peptone.

We ask every run-down, over worked man in Peterborough to try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that their money will be returned if it fails to help them, as it did Mr. Hodes.

SAYS HOT WATER EACH DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleasing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, tshoamturucelb, rjoiñ(.S others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

BREAD LINE FOR IDLERS ENDS.

NEW YORK, March 21. — "An army of 500 beggars, never-sweats, and professional alms-seekers have been subsisting all winter on the various bread lines and spending their days reading fiction in the free libraries," said Captain Allen, of the Cooper Square branch of the Salvation Army, in announcing that the bread line long maintained at 60 Cooper Square would be discontinued at once. "At a time when there are more jobs than workers," the captain continued, "we find that there is no decrease in the number of men seeking free bread."

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear; no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

FRENCH BOMBARD GERMAN POSITIONS

RUSSIANS MAKING PROGRESS IN EAST

French Artillery Bombarding Foe's Positions Near Verdun

French Troops Also Occupy a Mine Crater Near Hill 285 But Otherwise There Were No Important Actions During the Night, the French War Office Reports--General Kuropatkin Pounding at German Lines in the East.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PARIS, March 24.—The French artillery kept up a heavy bombardment of the German positions in the woods south of Malancourt last night, but the Teutons made no infantry attacks, the War Office reported this afternoon.

On the rest of the front northwest of Verdun the night was calm. On the west bank of the Meuse an intermittent bombardment occurred around Douaumont and Damloup. In the Woevre region the artillery fire was most violent near Moulainville and Eparges.

The French troops occupied a mine crater near Hill 285 in the Argonne. Elsewhere there were no important actions during the night.

Following a twenty-four-hour lull the German batteries turned a terrific fire on French positions south of Malancourt and around Dead Man Hill. The French guns roared in reply all day yesterday.

By battering through the French lines in Avocourt wood the Crown Prince bent the French front in the shape of a dangerous loop. German artillery posted on a ridge near Dead Man Hill on the northeast side is sweeping four miles of wooded plain with heavy fire. On the southwestern side Bavarian regiments will strive to cut through the intervening four miles cutting off the French forces holding Bethincourt and Malancourt, the head of the loop.

FOE MAY HAVE TO RETIRE ON BIG FRONT

Special to The Examiner.

PETROGRAD, March 24.—Savage fighting is going on at Jacobstadt, 80 miles southeast of Riga, where the Russians, using liquid fire and gas bombs, are battering in the German salient.

At the same time the Slavs are attacking vigorously at Friedrichstadt, west of Jacobstadt, and at Illuxt, to the south. General Kuropatkin's aim apparently is to squeeze Von Hindenburg out of this important salient by threats of envelopment, forcing the retirement of the whole German line from Riga to Dvinsk on a front of 140 miles.

Despite optimistic statements from some sources, best informed circles here do not consider Kuropatkin's attacks the beginning of a great Russian offensive. The spring thaw, due within possibly a fortnight, is expected to impede artillery movements and force a lull in the fighting on the northern front.

When the ground becomes firm again, big offensive movements by both the Germans and Russians are certain to develop. To improve his defensive positions to meet the expected German attack, General Kuropatkin is flattening out German wedges in the Russian line and moving to capture highway intersections and dominating positions.

AMSTERDAM, March 24.—Flushing correspondents of to-day reported sounds of heavy firing in the Channel frim the direction of Ostend and Westende.

A Successful Patriotic Tea

A successful tea was held at the home of Mrs. B. K. Storey, 619 Union street on Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of Soldiers' Wives and Mothers' Club. Mrs. Earl Downey and Mrs. Cruickshanks were hostesses, while Mrs. Bugg, dressed as a Red Cross nurse, helped pour tea. The house was decorated with flags and a short musical programme was rendered. Among those taking part were: Solos by Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Fred Stanley, Mrs. McKinley, Mrs. Bugg, Miss Allen and others. The proceeds are to go to buy comforts for our Peterborough boys at the front. The Club wish to thank Mrs. Storey for the use of her home.

THREE RECRUITS GET MILITARY BRUSHES

At a meeting of Coldsprings Sunday School last night military brushes were presented to three members who have joined the 93rd Battalion, Privates Roy Spiers, Henry Boyter and Harold Rose. This was a feature of an entertainment including a vocal solo by Miss Kitney, a duet by Misses Maggie and May Bennett, a reading by Miss Edith Peters, recitation by Miss Mary Tolly, and vocal solo by Mr. Arthur Holden. A debate on the subject, "Resolved that waterways are of more benefit to the world than railways"; affirmative, Frank Kitney and Herb Peters; negative, Ernest Kitney and Everett Kidd. The affirmative won. Mr. F. Kitney read the address to the thre recruits, and the military brushes were presented by three little girls.

Fire at the Mann Planing Mill

The fire brigade was called out last night at eleven o'clock to the planing mill of Mr. E. H. Mann on Aylmer street south. The building, which was a frame structure, was not damaged to any extent. The electric motor was saved, but some circular saws were ruined as a result of the conflagration.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED.

Suspicious Death of Wealthy Grand Rapids Couple.

NEW YORK, March 24.—The police authorities of New York and Grand Rapids, Mich., are co-operating to investigate the death of John E. Peck, a wealthy drug dealer of Grand Rapids, and of his wife, both of whom died here recently while visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Dr. Warren Waite, dentist. Two autopsies performed in Grand Rapids after the body of Mr. Peck had been exhumed discovered arsenic in the stomach and intestines. The body of Mrs. Peck could not be examined, because it had been cremated.

Mrs. Peck died here suddenly on Jan. 29. Her husband came to New York a short time after her death to console his daughter and died on March 12. Until a day or two before his death he had seemed to be in excellent health. Peck left an estate valued at more than $1,000,000, divided equally between his daughter, Mrs. Waite, and his son, Perry Peck, of Grand Rapids.

THE SHACKLETON EXPEDITION BACK FROM FAR SOUTH

News of the Achievements of the Famous Explorer and His Party in the Antarctic Will Be Withheld For the Present

AWAY SINCE 1914

SYDNEY, N.S.W., March 24.—Lieut. Sir Ernest H. Shackleton has returned from his Antarctic expedition. News of the achievements of the expedition is withheld for the present. The expedition left England in two sections six weeks after the European war began, but it was not until early in January, 1915, after delay due to unfavorable ice conditions that a party headed by Sir Ernest, himself, set off on the 1,700 mile voyage from South Georgia, an uninhabitated island in the South Atlantic ocean, about 800 miles due east of Cape Horn for Ross Sea on the other side of the South Pole.

Meeting of Many Leading Citizens

Held Yesterday Afternoon to Consider the Council's Action in Dispensing With the Services of Mr. T. A. S. Hay

A number of the business men met in the chambers above the Bank of Montreal yesterday afternoon to consider the matter of the Council dispensing with the services of Mr. T. A. S. Hay. It was felt that the Council had dealt in a very harsh manner with an old and valued servant. As one man remarked, Mr. Hay had acted for many years as the chief engineer of the city at a salary away below what he was worth, but notwithstanding the disparity in his salary he worked so arduously that he undermined his health and brought about his present condition of health. It is well known that during the many years that Mr. Hay has been in the service of the city that he has never had but two holidays, one of two weeks duration and another last year when he was compelled to take a holiday in order to have an operation performed, and then though he was granted a three months' leave of absence, he was compelled to forego six weeks of his rest in order to return to his work at the office. For nearly twenty-five years he has acted as curator of the museum and has supplied for this city a museum that would be a credit to any place double the size of Peterborough. For this he has never received one cent from the city. Mr. Hay has a fund of information gathered from his longterm of office that will be most useful to the city and it is felt that it is not an act of economy, not to say anything of the ingratitude of the matter to allow such an old official to retire under such circumstances.

A committee of the leading citizens was appointed to draw up a memorial to the Council to be signed by all the leading men asking that the Council take into consideration the above facts. It was suggested at this meeting that Mr. Hay might be appointed curator of the museum at which he could do work during the winter and during the summer he would act as inspector of public works at a stated salary.

CALLED ATTENTION TO CLERKS' PLATOON

In a recruiting speech at the Grand Opera House last night during the presentation of "The Story of the Rosary," Major R. P. Watt, of the 93rd Battalion, called attention to the clerks' platoon of the 93rd, which as announced by The Examiner yesterday, is to be formed. Major Watt stated that it would be organized along the lines of the Sportsmen's and Pals' battalions in Toronto, and friends would be kept together, drilled together, and after a while fight together. Recruiters will call upon the young men in a day or two, and Major Watt asked for a patient hearing for them.

ORGANIZED CAMPAIGN TO COMPLETE STRENGTH OF 93rd BATTALION

Military Census of the City Has Been Practically Completed ---Recruiting Centres Established at Various Points in County--To-day's Orders and General Military News

In all probability when the time comes for the soldiers to go under canvas the 93rd Battalion of Peterborough will be the senior battalion in the division, but in order to hold this position it is necessary for the 93rd to be at full strength when that time comes. The other battalions in the division, which are located at Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Kingston, Belleville and Brockville, are putting forth every possible effort to obtain the necessary quota of men and the citizens of the various towns are doing everything in their power to encourage recruiting and help fill up the ranks of their own county unit. The 93rd Battalion has commenced an organized system, and while the same is not yet completed the results obtained this week will more than double those obtained last week.

The system which some of the citizens and officers are at present working upon is very varied in its nature and wide enough to include any suggestions which may present themselves at any time. A military census of the whole city of Peterborough has been practically completed, and by this means much information has been obtained, such as the number of men residing in each house, their age, occupation, and whether married or single, fit or unfit. With this information at hand, it is the intention of the recruiting officers, and those who are helping them in this respect, to consider every name and distinguish the eligibles from the ineligibles. Every day at 10.30 a.m. there is a meeting at the recruiting rooms, where the previous day's work and results are discussed, and meetings and plans arranged for the future. Electric signs are being made which will be placed on some prominent parts of the street, and also signs are being used (by the kind permission of the owners), in the different theatres about the city. At various points throughout the county recruiting centres have been established with certain areas to cover, and at stated times recruiting meetings are held with the assistance of the 93rd Band.

Many names and addresses of eligible young men who live in the country have been obtained, and a personal letter has been written to each man, making a personal appeal for his help. Saturday and Sunday night meetings are being held every week with the hope of interesting everybody for the cause.

The 93rd Battalion needs nearly three hundred more men to make it a full battalion, including the base company drivers, etc., and no one will deny that there are more than double that number in the city of Peterborough, alone.

Peterborough in the past has done well, but can do better. One woman alone, who is a widow, has given five sons, another family has the father and all the boys in the ranks, but there are others who have fallen by the wayside, and when interviewed about enlisting, give various reasons why they have not done so, but it is hoped that it will not be long before they will see their duty and join the boys at the front.

The Taylor family of Chemong Indian Village now hold the family record for the 93rd Battalion. Early last autumn Samson Taylor joined the local battalion. Yesterday two other brothers, Hiram and Harris, became members of the 93rd, and this morning still another brother, William, was outfitted, making four brothers in the one battalion.

Lieut.-Col. Johnston, Capt. J. E. R. Munro, Sergt.-Major Miller, and thirty members of the 93rd Battalion Band left on the noon train to-day for Havelock, where a big recruiting demonstration is to take place. The Havelock platoon of the 93rd, headed by the band, will hold a parade this afternoon, and to-night a big patriotic meeting will take place in the Town Hall, at which the band of the 93rd will give a concert.

BICYCLE WEEK

From March 27th to April 1st

The Bicycles dealers of Canada are making special efforts during the week of March 27th to attract the attention of the people to the fact that there is a great revival all over the country, of the use of bicycles.

This week has been called Bicycle Week, and all the dealers from one end of the country to the other, are making special displays of the new 1916 models.

C. R. Banks is preparing an elaborate display at his showrooms, on Charlotte St., and cordially invites the public to inspect the new models.

Mr. Banks predicts a great revival of Bicycling in Peterborough during the coming season, due to the fact that our roads are in much better condition than at any other time.

The Bicycle manufacturers of the United States are making 1,000,000 bicycles during 1916, and reports from all over the continent, show that this number will certainly be sold.

Intending purchasers of bicycles will be wise to make their selection during the coming week.

TWO SUCCESSFUL RAIDS MADE BY THE BRITISH

Dugouts of the Enemy in Neighbourhood of Bethune--La Bassee Roads Were Bombed and Blown in by Our Forces.

GERMANS SPRING MINE

LONDON, March 23.—Sir Douglas Haig reports that the British carried out two successful raids against the German trenches about Gommecourt and the Bethune-LaBassee roads. Three dugouts filled with the enemy were bombed and blown in. The Germans sprang a mine to the north of Arras and two mines northeast of Neuve Chapelle, causing slight damage to the British trenches. A grenade attack to the north of Arras was repulsed.

No Infantry Action.

The German forces which gained a foothold on the small hill of Haucourt a little over half a mile southwest of Malancourt, on the west side of the Meuse yesterday, have not yet attempted to increase their gains, and the French still hold part of the hill.

There were no infantry action on the Verdun front last night or to-day. Last night the Germans decreased the intensity of their bombardment to the west of the river, which had been of especial violence yesterday as a support to their infantry attack, but continued without lessening of intensity the bombardment on the eastern bank of the river. In the Woevre the cannonade was intermittent.

To-day heavy artillery fire was resumed on the western bank of the Meuse, in the Malancourt region, and on the front between Bethincourt-Le Morte Homme-Sumieres, while to the east of the river and in the Woevre the firing increased in violence.

ENGINEER KILLED IN TRAIN COLLISION NEAR TORONTO

Toronto Flyer From Chicago Dashed Into Freight at Port Credit—Brakeman Missing

NO PASSENGERS INJURED

TORONTO, March 24.—The Toronto Flyer from Chicago last night crashed into a through freight about a mile past Port Credit station. The engine of the passenger train dashed into the caboose of the freight train, cutting through the caboose. The impact of the collision was so great that the locomotive was thrown over on its side amidst the wreckage of the splintered car. The wreck claimed two victims. They are:

Harry Overend, engineer of the Chicago Flyer, instantly killed.

The wreck occurred on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway. At the time of the wreck the Flyer was running at a high rate of speed. As this train is one of the through connections between Chicago and Toronto, the line is supposed to be clear for its passage.

In some as yet unexplained way the freight train blocked the line at this point and as a result the flyer dashed into the obstruction at a high rate of speed. So great was the impact that the entire cars of the freight were hurled from the rails and are now lying on their sides crossways on the tracks. Fortunately at the time of the accident the crew of the freight train were in the forward cars and thereby escaped death.

The fact that no passengers travelling on the Chicago Flyer were injured is due solely to the heavy steel cars operated on through trains. The cars remained upright after the collision, and beyond a severe shaking up none of the travellers were injured.

The engine, however, toppled over after crashing into the freight caboose and Engineer Overend and Fireman Anderson were buried in the wreckage. The train crews at once commenced to search for the two men. The engineer was found crushed beneath the wheels of the caboose, and was so terribly injured that he died within a few minutes.

Toronto, Ont., March 24.—The failure to adhere to orders, and through some apparent misunderstanding of verbal instructions on the part of the freight crew, is given as the cause of three railroad men losing their lives when the Grand Trunk Chicago—Toronto flyer No. 16 crashed into a freight train, one mile east of Port Credit last night.

Funeral of Late Irene A. Carson To-morrow Morning

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Carson will deeply sympathize with them in the loss of their second youngest daughter, Irene Agnes, aged 15 years and 11 months, who passed away yesterday afternoon at 3.15 o'clock at the family residence, 181 Romaine Street. The deceased had been ill four weeks and for a fortnight only slight hopes were held for her recovery. She was conscious to the last, and all the members of the family were present. The brothers and sisters are Mr. Thos. J. Carson of Saginaw, Mich., John of the 63rd Battalion, Edmonton, Robert of the Royal Canadian Engineers, Quebec, Miss May Carson, superintendent of St. Anthony's Hospital, Rockford, Ill.; Miss Annie Carson of St. Mary's Hospital, Detroit, both of whom had been attending the deceased, and Charles, Geraldine, Genevieve and Helen, at home.

The funeral will be held on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, from the residence on Romaine Street to the Church of the Sacred Heart, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

The late Irene Carson was a member of the Continuation Class of St. Peter's School, in which she will be greatly missed by her fellow students.

A NEW WAR CENTRE?

Europe hasn't a monopoly of war. We have a rather promising ruction on this side of the big water. A serious, if not alarming, condition has developed in Mexico and the contiguous borders of the United States. One Villa, the villain that heads the insurrectionary forces in Mexico, recently raided United States territory at Columbus, Texas, killed a few United States citizens and escaped with some loot. The United States authorities at once organized what was called a punitive expedition, and made a convention with Carranza, the leader of the legitimate Mexican forces, and sent into Mexico some 5,000 troops to cooperate with Carranza in bringing the insurgent leader to account. The proverbial saying—"first catch the hare"—seems to apply in this case. What promised to be a mere lively military manoeuvre for the United States and Mexican troops promises to develop into a long hunt if not into a case of the hunter hunted. General Funston, the United States Chief in Command, has, according to despatches, told his government that the "regular" Mexican General, Luis Hemara, has, with 2,000 troops, revolted, and joined the forces of the bandit. They are said to be well equipped and well provided with ammunition. There are rumours of other regular Mexican forces joining the rebels. This creates a somewhat serious situation. The United States has 5,000 troops in the hills hunting Villa, and 25,000 on the frontier. It is said that Uncle Sam can only furnish 15,000 more regular troops; and that if more men are needed he will have to call upon the National Guard, corresponding to our Canadian militia. If, as reported, all of northern Mexico is, or threatens to rise, in revolt, against Carranza, the situation becomes complicated and delicate. The United States cannot, without compromising international relations, take any active part in dealing with the revolting Mexicans—their business is confined, by agreement, to the capture of Villa. At the best it would have been a pretty tedious task to catch Villa in the mountain fastnesses which he and his followers are supposed to be intimately acquainted with, thus giving them a great advantage over even superior and more numerous United States troops, who are in strange territory, and are, besides, hampered by the danger that any actions they take may rouse the Mexican populace to consider such action as a danger to Mexico, itself. The situation is a difficult and delicate one to handle satisfactorily. We must hope that the rumours of disaffection we hear are exaggerated; and that nothing will arise to give us on this continent even a miniature reproduction of the terrible war conditions that are devastating Europe.

A GREAT WORK.

The recurrence of the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society calls attention anew to its immense value in our local and national economy. The continued usefulness of our own society is guaranteed by the new officials, Mr. Peak, as president, will have an opportunity to make authoritatively and effectively demonstrate, not only his fitness for the position, but emphasize the deep interest he has for years taken in the society; but both he and Mr. Wearing, the new secretary, will be kept busy to successfully, as one may be sure they will do, fill the places of their respective predecessors, Mr. Travers and Mr. Goodwill.

Aside altogether from the moral considerations involved, the Children's Aid Society justifies its existence on material and monetary grounds. A registrar of vital statistics of Great Britain, has tabulated and expressed in terms of money the value of a citizen, from the state of infancy to the maximum average value at 30 years, of $4,000. Every child the society rescues therefore becomes an important potential financial factor in the public economy. He adds to the money and industrial value of citizenship. Neglected and unrescued such a child would almost surely be a criminal or a pauper, to be maintained at the cost of the state by the earnings of the industrious. Rescued and saved by the society the children, he or she, become useful and productive members of the community. The annual report of the local society contains an eloquent instance of the benefit it confers, not only upon the local community, but upon the province, the country, the empire and upon humanity. Twenty-two stalwart young men, rescued in childhood from surroundings unpromising of anything but degradation, are now wearing the khaki, serving in the army of the empire in the cause of humanity and freedom. It is humanly certain that but for the existence and activity of the Children's Aid Society, of Peterborough, most, if not all, of these would have become burdens on the state, maintained in penal institutions, instead of being as they are now helping upholders of the fabric of civilization. A companion case, as a demonstration of the indirect influence of the society is that of a family of five children taken in charge only a year ago—the father in jail, the mother a physical wreck, the children neglected and suffering. To-day the father is fighting for the Empire, and the children, restored to the now happy and good mother, are living happy and virtuous, and prospectively useful lives. Another feature of the report of the meeting is that dealing with the great work of usefulness it opens to the best of our citizens, with the exalting influences it exercises upon the development of the higher qualities of true and tender manhood and womanhood. No cause that can be mentioned or thought of outside the claims of religion, presents a stronger appeal to the public than the Children's Aid Society.

FEWER NOT MORE.

Why should there be provision made in the chamber of the reconstructed Parliament Buildings at Ottawa for 300 members. We have more than enough members now, who there are about 220 to do the business of fewer than eight million people. It is the experience with representative institutions, both municipal, provincial, and federal, that the greater the number of members the greater the expenditure; not only in the payment of indemnities, but in the expenditure that each member is bound to add. An alderman or member of parliament considers himself no good if he can't get something that costs money for his ward or his constituency. Therefore the more members we have in parliament the more we shall spend; not with any eye to meeting public needs, but to placate, and indirectly, but effectively, "buy up" constituencies. We Canadians are greatly over-governed. While our parliaments are unduly and unprofitably costly in the way of money expenditure, direct and incidental, they are negatively unduly costly in another way, by the inefficient service they provide. Ten capable men can sooner come to wiser conclusions upon a complicated business matter than if it is additionally complicated by being entrausted to a hundred men, mostly not capable. It does not seem to be a step in the right way to provide for a sixty per cent. increase of our already too numerous parliamentary contingent, especially as under our federal system we have six or seven hundred representatives in provincial legislatures. Nearly eight hundred representatives to govern eight million people seems to be an extravagant and top-heavy arrangement.

HE'D FIND A WAY.

Baron Shaughnessy of the C.P.R., in the presence of Sir Sam Hughes, made the statement that Canada's overseas contribution cannot be raised to 500,000 men by present recruiting methods. Sir Thomas is a good business man, and it is dollars to doughnuts that if he wanted to achieve any special object for the advancement of the great railroad he controls he would have some system of doing it. And this is what the Dominion has not yet got relative to recruiting.—Brantford Expositor.

THE BEST MEN ENLIST.

"Manufacturers tell me," says a writer in a contemporary, "that it is the most competent men that enlist."

That is true. The man who is competent in his work has a competent mind. He sees and knows the needs of the case. He decides that he ought to go and he enlists. No doubt he knows very well that all about him are men less usefully employed who could be better spared than he, but they do not move, so he does.

No doubt he knows that there ought to be intelligent discrimination in enlisting men and withdrawing them from the arts and industries, but there isn't, and so he decides to go.—Toronto Star.

VALUE OF A BABY MATHEMATICALLY DEMONSTRATED

Recently Irving Fisher, professor of political economy, made a statement "valuing the American baby at $80." He was criticised and has been forced to make an explanation.

"When a human life is saved" he now says, "the saving of earning power is the least important saving, but even this least important saving is enough to justify many times over the cost of obtaining it. Human life is much more than a money-making machine, but it is only as a money-making machine that it has a calculable money value. The figures which I gave in Boston were, naturally, not intended to include any sentimental values in human life. What a baby is worth to its mother because of mother love could never be calculated; but its value, or rather the value of the average baby as a prospective bread-winner, can be and has been calculated many times.

Taking any 100,000 babies born to-day, we know approximately from statistics what it will cost to bring them up, allowing for the fact that certain numbers will die at different ages. We know also how much those who survive to be bread-winners will earn. On the average the earnings overbalance the cost of maintenance, in "present worth," by at least $9,000,000, or on average for the 100,000 babies of $90 apiece. This is simply an average. Some of the 100,000 will be worth more and some less. Nor does the reckoning take account of any other value than earning power.

One baby may prove to be a Beethoven and another an Isaac Newton, and be worth far more to society than its capitalized capacity to earn money. But we are calculating only the moneymaking capacity. This would be more than $90 if so many lives were not lost before becoming productive.

In the same way the average person living at 20 or 30 years of age has a present worth as a bread-winner is about $4,000. This is, as before, the net present worth of his future productive power over and above the cost of his future maintainence. In old age the average net worth becomes a minus quantity, for the aged do not generally earn enough for their own support.

The figures for different ages are given in the following table, based on calculations of Dr. William Farr, formerly registrar of vital statistics of Great Britain:

Age.	Net Average Worth of a Person.	Age.	Net Average Worth of a Person.
0	$ 90	30	$4,160
5	680	50	2,900
10	2,080	60	700
20	4,000

In short, a human life has, in addition to its higher valuations, a money valuation simply as a money-making machine. This is really the basis of ordinary life insurance. In general every human life with earning power ought to be insured against loss of that earning power in the interest of those dependent on that earning power; and, in general, insurance companies object to "overinsurance" beyond the money value of a life, just as they object to overinsurance of a factory or of a ship.

There are many powerful arguments in favour of the general health insurance of working men and women, such as it is now proposed to introduce into this country. But the argument which I think will prove most effective, although really the least important, is the argument that it is sound business economy. It is sound economy not only because it will better distribute the burden of illness but also because it will greatly reduce the burden of illness.

We have all seen how the workmen's compensation acts have stimulated the "safety first" movement, and, so, greatly reduced the injuries and deaths from accidents. Health insurance will act precisely in the same way but on a much larger scale. Those of us who have become in the least acquainted with the enormous room for improvement in matters of health have no doubts that health insurance, when generally introduced, will be the most effective means of reducing the death rate that has ever been applied. Just as certain safety devices, which a few years ago were only known to a few experts, were introduced on a wide scale under the stimulus of workmen's compensation, and many other safety devices were soon invented under the same stimulus, so when it becomes a financial object to save human life methods of life-saving will be applied on a wide scale, which at present are only known to a few experts, and many methods will be discovered.

ADMITTEDLY UNFAIR.

Sir Thomas White has admitted that his new scheme of taxing corporations cannot be defended except as a rough-and-ready measure to provide funds in an emergency and that he would not think of recommending it as a permanent plan of taxation. It is well that he makes this reservation, for many ways can be pointed out in which it is unjust. For instance, the Montreal Journal of Commerce, of which Hon. W. S. Fielding is the editor, gives this example:

Take two Kingston men for illustration. One with moderate capital, but with much courage and enterprise, with a desire to do something to help in making Kingston a busy community, puts his money into the Kingston Locomotive Works. The budget pounces on him for one-fourth of any earnings above seven per cent. His next door neighbour a worthy soul in his own way, with much capital, but not willing to take business risks and content that Kingston should be a humdrum place, puts his money into mortgages, or perhaps American railway bonds, which yield him a liberal interest. The budget leaves him untouched. This is a feature of the scheme which seems unfair. It distinctly penalizes industry and enterprise.

With all its injustice, however, the new scheme is infinitely better than an increase in the customs tariff without a corresponding inland revenue tax to deprive domestic manufacturers of the additional profits they would derive from the extra protection.—Ottawa Free Press.

Better Food Given British Prisoners

LONDON, March 24.—The American Embassy's report on Giessen prisoners' camp says that the men all said the food was much better than a few months ago. None had any complaint of his treatment in the camp, itself.

Several spoke, however, of unsatisfactory conditions in different working camps. Many of the men spoke of their objection to do any work on the ground that it was giving assistance to the enemy. Others said they did not like to accept any pay for their work, fearing their pay might be stopped in England in consequence. It was explained to them that on principle, they would be compelled to work, or must take punishment for refusal to do so, but if they objected to any particular kind of work, on conscientious grounds, they should make their objections known to the German officers.

One Canadian Highlander was under arrest in barracks, together with other prisoners, because he refused to wear the trousers furnished to him, the rule being that kilts should not be worn by men at the working camps or when sent on fatigue parties.

Women carpenters have made their appearance in Mayence, where they are taking the place of their husbands and brothers at the front.

Seventeen Berlin professors have been called to the University of Stamboul, in Turkey, with a view to bringing it into the first rank of educational institutions in Europe.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF LETTER

The following has been handed to The Examiner for publication:

March 21st, 1916.

H. J. Walker, Esq., M.P., Ottawa:

Dear H. J.,—Your favour of 19th inst. enclosing Mr. Burnham's letter duly received, and as suggested I had Mr. Henry refer to same in the Journal. I trust we may have a good deputation of councillors and business men to be present at meeting in Peterborough, on 31st inst., and we hope that it will also be convenient for you to attend.

Yours very truly,
P. S. Ewing.

The life history of a boy, who rose from selling papers on the street, to the position of Dean of the Faculty of Law in New York University, at the age of 43, reads like fiction. Yet such is true in the case of Mr. F. H. Sommers, of Newark, N.J., His appointment as Dean of the Law School was ratified on Feb. 26.

SWITZERLAND THE GOOD SAMARITAN OF WAR-STRICKEN EUROPE

After reading of the ever-increasing, inconceivable horrors of actual warfare, which are apt to destroy one's very belief in things that are fine and noble, it does one good to hear of little Switzerland, the one nation which although entirely surrounded by belligerent countries and sorely tried herself on account of conditions prevailing, excells continuously in her wonderful humanitarian work for the benefit of the war sufferers.

The latest noble deed which historians will record in favour of the gallant mountain Republic are her—now at last successful—efforts on behalf of the prisoners of war whose condition of health necessitates a sojourn in some mountain resort or watering place.

While it seemed improbable at first that the belligerent countries would permit any of their men to stay in a foreign health resort during the war, the continued and combined efforts of the Swiss Federal Council and the Pope on behalf of the sick and disabled prisoners of war resulted in an agreement to the effect that sick German prisoners held in France and sick French prisoners held in Germany, can now be transferred to Switzerland for a cure.

A start has but recently been made with men afflicted with curable tuberculosis and in order to avoid any possible unpleasantness or a hurting of the feelings of the ordinary guests, the sanitoriums of Davos have been assigned to the Germans and those of Montana and Leysin in French Switzerland to the French. While such precautions would no doubt be necessary in some cases, it has already been reported from Davos where a first transport of such patients arrived end of January last that the cosmopolitan throng of visitors did not display the slightest ill-feelings towards these men whose countenance tells of their sufferings; on the contrary, everybody without exception showed his sympathy, well remembering that the soldiers of any warring nation would equally appreciate brotherly love and kindly treatment.

This transfer to Switzerland of French and German consumptive prisoners of war was immediately followed by another exchange of the so-called Grands Blesses, those poor castaways from the trenches who have lost limbs or eyesight or are maimed beyond hope of recovery.

With their own splendidly equipped sanitary trains the Swiss have also been taking care of these exchanges which take place between Lyons and Constance, and which like no other Swiss charitable undertaking give the casual onlooker an insight into the horrors of war.

A second transport of sick prisoners will take place presently, and it is estimated that this new humanitarian work will commence with a total of about 2,000 invalids of both nationalities. There are, of course, a great proportion of men who are suffering from other diseases requiring some sort of a cure and such patients will in due time be taken care of in health resorts suitable for their individual complaints. If this trial with German and French prisoners proves successful, it is hoped that soldiers of other nationalities will later on also be given an opportunity to come to Switzerland for treatment.

A special supervision of these prisoners is not deemed necessary, for if any of them should escape, his native land undertakes to return him and the punishment for such an attempt would be the prompt return to the former prisoners' camp.

For reasons easily explained no prisoners will be taken into large cities nor into any of the resorts which are situated near the frontier or in the vicinity of some fortress.

The two states concerned hold themselves responsible for the expenses and specially reduced and uniform terms have been agreed upon by all the Swiss hotel establishments involved, as the undertaking is by no means a business venture, but a strictly humanitarian work for the benefit of all prisoners of war whose condition of health necessitates a systematic cure.

MARIE WIDMER.

CYRIL MAUDE ADMIRES CANADA'S PART IN WAR

The following interesting article is taken from the Montreal Daily Mail: His face aglow with pride and enthusiasm, Mr. Cyril Maude, the famous English actor, who is appearing at His Majesty's this week, last night told The Daily Mail representative that he was filled with wonderment at the part Canada was playing in the war. "The more I travel through your vast country," said Mr. Maude, "the more impressed I am, why it is simply wonderful, simply wonderful."

It was with equal pride that the creator of "Grumpy" informed the scribe that Mr. Hick, a member of his company, was joining the Canadian forces, and that another member, Mr. Marshall, was going to England to join the Artist's Corps there.

Mr. Maude is overjoyed at the fact that he has only seven weeks more to play "Grumpy." "I am tired of the part," he said, "and am looking forward to presenting a Canadian play, about which I can say nothing at present, but it is by a Canadian author, and deals with Canadian life."

It was with infinite relish that Mr. Maude told of his second daughter, who is engaged to be married to an officer now at the front. "They wanted to be married before the end of the war," he smiled, "and I consented. An old Scottish friend of mine did not seem to think it was the thing, and asked the young officer who had returned wounded, whether he thought it right. 'Oh, yes,' he drawled, 'let them marry before the end of the war, otherwise she might have to marry someone who was afraid to go.'"

Mr. Maude's wife is at present doing hospital work in England, and his company sends thousands of little comforts to the front. He states that the American people are strongly pro-Ally, and recollects how, when in Pittsburg, the German conductor insisted in playing a number of English airs, and wound up with "God Save the King."

Despite his long and arduous theatrical career, Mr. Maude looks as young and fresh as ever. He seems bubbling over with good spirits, and says he is looking forward to the time when he can leave the stage and play a good game of golf. "I want to retire when I am still in good health, so that I can enjoy myself and do all the things I have wanted to do but have been unable to do so during my professional life."

Evangelist C. M. Sharpe of Toronto will speak to men at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 4.15 p. m. Every man is invited.

DEATH TOKEN RECEIVED BY GOVERNOR SPRY

Officials Alarmed by Receipt of a Jack of Spades From the "K.O.D."

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 24.—State and county officials are bending every effort to locate the person who mailed a jack of spades to Governor William Spry two days ago. The card is a token of death of an organization known as "K.O.D." which last fall threatened Governor Spry with death if he failed to commute the death sentence of Joseph Hillstrom.

Governor Spry is at Washington, D. C. The guard on his home here, which has been maintained ever since the Hillstrom trouble arose, was doubled to-day. Guards who had been withdrawn from the State Capitol, the city and county buildings were replaced to-day.

The "K.O.D." letter was considered the most earnest of any of the thousands received during the disturbance which preceded the execution of Joseph Hillstrom on November 19, 1915. the first "K.O.D." letter follows:—

"In accordance with my orders from the headquarters of the K.O.D., I am communicating to you, Governor Spry of Utah, on penalty of his life, must commute the sentence of one Joseph Hillstrom from death to life imprisonment.'

The letter was signed No. 7 'K.O.D'

The jack of spades was enclosed in a plain envelope mailed in Salt Lake City. On the back of it was written in large letters "K.O.D."

The envelope containing the jack of spades was opened by John L. Kelley, secretary to the governor. The Governor was immediately notified by a message to Washington. Every effort has been made to keep the matter secret, fearing that other outbreaks aroused by the Hillstrom case also would make an attempt on the Governor's life while he is in the East.

A WELL KNOWN TEST OF YARN

If you want to know when you are getting good wool try this.

There are many ways of making yarns, in these times of scarcity of wool, you will frequently find that the knitting yarns will not stand this simple test of strength.

Break off a little more than a yard of the yarn you wish to test, make a loop at one end, see that the yarn measures exactly a yard from the end of the loop to the end of the yarn.

Now tie the loop to the spindle or bundle of yarn. The spindle of yarn weighs, or should weigh just six pounds, if you haven't a bundle of yarn handy, anything that weighs six pounds will do just as well.

Take the end of the yarn in your hand and begin to lift very gently. If you have done all this properly, you will find that the yarn will easily lift the six lbs. without breaking.

But if the yarn is made from shoddy which is chiefly torn rags, it will break when it feels the strain.

It takes quite a good part of a day to knit a pair of socks by hand and it is a pity to use up so much time in making an article that will scarcely wear the week out.

Use real wool even if you have to pay a little more for it. The real wool will certainly wear many times longer than will the shoddy sock.

Try this simple test the next time you get some wool to knit.

"No Thank You" To Decrease Drinking

We recently printed elsewhere a very interesting letter from the 'No Thank You" League, of Sacramento, Cal.

The chairman of this league is Alden Anderson, a banker and man of affairs, who is highly esteemed in his State. The other members of the executive committee are men of excellent repute in private and business life.

The members of the "No Thank You" League simply pledge themselves "not to take an intoxicating drink in a saloon at another's invitation or expense." Then each member wears a "No Thank you' button, and that is all there is to it. No dues, no expense, no lodge meetings.

We think the idea is excellently good. We believe that a general cessation of the treating habit would soon put an end to saloon drinking and would greatly decrease the habit of drinking strong alcoholic liquors.

The American has ideas and plans of its own, but it is not narrow enough to decry other plans and means of promoting temperance. It welcomes all suggestions and all means of decreasing the evil of excessive drinking.

We think every community should have a "No Thank You" League. Why not start one in your community? Write to the "No Thank You" League at Sacramento, California, and get information about the way they started and what they have accomplished.

BEHEADED HIS GUESTS.

But Then, They Were Plotters Against Life of Their Guest.

LONDON, March 24.—A Reuter despatch from Urumptei, China, says:

"Army officers in the Province of Sin Kiang plotted to kill the Governor, but, the Governor learning of the conspiracy, invited ten of the plotters to dinner and had them beheaded as they sat at the table."

What is the 7th Point?

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Gulf of Mexico to Hudson Bay, millions of people have been asking "What is the 7th Point in Sterling Gum?" In practically every town, city and village in the United States and Canada, the published six points of superiority have brought Sterling Gum fast-growing popularity.

But the seventh point still remains a riddle.

Point ⑦ What?

Now, we are offering liberal prizes to those who send us the best suggestions for the Sterling Gum Point 7.

Before you make your suggestion for the 7th Point, read the following:

The Following Story Unfolds the Secret of the Famous Point 7

To most people chewing gum is a mystery. They may know that different chewing gums are made from different ingredients. But that is about all. Here are facts which we believe you will be glad to know about Sterling Gum:

Your Sterling Gum is made from the following materials:

The basis is the pure sap of the tropical Sapota Tree—a natural gum.

This natural Sapota Tree sap is boiled, sweetened and flavored. The sweetening is simply pure cane sugar and pure corn syrup.

The flavoring is of two kinds—Peppermint (in red wrappers), Cinnamon (in blue wrappers).

There are some twenty varieties of the mint plant. The Sterling Peppermint is a product of the choicest, smoothest-flavored of these many mint varieties.

The spicy Cinnamon flavor is extracted from the Cassia bush which grows in the tropics.

The sap of the Sapota Tree, the cane sugar, the corn syrup, the Peppermint and Cinnamon flavors all come from the sap of some plant or tree. Nature herself supplies these delicious materials from which your Sterling Gum is made.

Requirements for Winning Phrase

When you read the above facts on the materials that Sterling Gum is made of, you will know all that it is necessary for you to know in entering this contest.

The first prize will go to the one whose suggestion, based on the above story, most impressively presents the natural purity of Sterling Gum—in the opinion of the judges.

Remember that your suggestion must be in six words or less.

The next best suggestion will win the second prize—and so on down.

It is understood that the Sterling Gum Company will have the right to use the 7 Point suggestions sent in by the prize winners.

The contest is easy to enter. Just think out your way of expressing the 7th Point. Then write it out in six words or less and send it in as directed in the conditions printed below. Even if you don't win the first prize of $1,000, you stand a chance to win one of the 7,777 smaller prizes.

Sterling PEPPERMINT GUM

PEPPERMINT IN RED WRAPPER CINNAMON IN BLUE WRAPPER

First Prize $1,000
Second Prize $500

Third Prize	$250.00	700 Prizes—each, Box of 20 five-cent packages of Sterling Gum.
7 Prizes—each	$25.00	7000 Prizes—each, Box of 10 five-cent packages of Sterling Gum.
70 Prizes—each	$2.50

Conditions of the Contest

Sterling Gum Company employees cannot enter this contest.

If two answers are entitled to the same prize, the full amount of the prize will be paid to each.

All answers must come in on a postal card. On the back of the postal card write nothing but your 7 Point suggestion (six words or less) and your name and address. The postal may be mailed in an envelope if you choose.

Mail answers to

Sterling Prize Judges
Room 318, 46½ Lexington Ave.
New York City

You may send in as many suggestions for Point 7 as you choose. But each suggestion must be written on a postal card as directed above.

Contest Closes

All answers must be received in New York by midnight of May 15, 1916.

Answers will not be examined by the judges until after that date. The judges, therefore, cannot mail acknowledgments of the suggestions received.

Judges

The prizes will be awarded by the following committee of five well-known men:

John A. Sleicher, Editor of Leslie's Weekly.

Edgar Sisson, Editor-in-chief the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Jno. M. Siddall, Editor of The American Magazine.

Frederick L. Collins, Editor of McClure's Magazine.

Robert H. Davis, Editor of Munsey's Magazine.

Announcement of Awards

The winners of the first 80 prizes will be announced in the July first issue of the Saturday Evening Post. Please do not write to the judges. They cannot correspond with individual contestants. Just make a note now of the date on which the prize winners will be announced in the Saturday Evening Post.

Now put on your thinking cap. Get your family to help you. Send in as many suggestions as you want to. All will be considered in awarding these many prizes. Do not write the Sterling Gum Company regarding the contest or its conditions as all suggestions will be judged by the Prize Committee named above.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

DR. CAROLINE BROWN ADDRESSES THE LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

"The Relation of the Home to the School," the Subject of Her Interesting Talk to a Large Audience of Representative Women

Dr. Caroline Brown, of Toronto, delighted a large number of Peterborough mothers yesterday afternoon at the Y.W.C.A., with her talk on "The Relation of the Home to the School." The meeting, which was under the auspices of the Mothers' Clubs' Department of the Local Council of Women, was the second in a series of special educational functions which are being held every two months throughout the year. Mrs. (Dr.) Neal, the President, occupied the chair. After the general routine of business Mrs. Parsons favoured the audience with an instrumental, and Mrs. (Dr.) Middleton rendered a vocal solo with fine effect. Mrs. Meserve read a paper which was a retrospect of the work accomplished by the Mothers' Clubs of the city, while Mrs. Christie gave a prospective view of that which they hoped to do in the future.

While introducing Dr. Brown Mrs. Neal referred to the unique position she held in Toronto, being the only lady on the School Board, and her long experience in all matters pertaining to the schools and their work.

Dr. Brown, who has a pleasing delivery, congratulated the Council of Women in being so far ahead of other places in matters connected with Mothers' Clubs.

In ward five in Toronto, which she represents on the School Board, they organized their first club one year ago. At first they had difficulty in finding a suitable name. "Mothers' Club" was not loud enough, since it did not include teachers or fathers. "Home and School Club" was the designation finally chosen, it being more comprehensive in its scope.

The school, it must be remembered, is simply an extension of the home. A mother cares for her infant; feeds and clothes and finds it comforts; sends it to school away from home, six hours of every day, five days of every week, forty weeks of every year during several years of its life. Why, then, should not that mother have an interest in the school life of her child?

Objects of School Club.

The objects of the Home and School Club are:

Social Spirit.

First, to develop the social spirit of the neighbourhood.

We have such organizations as Daughters of the Empire, the Local Councils of Women, the W.C.T.U., and Women's Suffrage Associations, but, after all, there are numbers of women in every community who are not interested in, or connected in any way, with these, from the nature of their lives and home surroundings. These are the women who must be reached.

Men say that women's place is in the home. Quite true; and it is woman's duty to not only care for her children while in the home but interest herself in their surroundings when away from home influence.

Conditions to-day are different to what they were twenty years ago. Then two, three, or four grown-up daughters were found in many a home, now it as a rare thing to find one. All are gone to work. The duties of the mother are much more exacting, for she must get up early to prepare the meal for those who have to labour; there are the younger ones to be sent to school. Dinners have to be got—and on time—and the evening work is no less onerous. This constitutes her weary routine from early morning till late at night, from Monday to Saturday, week in and week out.

Co-operation.

Second, to develop co-operation between parenst and teachers. This invariably makes the pupil more responsive and amenable to discipline. What a pleasant thing it is for the teacher to have the appreciation of the parent!

Mental and Aesthetic Development.

Third, to create and foster a sentiment for the pursuit of education for ourselves and our children.

Fourth, to beautify the school surroundings.

In Toronto, Dr. Brown has always found the School Board responsive, sympathetic and even eager for ideas to perfect and improve the system.

One great work of the Club is to look after the health of the children.

Manual Work.

Fifth, to encourage the use of hands and eyes at all stages of childhood, such as modelling in clay and designing. The children take a great interest in work of this sort.

Educational Experiments.

Sixth, to foster and encourage educational experiments, since our system is not yet perfect.

In Toronto they are having meetings for mothers, at which will be discussed, such subjects as: "Baby and the One Next, from birth to six years"; "Your Extraordinary Child, from six to twelve"; "Young Canada, from twelce to maturity," and "What Shall We Do With Them When Grown Up."

Home and School, Partners.

The Home and School are partners and together they should do the world's most vital work: the improvement and conservation of the human race along lines physical, mental and moral.

The home is the prime member of the firm of Home and School, but of late years we have been shirking our duties in this respect, and the home has become less and less a school, and the school more and more a home, for the children; it is sad but true, that to children of well-to-do parents the teacher counts for more than parent.

Dr. Brown concluded her splendid address by drawing attention to the wonderful heritage into which children are born these days as compared with that of a generation ago.

The education of a child should begin before birth. A mother can influence the mental condition and temperament of her child before it is born.

By citing the wonderful progress of children in the Belleville Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, Dr. Brown was able to prove that a child who starts school with a good vocabulary —not baby talk — is immeasurably ahead of the one whose command of language is limited and inferior.

A Whole-Grain Food.

Wherever experts discuss food values whole grains are invariably considered amongst the most important, many placing them first amongst the list of foods. Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal is a scientifically balanced whole-grain food. It nourishes better than most and prevents indigestion and constipation. Try Roman Meal for porridge, perfect pancakes, gems, muffins, nut loaf, Boston brown bread and bread. All are delicious, nourishing, and can be eaten hot without fear of distress. Roman Meal is sold by most grocers.

Mr. S. Hatherly Will Pass His Eightieth "Milestone" To-morrow

Mr. Samuel Hatherly of 136 James Street, East City, will be eighty years old to-morrow, having been born on the 25th day of March, 1836, at Holsworthy, Devonshire England.

Mr. Hatherly came to Canada in 1873, at the earnest solicitation of a fellow-man, who had preceded him. By a peculiar coincidence this man was employed by a farmer named Perkins, whose wife turned out to be an elder sister of Mr. Hatherly's with whom she had not corresponded for some years. When this discovery was made, Mrs. Perkins became interested at once and wrote to her brother, explaining how well they had succeeded. This was enough for Mr. Hatherly, and he was not long in finding his way to Peterborough.

For four summers he worked in Perkins's brickyard, near the Dawson Kennedy farm, but soon turned his attention to farming, purchasig the Beavis farm in Otonabee.

For the last thirteen years Mr Hatherly has lived at 136 James Street, East City, four of which were spent in working on the Trent Valley Canal, and the balance at home, attending his garden.

In 1856 Mr. Hatherly married Miss Elizabeth Hern, who was spared to him until October, three years ago, passing away in her eightieth year.

Mr. Hatherly is enjoying good health, considering his advanced age.

The Examiner joins his many friends in wishing him the usual felicitations on his birthday.

JOFFRE WEEDS OUT THE UNFIT

Britain Should Emulate Him, Says Lord Northcliffe—French Commander in Fine Physical Trim

LONDON, March 24.—In the Mail this morning Lord Northcliffe, in an article on General Joffre, whom he visited recently, says:

"Joffre has made many private enemies and thousands of public friends by the remorseless way in which he got rid of inefficient generals, many of them personals acquaintances, at the outset of the war. He has continued that policy with the result that to-day the officers of the French army are probably the youngest in the field. There are many lookers-on at the present war among ourselves and our allies, who wish that this process could be extended to our lines.

"I can truly say that General Joffre in the heat of the battle of Verdun looks strong, well and cheerful. On one of my previous visits I thought he was showing signs of war fatigue. To-day, in the midst of the colossal series of battles that has lasted for weeks the head of the wonderful French war machine has the healthy look of a country squire in those good old days two years ago when men rode to hounds a couple of days a week."

SUBMARINE DRIVEN OFF BY "FAKE" CANNON

NEW YORK, March 17.—A submarine which had been chasing the steamship Director, of the Harrison line, for two hours off the Irish coast scurried away when the captaing of the Director rigged up three imitation guns and pointed them at the submersible craft, according to a report brought here yesterday by Captain C. A. Rivers of the National Guard of New Mexico, who arrived on board the Cameronia of the Anchor line, Captain Rivers at one time was a Texan ranger. On January 14 he went aboard from Pensacola on board the Director.

"On January 25 we were off the coast of Ireland," he said "when we caught sight of the periscope of a submarine. Presently the submarine came to the surface and directed her course toward us. The captain of the Director at first thought we could outrun the U-boat, but after an hour's chase it began to look as if we would be overtaken.

"Then the captain decided on a ruse. He had some spars cut into proper lengths and with the aid of canvas and paint rigged up as fine a trio of modern looking cannon as you'd wish to see anywhere. The sight of the cannon must have struck terror to the hearts of the submarine crowd. At any rate, the craft dived, and that was the last we saw of it."

Another passenger on board the Cameronia was Dr. A. H. Burling of San Francisco, who is going to more trouble to get into a fight than most persons would take to get out of it.

"I have lived long in France," he said, "and became a soldier when the war began. After fighting for a year I obtained an honorable discharge and came to the United States to visit friends. The desire to do some more fighting for France took possession of men and I went abroad again on board the steamship Orduna, of the Cunard line. I had not taken the precaution to get a passport, as I believed my discharge from the French army would be sufficient document. But it didn't. I was permitted to re-enter France."

Dr. Burling said he had heard of a Canadian contingent, the Ninety-seventh Canadian Battalion, in which there are 2,000 Americans. He said he intended to go to Canada and join that battalion.

Another American aboard the Cameronia who says he will seek enlistment in the Canadian battalion, was William T .Cherry. Last summer he enlisted in Canada and fought in four battles. At Ypres he was wounded by a shrapnel and when the authorities discovered that he was only seventeen they sent him home.

"But I'm going back, if they'll take me in the Ninety-seventh or any other Canadian contingent," he said.

The Italian steamship Palermo arrived yesterday from Genoa with two 76 millimster Armstrong quick firers mounted upon a reinforced platform on her poop deck, and 200 rounds of ammunition for them stored aboard.

BABY FOUND IN IRON FEED KETTLE

Gruesome Find on a Farm Near Fraserville—Inquest Will be Held

MILLBROOK, March 24.—The finding of a newly born baby at Mr. Atcheson's in Cavan, near Fraserville on Thursday last, created considerable concern in the community. Mr. Atcheson, who lives on Mr. W. J. Fisher's Farm lost his wife last Summer, and in reply to an advertisement secured a housekeeper who is supposed to be the mother of the child, the father being a soldier attached at Oshawa, where the housekeeper came from.

The body is in Mr. W. J. S. Gillett's Undertaking Rooms, and Dr. Clarke of Pontypool, coroner, and Dr. Russell of Bethesbore are holding a post mortem to ascertain if the child was born alive. The kettle was at some distance from the house, and the inside to it were a woman's. The supposed mother is still at Mr. Atcheson's and not yet in condition to attend the inquest.

This Morning's Police Court

Two Men Were Fined For Creating a Disturbance in a George Street Restaurant—One Week For William Lustic

According to P. C. McArthur, who late last evening, received a hurry call to the Dominion Cafe, George Street, Tom Game, a waiter, was in a fair way to receive a trimming at the hands of a couple of Italians. This morning the pungent odor of restaurant pickles permeated the police court. They represented souvenirs of the fracas that was speedily squelched by the timely arrival of the police.

Tom Game swore that the two men were in the act of pouring the vinegar into the ketchup bottle when he interfered. He asked the men to pay for the damage and a fight ensued.

P. C. McArthur arrived on the scene and the two men were removed to the Police Station. The prisoners were searched and a table knife, fork a bottle of pickles and a vinegar bottle removed from their pockets. These were identified by Tom Game as the property of the Dominion Cafe.

This morning the two men faced a charge of theft as well as disorderly conduct. One of them went into the witness box and swore that he was under the influence of liquor and as a result, was irresponsible.

They were each fined two dollars and costs, amounting to five dollars and seventy-five cents in each case with the option of fifteen days in gaol.

A Week in Gaol.

Lustic is accused of neglecting to his county gaol for a week, where, in the words of Magistrate Dumble "he will have an opportunity of getting washed."

Lustice is accused of neglecting to properly care for his wife and five children. Accused said he hadn't a chance to wash his hands since yesterday at noon, whereupon Chief Thompson reminded him that there was lots of water and a wash basin in the cells.

"Will you take a fine for him?" shouted Lustic's mother-in-law, as he was led out of the dock.

The house in which the family existed has been condemned by the Medical Officer of Health.

Adanac Quartette

St. Paul's Church 28th March

Several of the quartettes to be sung by the four splendid vocalists who comprise the "Adanac" combination are of the patriotic nature, namely Pierson's "Ye Mariner's of England", and a splendid stirring arrangement of "Rule Britannia". Tosti's well-known song "Good-bye" will also be a quartette number, as will "The Bells of Ghandon". Mr. Arthur Blight's fine baritone voice will be heard in Craxton's melodious composition "Mavis" as well, as with Mr. Hollinshead in that great descriptive duet of Gobisi's "The Fisherman".

Mr. Rughven Macdonald in addition to his quartette and solo work will give a reading with musical accompaniment. Mr. Hollinshead is singing Buzzi Peccia's lovely Spanish serenade "Lolita" and Mr. George Dixon that fine composition of Hammond's "The Pipes of Gordon's Men". Miss Dorothy Allan, the soloist of St. Paul's Choir will sing Wilfrid Sanderson's brilliant song "Spring's Awakening." St. Paul's choir will also contribute two fine numbers to the programme, one that exquisitely beautiful anthem of Henrich's "Grant us Thy Peace," in which there are so many opportunities for dainty pianissimo singing, the solo parts in this anthem will be sung by Miss Allan, Mr. Chandler and Mr. Milton. The choir will also sing, unaccompanied, Gounod's massive part song, "By Babylon's Wave," in which the intensely dramatic outbursts seem to strike us with greater power and warning these days, in view of the gradual crumbling up of the Turkish Empire and of the terrible atrocities committed by them on the Armenians, especially the children.

"Thy babes were taken, taken and dashed their heads against the stones. Wo'e unto thee Babylon the mighty for the day of thy fall is nigh.

The words bear a more realistic meaning if we realize that they are equally applicable to the Turkish Empire of to-day as to the ancient Babylonish kingdom.

The whole recital will be of an exceedingly high character and will afford an evening of rare enjoyment and refreshing to all who attend. Mr. John Allan will be the accompanist.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N. S., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat troubles and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

RUSSIAN LOSSES SINCE WAR BEGAN

Returned Traveller Puts Them at 2,542,639—Many Jews Included

NEW YORK, March 24.—The losses of the Russians since the beginning of the war total 2,542,639, according to Boris Schumacher, who arrived from Petrograd to-day on the Scandinavian-American liner United States. They are classified as follows:

Killed in battle, 378,913; died from wounds, 192,300; died in hospitals, 274,175; total losses from death 854,388; missing, 954,812; wounded, 733,439.

There are 117,953 Jews listed in the casualty column. The Russians have also lost 74,255 officers.

Schumacher, who is a writer for Jewish publications, went abroad with the Ford peace party and spent some time in Russia.

To Solve the Hotel Problem

Ontario Government is Giving Consideration to Legislation Along This Line

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, March 24.—The Provincial government is understood to be giving consideration to legislation which will help to solve the problem of future hotel accommodation in towns and villages of the province where the possibility exists that some hotels now operating under license may close with the enforcement of prohibition.

The legislation it is stated will be in the direction of widening powers of municipalities so as to give them authority to invest municipal funds in a hotel proposition or to grant exemption from taxation or other special privileges to an individual or company of individuals operating a hotel within a municipality. With such encouragement given by municipalities to private enterprises it is believed the hotels can be operated profitably without the revenue of the bar and provide accommodation which will be satisfactory to local and transient trade.

The city of Dresden has bought 12,000 hogs in Serbia, and arrangements have been made by other German cities to obtain a similar number. It is believed this will relieve to some extent the famine in lard.

FANNY CROSBY "LEST WE FORGET"

This is the anniversary of Fanny Crosby's birthday. "She taught the world to sing His glory is the way Will Carlton, the poet, summarized her life, and it is most appropriate.

The number of hymns she composed is most marvellous. Some say 6,000, others put it as high as 8,000. Happy in a Saviour's love, she tried to pass on her joy to others through her hymns.

There is no minor key in "Saved by Grace," "Blessed Assurance", "Safe in the Arms of Jesus". What a comfort the last hymn has been to broken hearts mourning for loved ones gone on before.

To comfort the burden bearers it is said was the first inspiration to write. Not that she carried any burdens herself, declaring that "after four score years and ten I know wretchedness only by hearsay." On her ninety-first birthday she said: "Friends, the angel of the hour is holding to my lips a chalice so full of blessings that I am lost in its infinity. The Lord has done great things for me, and I can trust Him for all that is to come.

Fanny Crosby has reached the "Golden Shore," having passed to her reward on Feb. 12th, 1915, in Bridgeport, Conn., in her ninety-fifth year.

No doubt the horror of the great world war had quite a bit to do with her "going home" and it seems an irony of fate to think that the scene of so many peaceful years of her evening of life" should be now the location of one of the world's greatest munition factories, whose output is the destruction of souls, whereas her output was the saving of souls.

Evangelist G. M. Sharpe of Toronto will speak to men at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 4.15 p. m. Every man is invited.

Charlotte St. Canal And the Way Out

'Tis the Little Things in Life That Count

Thanks to the Street Railway track the citizens who use Charlotte street as a thoroughfare are able to "walk out" instead of having to wade out.

Not being of the finny tribe and hence unable to swim, many would have to remain at home amid the quiet domicile so great is the depth of water and slush on this much-used highway, were it not for this brick pavement leading to "nowhere in particular."

No wonder it is the "blue" line, for Charlotte street people would be "blue" indeed were it not for the "match box" that goes a "blue streak."

Cheer up, fellow citizens, if the City Council, in their stroke of economy fail to dig you out, Old "Sol" will soon shine forth in all all his glory and melt you a way out.

Every member of the boys' Bible study groups are requested to attend Bible study Saturday morning as a review of the lessons will be taken up in preparation for the Bible study examinations which will be held April 3rd and 4th.

Sunday afternoon at 4.15 Evangelist Sharp who is conducting a series of meetings in our city, will be the speaker at the men's meeting. Those who had the privilege of hearing Evangelist Sharp last summer will remember that he was especially interested in the work for men and boys. Sunday afternoon the meeting will be open to every man and older boy in the city. Good music and hearty singing preceding the meeting.

Next Friday night will be the night of nights for the members of the boys' department. The annual boys' banquet will take place at 6.30 p.m. The Ladies' Auxiliary and the members of the staff are doing every thing possible to make this the most enjoyable banquet ever held for the boys. Captain Lamb of the 201st C.E.F., Toronto, will be the speaker for the evening. His subject will be "The Paths to Greatness." The parents of the boys will be pleased to know that such a good speaker has been secured for the banquet.

Tickets are now out for the big circus which will be held in the Y.M.C.A. Thursday and Friday, April 6th and 7th. The members of the "gym" class are working hard to make the circus a big success.

This Ad. is Directed to the Woman Who Wants a Smart, Stylish Spring Hat at a Moderate Price

Since every woman is interested in buying a new hat at a price she feels has secured for her the utmost in value and style, we feel sure there will be many pleasant surprises for you in our Millinery Section. Take, for instance—

This Model at $5.00

It is one of the new no-brim, semi-high crown models, made of the new straws in an effective shade of dark green, blue and other colors, trimmed with flowers and ribbon. You will like the style and trimming best after you have tried the hat on, for then you can realize that the milliner's art is in knowing just where to place a flower here and an ornament there, so as to secure the best effect.

Another Striking Model at $8.50

This model has a wider brim, the crown not so high, made of the new fancy rough braids. Can be had in black and also in blue. Rather hard to describe the trimmings and how they have been applied. The brim has been bent into a pleasing, easy angle and the trimmings capped off with an oddly shaped ribbon bow!

Of course, you will find other models—and prices range from $3.50 to $16.50.

To-morrow's $14 Suit

in a style that is unusually attractive, smart to a very marked degree.

It is made of a serge that is pure wool, in mannish style, with a little three-button loosely tailored coat, and skirt that flares quite widely. Both coat and skirt have button trimming and can be got in brown, navy or black. Coat is satin lined.

Our 95c Special Blouse

New styles abound. Any of the new blouses will so greatly improve the looks of your new suit that you will wish to wear it longer than you had planned.

We have a specially new blouse of fine voile at 95c, with a vestee appearance and fine embroidery over-effect that will please you. It is a new arrival that is bound to be a favourite. To-morrow will be the last day for this 95c leader.

Music & Drama

Mr. Kellerd is the happy possessor of a resonant, rich voice, and his delivery of the familiar passages from the drama was always artistic and finely done. His personality was a powerful one, and throughout the play that power was manifested in a consistent and thoroughly understandable interpretation. Mr. Kellerd is an actor of many and varied gifts, which were seen to advantage in the role of the melancholy Dane, and his interpretation was a faithful character portrait. Under his acting Hamlet was seen as a dominant personality; one to be respected, but hardly loved; one to command obedience, but not loyalty. He was cunning, hard, pessimistic, with only very rare glimpses of a finer nature, a nature that was essentially Hamlet, at his noblest. Mr. Kellerd has made his Hamlet a figure of power rather than one of grace; astute rather than studious; crafty rather than tender, and yet he has made him a figure not soon to be forgotten by his very frailty, his humanity, and his appeal to the spirit of today.

Mr. Kellerd has surrounded himself with a company of capable artists, most of them young and buoyant. The principal roles were ably taken and the lines well delivered, though a little more distinctness in enunciation would add to their enjoyment. Those who played in these roles were Philip Quinn as the King of Denmark, Cyril Courtney, as Horatio, Elwyn Eaton as Polonius, Brandon Peters as Laertes, Miss Georgianna Wilson as the queen, and Miss Helen Barry as Ophelia.

In the afternoon Mr. Kellerd and his company presented The Merchant of Venice, Mr. Kellerd himself taking the role of Shylock. The performance was excellent and the impersonation of Shylock an impressive one. Mr. Kellerd has never before appeared in Hamilton in Shakesperean drama, but comes again next Thursday when Hamlet and Macbeth will be given matinee and night. The mountings of the plays were adequate and in keeping with the satisfying performance which Mr. Kellerd gives throughout; and when he appears next week he should have capacity houses, as he stands now as the sole exponent of sincere and artistic Shakesperean acting.

Dip the tops of the fruit jars in paraffine wax. It will make them absolutely airtight.

Peter McArthur No Longer Scotch Just Canadian

"The Red Cow" Lecture Was Filled With Many Worth While Thoughts and Diffused With Refreshing Humour

The Canada that prides herself in the world position she occupies today is prone to forget the toil and sacrifice of her builders in the complacent acceptance of the tributes to her present greatness. Recently engrossed in our rapid expansion and development, now feverishly mobilizing with amazing success our latent strength and resources for the defence of our inherited liberties, we have scarce a thought for those generations of pioneers whose struggles were a lifetime of which the results are manifested to-day in this Dominion's power and verility. Very few Canadians realize how strong we are, commented Mr. Peter McArthur in his address in Victoria Hall last night. None of us realized our potential strength. An American said to a Canadian farmer at the St. Louis fair, "You are ruled by a King," to which the epigrammatic reply was made, "We've forgotten that we're ruled by anybody." Then, as an apostrophe, Mr. McArthur exclaimed, "One week of German rule and every able-bodied man in Canada would be in khaki."

It was not, however, a recruiting speech that Mr. McArthur essayed. For years he has been an author-farmer, or probably a farmer-author. Besides, he is something of a philosopher. To one unacquainted with his writings, he betrayed himself when he said that he left the farm when barbed-wire was introduced. The prospect of the disappearance of snake fences with the inviting top rail for rest and contemplation at the end of the furrow drove the young McArthur to the city with his philosophic tendencies already well matured. But even sixteen years in New York could not dull his love for the land, and since his return to it he has meditated long upon the labour of his grandfather who cleared a parcel of virgin land, thereby doing his bit with Briton's Empire builders. Every acre of this Dominion had to be cleared in this way. Canada in fact was built as a house is built, brick by brick. Each settler's clearing, the wage of most arduous labour, added a new peach to the Empire. And it is to these humble toilers that Peter McArthur does honour, and bids us turn even our harried thoughts back to them, not only for their need but also for our comfort and inspiration. And as the realization of our inheritance and the price paid for it grows, Mr. McArthur feels that our Canadianism should commensurately develop as his has. Himself, he was born a "hyphen." He had a little bilingual problem all his own, for he could speak the Gaelic of the Scotch before he knew English. He grew up regarding himself a Scotchman, not a Canadian, and it was not until he visited Scotland that he found himself more home-sick than he had ever been. His senses longed for Canada and from that time dated his Canadian spirit. Mr. McArthur decries nationalism in this Dominion, and he presents a strong case for the dehyphenizing of English-Canadians, Irish-Canadians, Scotch and French-Canadians. The true Canadian loves this country as a mother loves her child, because of the sacrifices she has made for it. Young Canadians doing battle alongside the soldiers from other parts of the Empire should fight for the honour of that race that took this country and pushed back the virgin forests, not for themselves, but for those who were to follow them.

Mr. McArthur's chat was brightened at frequent intervals by the glow of his genial, misty humour. It was rather regrettable that the larger crowd was not present to be reminded of some of the ideals of our grand-sires.

transferred to the 139th Overseas Battalion, C.E.F., Hamilton.

Appointments—

Lieut. A. E. Gardiner, 57th Bgt., is taken on the strength of the 93rd Overseas Battalion, as Signalling Officer, in place of Lieut. H. C. Gillham, who will take command of a platoon. This will take effect from March 23rd, 1916.

Promotions—

No. 125201, Pte E. J. Donohue is taken on the strength of the Headquarter Staff and promoted to be Sergeant Master Tailor from the 15th inst.

J. E. R. MUNRO, Capt.
Adjutant 93rd Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.

Notice—

The Commanding Officer has been pleased to allow seat checks for the hockey match vs, 146th Battalion; also seat checks for the Opera House Shakespearian play, held this evening in lieu of late passes.

The territory of the 93rd Battalion has once more been invaded. This time the 80th Battalion has representatives here looking for recruits to complete the strength of the battalion. Pioneer Sergt. Harry Castle and his son, Pioneer Everett Castle, two Peterborough members of the 80th, are here on a recruiting mission. The last raid made into Peterborough some weeks ago by the 80th, netted a score of recruits. Since recruiting for the 93rd began there have been enough recruits signed on in Peterborough to more than complete the Peterborough battalion, but between 250 and 400 men have gone to the Artillery or the 59th, 80th or other battalions, giving the 93rd no such chance as the 109th in Lindsay, where there has been no recruiting whatever from any other unit than the 109th. This fact is sometimes overlooked in discussing recruiting. Since the 93rd opened operations 230 Peterborough men have gone to the Artillery, so that the local regiment lost a complete company in this way.

The Lindsay Post says: A pretty stiff and well deserved sentence was meted out this morning to two men who shamefully discarded the khaki uniform, donned civilian clothes, and disregarding their oath to their king, attempted to desert from the 109th Batt. With two other soldiers they were in the act of boarding a G.T.R. train, but owing to the vigilance of the military police, they were bagged, although two of the quartette successfully made their get away.

The two deserters came before Police Magistrate Jackson this morning and were given six months in Ontario Reformatory. One claimed to be a native of England and the other gave his place of residence as Berlin, Ont. They told the court that they had hidden the civilian clothes in town before they signed up.

According to information given by the police, the prisoners have police court records in other centres. This case was handled by the civil authorities under an Order-in-Council recently passed giving them the power to adjudicate on offences of this and a similar nature.

Pte. Chas. A. Doherty of Guelph, is visiting with his sister, Mrs. R. D. Colquette, Bethune street, previous to departure with his battalion for service overseas.

In connection with the recruiting campaign on behalf of the 93rd, a street meeting will be held at George and Charlotte streets to-morrow evening. A number of war slides will be shown and the band of the 93rd will give a programme.

At the Sunday evening recruiting meeting in the armouries, the special speaker will be Capt. Williams of the 109th Battalion. Capt. Williams, who was for years with the British navy, is a forcible and interesting speaker and should attract a large number of people.

Len Johnston, a well-known local young man, left to-day for Toronto to join the Mechanical Transport Section, C.E.F. He has two brothers in the 93rd Battalion.

Bandsman Leadham, of the 93rd, has been transferred to the 130th Battalion Band, Hamilton. He was a member of the Hamilton Salvation Army Band before coming to Peterborough.

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., March 24.—A system of vocational training for disabled men from the front is in process of being perfected by the Dominion Hospitals' Commission here. Vocational officers covering the whole country are being appointed.

F. H. Scammell, Secretary of the Hospitals' Commission, was examined by the new Parliamentary Pensions Committee, under the chairmanship of Hon. J. D. Hazen, this morning.

Mr. Scammell state dthat it would be necessary to provide for the maintenance of these men or their families while they are receiving the new training. The scale of pay, the minimum of which would be the amount of a man's pension, was suggested, and would be placed before the Government for consideration.

COBOURG, March 24.—Capt. Dr. T. B. Edmison, who formerly practised at Hastings, is Medical Officer at the Granville Canadian Special Hospital at Ramsgate, which was damaged my Sunday's German air raid. Dr. Edmison is a son of the late Rev. T. J. Edmison, a well-known minister of the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference, and Mrs. Edmison, Toronto. Miss Ethel Ridley, formerly of Belleville, is matron of the hospital, which is designed to give special treatment to Canadians suffering from shock and nervous troubles.

KINGSTON SOLDIERS HERE TO-NIGHT FOR GAME WITH THE 93rd

The 146th Battalion team of Kingston, which Capt. Jas. T. Sutherland, president of the O.H.A. is bringing to Peterborough to-night in an endeavour to snatch the laurels away from the 93rd Battalion, will include four Kingston Frontenac seniors, "Bouncer" Brouse, Cook, Ferguson and Reid. The presence of such men on the line-up shows the calibre of the 146th team, and the Peterborough soldiers will have to step to town all the way to beat the fast Easterners. It should prove about the season's best game and a big crowd will be on hand to see the soldier team in action. If the 93rd can clean up the 146th they can rightly claim the military honours, as efforts to arrange a game with the 76th of Barrie, who have a good team this winter, has been in vain. To-night's game will start sharp on time. The Kingston team will arrive on the 5.30 train.

Big Jess Has the Bulk But Moran Has Speed and Punch; Red Frank a Quick Thinker

NEW YORK, March 23.—Jess Willard's superiority over Frank Moran seems to be in size and weight only, in the opinion of the non-partisan fans who have watched both men in their workouts for Saturday night's battle.

Moran is the faster of the two and he's a better boxer. The challenger has had more ring experience than the champion and he has been fighting quite regularly during the past five or six months. Moran is a quick thinker and a great ring general. He has a fighting heart and a right-handed wallop that carries as much power as Willard's.

Can the advantage for Moran offset the huge physical bulge that Willard will have on him—50 pounds in weight, six inches in height and nearly six inches in reach?

It may sound surprising for us to say that Moran can hit harder than Willard. But it is true. The "bacon producing" punch of each man is a right. But their methods of delivering it are different. When Willard hits he doesn't throw his whole weight into the wallop. Moran does. The champion puts the power of his arm, shoulder and chest into his drive—but Moran puts his whole 200 pounds into the punch.

Willard's method probably is the safer of the two. Should he miss with his deadly punch he wouldn't be off balance completely. Moran would be. But if you had a choice of stopping one or the other of those punches, which would you chose as the lesser evil?

Neither man is a flashy boxer. Moran's footwork is far better than that of Willard's, even allowing for the extra weight that Willard must carry.

None will dispute that Moran is a very intelligent individual. He has a crafty brain. He is always cool and ever waiting for an opportunity. Willard, on the other hand, thinks slowly and sometimes misses chances to smash through an opening.

The candid Willarditea admit that Moran's brain work, his superior boxing and general shiftiness and his wider ring experience in the fighting game practically take away Willard's advantage in the way of height, weight and reach. Ring experts believe that the result of the fight hinges on the condition of the men and the power of each to assimilate punishment.

Moran right now is in wonderful shape. No fighter ever was more perfectly fitted to do battle. He can go 10 rounds—or 50 rounds. His endurance seems without limit. Willard is a still bit plus as to weight and his wind isn't just what he wants it to be, but his trainers are sure that he will be right when the gong sends him into next Saturday night's fray.

Both men have shown themselves to be gluttons for punishment. Each has been battered by aggressive foes, but neither ever has been knocked out. Can Frank Moran stand up under one—or several—of the terrible blows that Jess Willard can dispense. Will Jess Willard be able to linger upon his feet after stopping some of the crushing right handers that Frank Moran delivers, with his whole body back of each swing?

Who'll win? Well, answer those last two questions—and then you'll know.

JESS WILLARD IS SPANISH ACCORDING TO CUBANS

CHICAGO, March 23. — The following is a translation from Zigzag, a weekly magazine, published in Santiago, Cuba:

"The Spanish and Cuban dailies bring a sensational piece of news to the Latin boxing enthusiasts. According to the dailies referred to, Jos Willard, the champion boxer of the world, is a Spaniard, and his name is Jose Villar.

"The Villar family came originally from Taffall, in Navara, Spain. From data collected in this city and judging from photographs of the champion that have been published, there should remain no doubt of the authenticity of the news. This statement of the papers means a revindication of the Latin race as sportsmen and revives the disputed question of the prowess of the Anglo-Saxon."

INTERESTING GOSSIPS OF BALL PLAYERS WELL KNOWN IN PETERBORO

The Hamilton Spectator has the following interesting notes about Canadian League players.

While baseball fans are awaiting the outcome of the meeting to be held at London on Sunday to decide whether baseball is to be or not to be, there are about three-score healthy young recruits awaiting the decision with even greater interest than the fans. They are the young pastimers who are under contract to the various clubs interested, and if there is to be no baseball here there will be some tall scrambling for jobs. The winding up of the Federal league had thrown about 200 ball players on the market so that catching a place on even a minor team this season is not going to be any gilt-edged cinch. The Hamilton players are still under reserve, but unless something transpires at Sunday's meeting they will be notified to look for other places to hang their hats. Gus Zeimer, who was given charge of the team after Cristall was released last season, in in Buffalo and the other players are scattered in various parts of the United States.

The Ottawa Baseball club is already making arrangements for placing its players this season. President Frank Navin of the Detroit Americans wired Manager Shaughnessy on Saturday for a good shortstop he could place with Chattanooga, and Shag immediately tipped him off to Frankie Smykal, whom Shag thinks was the class of the Canadian league last season. If Navin sends Smykal to the Detroit farm, the Chicago boy should stick in Southern league company. He hit at a good clip last year and about his only weakness is slowness on the bases. This is somewhat remarkable, as he covers an acre of ground in the field. If Shaughnessy manages a club this year, he will take three or four of his players with him. Lou Paterson and Tom Roberts looked good enough for higher circuits than class C last year, while Dusty Bullock on his hitting alone should advance. Petie Powers is making good at Chattanooga and may stick there.

When Louie Cook took the first Canadian league club in Ottawa in 1912, he had a left handed first baseman from Chicago, whom he said was a second Hal Chase. His name was Gus Champene and he became a great favorite especially among the French-Canadian fans, as he was believed to be a Frenchman. As a matter of fact, he was a full-blooded Swede. Gus tore off a two-bagger the first time he went to bat, scoring Ottawa's first run. That made him solid with the crowd. But that was about the only wallop he cut loose and he was nine ticketed in a month's time. Gus has been playing semi-pro ball ever since and made a great record with the Jamestown North Dakota club last year. This season he is booked to play with Moline in the Three-I league.

Earl (Greasy) Neale, who played the outfield for London in 1913 and came from Cleveland to finish the season with that club, is going great guns with the Cincinnati Reds at Shreveport, L., He is hitting 'em hard and showing great speed in the field and on the bases.

Harry Brant who made short and second look like one position for Peterboro' in 1913 and was drafted that year by Chattanooga is now the property of Detroit, and is to have one more year in the minors before getting a chance under the main top. He will play with Grand Rapids in the Central league this season.

Local fans will remember Ray Clements who packed a corking fine spitter when he was on the St. Thomas twirling staff. Ray drifted down to the southwestern states last summer and hooked on with Tulsa, Oklahoma, in the Western Association. He went splendidly, so good in fact, Texas League scouts gave him the double-O and the Forth Worth club agreed to purchase him. The same club sent in a draft on him as a matter of protection. Forth Worth added a nice figure to Ray's salary and asked him to report at the end of the Western Association season. This Clements refused to do, holding out for a salary as large as some of the more experienced pitchers on the pay roll. When contracts were sent out this spring, Clements was again asked to sign but refused unless his demands were met. Not caring to be held up by a class D ball player, Fort Worth turned him back to Tulsa, and he'll draw small pay or not play at all.

Pitcher Louis Schettler, who had more smoke than any other boxman in the Canadian league, with Peterboro in 1914, will twirl for Terre Haute in the Central league this season. Louis won 24 and lost 12 for Youngstown last year. He had tremendous speed, could work three times a week and drink as much beer as any four players in the league.

Curly Blount will manage the St. Mary's club in the Inter-State league this season.

Joe "Don't Worry" Byrne, who held down third base for Peterboro when that town was in the Canadian has signed to play the red light corner for the Bridgeport, Conn., club in the Eastern Association. Joe played in the Delaware County league with Homerun Baker last season.

Canadian Ford Car Parts Reduced $147 Per Car Since War Began

It is well known that the war has increased the price of practically all raw materials.

And, although all but $16.88 worth of material that goes into the construction of the Ford car is bought right here in Canada, a high import duty adds its burden to that material that must be bought in the United States.

But in spite of increased duty and increased cost, the prices of parts that go to make up a complete Ford car have been decreased $147 since war began.

This reduction was made for two reasons. First, because under normal conditions, increased quantity production would have made these lessened prices possible. Second, under abnormal conditions brought about by the war, the executives of this company felt it their duty as loyal British subjects to absorb these taxes of war into their manufacturing costs.

This reduction in price of parts is of first importance as a reduction in the cost of service to Ford owners. Prices of Ford spare parts have always been exceptionally low as compared to prices of parts for other cars, and under war time conditions the Ford company might have withheld, with seeming justice, any reduction in the price of parts in times such as these.

But the Ford Canadian executives had enough confidence in the progress of the Dominion and of the Empire to feel that the future prosperity of the country was sufficiently assured to warrant making these reductions.

This is improving a service already unrivalled in its efficiency. Ford, the Universal Car, can as well be named the Car of Universal Service.

Thus the Ford Company has left dollars in the pockets of Ford owners which it might have acquired were it not for its policy of the best service at the lowest cost. Even the finest piece of mechanism, often through abuse or neglect, sometimes requires attention. The remarkable economy of this Ford service is known to motorists all over the world.

In every community of any size in the Dominion there is a Ford dealer who carries a complete stock of parts and whose establishment is in itself a well equipped service station. A Ford owner, no matter where he drives his car, is never far distant from a Ford service station that is ready to give prompt and efficient service in any emergency that may arise.

Moreover, Ford parts, as is the Ford car itself, are standardized and will fit in place in any Ford car to the thousandth part of an inch.

And every Ford dealer, because of this standardization of parts over a number of years, has an expert knowledge of the construction and repair of the Ford car. There is absolutely no guesswork in this Universal Service to Ford Owners.

Backing up the service afforded by over five hundred Ford dealers are the nine Ford branches located in the nine leading Canadian cities from St. John to Vancouver.

In four of these Canadian cities new branch buildings have been constructed since the war began and are themselves as large as many automobile factories. They are so completely equipped as to be able to build a Ford car complete. The buildings alone for these four new branches were erected at a cost of over a million dollars.

This immense expenditure is another indication of the attitude of absolute confidence in Canadian prosperity that has always been shown by the Canadian Ford executives and that has not been altered in the slightest degree by any war conditions.

At the same time that reductions in the price of Ford car parts were made there was also made a reduction in the price of complete car. Twice—on August 1st, 1914 and August 1st, 1915, the price of the Ford car was reduced by $60—a total reduction of $120 in the price of the car since the start of the war.

This reduction is made on an estimated production of a definite number of cars for the coming year. Forty thousand Canadian Ford cars must be built and sold by August 1st, 1916 in order to warrant this last reduction of $60 in price.

And here is another most emphatic expression of confidence in Canada. The Ford Canadian executives are basing everything on the continued and increasing prosperity of the Dominion.

And their judgment is being fully justified.

They Were the Same Old Winning Thistles

The old Thistles showed last night they had not forgotten how to win curling games, when they defeated their old-time opponents, the Granites, by 44 to 41. A big attendance saw the games, a feature being the presence of quite a number of ladies. In fact the rink continues as popular as in midseason, although everyone realizes the end is close at hand. There was a lot of good curling last night, and even those who have been out of the game gave a good account of their former abilities. These representatives of the well remembered Thistles and Granites provides one of the best events of the season.

"THE STORY OF THE ROSARY."

"Th Story of the Rosary," a romantic war melodrama, presented at the Grand Opera House, last night proved a gripping, well-acted performance that highly pleased the unfortunately small audience present. The time of the action runs from 1914 to 1916 and deals largely with the Royal Light Infantry. In this connection several dozen non-coms. of the 93rd Battalion made their first stage appearance, taking part in a charge that aroused enthusiasm. The Company was a thoroughly adequate one and did justice to their roles throughout. There were many exciting scenes and the audience found the production thoroughly enjoyable.

DISEASE FROM WAR ZONE.

Ninety-One Passengers on Liner Found Afflicted With Pediculosis.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Pediculosis, a disease which gave the armies in Russia and Serbia a great deal of trouble, was found to be raging aboard the steamship Patris, of the Greek line, which arrived here Wednesday from Piraeus, the seaport of Athens. The ship was held up for hours at Quarantine, while the Health officers went through the 862 steerage passengers.

As a result of the examination ninety-one passengers were taken off the ship and put in quarantine on Hoffman Island.

The word pediculosis is Latin and is derived from pediculus," a very small pest which breeds more rapidly than ordinary cleansing processes can control on those afflicted with the disease. The patient is subjected to antiseptic baths, fumigations and other heroic measures, and, in from one to two days, he is cleansed from the affliction.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK CITY, March 24. — The market opened with but a few changes from yesterday's close. Mexican Petroleum was 107 1-4, up 5-8; Erie, 37 5-8, off 1-8; Marine Pref. 73 and U. S. Steel 86 1-8.

Traders showed uncertainty to-day in the face of conflicting reports from Mexico and specialties declined. Crucible, which sold at 90 1-8 during the morning, slumped to 86 3-4 and at noon was quoted at 87 1-4. At that hour steel sold at 84 7-8, the lowest of the morning. Reading was bid up to 88 5-8, then broke to 87.

Remarkable Tests To Try the Nerve of the Aviators

Shocks Applied in France to Those Who Seek the Air Service—Qualities Above Those Required for Ordinary Soldier

PARIS, March 24. — The requirements for admission to the French aircraft service include physical and moral qualities over and above those that suffice for the ordinary soldier.

To begin, the candidate has to perform satisfactorily a rhythmic and continuous movement with both hands, the regularity and power of which is registered on a paper drum. He is next seated in front of a clock, the needle of which move around the face once eevry second. As soon as he sees the hand begin to move he has to stop it by pressing a button, the record showing rapidity of synchronism between brain and hand.

Last of all he holds a recording instrument while others are attached to his chest and pulse to register heart and lung movements. He is then suddenly subjected to some violent sensation, such as the blinding flare of a magnesium flashlight, a loud report or a splash of ice cold water. Any very strong willed man may be able to control his muscles so as to give no outward sign of the perturbations caused in his mind, but the machines record the slightest tremble, quickened breath or faster heartbeat. The model pilot should remain not only morally but physically imperturbable and in spite of fatigue or danger his organism should always be ready to respond to the almost automatic reflexes which he acquires in his training as well as to the commands of his will.

The perfection aimed at in order to obtain men ready for any emergency is, according to one authority, "an emotional passivity, combined with the most rapid motive reaction." The standard established is roughly that the muscles of the arms should be able to continue the rhythmic effort without fatigue equivalent to a weight of about 350 pounds. The time that should elapse between the starting of the little hand on the clock face and the pressing of the button which stops it should vary between 11-100 and 23-100 of a second. In the case of the test for quick shock any small signs of quickened pulse or other symtoms of agitation should never last and should be at their maximum at the moment of the disturbance.

French Artillery Now On Offensive Near Verdun

Russians Have Broken Enemy Lines Near Dvinsk

Russians Are Now Gaining On Whole Eastern Front Military Critics Assert

Attacks During Last Few Days Have all Been Successful---Fierce Drive of The Tsar's Armies in Three Different Sections.

PETROGRAD, via London, March 25.—While admitting that it is not yet clear whether the fighting which is in progress south of Dvinsk signifies a general advance of the Russian troops in that sector or whether it is intended as a demonstration to attract German forces from the Franco-German front, the military critics lay emphasis upon what they allude to as the universal success of the attacks during the last few days, the viciousness of which is indicated as being sufficient to have made an impression upon the German General Staff.

The Russian troops are operating in three groups, covering a front of seventy miles, but the severest fighting is reported to have occurred in the vicinity of Lake Narocz, where the Russians' drive carried them through three lines of German trenches heavily protected by wire entanglements. The Russians resorted to their favourite method, bayonet fighting, routing the Germans in spite of desperate resistance and capturing more than 1,000 men, including seventeen officers, a dozen machine guns and other booty.

The Germans are invariably countering the Russian attacks by advancing at other sections of the line, but from all appearances, according to the military observers, the Teutonic efforts lack co-ordination, and it is evident that in spite of the recent concentration of additional troops in this region the Russians anticipated any plans their adversaries may have for a concerted offensive here

The German strength was estimated last autumn to be eight corps of infantry and several cavalry divisions in this region, but these have since been considerably augmented.

An important success is recorded on the Galician front, where the Russians captured the crossing of the Dniester at Mikhaltoche. The Austrian official communication is cited in reference to this victory, as it is admitted that the Austrians were obliged to abandon the position following six months' defence, after the fortifications had been reduced by the Russian artillery.

The official communication from General Headquarters reads:

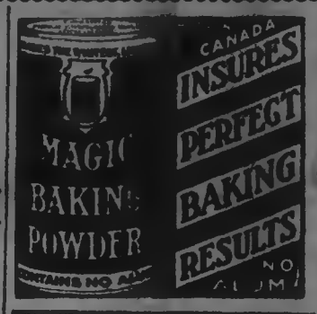
"The contest is developing in the Riga region. In the Jacobstadt sector we followed up Wednesday's success, piercing the enemy's line.

"Below Dvinsk our artillery successfully dispersed Germans massing near Schischkovo. South of Dvinsk, as far as Lake Dreswiaty, there has been a violent artillery and rifle duel.

"In the sector of Mintziany-Lake Sokly and south of Lake Dreswiaty the enemy in a counter attack took part of the trenches we captured the previous night. In the centre of this sector there has been violent artillery and rifle fire.

"On the Vilieta-Mopeika front, northwest of Postavy, and in the region of lakes Miadziol and Narocz the fighting continues. Southwest of Lake Narocz we repulsed a counter attack and again advanced under a violent bombardment.

"On the south bank of Lake Narocz the Germans fired asphyxiating shells. More to the south, as far as the region of PoLessie, there has been lively cannonade at various places.



Communications Of The Enemy Are Threatened

By The French Offensive Near Verdun—Str. Sussex Damaged By An Explosion

LONDON, March 25.—Steamer Sussex, which was damaged by an explosion in the English Channel last night, was towed into a French port. It is thought all passengers are safe.

PARIS, March 25.—The French artillery is now on the offensive near Verdun and Germans' communications are threatened.

PETROGRAD, March 25.—Russians have broken the German lines in the Olipa sector near Dvinsk.

TORONTO, March 25.— It is estimated the province will secure six hundred thousand dollars annually by one cent tax on amusements.

Germans Are Still Confident Kaiser Will Break Through

The Verdun Barrier, Says Prominent Actress Recently Returned From Berlin—Feeling of Decisive Victory in War Not So Great As a Year Ago.

LONDON, March 25.— Miss Madge Lessing, an American actress, who returned here from Berlin yesterday, after settling some private affairs there, says if Berlin is a criterion the pinch of war is not heavily felt yet in Germany. Plenty of able bodied men are about, much money is in circulation and the theatres are in clover, she says.

Asked, "How about Verdun," she replied:

"The Germans know the losses are frightful, but they all hope the Kaiser's troops will break through. There is less general confidence in victory, however, than there was a year ago. Everybody longs for peace as they know now they never can obtain the crushing victory they used to dream about. The feeling of hostility against the English is not as intense as it used to be. You can now talk English publicly without fear of assault, but it is dangerous to talk of America. Everybody is stating the Americans ferociously. President Wilson is hated by all Germans.

HORSES FOR ALLIES DIE

Consignment from Toronto Attacked in New York by Peculiar Disease.

NEW YORK, March 25.—More than three hundred horses consigned to the Allies are quarantined at the New York Stock Yards, Sixty-first Street and Eleventh Avenue, as a result of a mysterious disease that has killed seventy-two of them.

The horses arrived here from Toronto on their way to England. They were bonded, with the understanding that they were to be shipped in due time. They had been passed by the Federal inspectors, but soon after their arrival at the stock yards they began to die one by one.

Alarmed by the conditions, veterinarians began a rigid investigation. They learned the horses were suffering from what is known in France as Pasteurellose, a disease discovered by an assistant of Prof. Pasteur, from whom it derives its name. The disease is known by many other names, as it attacks various organisms. It is of a typhoid character, and is highly infectious among horses.

As a consequence of the war, more than half the periodicals of the European geographical societies have suspended publication.

Diplomatists Say Roumania Will Enter War When Allies Open Offensive in Balkans

Roumania Has Secured Large Supplies of Arms From Japan ---British Steamer Fulmar and Danish Steamer Christiansund Have Been Sunk.

ROME, March 25. — High diplomatists say Roumania will enter the war with the Allies when Anglo-French forces in the Balkans open an offensive war against the Germans. Roumania has secured large supplies of arms from Japan.

LONDON, March 25.—The British steamer Fulmar, and the Danish steamer Christiansund have been sunk. The crews were saved.

BERLIN, March 25.—Total subscriptions to the new German war loan total two billion dollars, bringing the grand total of loans to seven billions.

LONDON, March 25.—The British force in East Africa is making further progress. General Smuts reports the occupation of Arusha and the driving of the enemy from Ruwu River. Kitchener has cabled congratulations to General Smuts.

LONDON, March 25.—It is reported that a cross-Channel boat from Folkestone to Dieppe was sunk yesterday afternoon.

LONDON, March 25.—Northcliffe says: "The Germans are afraid to attack Paris with Zeppelins because of new French aeroplanes. London could be as safe if it weren't for politicians."

CANADIAN PRIVATE FALLS HEIR TO A FORTUNE IN SCOTLAND

Dame Fortune, says the Calgary News-Telegram, her hands full of gold pieces, touched Private Thomas Francis Burnett, of the 157th Battalion, on the shoulder during the night. At any rate this morning Burnett woke up to find that he was direct heir to a Scotch estate in Aberdeenshire, valued at $200,000. The intimation which came so suddenly was in trustworthy form in the shape of a letter from the solicitors of the estate, informing him that several cousins having died in unexpected fashion, they had pleasure in informing Mr. Thomas Francis Burnett that at his convenience the estate could be duly transferred to his name. The solicitors informed him that they had searched Canada for months for clues as to his whereabouts, and were now glad that their astute enquiries had enabled them to find him. They were particularly glad to find that he was wearing khaki. Private Burnett, an ardent military enthusiast, who is well on the way to earning his stripes in the new Battalion by merit, lost no time in cabling across the water that the letter had been duly received.

"Of course you're going to leave us," asked his comrades, as they crowded round to congratulate him on his stroke of good fortune. "Not a bit of it," replied Burnett. "I am going to stick with the 157th, and I'm bringing my son down from Coronation to join next week."

Burnett is an old timer in the west, born in Beaverton, Ontario, whither his father emigrated from Scotland. He came west thirty years ago. Trained as a civil engineer, he has followed this occupation except for a period when he wore the scarlet of the Northwest Mounted Police. Of recent years he has been farming in the Coronation district, last year's crop putting him in such a position that he was able to follow out his ambition and join the fight to preserve the traditions of the British Empire. Two of his sons are already in khaki, joining battalions in the north country. The third, who is just of age, is still on the farm, and to his disgust was slated for the job of looking after the business during the absence of the remainder of the Burnett family at the front. The coming of the fortune, however, opened the door to the army for him, and he will be down shortly to join the 157th.

Burnett has never seen the estate to which he has so unexpectedly fallen heir. He has often heard it described, however, by his father, and it is situated within short distance of Aberdeen, a prosperous Scotch town on the east coast. Within its confines are a handsome residence and a whole village, the revenue from which totals up a handsome figure. The estimate of the lawyer is that the complete estate is worth about $200,000. It is entailed, and descended in the natural order of things to Burnett. Four or five cousins stood between him and the estate and he has never thought that they would die in time for him to come into the property. "I had a hazy idea that some day my eldest son might return to Scotland to take it over," he said, "but I did not expect it happening in my time."

Burnett was traced through friends in Beaverton and Orillia.

The fortunate soldier is the eldest son of the late Major Burnett, who was for many years a resident of Orillia, carrying on business as a land surveyor, in which he was assisted by his sons. Mr. Frank Burnett's eldest son, Ernest, is a private in the 53rd Battalion, Winnipeg, now under orders for overseas. Another son, Reginald, is in the machine gun section of the 157th, now training at Barrie, having come home from the West to enlist with the Simcoe Battalion. A younger son and daughter are still living in Orillia.

Aluminum As An Explosive

Powdered Metal is Used in Austrian Howitzer Shells.

The use of aluminum in aeroplanes is now widely known, but its use when filled to a powder is less understood. Yet in this condition it forms part of two of the most destructive agents used by the Central European Powers, says the London Standard.

The first is the high explosive used to charge the Austrian shells. This is known as "ammonal," a mixture of five or eight parts ammonium nitrate with one part of finely powdered aluminum. The exact proportions and the means for keeping the mixture dry are, of course, secrets which the Austrians keep to themselves, but even as made in English laboratories its explosive violence is tremendous.

It is one of the few explosives that has never been used as a propellant. No gun known to warfare could resist its suddenness. The explosion chambers would be smashed to pieces before the projectile had begun to move. So it is put inside the projectile itself, and allowed to explode amongst the enemy a few miles away from the gun. So far as we know it is only the Austrian howitzer shell that contains this horrible mixture.

Three year old Sammy Zachar was badly scrambled but only slightly hurt when he fell four stories from his home on Hester street, New York. Sammy struck an egg peddler's push cart.

Wm. Gershards's will left $3 each to 180 lodge brothers to reimburse them for time lost going to his funeral in Newark.

WOMEN'S GOWNS NEW GERMAN FOE

To Compel Economy in Use of Dress Material, Army Authorities Declare War on Fashions.

BERLIN, via London, March 24.—The German Army has opened hostilities on a new foe—women's fashions. The large consumption of cloth under the prevailing styles has inspired the army authorities to call a conference to deliberate measure designed to influence future fashions in the direction of greater economy in materials. The Ministry of War, with true military astuteness, is not attempting to affect styles already in vogue or to forbid women their flowing skirts.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat

When you wake up with the backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sour water scalds, and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Allies to Have Another Council

Premier, Sir Edward Grey and Lord Kitchener to Represent Britain in Paris.

LONDON, March 24.—Announcement was made in the House of Commons to-day by Mr. David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, that the Premier, Mr. Asquith, would go to Paris next week to attend an important conference of the Entente Allies. Sir Edward Grey and Lord Kitchener also will attend the conference.

The conference which the Premier is to attend with the Foreign Secretary is the war conference of the Allies and not the economic conference at which Mr. Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, will represent Great Britain.

Girl Aided A German Spy

Why Daughter of an English Squire Has Been Locked Up.

LONDON, March 25.—An astonishing story of an English woman who was associated with a German spy was related in the House of Commons Thursday.

C. P. Trevelyan, while discussing alleged high-handed acts of the Government, told about an English squire who returned from partridge shooting to learn that his daughter had been carried off by the police. For a fortnight he was unable to discover her whereabouts. Finally he found that she had been thrown into jail and cross-examined without having any legal aid. She still remains under lock and key.

Many members were much impressed by the apparent injustice done to the woman until Sir F. E. Smith told the other side of the story. This squire's daughter, he said, was an intimate friend of a German spy who had to flee from England because he was connected with attempts at assassination. Last May, said Smith, she went to Switzerland to meet the spy, and returned, carrying a message to one of his accomplices. When she was arested literature was found in her possession that advocated revolution and murder.

WOLVES ATE TRAINMAN

Section Hand Was Attacked While He Was Setting Out Light.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., March 24.—Incoming train crews say a section man on the new C.N.R. line 100 miles east was attacked and devoured by wolves while setting out a light.

Many diseases of childhood and youth are due to faulty diet—a diet that restricts the amount of needed mineral salts, the lack of which, as your family physician can tell you, often leads to rickets and other diseases of mal-nutrition.

This food tastes good, is easily digested, and many letters from parents, after trial, testify

A FOOD

AS WE GROW OLDER

our minds are quite as active as in former years but our strength does not respond when we need it most; perhaps the kidneys are weak, the liver torpid, rheumatic pains or stiffened joints beset us, and we cannot easily throw off the colds that winter brings.

What we need is the rich cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion to renew the blood and carry strength to every organ of the body, while its glycerine soothes the respiratory tract, and its hypophosphites strengthen the excitable nerves.

Scott's Emulsion is a scientific oil-food, of unusual benefit to those past fifty years—particularly during the colder seasons, it imparts warmth and creates strength. One bottle will prove its worth. No harmful drugs.

An Extravagant Doctor Or a Wise One?

Ambitious Dr. Lydgate of "Middlemarch" may have been extravagant with his 2 horses, and servants and plate, and Policy of Life Insurance Most people now-a-days, however, would at least have called the Life Insurance Policy a necessity. The horses were sold, the servants dismissed, and the plate taken by the bailiff. The Life Insurance Policy alone stood at the last between Rosamond and penury. There have since been many Rosamonds of whom the same story might be told. Has the Rosamond of your home been adequately provided for? If not, her lot may be adequately secured by a Policy in

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

It was dusk when they reached the hotel. Popple was standing there with two strangers.

"Any news?" inquired Mrs. Carmac as she alighted.

"Yes, Ma'am, an' not the best," said Popple. "The wreck is all broken up. The diver has been over the south side of the reef, and saw nothin' but scrap iron."

Neither Raymond nor Jackson had quitted his seat as yet, and the steward heard his companion laugh softly.

"Then we must abandon the search?" came Mrs. Carmac's clear, well-bred accents.

"There's just one more chanst, Ma'am," said Popple. "We can try a trawl."

"But isn't that a thing meant to catch fish?"

"It's surprisin' w'at you can ketch in a trawl sometimes, Ma'am."

"Captain Popple was telling me the other day that he has known it catch a man," put in Raymond, evidently regarding the sailor's suggestion as an excellent joke.

"I've seen a shawk in one meself," said the irrepressible Jackson.

Popple waved aside these flippant interruptions. "Mossoo Gueho here, from Brest," with an indicatory thumb toward one of his companions, "tells me there's a big trawler in Concarneau to-day, an' Peridot's boat will be there too. If you like, Ma'am, he'll go to Concarneau this evenin', an' bring both of 'em here to-morrow."

"Peridot? Why Peridot?" inquired Mrs. Carmac.

"He knows the set o' the tides so well, Ma'am. He'd help a lot."

"Well, I want to see him soon; so secure his services by all means. As for the trawler, or any appliance you think necessary, I wish Monsieur Gueho to understand that every effort should be made to recover the bones I spoke of."

Monsieur Gueho, who spoke English, assured Madame that this firm's resources were entirely at his command.

Then Yvonne hurried to her mother's suite to divest herself of furs and toque. For the time she had abandoned the Breton dress, and wore her tweed costume. She met Mrs. Carmac, Bennett, and Raymond on the steps. Tollemache was assisting Jackson to his room.

"I really must run home," she explained. "Dad will be wondering what has become of me; though I sent a message by one of Julia's maids to tell him that Lorry and I were being whisked off to Lorient in an automobile."

"Yet you have been nowhere near Lorient," said her mother.

"A pleasure deferred, Mrs. Carmac," said Raymond. "You ought to take a spin in that car every day while in Pont Aven. It will do you a world of good. Don't you agree, Mr. Bennett?"

"Most certainly," said the lawyer; "that is, if Mrs. Carmac doesn't return to England with me to-morrow."

Bennett spoke as though he were giving indirect advice; but Yvonne gathered that her mother explained her decision to remain a few days longer because of anxiety with regard to the salvage work. Lorry reappeared on the terrace, and the girl hailed him.

"Come to supper," she cried. "Call in at Madeleine's on the way, and tell her to come too."

"Right-o!" he said.

But Madeleine failed to join the supper party at Madame Pitou's that night. She excused herself to Tollemache on account of a headache.

"She looked rather ill," said Lorry pityingly. "Her aunt was boiling some decoction of herbs. Madeleine is to be dosed."

"If I was her aunt, I'd set her to scrub the stairs," commented Mere Pitou emphatically. "Work is the only tonic Madeleine needs. When the hands are busy the wits don't stray."

"Is she up in the air about Peridot?" inquired Tollemache. "Before he went away he told me she wouldn't speak to him; but he shouldn't have taken it so seriously."

Madame shook her head and kept tight lips,—an ominous sign. Yvonne strove at once to change this ticklish topic.

"Didn't Captain Popple say something about bringing Peridot here to-morrow?" she said. "If he comes, he and Madeleine will soon bury the hatchet, especially when they know that Mrs. Carmac means to present Peridot with a fully equipped vague (sardine boat)."

"Good!" cried Tollemache. "Mere Pitou and I will fooit it together at the wedding. I'm stuck on Breton weddings. There's no nonsense about them. Everybody enjoys life to the limit."

He had aswered in English; but Madame evidently gathered the drift of his words, because she laughed dryly, and herself turned the talk to the day's outing. Yvonne, finding her father's eye on her, was just able to repress a sigh. Mere Pitou knew of her friend's folly, and, if she knew, there must have been gossip in the village. There was a chance, the barest chance, that Peridot's arrival might still scandalous tongues, if only Madeleine could be persuaded to receive him graciously and fix an early date for their marriage. The girl had already ruined any prospects she might have possessed of being elected Queen for the next Feast of the Gorse Flowers. The Pont Aven maid who aspires to this must display not only a pretty face but a spotless escutcheon. It might be that Madeleine would see this for herself. If not, she must be told.

Next morning, then, Yvonne called at Madeleine's cottage in order to make a later appointment. Madame Brissac, who admitted her, was in tears.

"Madeleine is gone!" she explained. "She went to Quimperle by the early train. Nothing I could say would prevail on her. I've never seen her so determined about anything."

Yvonne, sick with apprehension at first, found a crumb of solace in the aunt's statement, which apparently limited the girl's flight to a town not far removed from Pont Aven.

"But why has she gone to Quimperle?" she faltered.

"That grinning fool Peridot left her too much to herself. She has been moping about the house during the last week, saying that her lover had deserted her. This morning she was out of bed before dawn. Her box was packed when I rose at six. Then she told me she had decided to accept her cousin's offer of a place in his shop, and meant to give it a fair trial. As she might be of some use during the few days before Christmas, she was going at once. I argued and stormed; but it was useless. Off she went!"

Yvonne knew indeed that a Quimperle draper in a small way of business had often tried to induce Madeleine to take charge of his retail trade so that he might travel in the rural districts; but the girl had always scoffed at the notion. Perhaps, dreading the weight of public opinion in Pont Aven, or finding life in the village insupportable, she had sought refuge in Quimperle for a while, and would return when present clouds were blown over.

"You are sure she means to join Monsieur Bontot?" she asked anxiously.

"Of course. There is no one else. Marie Bontot will welcome her, because Madeleine's help will enable Jacques to double his turnover; but I'll miss her dreadfully, and I can't imagine why she should want to scurry away in such a whirl. I haven't recovered from the shock yet."

Yvonne could only endeavour to console the old woman with a prediction of the truant's early return. She herself was greatly distressed by Madeleine's action in leaving the village without giving the least hint of her intention, or uttering a word of farewell. Moreover, it was more than unkind to put the blame on Peridot. The fact that Madeleine should have stooped to positive deception in that respect brought a suspicion, an ill-defined uneasiness, which was better surpressed at the moment.

But when she learned that Mrs. Carmac intended to take another run in the car she asked as a favour that they should proceed direct to Quimperle in the first instance, as she wished to pay a call there. Moreover, if Mrs. Carmac didn't particularly want the big car, it would be more convenient if they used a smaller vehicle that day. Her mother was only too glad to agree; so a servant was sent off post haste with order to hire the limousine.

Raymond was annoyed, but dared not show it. He heard the girl's request, and marked her agitated air, and searched for some explanation of an arrangement that he interpreted as aimed against himself. Puzzled and irritated, he seized an opportunity to put a daring question.

"Miss Ingersoll," he said, "I hope you have not forgotten your promise to introduce me to your father?"

"No. How could I forget?" she cried. "Will you come to Mere Pitou's this evening about five o'clock? Mrs. Carmac and I will be home long before that hour. I—I'm afraid, Mr. Raymond, I may have cost you an agreeable outing to-day; but I want to find Madeleine Demoret and have a long talk with her. It might be rather awkward if there were men in the party. She would not discuss matters freely."

Raymond was so profoundly relieved that he nearly blurted out, "Oh, is that it?" He contrived, however, to murmur something about his complete agreement with any course suggested by Miss Ingersoll, when Mrs. Carmac intervened.

"Madeleine Demoret?" she said. "Isn't she the girl you spoke of the other evening?"

"Yes. She is definitely engaged to Peridot, and now, the very day he is expected back in Pont Aven, she has flown off to Quimperle, vowing that she means to stay there with a married cousin. I want to see her, and coax her into meeting Peridot soon, either here or in Quimperle."

"You seem to be very much concerned about this young lady's love affairs," smiled the older woman.

"Madeleine has been my playmate ever since I was able to walk," said Yvonne simply, quite unaware of the pang that this seemingly innocuous remark caused her mother, "and I do wish to see her happily married to Peridot, who is an excellent fellow, and thoroughly devoted to her. It would be too bad if they should separate now because of some absurd tiff. In any case," she added, "I want to know the truth."

"As to why she has gone?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Carmac was perplexed. She too, like Raymond, felt that there was more in Yvonne's anxiety than met the eye; but it was inadvisable to probe deeper into the problem until she and her daughter were alone.

"Ah, well," she said lightly, "Within the hour, I have no doubt, we shall be listening to a tearful denunciation of Peridot. The Perfidy of Peridot—it sounds like the alliterative title of a magazine story. Is it at our car? Tell Celeste you'll wear the furs you had yesterday. They suit you admirably."

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Such is the statement of Mr. A. O. Norton, of Boston, the largest Jack Manufacturer in the world. His voluntary testimonial regarding ZUTOO follows:

286 Congress St., Boston, Mass.
"I have been a sufferer from Headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all the so-called 'cures' on the market. Some months since my attention was called to Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a 'sick' or 'nervous' headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effects. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

NEGLECTED COLDS VERY OFTEN TURN TO CONSUMPTION.

Never neglect what at first seems to be but a slight cold. Your head becomes stuffed up; you start to cough; an irritation in the throat follows; it gets lower down; settles on the lungs; you start to raise phlegm of a greenish, yellowish color sometimes streaked with blood, and you cough persistently.

You think perhaps you are strong enough to fight off this trouble, but colds are not easily fought off in this northern climate. Colds if not attended to will sooner or later develop into some serious lung trouble.

Mrs. Willis H. Monk, Lower Ship Harbor, N.S., writes: "Last winter I took a severe cold on my lungs, and I would cough and spit up phlegm and blood. I had the cough for nearly a month, and I got medicine from the doctor, but it did me no good. I thought I had consumption. My friends advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I did, and it gave me great relief. I am the mother of ten children, and I always keep a bottle of 'Dr. Wood's' in the house. I will highly recommend it to all, especially to all who have little ones to care for."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the best cure for coughs and colds. It has been on the market for the past twenty-five years. It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price, 25c and 50c.

Where are the Fairies Going?

The Fairies and the gentle gnomes
From France have crossed the ocean;
Grim war disturbed their peaceful homes
And so they took the notion

To leave fair France's sunny bowers
And say farewell to sadness,
Now, in this Canada of ours,
They'll charm our hearts to gladness.

And as they camp, on bubbles blown,
While you were on your pillows,
One moonlight night, they'd quickly flown
Across the ocean billows.

The bubble pictures tell you where
Each fairy has to go to,
And you can tell by looking there,
The town that each will blow to.

So hurry up! and you shall win
If you can only spot them.
Just think it out and send us in
Your answers when you've got them.

Now Boys and Girls if you can tell
By looking in each bubble,
The cities where each one will dwell
It will be worth your trouble.

$200.00 IN CASH PRIZES

To Boys and Girls Who Can Tell Where the Fairies are Going

Can you puzzle it out boys and girls? The picture each fairy bubble, for going to Canadian towns to live. They can't tell you to which town each will go, but in each bubble is a puzzle picture that will tell you the name if you're clever enough to puzzle it out. Just to give you a start, we'll tell you that Fairy No. 1 is going to Winnipeg. If you will study picture No. 1, you will see that it easily represents Winnipeg. Now see if you can guess where the others are bound for. Bubble Picture No. 2 represents a town in the province of Alberta. No. 3 is a well known inland town. No. 4 is a Nova Scotian town. No. 5 is town in New Brunswick, and No. 6 is a town in Ontario. Any good live Canadian boy or girl should know enough about Canada to be able to puzzle them out. It's not easy, but get your Geography book, look up the towns and cities in each province and try. The boys and girls sending the best answer to all 6 puzzle pictures can share in the distribution of the following:

THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries—A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

The difference between good and bad mothers is so vast and so far-reaching that it is no exaggeration to say that the good mothers of this generation are building the homes of the next generation, and the bad mothers are building the prisons. Far out of families nations are made; and if the father be the head and the hands of a family, the mother is the heart. No office in the world is so honorable as hers, no priesthood so holy, no influence so sweet and strong and lasting.

* * *

The busy man must have some pleasure, some recreation, some relaxation. He ought not to have it on the street with gossiping chatterers, or at the gambling table with the dissolution or wanton. He ought to find it at home. He ought to do something in which his family could have a part. It ought to be pure, elevating, stimulating. The man that is so considerate and equipoised, that will make this matter no secondary affair, but give it the best thought of his life, will make a better man, a moral citizen, more considerate husband, more loving father. He will find his family ties strengthened, so that as his children grow to manhood and womanhood, no place will be so attractive to them as the fireside at home.

* * *

There are too many fathers who will tie up the dog at night and let the boy run loose.

* * *

This world is but a stepping stone of an immortal life. Every action of our life touches on some chord that will vibrate in eternity.

* * *

The woman who has a home and keeps it well, has no narrow sphere in life. In the home is the hope of the nation and the church.

* * *

We often find farmers who lose no chance of securing machinery for saving labour on the farm, but who don't think of anything about the machines that save labour in the house. That is out of their province and they don't seem to care enough about it to give the matter any attention whatever.

* * *

Home is a magic word, and we seldom try to analyze it. A little Polish girl in a public school was asked recently to write a definition of home. "A home," she wrote, "is where people live, and where a man or somebody comes home and finds people there, and then eats." To how many thousands of men that is the end and aim of coming home! To how many thousands of women the preparation of the food to be eaten is the chief business of home-making.

With the exercise of much patience, the model parent will gain the love and obedience of the child without harshness, or what some one has designated "physical persuasion," and instead of trying to beat goodness into children will make their natural tendencies and possibilities the subject of earnest study; then by kindness and gentleness, so train these as to secure harmonious development, physical, mental and moral, the normal activities will be directed into laudable channels and a desire created to do what is required.

* * *

Better appreciate your mother before your appreciation of her will be no kindness to her, and the post mortem regrets will be more and more of an agony as the years pass on. Big headstones of polished Aberdeen and the best epitaths which the family put together could compose and a garland of whitest roses from the conservatory are often the attempt to atone for the thanks we ought to have uttered in living ears and the kind words that would have done more good than all the calla lilies ever piled up on the silent mounds of the cemeteries.

* * *

Unkind words do as much harm as unkind deeds. Many a heart has been wounded beyond cure, many a reputation been stabbed to death by a few little words.

* * *

The past is fixed. No tears can wash away its facts. We should waste no regrets upon it; but, from the wisdom of its very sins have taught us, we should start afresh on the race.

HINTS FOR DAUGHTERS.

1. You will probably never be able to realize how much you owe your parents until you have children of your own. Show your appreciation now, and you will be sure to please them greatly, and at the same time sow the seeds of lifelong happiness.

2. Do not keep all your smiles for the board of friends, but dispense them freely at home. Cheerful faces make home life warm and happy, and serve to drive away care and trouble from the brows of old folks.

3. Above all things, do not grumble and wrangle at home, because few things cut a mother to the heart so keenly as children's complaints and disputes. If you want anything in particular, ask nicely for it, but pray do not find fault in a grumbling mood, or be peevish with your sisters and brothers.

4. When making presents to your friends, remember that mother and father have known you longer than any of them and have a much deeper affection for you; so make them a little gift sometimes, and rest assured that your thoughtfulness will be greatly appreciated.

5. Keep together the ties of home as long as you possibly can, because death will sever them soon enough, and once broken they can never be united again. Let home be your heaven when entering the world's busy arena, and you will never want a safer or more welcome place of rest.

6 You cannot have more sincere friends of better counsellors than your parents. Their friendship will never desert you, and advice given by them will always be disinterested, so lay all your difficulties and troubles before them. Many a person who has chosen the downward path would have been restrained by a mother's sympathetic advice, or by a father's timely warning.

7. If the ways of the old folks are not up-to-date and what you would wish them to be, do not make any fuss, but bear with them. Remember that your parents have the habits and recollections of thirty or forty years ago, and, as a matter of fact, you will never get them to change their ways radically however much you may try.

* * *

KEEPING TO ONE THING

We earnestly entreat every young man, after he has chosen his vocation, to stick to it. Don't leave it because hard blows are to be struck or disagreeable work performed.

Those who have worked their way up to wealth and usefulness do not belong to the shiftless and unstable class, but may be reckoned among such as pulled off their coats, rolled up their sleeves, conquered their prejudices against labor and manfully bore the heat and burden of the day.

Whether upon the old farm, where our fathers toiled diligently, striving to bring the soil to productiveness; in the machine-shop or factory, or the thousand other business places that invite honest toil and skill—let the motto ever be: Perseverance and industry. Stick to one thing, boys, and you will have success.

Solomon speaks of the man who has to dwell in a wide house with a contentious woman. It seems to us the house should be very wide, and a house many chambers and closets for hiding friends, let us make our homes cheerful and happy.

* * *

SAD THE DAY.

"Sad the day for any man when he becomes absolutely contented with the life he is living, with the thought he is thinking, the deeds he is doing when there is not forever beating at the doors of his soul some great desire to do something larger which he knows he was meant and made to do." These words were once spoken by Phillips Brooks. They can be applied to you. It makes no difference what circumstances you are surrounded by nor the environment that you are living in, you should struggle continually upward. It makes no difference how big our daily task is, always keep in mind that some day you are going to do bigger things. When you have finished your daily work do not relapse into contentment. Understand that the morrows will be used to better advantage and that your task will be more perfectly done than ever before. Build as though you were a master builder, but never consider your handiwork perfect. Making your life bigger, better and broader is one of your tasks. Every day adds or takes away from your character. Have a care that your daily acts shall strengthen you. Never attempt to advance at the expense of your brother. And never consider that you have reached perfection. Avoid self-contentment as you would a deadly malady.

It means a great deal to be a home-maker, not a mere housekeeper, but to make a true, happy home, one which children may look back upon with pleasure when in after years they have left it far behind, and the mother who made it so is sleeping in the narrow house whose roof is the green covering of the sod.

There is no such thing as pure, unalloyed pleasure; some bitter ever mingles with the sweet.

NERVOUS DISEASES IN THE SPRING

Cured by Tonind the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves

It is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation, that nervous diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time of the year. Vital changes in the system, after long winter months, may cause much more trouble than the familiar spring weakness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often overheated buildings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and other forms of nerve troubles are at their worst, and that then, more than any other time, a blood-making, nerve-restoring tonic is needed.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only gallop through the bowels, leaving you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine for they actually make the new, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nerves and thus cure the many forms of nervous disorders. They cure only such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetite, weariness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact they unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FIRST INDICATIONS FOR SPRING

A Tendency Toward Slender, Tapering Waists

SKIRTS SHORT AND FULL

NEW YORK, March 5.—Paris and New York are both at the moment, and have been for ever so many weeks back, in the midst of the Spring opening hubbub. We are not quite sure as yet whether coats are to be short or three-quarter length, whether sleeves are to be tight or loose, whether blonde or brunette will be the fashion this season.

It is quite safe to predict, however,

© McCALL

Dance Frock of Taffeta and Chiffon

that the same general lines suggested in the mid-season openings and at the various fashion shows will be followed.

Here and There the Tapering Waist.

Quite often we notice in the new importations a tendency to the slender, tapering waist; and this, of course, means the well-corseted figure. It is not probable that the hour-glass figure will be countenanced for a moment, but a trifle more trimness, conduced by a well-fitting modern corset, is necessary to meet the requirements of the spring suit, with its hint of a curve at the waist-line, its graceful flaring skirt and coat skirt. A carefully selected and properly fitted corset is necessary and always has been to a smart, well-groomed appearance. Rather than injurious, the right corset tends toward health.

Several of the Paris houses are advocating the three-quarter-length coat, and now and then one sees a polonaise effect. These coats are made with well-fitted shoulders and rounded waist-line. It is quite remarkable that this should be so just now, when we are massing so much fulness in the skirts between the belt and the knees, but it only goes to show the wide variety we are to enjoy this spring and summer.

A Word on Skirts.

Skirts continue short and full. Many of the hostess are emphasizing the favour shown by them for the crinoline since the first whisper of full skirts began to circulate, and many are using interesting methods of extending the skirts; among these are reeds, feather[illegible] even hair-cloth stiffenings. In many instances the reeds are graceful and becoming, but, as a rule, the effect is extremely awkward, as there is no pretense whatever of concealing the mediums, and they often protrude at unexpected angles, giving a curious, un-beautiful result.

In the regulation summer frock and the dance dress of net, organdy, or other of the dainty fabrics favoured this year, the fulness of the skirt is made decidedly graceful and youthful by tucks, ribbons, and bias bands of the same, or a contrasting material. Often folds of chiffon or net are attached to the inside of the skirt of the dance dress given a soft, bouffant effect which is pleasing in every way. Taffeta is unusually effective combined with, or as trimming for, the pale-toned frock of organdy or net, fashioning the summer dance dress. In both illustrations this week the skirt is of taffeta and the effect of the deep tuck is well brought out. The first dress has an underbodice of shadow-lace and a simple over-drapery of chiffon. The short sleeve cap, while it concedes to Fashion's sleeveless demand, also makes a concession to modesty. The second frock shows the combination of net and taffeta. Aside from being especially pretty, this combination is practical, as net wears particularly well and lends itself to almost any fashion of draping.

PRESS ATTACKS MILNER

His German Origin and Methods Find Harsh Critics Nowadays

The editor of the London Graphic reminds Lord Milner that if Lord Haldane's "spiritual home" has been in Germany, he, Milner, was actually born and bred there, and that W. T. Stead, who knew him probably better than any other Englishman ever did, said: "In temperament as he was by birth, Milner is a German and not a Briton." The editor of Truth also gives him warning, referring to the intimacy between him and the hyphenated mine owners of South Africa, and "suggesting to him in all friendliness that this is just one of those occasions when a man of discernment would, in his rather peculiar position, refrain from discussing secret military operations, repeating slanders on British statesmen and pressing dubious economic expedients. The motive, however admirable, may be understood."

At the university, which he attended in the heyday of Prof. Max Mueller, the German savant, and later in official position, he was often referred to as possessing "the most German mind in England," this being a great compliment. His autocratic methods in South Africa and in Egypt were commended by the men in power in London as being best adapted to the countries, although the same methods when Lord Milner advocated them in England after his retirement were denounced by various Members of Parliament as being those of an unsympathetic bureaucrat who was not fit to rule a free people. He began advocating universal conscription ten years before the war.

How to Save Your Eyes

Try This Free Prescription.

Do your eyes give you trouble? Do you already wear eyeglasses or spectacles? Thousands of people wear these "windows" who might easily dispense with them. You may be one of these, and it is your duty to save your eyes before it is too late. The eyes are neglected more than any other organ of the entire body. After you finish your day's work you sit down and rest your muscles, but how about your eyes? Do you rest them? You know you do not. You read or do something else that keeps your eyes busy; you work your eyes until you go to bed. That is why so many have strained eyes and finally other eye troubles that threaten partial or total blindness. Eyeglasses are merely crutches; they never cure. This free prescription, which has benefited the eyes of so many, may work equal wonders for you. Use it a short time. Would you like your eye troubles to disappear as if by magic? Try this prescription. Go to the nearest wideawake drug store and get a bottle of Ben-Opto tablets. Drop one tablet in ¼ glass of water and allow it to thoroughly dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. Just note how quickly your eyes clear up and how soon the inflammation will disappear. Don't be afraid to use it; it is absolutely harmless. Many who are now blind might have saved their eyes had they started to care for them in time. This is a simple treatment, but marvelously effective in multitudes of cases. Now that you have been warned don't delay a day, but do what you can to save your eyes and you are likely to thank us as long as you live for publishing this prescription. The Wahnas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was given said: "Ben-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. It can be obtained from any good druggist and in one of the very few proprietaries I feel I might be kept on record for recommending without reserve."

The Warne Drug Co., fills many Ben-Opto prescriptions and will gladly fill yours.

ALIEN PROBLEM BIGGEST

Alarming List of Foreign School Section Indicates Need of Courage

The one problem which the war has brought strikingly to the forefront is the problem of the alien. Is he to remain an indigestible element in our civilization, or is he to be absorbed into the mass of the population and become a good Canadian and a patriotic British citizen? Canada cannot afford to have an alien question on her hands. There must be no hyphenated Canadians. If we had five or six million naturalised enemy voters in our midst what sort of assistance could our Dominion give to the Empire?

Canada has the opportunity to show all foreigners that their presence is not desired in this country unless they are prepared to become loyal Canadians. That we have been neglectful of our duties in this respect in the past is clear from the experience of some of the Prairie Provinces. What is one to think of a Province whose school districts bear such names as the following: Olha, Zaporosa, Ruska Rawa, Hranko, Meleh, Kamarno, Striy, Felsendorf, Dnister, Mglanton, Kreusberg, Bismarck, Arabakka, Kupsanko, Lemberg, Swoboda, Koroluwka, Lukowca, Bukowina, Czerwona Zamek, Horod, Sicz, Zoria, Taras, Borshaw, Trembola, Haliez, Kolomyja.

And most of these names harmonize with the languages spoken in the schools of the district! If ever a truly British state is to be created west of the Great Lakes, if British laws and British ideas and ideals are to prevail, if the Dominion is not to be rendered powerless at some crisis in its history by the machinations of the enemy within its gates, our treatment of the whole problem of the alien immigrant must undergo revision. The cowardice of the past in dealing with questions of race must give way to a sane policy of enlightened Canadianism—a policy that will create a homogeneous people out of the utterly diverse elements that come to our shores.—Vancouver World.

LET TEACHERS ENLIST

Ontario Guarantees Special Privileges on Return From Overseas

Responding to a situation created by requests from many young men who are training for teachers' certificates in Ontario to enlist for overseas service, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson instituted an arrangement whereby young men training for the teaching profession may enjoy special privileges on their return to Ontario from active service abroad. In a circular issued by the Department of Education it is pointed out that from time to time many applications were received from young men attending the secondary and normal schools and Faculties of Education for their certificates, although they had not completed their courses, in order that they could enlist in the present war. This, it is pointed out, would have lowered the standard for such certificates with a resulting injury to the schools. But Hon. Mr. Ferguson made a regulation that pupils in attendance at High and Continuation Schools in preparation for the ensuing Middle and Upper School examinations, and who desire to enlist for overseas service in the present war will be admitted on their return to a special summer course when necessary. This course will be provided without fees and travelling expenses for the pupils will be paid by the Department. A like advantage will be enjoyed by those who are in training at Normal Schools or Faculties of Education who enlist. These, on their return, will be admitted to one session of a Normal School or Faculty of Education, as the case may be, with exemption from fees and an allowance for travelling expenses and $5.00 per week for board and lodging. The condition is imposed on both classes of applicants that they agree to teach in the Provincial schools of Ontario for at least three years after having obtained their professional certificates or to re-imburse the Department of Education at the rate of one-third of the total financial aid for each unexpired year.

CANADA'S D'ARTAGNAN

Down Unter Der Linden Rode Escaping Canadian Major

Edmund Kemper Breadus, writes in the Atlantic Monthly: There was a Dane who used to own a little brickyard down by the river here in Edmonton. It was a small business, and we remember him as occasionally driving a load of brick himself and delivering them at the University Building. But he had seen service, and it was not long after the war began before he received his commission as major. Major Peter Anderson was his name. In time he was captured by the Germans at Ypres, and interned in the little town of Bischofswerda, one hundred miles south of Berlin, near the Austrian border. He could speak German perfectly—had learned it as a boy in Denmark—and he determined to attempt the impossible and escape. Hiding in a well in the internment camp just as the prisoners were about to be shut up for the night, he crept away at dusk, eluded the double guards, and turned his face, not toward the Austrian border, whither they would naturally set out in pursuit, but toward Berlin.

He made his way to a village, found a newspaper containing the statement that he had escaped and was making his way toward Switzerland, bought a raincoat to cover his uniform, and then started on his perilous journey. In Berlin, with delightful effrontery, he took a taxi ride do. the Unter-den-Linden. How Dumas would have revelled in the story. Then this Danish-Canadian d'Artagnan disguised himself as a bricklayer, and after many adventures, including a trip through the Kiel Canal, reached Denmark, whence the British consul sent him to England. And he has been formally received by the King at Buckingham Palace, and is detained at the War Office to report on conditions in Germany. From the little brickyard beside the Saskatchewan to Ypres; from Ypres to Bischofswerda, from Bischofswerda to Berlin, from Berlin to Buckingham Palace—"and so some," as Pepys would say, to the brickyard. And two years ago we were entertaining d'Artagnan unawares!

Oldest Canadian Corps

The doyen of Montreal regiments, not to speak of being the oldest volunteer unit in the British Empire, the 1st Regiment Grenadier Guards of Canada was organized as a battalion from the Montreal Volunteer Militia Rifle Companies in 1859 and a little late became known as the Prince of Wales Regiment. This regiment combined with the 6th Battalion Fusiliers and took on the name of the 1st Battalion Prince of Wales Regiment Fusiliers, a name which it held until the re-organization of 1912, when it was styled the Grenadier Guards of Canada. That is roughly the history of the regiment up to the outbreak of the war. Since then new and greater honors—and unheard of sacrifices—came to this famous corps through its overseas battalions.

Overland

—top class

This car is the result of a definite purpose to supply a definite need with definite finality.

It is built for the man whose purse cannot afford a big, expensive car—

For the man whose pride cannot afford an unsightly, little, uncomfortable car—

And it is a very definite success.

Beauty is not necessarily a matter of size.

Neither does size altogether control comfort.

But skill, experience and facilities are required to build a small, beautiful, comfortable, economical car.

In a word, it required Overland organization.

Its performance is on a par with its beauty, comfort and completeness.

And its price—$850—is far below any former price for any completely equipped automobile—regardless of appearance or comfort considerations.

As you look it over and read its specifications, you realize its absolute completeness.

But you must ride in it to appreciate its comfort.

You must drive it to get the thrill its performance will give you.

You can own one of these cars.

But act promptly—for no car was ever in such demand.

In spite of record productions and advancing prices, there is a shortage of cars.

The demand naturally centers on top class at bottom price—this small light car.

And no other car at anywhere near its price can compare with this one for beauty, performance, comfort, completeness and economy.

WHAT IS MILITARISM?

Professor Prince, of Clark University, writes as follows: German militarism in its external relations may be defined as the idea of extending the nation's trade and system of government by force. It would be easy to cite from numerous authorities to support this interpretation of German militarism. Militarism thus becomes something much more than a system of defense against encroachments from within and without—it is a mode of, and organization for, attack in the enforcement of progressive policies, of national growth, and of the will of the State, whatever direction these may take. It has been even the boast, not only of the German Emperor but of a host of German publicists, that by the potential power of its army Germany has maintained peace itself between the great powers of Europe during the past twenty-five years. With the questionable validity of this claim I am not here concerned, any more than with the prophecy of the Emperor in 1902, when he said: "The powerful German army guarantees the peace of Europe." The irony of Aug. 1, 1914, makes such claims tragic

WEST IN WAR-TIME

Skating and Dancing Rivals Among Officers and Ladies

With large numbers of officers in training in all the Western cities there has been no lack of social life in Western Canada. Khaki, of course, predominates at each function, for the West is playing a notable part in supplying leaders for Canada's great overseas force. The rigors of military life are softened by a full round of evening dances and skating parties. Never in the history of the West have so many dances been scheduled as since the war. In Winnipeg that centre of the city's social life, the Fort Garry, has a dance nearly every evening in the week. Edmonton is equally enthusiastic about the latest dances. Splendid orchestras are providing music which makes an irresistible call to hundreds of dancers. Dancing has only one rival—and that is ice skating. To meet this demand the Fort Garry at Winnipeg opened for guests a private ice skating rink. It is reached direct from the hotel and provides a fine sheet of ice for a sharp spin before luncheon or dinner, and more leisurely figure skating under the glow of the shaded lanterns in the evening, a distinct innovation in Canadian life.

Marriages in Vienna which fell from a normal average of 1,900 a month to 4,900 in the first month of war, decreased last year by more than 60 per cent.

SAVED PIG FROM GAS

Soldier's Kindness Also Meant a Splendid Dinner Later

Writing home from the front, an English soldier said they were having pork for dinner, and continued: "It was like this. A comrade caught a little pig a few days ago. Afterwards we were gassed, so had to don our respirators. We also put one on the pig. It was the most comical thing I ever saw, and it caused no end of fun. One of our fellows stayed with it all night to keep the respirator on, but it was worth the trouble. It saved the pig's life and also our dinners."

NEW WAR SUPPLY PORT.

Shipment of Supplies from U. S. to Russia will be Facilitated.

NEW YORK, March 24.—The Russian port of Nikolaievsk, at the mouth of the Amur river, in Siberia, will be opened for navigation on June 24, providing a new channel for the importation of goods from the United States, the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce in this city was informed by a cable message received yesterday from Moscow. The opening of the new port is expected to facilitate greatly shipments to Russia because of the traffic congestion at Vladivostock resulting from the unloading there of enormous quantities of war munitions and other government supplies

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

RECONCILED BY ACCIDENT.

The Girl That Helped John's Mother in an Emergency.

By CLARA LOUISE OTIS.

"Six o'clock and all's well.
Wind's in the east and blowing like—everything," caroled a masculine voice.

The woman in the kitchen smiled in spite of herself. "The dear child," she murmured happily, "so much like his father," then to the "child," a tall young man of twenty-four, just entering the kitchen: "You're early tonight, dear. Supper won't be ready for ten minutes."

"Oh, that's all right." John Williams gave his mother a vigorous hug. "How is mother?"

"Well. And John?"

"Fine. Say, mother!"

"Yes, dear?"

"How would you like a daughter-in-law?"

Mary Williams set down the frying pan and faced her son with a dazed expression. "A daughter-in-law?" she repeated blankly. A blinding rush of tears came to her eyes, and the little room seemed to be whirling around. "Oh, John!" was all she said, but the bitter disappointment of those two words was not lost on the young man.

"I'm sorry," he said briefly and left the room.

Memories one after the other crowded fast before her. Her husband had died when John was three, and they had been so happy! And since John had grown to manhood how happy he had made her! Yet—yet he was going to bring another woman there—another woman! The odor of scorching meat made her start.

"Come, supper's ready," she called in what was intended to be her natural voice.

"Tell me about it," faltered Mary after they had sat in silence for some minutes.

"Not if you don't want to hear, mother."

The hurt, proud tones brought contrition to her heart.

"I do want to hear." The words were true in more ways than one.

"Her name is Kitty—Kitty Marvin."

"And"—

"Oh, mother, mother! I've wanted to tell you so! Are you sure you want to hear?"

"Yes, yes!" She flashed out the words lest John should divine her sinking heart. She smiled too.

Seeing only his mother's smile, John launched into the dear topic. "She hasn't lived here long, only since May. I didn't tell you because—well, to tell the truth, I was afraid you'd be all cut up about it. Besides, it wasn't settled until last night. Why, mother, you're crying! Are you sorry?"

"No, no! I'm—glad! Go on!"

"I met her last year out at the lake. Do you remember my speaking of those girls out there? I knew then she was the only one in the world for me." John spoke very softly.

So he had cherished this girl in his heart a whole year, and she had thought herself to be his all in all!

"Wasn't it strange, mother," went on the young man in a subdued voice, as if his happiness was still a wonderful thing, to be reverenced and held in awe—"wasn't it strange that she should move here, not knowing it was my home?"

"Yes. Tell me everything, dear."

"All right. She is little and slim and has gray eyes." Mary Williams was built on generous, capable lines, and her eyes were brown. "Her hair is like yours—brown and heavy. She gives music lessons." Mary had no accomplishments except housekeeping. "She sings, too—oh, mother, you ought to hear her sing! And she is as quick as a bird and the prettiest dancer."

"Can she cook?"

"Well, I don't know, but she can do everything else. You see, there are so many in her family that it's hard to tell just who does do the work. I know she can sew, for she showed me a dress last night that she made."

After the supper work was done and John had gone off whistling Mary sat down by the fire. "O God, give me strength to bear it!" she prayed fiercely, holding tight to the arms of the chair, then relaxing in a sudden burst of resentful tears. "How can he—how can he bring that girl here—that Kitty?" ran her rebellious thoughts, and she forgot about her prayer. "Why, her very name sounds good for nothing. If I was an old woman it would be different, but I'm only forty-seven and as strong as ever. This is my house, my own house, and I keep it my own way. Yet a girl is going to come in and shove me back—me, who loves John more than she ever could! Don't I always come home early from sewing society so as to have John's supper on time? Don't I make his shirts, when almost every man buys them ready made? Wouldn't I do his washing if he would let me? Oh, she can't love him as I do? Probably she won't even let him smoke in peace. Oh, she can't come—she just can't!"

For an hour she poured out the rebellion in her soul to the leaping, sympathetic fire, then sank back exhausted. "How selfish I am!" she cried aloud. "I'll have to bear it. John's a man now." As she grew more calm she looked with disgust at her outburst. "I act like a baby! I guess I'm made of better stuff than that, and this is the last foolishness you'll hear from me. If my son's going to be married, why, he's going to be married—that's all."

But she forgot to be on her guard the next morning when John enthusiastically remarked that she should have heard Kitty sing "Dearie" the night before. "Dearie"—what a foolish name for a song! And with that one contemptuous thought all the bitterness of the thing came back to her.

"Do you always have to talk about her—even at the breakfast table?"

John's lips came together in a straight line. "I thought"—he began, then stopped abruptly. Ten minutes later he left the house in silence.

Mary would have given all she possessed to recall those words. A sort of hopelessness came over her. If she could control herself no better than that now, what would she do later?

If she only could be sure that the girl would be sensible! From John's description it didn't seem as if she could possibly be. "He has lost his head over some little flirt," she told herself, "and I can't stop him. I wonder if he will forgive me. I—I'm afraid not."

At supper that night her doubts were confirmed. John talked steadily about the weather, the shop, the garden—everything but Kitty. She longed to break in herself with the subject.

Two days passed. Then she could stand it no longer.

"John, I'm sorry"—

He motioned her to silence. "You have let me know very plainly that you don't want me to talk about her, and I won't."

Nor did he. A week passed by, then two—distressing weeks for them both.

"You came near losing your supper tonight," announced Mary one evening.

"Why, how is that?"

"I was downtown, waiting to take the 4:20 car, when, all at once, I dropped one of my parcels and everything in it rolled into the street. The car was in sight, and you know there isn't another until 5:20. I knew I couldn't get all the thread and buttons picked up in time, and I was thinking, 'Oh, dear, John won't have any supper until 7 o'clock,' when, all of a sudden, some one said, 'Let me help you.' It was some young girl, and, I declare, I never saw any one pick up things so fast in my life! I knew just enough to open my bag while she shoved them in. Then the car stopped, and she helped me on—not as she would some old lady, but just as if I was one of her girl friends. I never expect to see any one so handy and sweet as that again. I didn't notice what she looked like—I was that flurried—but I did see that she had on an odd, foreign looking ring."

"What sort of ring?"

"Silver. It had two bands joined together by little crosspieces, and there was a big green stone. Wasn't it funny that I should notice all those little things, and—my, what's the matter?"

"Nothing, mother, only—that was Kitty!"

Would Wake Up With Smothering Spells.

There is nothing that brings with it such a fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The terrible smothering, choking up and sinking feeling is caused by the heart and nerves being in a deranged condition, and calls for prompt relief.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in all cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, tone up the nervous system, and the trouble which is the cause of so much fear and anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. Wm. McIlwain, Temperance Vale, N.B., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I must say Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are all right. Some years ago I was troubled with smothering spells. In the night I would be sound asleep, but would wake up with my breath all gone, and think I would never get it back again. I was telling a friend of my trouble, and he advised me to use Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. He also gave me a box which I tried, and I had only taken a few of them when I could sleep all night without any trouble. I did not finish the box until some years later, when I felt my trouble coming back. I took the rest and they have cured me entirely."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SLAVES OF THE DESERT.

A Lashing Taken With Gratitude by the Emir's Servants.

Abd-er-Rahman wore a heavy scowl that boded ill for some one, and his fingers caressed his rawhide hoorbag as he watched the camels being laden. When all was ready to start he called out four names, and four dejected looking Arabs answered shamefacedly to the summons.

The emir spoke to them dispassionately, as one might speak to one's dog, and then, tossing his hoorbag to the nearest of the four culprits, he bade him lay on a dozen of the best, while he watched and criticised each stroke with grim earnestness.

It was not a pleasant sight to watch, and I thought it policy to turn aside, but the rest of the caravan thoroughly enjoyed the exhibition and greeted each well laid blow with approval.

When the punishment was completed each of the culprits in turn came forward and kissed the emir's feet, thanking him for his mercy and calling Allah to witness that they were his dogs to do with as he wished.

From their subsequent conduct I have no reason to believe that they did not mean every word they said, though at the time I was skeptical. It is not every day that one learns such an object lesson in humility and feudal service.—Wide World Magazine.

A Lesson in Astronomy.

The late Sir Robert Ball, the famous astronomer, a keen humorist, was never loath to recount a joke at his own expense. He was dining with some friends at Stratford, and on the bill being presented he said to the landlady:

"Madam, I am going to give you a lesson in astronomy. In twenty-five million years all things must return to their original condition. We shall all be here again eating a dinner precisely identical. Will you give us credit until we come back?"

"Well," replied the landlady, "you were here twenty-five million years ago, and you left without paying the bill then. Settle that account and I will trust you for what you have had to-day."

Women Car Conductors in England.

In England the Bradford City Tramways Committee has decided to employ women as conductors on the cars. Women are therefore to be employed experimentally on certain routes. The rates of wages and hours of duty are to be the same as for men, except that the women are to have longer meal relief. In Sheffield it is reported that of 530 car conductors 250 are women.

WIFE PRAISED FOR KILLING ENGLISH

FREDERICK, Md., March 24.—Following her quick exoneration of blame by a Coroner's jury for having killed her husband yesterday, Mrs. Eloise Young English, daughter of the late McClintock Young, is the heroine of this section of Maryland today. She and her three children are at the home of her sister, Mrs. Baker Johnson, and Mrs. English is under the care of a physician.

Hardy mountaineers are guarding the home up in the mountains where Arthur English, New York attorney and son of the late Arthur Dunn English, author of "Ben Bolt," was shot twelve times by his wife in defending herself and her children. No one is permitted to enter until Mrs. English is able to return and take from the house anything she may not wish strangers to see.

By these mountaineers and by the people of Frederick, where Mrs. English was recognized as its most beautiful young woman before she went away as a bride sixteen years ago, she is to-day being highly praised for killing the man with whom she had been so unhappy. If any one seeks trouble here let him say anything against her act. So far as the authorities are concerned the incident is closed except for the shipping of the body to New York for burial. This is being done at the direction of Arthur Dunn English of New York, a son by a previous marriage.

It is believed here that English took his family to the old house up in the mountains for no good reason and they say she probably killed him at a moment when he had arranged to end her life. Otherwise, they ask, why would he give up a large law practice in New York and lodge his family in a house which always had been held in suspicion, remote from any settlement and little seen by anyone.

The house before the civil war was known as the Fox's Den. In those days it was the headquarters of a lawless band of mountain desperadoes, and there they kept their women and their plunder. It was the scene of many raids by sheriffs and soldiers. Later, it became known as a haunted house, and in it, from time to time, lived poverty stricken families, most of them of low repute. Numerous crimes had been committed there, and it was a place the mention of which caused a shudder to run through decent folk.

But English, whose mind is believed to have been abnormal in recent years selected this uncanny spot to lodge his wife and three children taking them from a comfortable home in New York, where they were accustomed to the refinements and luxuries his standing permitted. It is known she opposed going to the Fox's Den. As a child she had shuddered at the mention of the name and as a young woman she knew it was a place to be shunned.

Listen to what Nurse WINCARNIS says about—

Nerve Troubles

OUR nerves are like an intricate network of telegraph wires—connecting the brain with every part of the body. These "Wires" are controlled and nourished by a portion of the brain known as the nerve centres. And the condition of the nerve centres depends upon the condition of the body's health. When your health is lowered all the nerves suffer in sympathy—and headaches, nervous prostration, neuralgia, and kindred troubles result. Nothing, then, can equal WINCARNIS. WINCARNIS is a powerful nerve food—acting upon the delicate nerve centres and giving new life—new nourishment—new vitality. The result is wonderful. Will you try it.

Forget Marriage Contract and Dower in New Nuptials

Genuine Courtship, Wartime Innovation in France—Will It Outlast the War?

PARIS, March 10.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Genuine courtship—real, love-making—as an incident to marriage is one of the innovations that war has brought to France. It may develop into a revolution of the marriage system, and is almost certain in any case to be the death of much of the red tape that has entangled, and more or less strangled, cupid.

Marriage was hard hit during the first months of the war, but by reason of the authorization of unions by proxy and the infusion of war romance, it is rapidly recovering.

In Paris there were only 700 marriages in January, 1915, as against 2,841 in January, 1914. In December, 1915, there were 1,200, showing a remarkable recovery under the circumstances.

In a great many of these war marriages, it is noticed that girls without fortune are for the time being running their more favoured sisters a close race, since in a great proportion of the marriages celebrated since hostilities began the marriage contract has been dispensed with no mention of dower nor talk about money; romance has taken the place of finance.

Wounded heroes have in hundreds of cases fallen in love with and married their nurses; nearly every day the story is told of some man in a fighting regiment corresponding with an unknown sympathizer who has come home on leave to find that his "godmother" is worth marrying for herself.

"Flirt At the Front."

Women and girls acting as "godmothers" to unknown correspondents at the front have developed what is slightly called "the flirt at the front," into formidable proportions, and this is at this moment perhaps the most efficient marriage agency in the world. The sacrifices made by some girls marrying soldiers who have been blinded or maimed almost to the point of total helplessness have spread the contagion, and love affairs are born at every hand by the close communion of sympathetic minds centred on great events, and through the constant movement of soldiers coming in contact with new faces, every one of which under present circumstances is bound to be sympathetic.

Some psychologists have inquired whether there was not in France a crying need for deeper affection, and whether the decreasing natality in the country was not due in great part to the obstacles of marriage and the more material considerations that always entered into it. The soul-stirring incidents of the war have unquestionably brought everyone into closer union and there seems to have been a general wiping out of old scores that kept acquaintances and even families apart. There have been many reconciliations through the exchange of news of the exploits of mutual friends, and many instances of divided families being re-united over the tomb of a fallen hero.

Attraction of Young Hearts.

Young people are now being brought together not by contract nor by the attraction of wealth, but simply by the greater force now asserting itself of young hearts and common wills. It is asked whether it will continue after the war, and what effect it will have upon the future of France; an idealistic people, after being held in materialistic bondage so far as concerns so vital a question to the race, is coming out as strong in the present irresistible appeal to romanticism that many believe it will result in a transformation, if not in a revolution, of the marriage system. Some contend that men will marry younger and marry for love instead of for money, will marry more in reason and sincerity, and that with the stronger tie of affection taking the place of interest, divorces will become less while the population will grow correspondingly more numerous.

24 DAYS IN A SUB. IN MARMORA SEA

The story of how the British submarine E-7 entered the Sea of Marmora and operating for twenty-four days sank twenty-three ships, shelled two railway trains, and did other damage, is told in a letter received on this side of the Atlantic the other day. The letter was written by a young officer who was on the E-7. The Cochrane who is referred to as "absolutely splendid" is the commander of the E-7. He says:

"We returned safely after twenty-four days up the Dardanelles in the sea of Marmora. It is hopeless to try to give a detailed account in a letter, but you can take it from me it was a fine show. We broke all previous records. Cochrane was absolutely splendid. The tale of our doings is the sort of thing one reads of in the old days. We went around the Sea of Marmora, leaving a trail of sunk and burning ships. We fairly shook things to the core.

"We are the first submarine in history to bombard a place on shore under fire. I think we were under fire about three times a day on an average, and penetrated into all sorts of places and destroyed shipping. We even shelled a railway and destroyed two troop trains. We shelled the embankment and blocked the line, and then caught the trains as they came along. It was the funniest thing you can imagine to see the trains try to hide behind trees, but we caught them, and smashed them to blazes. The ammunition all blew up with a terrible explosion. The soldiers, of course, got out and took cover and fired tons of ammunition at us, but we were out of range.

"Altogether we sunk one gunboat, five steamers, (one of 3,000 tons), and seventeen large sailing ships, and hit two trains, one railway embankment, and a few villagers who fired on us, and got it in the neck for doing so. We also dived up to Constantinople, and fired a torpedo at the wharf at the arsenal, where there were a lot of ammunition lighters, and there was a most terrific explosion, which shook the boat, although we were one and one-quarter miles away. What happened I don't know, but something must have got it in the neck, judging by the bang. We had a small duel with a small gunboat one day, on the surface, and drove her off, although she fired 200 rounds from her two guns. After that we were left alone, and everything ran like blazes when we got anywhere near.

The only drawback was that we all had dysentery, and Halifax, the second officer, and a seaman got badly burned setting fire to a steamer, so Cochrane and I had to keep watch all the time, and by the time twenty-four days were gone we were absolutely done up. What Halifax went through with his burned feet, for three weeks below I don't know.

"We had no trouble in diving in the Sea of Marmora, but when we came down we had an awful time, as the Turks had rigged up all sorts of nets and things to catch us, and we got mixed up in them, and also were fouled by mines three times.

"The reception we got in the harbor was great. The whole fleet and everything manned the rails and cheered us madly. Just imagine us—all dirty and unshaven, and the flag with bullet holes all over it, and conning tower all dents from bullets and rusty—steaming through the lines and thousands of men cheering like mad. Battleships, cruisers, torpedo boats, transports, and the captains leading the cheers. It was great! I have heard cheers before, but this was the real thing. Poor old Cochrane's eyes were full of tears as he saluted to the cries of 'Are we downhearted?' And 'Weel don, E-7!'

"At present I am resting on land and basking in the light of popular favor. It is very nice to be a hero among one's own cloth, you know, because they really mean it, and they really understand."

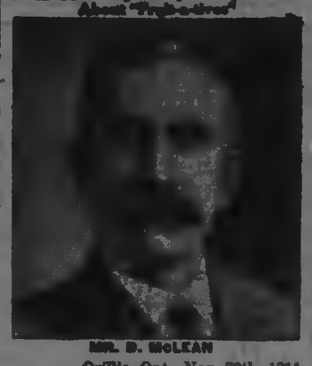
Further Evidence is Obtained in Case Against Dr. Waite.

New York, March 25.—Soon after Dr. Arthur W. Waite, accused of poisoning his father-in-law, John E. Peck, wealthy druggist of Grand Rapids, had denied the charge to-day, District Attorney Swann announced that he had obtained a voucher from a druggist signed with Waite's name for the purchase of a quantity of arsenic on March 9, three days before Peck's death.

District Attorney Swann said the druggist's record showed that Waite had purchased enough arsenic to kill several men.

WILL WE EVER WALK ON AIR?

Train Of Thought Inspired By a Letter About "Fruit-a-tives"



MR. D. McLEAN

Orillia, Ont., Nov. 20th, 1914.

"For over two years, I was troubled with Constipation, Drowsiness, Lack of Appetite and Headaches. I tried several medicines, but got no results and my Headaches became more severe. One day I saw your sign which read 'Fruit-a-tives' make you feel like walking on air. This appealed to me, so I decided to try a box. In a very short time, I began to feel better, and now I feel fine. Now I have a good appetite, relish everything I eat, and the Headaches are gone entirely. I cannot say too much for 'Fruit-a-tives', and recommend this pleasant fruit medicine to all my friends". DAN McLEAN.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is daily proving its priceless value in relieving cases of Stomach, Liver and Kidney Trouble—General Weakness, and Skin Diseases.

FIGHT FOR MILLION BEGINS.

Bridegroom of 78 Dies and Young Widow Has Possession of Estate.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Captain Jacob I. Housman, one of the oldest and wealthiest residents of Staten Island, died yesterday of pneumonia. His death was announced by his young bride, formerly Miss Lulu Carleton, of Patchogue, L.I., who, as his nurse, had won his heart.

The news caused surprise, as in the county court on Monday, when his son and daughter tried to have him declared incompetent because he, in his seventy-eight year, had married his young nurse, nothing was said of his illness.

Following the news of his death attorneys on Staten Island looked for a long litigation for possession of his estate, the contestants being the son, Jacob I. Housman, Jr., and his daughter, Mrs. Percival S. Jones, both of New York, and opposed to the nurse bride.

The widow is in entire possession of the estate.

A SPLENEID WAY TO REDUCE ONE'S WEIGHT

There is perhaps no one thing that shows the passing of our youth so much as the horrible tendency of some of us to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 25 or 30. However young our face may appear our figure "gives us away."

The cause of this over-stoutness is that our stomachs convert the food we eat into fat because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to destroy the fatty tissue. To reduce your weight go to a good druggist and get oil of orlene in capsule form and take one after each meal. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Oil of orlene taken at meal-times gives you all the benefit of the food you eat and at the same time dissolves the fatty tissue from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. In this way many have reduced their weight at the rate of about a lb. a day, and no flabbiness is left.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Canada.

New Decrees of Fashion

Many are the petticoats that are designed to wear under the fashionably full skirt of the day. One is a net foundation, with several hoops of whalebone. One is a heavily corded silk petticoat. Another shows many small, stiff ruffles to give the desired support.

Fruits are used on Spring hats. They are in low relief, so to speak, usually made of velvet, and their colors are very attractive on dark blue, brown or black hats.

Embroidered scallops are shown on some of the new blouses, edging cuffs, collars and other trimmings.

Steel buttons for trimming are used on blouses.

Some of the new chiffon blouses show satin cards in the seams in matching color.

Satin-covered buttons and satin-piped buttonholes are also used in these new chiffon blouses.

Pale mauve and pale pink are charmingly combined in some of the new chiffon and crepe underwear.

Shower bouquets of ribbon, rosettes with many ends, like the ends of ribbon falling from the bride's bouquet, are used to trim some of the new negligees.

Cheeks, which made their appearance in suit fabric last Autumn, are much in vogue in early Spring suits.

Heights in hats, a desirably feature, is often achieved by the use of a huge, stiff ribbon bow.

A cape of tulle that envelops chin and ears and drops over the shoulders is a feature of some afternoon models.

The square decolletage is used in some of the new evening gowns. So are the round and V-shaped lines.

Then there is the line that is off at the shoulders.

Some of the Paris dressmakers are recommending high-necked dinner frocks with transparent bodices instead of those with a very low neck line.

Black is used in combination with oyster white, and in combination, too with the various shades of cream that are in fashion.

This black trimming takes the form of braid, satin piping, and black machine stitching.

FOR PEOPLE WHO WOULD LIVE LONG

Dr. Frank Crane, who has a fine faculty for putting facts in attractive form, has taken a report on 107 cases of longevity printed in the British Health Review, and made the following deductions:

There were few bachelors or old maids in the lot.

Most all of the persons examined had spent much of their time out of doors. The house, the close room, is the chief of life-shorteners.

Very few indulged, or had habitually indulged, in stimulants, such as alcohol, tobacco, tea, and coffee. There is no doubt as to the value of stimulants; the trouble is they are costly; the price we pay is—life.

They used very little medicine.

Most were of cheerful habits, worried little, and laughed a deal.

Most of them, including the wealthy, had worked all their lives, and most of them had continued their activities even in advanced years. A favorite form of suicide among folks past fifty is to stop work.

Scarcely any of them were fat. Few fleshy people grow very old.

They were nearly all great sleepers. They went to bed early and rose early. Those whose activities are by artificial light have little insurance of old age.

All were careful and moderate eaters. To eat what you like and all you like may be a merry life, but it will be a short one. The curse of modern life is overfeeding.

Very few ate much meat. Most ate it sparingly. Many not at all. Meat really belongs to the stimulant group along with alcohol and coffee; all the food value there is in it can be obtained from other sources without the poison.

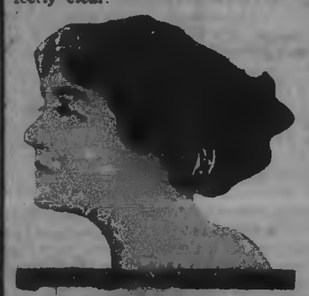
Almost all were large drinkers of water, but not mineral water.

Most of them were great readers, especially in later life.—Commerce and Finance.

Faces As Fair As A Summer's Day

Are Possible If Stuart's Calcium Wafers Are Used for a Short Time After Each Meal.

Many people have been heard to say that they used creams and lotions for years without effect, yet after five or six days of Stuart's Calcium Wafers their complexions were perfectly clear.



"I Got Rid of Blackheads in a Jiffy by Using Stuart's Calcium Wafers."

They contain no poisonous drug of any kind, are perfectly harmless and can be taken with absolute freedom and they work almost like magic. Calcium Sulphide, their principal ingredient, is the greatest blood-cleanser known to science.

Left Arm Became Powerless Saved From Paralytic Stroke

By The Timely Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food — Has Built Up Nervous System Wonderfully.

Paralysis is not a pleasant thing to contemplate. Even nervous prostration and locomotor ataxia are among the most dreaded conditions. It is always better to avoid these results of neglected nervous troubles by keeping the nerves in health and vigor.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done wonders for people suffering from the more severe forms of nervous diseases, but we prefer to recommend it as a means of preventing such conditions.

This letter from Mrs. Nichols will represents what we mean, for she was undoubtedly on the verge of more serious trouble when she heard of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and sought its aid.

It is best to be warned by nervous headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness and irritability and to apply the remedy in time.

Mrs. Merritt Nichols, R. R. No. 3, Dundalk, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in writing to tell you the great benefit I have derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was so nervous I could not sleep and found it hard to get my work done at all, but having no help at the time, had to do the best I could. Finally my left arm became powerless and cold and this continued to get worse until my whole side was affected, head and all. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the first box helped me so much that I used several and believe that this treatment saved me from having a paralytic stroke. It has built me up wonderfully, and I can recommend it most heartily, believing that if more Nerve Food were used, there would be much less sickness."

There is no lack of evidence as to the great work of restoration being carried on by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The sales of this great nerve tonic are rapidly increasing as its virtues are being found out. But this will not help you unless you put it to the test in your own particular case. It is well worth trying, and will not disappoint you. Fifty cents a box, 6 for $2.50 all dealers, or Edmanson Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

DE LAVAL Cream Separators

Buying a Cream Separator is a good deal like hiring a man to work on your farm. A hired man that does poor work, and is lazy, is an expensive proposition, no matter how little you pay him. A cream separator that is hard to turn, hard to keep clean, and doesn't skim close would be expensive, even if you got it as a gift.

CREAMERYMEN AND DAIRYMEN ALL OVER THE WORLD RECOGNIZE THE SUPERIORITY OF THE DE LAVAL.

About the only reason why any one ever buys any other cream separator is because they can get it a little cheaper. Then they soon find out they have lost ten times as much from separator inconvenience, poor skimming, and a machine that quickly wears out, as they saved in the beginning.

Remember that a De Laval will soon pay for itself, and if you have no separator now, or an inferior machine, you can buy a De Laval on such terms that it will pay for itself while you are using it.

The best cream separator is the cheapest. Let our nearest agent call and prove it to you on your own farm, or write us direct.

SOONER OR LATER YOU WILL BUY A DE LAVAL.

ARTILLERY DUELS ON WESTERN FRONT

BERLIN ADMITS THE LOSS OE TRENCHES TO RUSSIAN FORCES

Lines Heavily Shelled By Russian Drum Fire Says Despatch From Berlin---Germans Had to Draw Back to Their Second Lines---Foe's Attacks in The West Are Not Renewed.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

BERLIN, March 25.—Military activity on the northern sector of the eastern battle front continues despite alternating rain and snow. The Russian drug fire was heavy on the night of March 20th, and in the early morning of March 21st, in the vicinity of Narocz and Wisniew lakes, and it was particularly heavy just south of Narocz Lake. The Russians directed their main attack against this small salient with harassing concentric fire, and the Germans drew back to their second line to avoid unnecessary losses. The Russians who came forward in heacy attacking columns were sanguinarily repulsed and the Germans followed them to Blianiki and then retired. The Russians did not follow them the second time. The Russians succeeded in capturing some trenches to the south of Wileit.

PARIS, March 25.—The Germans did not renew their infantry attacks against the French front northwest of Verdun. There were no important infantry engagements on either bank of the Muese and in the Woevre district, the activity was confined to artillery duels.

SOCIALISTS CREATE DISTURBANCE IN THE GERMAN REICHSTAG

COPENHAGEN, March 25.—A violent scene in the German Reichstag preceded a withdrawal of eighteen members from the Socialist party, Berlin advices reported to-day.

Speaking in the Budget debate, Dr. Haase, a radical Socialist, shouted that Germany will never win the war.

"In fact, none of the belligerents will win," he said. The Socialists of all countries hate war. We want peace."

Members of the Reichstag crowded about Haase and attempted to quiet him. In the midst of the tumult, Philip Scheidmann, the Socialist who recently questioned Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg on peace terms, came to the defense of the Government. Scheidmann declared the Socialist party would never desert Germany in the war.

When Haase attempted to reply, he was surrounded by deputies who threatened to strike him. The President of the Reichstag adjourned the sitting. Eighteen Socialists then withdrew, organized a new party known as the Socialist Labour community, and elected Haase their leader.

A GERMAN RAIDER AND BRITISH CRUISER DESTROYED

LONDON, March 25.—The German raider Greif and British merchant cruiser Alcantra, were both sunk in an engagement in the North Sea on February 29, the Admiralty announced this afternoon.

The Greif was an unprotected German cruiser displacing 2,028 tons, 317 feet long, and with a 32-foot beam. She carried a crew of about 180 men. Her armament according to naval lists issued before the war, consisted of eight 3.4-inch guns. There is no British merchant steamer named the Alcantra listed in the shipping registers. It appears probable, however, that the big Royal Mail liner Alcantra displacing 15,300 tons, was the vessel engaged.

LONDON, March 25.—Although the loss of the British auxiliary cruiser Alcantra with sixty officers and men is deeply regretted here as a result of her fight with the German raider Greif, with German casualties of three hundred, it is hailed here as a distinct victory for the British, as the Greif would likely have done incalculable damage to British shipping if she had managed to clear through the British blockade out to the open.

DOMINION LINER WAS SUNK OFF THE BRITISH COAST

PORTLAND, Maine, March 25.—Forty-one American horse tenders are believed to have been aboard the Dominion liner Englishmen when she was sunk off the British coast while en route to this port from Avonmouth. Despatches from London last night asserted that sixty-eight persons were saved. The Englishman was returning to Portland to take on horses purchased in the United States for the Allies. The Englishman was a 5,237-ton steamer, owned and registered at Liverpool.

LONDON, March 25.—Most serious situation since the torpedoing of the Lusitania threatened German-American relations to-day with reports of the torpedoing of the Channel liner Sussex with a possible loss of American lives, and that four Americans had lost their lives through the sinking of the Dominion liner Englishman. This was the viewpoint of British officials to-day, who anxiously awaited more news of the Sussex disaster.

COPENHAGEN, March 25.—Norway has made a demand on Germany for an investigation of the sinking of the Norwegian ships Lindfield and Kannike, according to Christiania despatches to-day.

LONDON, March 25.—A Petrograd despatch reports that preparations are being made for the arrival of Emperor William at Vilna, where is to supervise the direction of important operations. Detectives from Berlin have already reached the city to clear it of suspicious characters.

380 PASSENGERS ARE RESCUED FROM STEAMER SUSSEX

Channel Liner is Being Towed into a French Port With the Crew Still on Board it is Announced To-day

CAUSE IS NOT KNOWN

LONDON, March 25.—Patrol boats rescued 380 passengers aboard the Channel liner 'Sussex,' which was badly damaged by an explosion and is taking them into Boulogne, according to a despatch from Dieppe to-day. The crew is still aboard the Sussex, which is being towed into a French port.

About twenty Americans were on the Sussex. John H. Hurley, United Press Staff correspondent, who left London yesterday morning for Paris, is believed to have been aboard. Of 380 passengers, 270 were women or children.

The nature of the explosion is not yet definitely known. Agents of the line said early to-day that they had no information as to whether Sussex was torpedoed or struck one of the mines. Germans are reported to have been sowing in the Channel.

Recruiting Rally In Havelock

Three Recruits Were Secured at The Close of the Meeting—Band Paraded

An enthusiastic recruiting meeting was held in Havelock last evening. Mr. Fennell occupied the chair. A feature of the evening was the presentation of a gold medal on behalf of the town to Private Buchanan, who recently returned from the front. The presentation was made by Mr. Brown. Among the speakers were Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., G. A. Thompson, M.P.P., Lieut.-Col. Johnston, officer commanding the 93rd Battalion, Sergt. Playford, Adjutant McElheney and three local ministers. Master Percy Luther contributed a number of recitations. The band of the 93rd Battalion was in attendance.

The band, augmented by the Havelock platoon, numbering about fifty men, paraded in the afternoon. Three recruits were secured at the close of the meeting. The sum of thirty dollars was collected. This will be turned over to the local Patriotic League.

Brock St. Rink Skating To-night

All Signs Point to This Being The Last Saturday Night For Skating

Unless all signs fail, to-night will be the last opportunity for a Saturday night skate at Brock street rink. The ice is fine and the 93rd Battalion Band will be in attendance. Take advantage of the ice while it is here.

A DOMINION CENSUS STRONGLY RECOMMENDED

The Speakers' Patriotic League at its meeting Thursday night endorsed the proposal of The Hamilton Recruiting League that the only efficient way to handle recruiting is to have the Dominion Government take a census of all men from 18 years of age upwards, and of all our industries with a view to immediate application of some just and efficient system for the filling up of the necessary regiments for Canada to do her full duty in this war.

The League also passed another resolution requesting the City Council to reconsider the matter of the 57th Band grant in view of the past valuable services of the Band in recruiting, and the necessity of having a Band for future recruiting purposes.

FIGHT RETURNS TO BE GIVEN OUT BY THE SPORTMEN'S ASSOCIATION

Reports of the Willard-Moran Go Will Be Bulletined at the Corner of Charlotte and George Sts.---Capt. Williams to Speak To-morrow Night---93rd Will Soon be at 900 Mark---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

The Sportsmen's Patriotic Association, organized this week to assist the 93rd Battalion, is already proving a live wire. The Association has made arrangements with the Examiner by which the full reports of the Willard-Moran fight in New York will be given at the corner of Charlotte and George streets to-night. There is great interest in the battle of the heavyweights and in view of the fine weather it is expected that there will be a monster crowd on hand when the reports start to come in. A sheet will be fixed to the wall of the Customs House and the returns will be thrown on the screen from a window of the market building. The fight starts at 9.30 o'clock and the returns should start to come in soon after that hour. The arrangement will give the fight fans of the city a chance to follow the battle round by round. The Sportsmen's Patriotic Association are to be congratulated upon their enterprise.

The 93rd Battalion expects to pass the 900 stage in the course of the next few days. The efforts of the committee have told largely in the last few days, and the battalion has jumped up to the 880 mark since Thursday. The meetings in the county and city are expected to bring big results.

It is interesting to point out that Cobourg, the county town of Northumberland, and the place that advertised its loyalty so highly, has not succeeded in raising a platoon for the 139th Northumberland battalion. Capt. Rosser of the 139th, informed the audience at a recruiting meeting the other night that Cobourg had contributed only 45 men out of a total of 850 in the battalion. 200 is considered Cobourg's share in the work.

Belleville, March 24.— Recruiting for the 155th Battalion here is going on in a satisfactory manner. The strength of the battalion is now over 800. To-day twenty-two recruits were attested and passed.

Col. Ogilvie, A.A.G., of the third division, was in the city to-day inspecting the quarters of the 80th and 155 Battalion.

Cobourg, March 24.— Yesterday it was officially announced that the strength of the 139th Overseas Battalion was 863.

Col. T. H. Ogilvie, A.A.G., third division, Kingston, was in town yesterday inspecting the military units here.

Adjutant 93rd Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.

Pte. George R. Butcher, of the First Canadian Mounted Rifles' Battalion, writing to Mrs. Palmer, McDonnell street, of the Wives' and Mothers' Club, acknowledging a pair of socks, says:

"I received your parcel of a pair of socks sent by the Wives' and Mothers' Club, last Saturday night, and wish to thank you ever so much for them. They are a very useful article in this country under the circumstances, and the boys can never have too many of them. It is certainly very pleasing to think that even if a person is a long way from home, he is not forgotten by those left behind, and to whom we all hope to return as soon as possible.

Thanking you again, I remain,
Gratefully yours,
GEO. R. BUTCHER.

Pte. Aubrey Elliston, of the 97th Battalion, American Legion, Toronto, has been invalided home.

27 MILL RATE RESULT OF COUNCIL'S PRUNING

Committee of The Whole Recommended it Last Night And This Includes Provincial War Tax and Garbage Tax—General Purpose Tax is 25.3 Mills.

SOME HELPFUL SAVING

General rate	25.30 mills.
Provincial war tax	1.00 mills
Garbage collection	.70 mills
Total	27.00 mills
Increase over 1915	.3 mills

The Committee of the Whole Council recommended last night that the tax rate for general purposes this year be fixed at 25 3-10 mills, on motion of Ald. Stratton, seconded by Ald. Evans. To this must be added the Provincial war tax of one mill, and the garbage tax rate of 7-10 of a mill. Ald. Stratton stated that this was an increase of 6-10 of a mill over last year's rate, and doubtless the Aldermanic pruners feel satisfied that they have something to show for their recent efforts.

Voicing the opinion that the ratepayers would feel no gratitude for the Council's fine paring, Ald. Dobbin moved that the rate be 27 1-2 mills, thereby obviating the reduction in civic salaries. Ald. Edgar seconded this motion, with the rate reduced to 27 1-4 mills, Ald. Dobbin agreeing. It was a final and fruitless attempt to discard the Langford economy, as modified by Ald. Evans at the last meeting. Aldermen Edgar, Dobbin and McIntyre were the sole supporters of a motion that no reductions be made in the salaries of civic employees, and with this parting shot falling short the Council, in regular meeting, will likely adopt the 25.3 mill rate with its partial pruning, no special band grant and other minus quantities. By the way one plus exception should not be overlooked, namely the provision of $3,200, representing .28 mills for a footbridge alongside the C. P. R bridge over the Otonabee.

What Composes Rate.

At a late meeting of the Council in Committee estimates were cut until the prospect of a 25.17 rate for general purposes was practically an assurance. It was at that meeting that the original salary reduction of 10 per cent. over the entire list was changed by Ald. Evans and Ald. Galbraith to 3 3-4 per cent. off salaries of $750 and under, and 7 1-2 per cent. on all salaries over $750, beginning April 1st.

Thus the 25.17 general rate was accepted as a basis, it including schools, civic departmental and other taxes. Added to this are .28 mills for the footbridge and 28 mills representing liquor licenses which had been included as receipts to the extent of $2,700, but which will not be forthcoming if the licenses are withheld on May 1st. Thus as a summary

General purposes	25.17 mills

SINNFEINISM DOES NOT EXIST IN GREAT BRITAIN

It's Hundred or so Adherents Were Overwhelmed by Popular Wrath Within a Fortnight After the Opening of the War—Capable Men Seek Employment

A CONTRAST

By T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, March 25.—I have returned to London after a trip to the Irish centres in the Provinces. During the St. Patrick's Day season I found remarkable evidence of the extraordinary unity and fierce ardour wherewith the Irish of Great Britain have entered the struggle against German savagery. It may be said with perfect accuracy that this section of the Irish race has contributed to the British Army a larger proportion of its entire number than any other race in the British Empire. Alderman Harford, leader of the Irish party in the Liverpool Municipal Council, gave detailed returns from the rectors of Catholic parishes in Liverpool, showing that from Liverpool alone between thirty and forty thousand Irishmen joined the army. Similar inquiries in other parts of Britain, especially Lancashire and Glasgow, demonstrate that the Irish recruits in Britain far exceed the original estimates. I must add that many of the twenty-nine Victoria Crosses won by Irish soldiers were won by Irishmen living or born in Britain. Sinnfeinism does not exist in Britain. It's hundred or so adherents were overwhelmed by popular wrath within a fortnight after the opening of the war. Reviewing this with all the events of St. Patrick's Day, demonstrates the extraordinary advance of Ireland's strength and popularity. From the King's speech to the speech of Walter Long, former chief secretary for Ireland and stoutest opponent of Home Rule, there is universal testimony to the gallantry of the Irish soldiers and the largeness of their contribution to the defense of European civilisation these speeches have received additional force from bressy brave speech of Willie Redmond back from trenches, though well over fifty. In short this 9th Patrick's Day conclusively has proved that any attempt to revive the old animosity and suspicion of Ireland among the British no longer is possible and thus adds on another factor. Certainly the remaining states of the Home Rule struggle will pass easily with practically universal assent.

I found a similar story on returning to London where Irish Flag Day became a universal holiday for Englishmen as well as Irishmen. London was one mass of green The same as throughout every Irish town.

In Great Britain eight million Irish flags were sold gaining many thousand of pounds for comforts for Irish soldiers. Many towns unable to organise a flag day celebration sent large subscriptions.

"DOING NOTHING"

The first day that I went to the House of Commons after my visit to France, I went into the smoke room to have my afternoon cup of tea; and there I found myself at the side of a friend of mine to whom I proceeded immediately to give some of my impressions. Then ensued one of the most interesting conversations I have had for some years. When my friend had heard what I had to say, he proceeded to state his own case. There could not have been a much more remarkable of instructive contrast be-

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

This is the time the Horticultural Society makes special appeal to the interest of the citizens. Spring will soon be here and the activities for which the Society stands will be, or should be, in full force. The Society should now have the generous support of the citizens, and its membership should be largely increased. Not only does the society, in its normal functions and achievements collectively benefit the community, but this year it gives larger direct value for membership. Its list of options—free gifts of bulbs, plants and flowers—is larger and more attractive than ever. Besides, this year the Society needs the funds that increased membership would represent. Though the City Fathers, under the circumstances, have dealt liberally with the Society, the necessary reduction of the amount of the annual civic grant should be compensated by an increased membership of about two hundred. This would place the Society upon the normal footing and help it in its work. The work can be made more effective by hearty public cooperation. Its work, or scope of work, moreover, could, with advantage, be enlarged. For instance, the city might not only logically, but very beneficially turn over to the Society the business of tree trimming. If the grant for tree trimming were added to the grant to the Society on condition of its doing the work, it is easily possible that the Society could secure better results, give more skillful and adequate attention to our street trees by the expenditure of $100 than could be got by the expenditure of $200, as at present made, judging by the use made of it in the past. This work is quite in line with the spirit of the Society, and it would be done skillfully and con amore; not unskillfully and perfunctorily.

Citizens are urged to a warmer and more practical interest in the Horticultural Society. The addition of 200 or 300 to the membership would not only materially compensate for the reduced civic grant, but would add a new personal interest in the beautification of the city that would, in results, be more effective than the expenditure of a double grant, unless the hearts of the people were in the work.

THE BATTLE OF PETERBOROUGH

It will not be as alarming as true to say that Peterborough is in a state of war. Reference is not altogether made to the hand-to-hand fight between the city fathers and the tax rate; nor to the bombardment of the police force; nor to the sniping at the salaries of civic officials.

The whole pedestrian population of this city is fighting in the trenches—fighting for dry feet and life—against wet feet as a peril of disease and, possibly, fatal results.

Nearly all over the city, especially on the residence streets where the walks are narrow, they are trenches—ditches filled with water from melting snow, that can't get away on account of the parapet of snow on each side of the walk.

This condition at present seems to be inevitable, for if men with picks and spades undertook the work of drainage the sun would have melted the snow altogether before they finished their work.

Besides, streets are spoiled by neglect of drainage as the normal condition both in early spring and summer. There seems to be nothing more neglected to the injury and deterioration of our streets than surface drainage. This neglect in summer creates mud and cut-up street surfaces, and in the spring wet feet and impassible sidewalks.

The city authorities have not yet solved the problem of dealing satisfactorily with our snow fall. This winter the fall has been rather heavy and the trouble from flooded walks greater. These walks were made made for comfortable use. That is what we are paying for and this payment is what helps swell the tax rate our aldermen are fighting so bravely to wear down.

The problem of snow disposal in its relation to dry walks, is more serious where the car lines are. The street railway people keep their tracks clean and in so doing throw up high banks on either side. This is not an unmixed evil, for pedestrians have, especially early in the day, at least one clear path when perhaps the walks are covered with deep snow.

The problem of dealing with the snow on car streets is one that is not yet solved. The railway company is only obliged—and that in its own interests—to clean the snow from its tracks—and "let the chips fall where they may." Its removal from the street is the work of the city.

In the happy days when it was considered somewhat of a privilege to give franchises away; when the first street railway got its charter to our streets, with the charter went the privilege of sweeping the snow from the tracks upon the street—for the city to remove—at least the railway people were not required to do it.

In this regard perhaps a brighter dawn will break. In the happy future, when the street railway may come under city control, the snow nuidance will be dealt with in a—in the—usual manner, unless the railway is put in the hands of the Utilities Commission.

The accumulated snow on George street is not only a nuisance but a menace to life and the safety of the public. The snow adjoining the edge of the pavement on both sides is at this moment, from a foot to fifteen inches above the level of the walks. This is made relatively higher and more dangerous by the depth of the trench made to carry off water. A day or two ago the runner of an express sleigh slipped sidewise into this trench and a packing case plunged off, knocking two of our oldest citizens down and endangering their lives and limbs. An accident like this is likely to happen any moment during traffic hours. A human life is a big price to pay for the neglect that permits the existence of remediable conditions.

These conditions can be remedied by the more complete removal of the snow. If the depth of snow next the edge of walks is lessened there will not need so deep a trench to carry off the water from melting snow and less dangerous conditions exist.

It has been suggested that on certain streets, if not all, after a considerable snow fall, the road grader be used to keep the gutters open by pushing the snow toward the middle of the street in a ridge that would make its removal easy. This plan may be impracticable, but the engineering department should be able to tell us, especially when it is so plentifully manned, that the city fathers can dispense with two or three of the staff.

If this plan were practicable, it might be applied to residence streets except perhaps in winters of unusually deep snowfall, and we should have provided a means for the escape of the water which at times like the present, make the walks useless for the purposes of pedestrians.

Of course the use of the grader, if that were found practicable, would raise the snow on the driving surface of the streets, but that would be a small matter if it were accompanied with free gutters and prevented the flooding of walks with water that cannot get away.

Perhaps experts will tell us that such a plan would be impracticable. But if they are good experts they may suggest a better way for preventing our sidewalks being made impassable for weeks—off and on—every spring.

We commend the zeal, and earnestness and ingenuity of our city fathers in cutting down the expenditure, and holding down the tax rate to 27 mills; if they made as heroic and determined efforts to give the taxpayer the best value for the money spent—especially upon our streets, we should have better conditions—conditions that would go far to smooth the wry faces we make when our tax bill is delivered.

That would be the first step towards real economy. If we spend money, in a way to get only 90 cents on the dollar value, we should truly economize if we provided to get 100-cents-on-the-dollar value.

That's the fight the people have been making for half a century—that's the battle of Peterborough that is still going on.

Relation of Borrowing Abroad To Canadian Trade Obstruction

The $75,000,000 loan to the Dominion Government by United States financiers will virtually mean the importing of 75 million dollars' worth of goods into this country. Sir Thomas White explained in the Budget speech last year what borrowing abroad meant; to wit, setting up a credit abroad, with the result that goods are imported to Canada practically to the extent of this credit.

Some people are confused by the idea that money borrowed abroad is a loan brought to Canada in the form of coin or paper currency or gold. Referring to the $75,000,000 loan at present being arranged with United States interests, the Finance Minister last Thursday used the term "buying money." Congratulating Sir Thomas on the success of last year's $45,000,000 loan from the United States, Dr. Michael Clark helped to make clear what such borrowing meant, in the following remark:

The Minister said in those loans we were buying money. I think he was a little loose in his expression. He did not mean us to interpret that literally, or we should be exchanging Canadian dollars for United States dollars, and that would not get us very far in the way of beneficia exchange, or in the way of a loan. What he really meant was that we were getting credit. When a man goes to a store and gets goods without money, but gives his I.O.U., he is getting credit.

"By making this latest $75,000,000 loan in the United States," said Dr. Clark, "we are arranging to buy more goods from them." Last year, in the exchange of produce and goods between Canadian and United States traders, the United States products exceeded the Canadian products by $123,000,000. Canadians bought from United States sources 123 million dollars' worth more than they sold to them. This excess of imports over exports is what protectionists term the adverse balance of trade, and profess to worry about. By this year's loan of $75,000,000 in the United States the balance of Canadian indebtedness to American interests will be much the heavier.

Dr. Clark very properly pointed out how the balance might well have been reduced, but for the stubborn policy of the government in opposing the Liberal free wheat measure. The Dominion Government is entirely responsible for obstructing the western farmers in their legitimate desire to export wheat to the United States; and free wheat would tend to even up the exchange between Canada and the United States.

Furthermore while they seem to encourage a policy of making Canada more and more in debt to the United States interests, the federal leaders are equally stubborn in resisting British trade; blocking it by a high tariff wall, and even increasing the tariff by an extra 5 per cent. against British trade since the war began. So that, while Canada has an excess of 123 million dollars worth of imported United States goods, British trade is being driven away from Canada. This year British goods imported for use in Canada were $121,000,000 less than Canadian products sent to Britain.

Dr. Clark took the patriotic and common-sense stand that instead of increasing the tariff against British trade at a time like this, when the Motherland is staggering under the burden of financing the war, the Dominion government should have lowered it or wiped it out altogether. Such a policy would have tended to help, while the present tariff taxation is calculated to embarrass Britain. More British trade with Canada would be beneficial both to the people of this country and the Motherland. Surely it is not consistent with patriotism to be buying more and more from United States sources and less and less from British. The latest $75,000,000 loan, unavoidable though it may seem under the circumstances, will tend to increase this growing disparity between Canadian-British trade and Canadian-United States trade. —Ottawa Citizen (Independent Conservative).

DIVISION OF CIVIC SALARIES

$750 and under	$15,890
750 to $1,200	5,000
Over $1,200	12,450
Total	$33,940

Liquor Men In Ontario May Move To Prov. of Quebec

Nothing to Prevent Them Supplying Their patrons From Adjoining Province, When Prohibition Is Passed

TORONTO, March 25. — Will the leading liquor merchants of this province re-establish their business in Montreal or some centre in Quebec province from which point their Ontario patrons may secure by express such liquors as they require for individual consumption when prohibition comes into force in Ontario? The adoption of such a course is now being seriously considered by at least some of the liquor firms of Toronto who have an extensive trade in individual orders. There is nothing to prevent them continuing to serve their patrons in Ontario by an adoption of such a course. The Doherty bill, the government measure introduced at Ottawa, will be no barrier as it does not prohibit transportation of liquor from one province to another. As the Ontario Temperance Act will not forbid men having liquor in his private residence for private consumption, the Doherty bill becomes worthless as a preventative measure for importation into Ontario of liquor intended for private use.

Dollars saved by Bovril

Bovril used in the Kitchen means dollars saved in the Bank.
It makes nourishing hot dishes out of cold food which would not otherwise be eaten. But see that you get the real thing. If it is not in the Bovril bottle it is not Bovril. And it must be Bovril.

Lemon juice and salt is an excellent medium for cleaning bone knife handles. Apply the lemon juice first and then the salt.

To prevent cheese becoming mouldy and dry wrap in a cloth damped in vinegar and keep in a covered dish.

A handy slicer comes which will cut waferlike slices from apples, potatoes and other vegetables, or thick ones for frying whenever desired.

Prevent the after odour from cleaning with gasolene by using one-third vinegar. This will also prevent a circle from forming around the place cleaned.

Pleasure is good and may not with safety be slighted, but when given first place, it either debases its votary or mocks or eludes him.

Business is good, and it demands most of the powers of most of us; but we need not be its slaves, and cannot afford to be, whatever its reward.

Laughter, merriment, cheerfulness, and everything that conduces to cheerfulness, are absolutely essential to enable us to live our best.

"WHY DON'T YOU ASK THESE OUT-OF-TOWN HOUSES YOU HAVE BEEN PATRONIZING FOR THE LAST SIX MONTHS TO HELP YOU?"

A PLAIN TRUTH

A MAN may patronize the mail order houses for years—may send them in that time hundreds of dollars—and at the same time they wouldn't accommodate him for a two-cent stamp. This is the plain unvarnished truth. If you think otherwise try it for yourself and see. These out-of-town houses do not know YOU—do not CARE to know you—are not interested in you in any way—only in the money you send them. Spend your money with our own townsmen, who know you for what you really are, who appreciate your worth, your business, your assistance in building up home interests.

Fell From His Cutter After Paralytic Stroke

Mr. Lawrence George (Larry) Steele of Lakefield was stricken with paralysis to-day while driving from his home in Lakefield to his brother's in Verulam. Overpowered by the attack he fell out of his cutter, but the horse continued on until it finally brought up at Mr. William Mann's home, "The Hawthorns." Mr. Mann drove back over the 8th line and found Mr. Steele where he had fallen. He was removed to Mr. Jas. K. Stabler's and a doctor was called. Mr. Steele is in his 82nd year and was born close by his present home. It has been said of him that he never resided on a mortgaged farm. One of the ardent hunters of the county, he went with the Shawinigan Club last fall. Larry Steele is known by every hunter in the district, who will especially regret his illness.

TAKE "CASCARETS" IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS AND CONSTIPATED

Best for Liver and Bowels, Bad Breath, Bad Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

Views and Reviews

This is the 600th day we have been at war with Kaiser Bill—and it's rolling up quite a bill, too.

She Had Measles.

Here lies the bones of Ezra Jonah;
He kissed his girl one night;
He heard of deadly microbes, but
He didn't think they'd bite.

Not content with being at odds with practically the whole world, Germany has now declassed war on women's fashions. I see their finish now.

Women Conductors.

Peterborough women fair
Are willing to do their share
For the country's welfare,
Rather than impair
The success of this war affair.

Now they seek to bear,
In addition to other care,
Any work that's in the air,
Of which they're made aware.

One job, which could spare
A man, or a pair,
Is the collecting of fare
On many a street-"cair,"
As they do elsewhere.

The Company could provide a chair
For the conductress fair
And a mirror square
In which to admire her hair.

Then from elsewhere,
The boys, from their lair,
Would come to stare
At the female debonair;
She'd become the despair
I do declare.

Then none would dare
To smoke or swear,
On the platform at the rear,
Go beware.

Chinese Emperor Is Not Making a Hit

Attempt to Please Everybody Results in Arousing Strong Opposition.

SHANGHAI, China, March 25.—Advices from Hong Kong to-day indicate that the state department mandate announcing abandonment of the plan to resume the monarchical form of government in China has met with a mixed reception in Southern China.

Of the two equally strong and forceful factions there, the supporters of Yuan Shi-Kai are said to believe there will be a peaceful settlement of the existing differences as a result of the decision reached. Those opposed to Yuan Shi-Kai, according to the advices, declare the mandate has come too late and that the people are deeply stirred against what they characterize as Yuan Shi-Kai's faithlessness to his presidential oath to be appeased with anything less than his elimination as head of the Government.

DYE OUTPUT IS GAINING.

Machinery is Being Installed in Many American Plants.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Remarkable progress is being made by American manufacturers who are trying to meet the demand for dyestuffs in this country, according to Dr. Thomas H. Norton, for years in the United States Consular service in Germany, and now a commercial agent of the Department of Commerce.

Since the war cut off the shipments of dyestuffs from Germany, he said, enough American plants have set to work to insure half the supply required by the United States. The situation is improving daily, Dr. Norton added, and the output is gradually increasing.

Dr. Norton, who is one of the foremost chemists in the country, and who is in charge of the Government's work in developing the manufacture of dyestuffs in the United States, is constantly adding new factories to the list he is keeping. These are located in almost every section of the country, especially in the Eastern States where the demand for dyestuffs is greatest.

GIRLS! HAVE A MASS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR, SOFT, GLOSSY, WAVY

25 cent bottle destroys dandruff and doubles beauty of your hair

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Britain's Greatest Remedy

27 MILL RATE

Liquor licenses. . . . . 25 mills

25.68 mills.

The Credit Side.

From this amount Ald. Stratton subtracts 4-10 mills, represented by $2,500 the City Trust has on hand, and will turn over to the city; $500 that was intended for the Workmen's Compensation fund; $600 interest on the city's patriotic contribution, and $1234.87 interest, saved on two paving contracts.

Represented in mills, these items are:

City trust	.21
Interest	.15
Compensation Acct.	.04
	.40

In this way the 25.68 rate reduces to 25.28; add war and garbage tax rates of 1.7 mills and you reach the total of 26.98 mills, which is so close to 27 mills the Council chose the round number.

Ald. Stratton recommended the acceptance of the 25.17 rate.

Ald. McIntyre—"Are you going to build that footbridge with the firemen's salaries?"

Ald. Stratton—"You voted the other night for that rate. It exactly covers Ald. Evans' motion.

Ald. McIntyre—"I don't feel like settling any rate yet; let's settle the salary question.

Ald. Stratton—"That was settled the other night'

At this stage Ald. Dobbin and Ald. Edgar moved for a 27.26 mill rate.

Ald. Dobbin—"The citizens won't grumble at that. In fact they will say you did the right thing.

Ald. Weir moved for an exemption of salaries of $650 and under; 3 3-4 per cent. reduction on from $650 to $1000 and 7 1-2 per cent. on salaries over $1000.

Ald. McIntyre—"You're just copying my motion."

Ald. Weir—"No, I'm not."

Ald. McIntyre—"You couldn't get it any nearer to mine if you tried."

Ald. Weir—I didn't have to copy anybody.

Mayor Duffus turned the agitator lever back to legato and all went smoothly again.

Ald. Stratton—'All but two of us supported Ald. Evans' motion, the other night. We should settle this salary question definitely. The 27 mill rate will be all some can afford to pay. There is no business method in changing and rechanging our minds.'

Ald. Edgar assented that the difference the salary reduction would make in the rate wasn't worth considering. 'It's pretty small potatoes,' said he.

Ald. Duncan—'If Ald. Evans' motion doesn't go through I'll vote with Ald. Dobbin.

Aldermen Saunders, Galbraith and Weir expressed the same intention, probably an indication that they were none too solid for even the modified cut.

Ald. Dobbin suggested that Ald. Evans drop the whole thing.

Ald. Evans—"No, I won't. It's going to help cut the rate down.'

Ald. Dobbin—"Your constituents won't thank you."

Ald. Stratton—"They will thank us They don't send us here to be mere dead ones."

Ald. Evans—'We don't need a motion. All we have to do is confirm the motion of Monday night."

That was all there was to it. The confirmation suggested is involved in the adoption of the rate at the next Council meeting.

MAPLE LEAF BAND ASKS ONLY FOR ROOM

With all the losses from the ranks of various bands around this section of the country there are now more bands right here in Peterborough than ever before. The Council has worried over grants to the remnants of the 57th and Salvation Army bands, finally deciding to pass over both of them. Last night along came the Maple Leaf Musicians who, fortunately, did not ask for money. They need a room for practices and thought the Council might have one lying idle somewhere. Ald. Saunders and Mayor Duffus will investigate and have power to let a room if there is one available.

SIR JAMES WATSON'S OPINION CONSIDERED MOST VALUABLE

You catch a little cold to-day, and by to-morrow it has reached the throat, next day the lungs are affected and you wish you had used "Catarrhozone" which kills colds in five minutes. In the first place Catarrhozone soothes the irritated membranes and relieves congestion,—then it cuts out the phlegm and destroys the germs. It enables the blood to retain a natural supply of oxygen, lung-food, and vitality. In any cough bronchitis or Catarrh, it's guaranteed to positively cure. Beware of dangerous substitutes offered under misleading names for genuine Catarrhozone which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00, small size 50c; trial size 25c.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

John E. Kellerd, Eminent Actor, Says Schools Fail in Art of Reading

Is Appearing Here in Shakesperian Roles, Presenting "Hamlet," "Merchant of Venice" and "Macbeth" While in The City

There are not more than a dozen actors in America that speak Shakespere's lines correctly," said John E. Kellerd as he sat in his dressing room at the Grand Opera House and chatted with The Examiner about present conditions of the stage.

"I am ashamed and angry at my profession," confessed Mr. Kellerd. His complaint was that the modern actor 'speaks' the lines of the great English bard without understanding them, and, therefore, fails to bring out the beauty and the meaning of them. "They talk about blank verse as if it were something not meant to be made understandable. What is blank verse? Simply prose phrased in rythmic measure. They speak it in stilted form, though, and fail to phrase the lines with intelligent enunciation.

"The pupils in our schools are not taught to read properly. I have yet to meet a professor of English who speaks the English language properly. If they want to celebrate Shakespere's tercentenary in a practical and effective way, let them improve the teaching of reading in our schools and colleges. The stage is just as bad. I have never yet heard a stage director say to an actor 'speak that line as if you were conversing with somebody.'

The main virtue of Mr. Kellerd's acting of 'Hamlet' and 'Shylock' is his reading of the lines. He gets the meaning out of them. He does not merely mouth them.

The actor purposes putting on "Twelfth Night" and 'Much Ado About Nothing" next season. 'Stick to Shakespere Of course I will," he said. 'Playing Shakespere pays me."

Choir Concert At St. Andrew's

A choir concert of more than ordinary merit was held in St. Andrew's church last evening. The organ solos by Mr. H. C. Treneer were exceptionally good, also the vocal solos by Miss Helen McLaren. The choir rendered a number of excellent selections, while Mrs. Robert Corrigal contributed a couple of good readings. A violin solo by Miss Edwina Palmer was well received.

The Programme.

Following is the programme:

Organ solo, Marche Religieuse (Guilmant)—Herbert C. Treneer.

Chorus, "The Watchword" (Pinsuti)—The Choir.

Reading, "Billie Brad and the Big Lie" (Anonymous)—Mrs. Robert Corrigal.

Vocal solo, Angus MacDonald (Beeckel)—Miss Helen McLaren.

Organ solo (a) Angelus (Masenet); (b) Chanson Triste (Tschaikewsky) —Herbert C. Treneer.

Chorus, "Glory and Love to the Men of Old," (arranged from Gounod's Opera "Faust")—The Choir.

Reading, "Lady Claire" (Tennyson) —Mrs. Robert Corrigal.

Vocal solo, "Love and Spring Time" (Arditi)—Miss Helen McClaren.

Organ solo, Overture from the "Poet and Peasant" (Von Supe)—Herbert C. Treneer.

Chorus, "The Heavens are Telling" (From the Creation, Haydn) — The Choir.

CONSTIPATIENTS'
Read This—

It must be remembered that the bowels should move freely once a day to ensure perfect health. When such is not the case the poisonous waste material should leave the system, else poisoning a and blood poisoning. Symptoms of Constipation are many and well-known. Among the more common may be mentioned poor stomach digestion, a deficiency of bile in the intestines, a lack of secretion in the kidneys, and a want of the natural muscular contraction of the intestines from above downward.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt, sold everywhere at 25c and 60c, stimulates and restores the stomach digestion, facilitates the flow of bile into the intestines, causes a flow from the intestinal glands, and restores the abnormal downward motion of the intestines, rendering it easy to secure a free action of the bowels, which is one of the most important requisites to health.

Mr. Charles Miller Will be Eighty-Two On Monday Next

Born in New York State, March 27, 1834—Has Been a Resident of Peterborough Over a Quarter of a Century.

Mr. Charles Miller of 611 Stewart street will celebrate his eighty-second birthday on Monday next, having been born March 27th, 1834, in New York State, near Brownsville. When four years old his family came to Canada settling in Otonabee, and on attaining manhood, Mr. Miller went to reside in Emily, where he spent the major portion of his life.

In 1858 Mr. Miller married Miss Sara Miller who has been spared to him to the present time, though she has been an invalid for the last fifteen years. In 1906 they held their golden wedding and if they are spared till the 3rd of next month they will celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary.

Out of a family of six children two are living: Mrs. Theodore Caldwell and Miss Sarah.

In religion Mr. and Mrs. Miller are of the George St. Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller are in fair health considering their ripe age; and their many friends will wish them many happy returns on the forthcoming celebration and trust they may be spared to each other for many years to come.

We extend to Mr. Miller the usual birthday greetings.

Freckle-Face

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from your druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds of March have a strong tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more othine is sold in this month. Be sure to ask for the double strength, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

In working buttonholes on a material that frays easily, it is a good idea to buttonhole it first with stitches some distance apart and then go over it in the usual way.

WHAT IS YOUR BABY WORTH?

Not long ago a little child disappeared from the home of a well-to-do family. The father offered ten thousand dollars for the child's return. A few days later, in the heart of the Italian quarter of a large city, the son of a struggling shopkeeper was kidnapped. Its father, who accumulated a small capital by living on bread and macaroni and working ten hours a day, six days in the week, offered one thousand dollars for the return of the child.

Was one baby worth ten thousand to its father, and the other one thousand? No! The baby was worth just every dollar the father could rake and scrape together.

That is the answer every father would make: "My baby is worth everything I have in the world." And mother would agree with him.

Yet, isn't it strange that parents, who will pay all they possess as a ransom to kidnappers, do not realize that they are taking bigger chances of losing their babies because they do not know the best ways for the care and feeding of their children?

Mothers frequently with the very best intentions give food that is more harmful than good to their babies. One example of improper feeding was noticed recently in a dining car in Western Ontario. Mother, father and an eight-months-old baby entered the car, they were seated and soon the baby began to cry. The mother, with perhaps the best intentions and certainly through ignorance, gave the baby the following: Ice water, soup, fish, bread and butter, pieces of bread dipped in greasy gravey and scrambled eggs. A lady passenger protested, but the answer received was, "O! no I don't think it will hurt the baby. You know I must try her with everything to find out just what she wants." Thousands of infants die every year before mothers find out just what the babies need.

Canada to-day requires every baby born in the Dominion and care should be exercised to ensure every one of them becoming strong healthy citizens.

To assist Canadian Mothers who really care for their children and are anxious to know just how to properly feed and clothe them, there has been established in Toronto a Better Canadian Babies' Bureau, which sends out free for the writing information on such subjects as Prenatal Care, Expectant Mothers Clothes, and the Babies' Layette, feeding and general care of babies. This bureau is supervised by one of Toronto's most experienced physicians on the care of children. Write for free bulletins. Better Canadian Babies' Bureau, 74 Richmond St. W., Toronto, Ont.

A Non-Militant Market-Square Orator

Tried to Preach Non-Resistance—Was Induced to Beat a "Retreat"

This morning, after the boys of the 83rd had made their bow, and the Adjutant had said his piece on the Market Square, a man of a non-militant turn of mind mounted the rostrum and sought to counteract the war-like utterances of the Adjutant.

His beliefs were pacific in the extreme, so peaceful that one stalwart soldier of the king raised his voice in objection. A rousing reception was given the man in khaki, and things began to get so interesting that a "guardian of our peace" tapped the "pacifi-gette" on the shoulder and escorted him over toward the "station," there to let off his pent-up energy.

A good mixture to roll fish in before frying is made of a cupful of breadcrumbs and the grated yolks of three hard-cooked eggs, seasoned with salt and pepper.

Appeal Has Been Dismissed

Edward J. Ferguson Must Pay His Wife Alimony at The Rate of $20 a Month With Costs

The appeal of Edward J. Ferguson from the judgment of Chief Justice Mulock of February 18th, awarding Mrs. Florence Ferguson alimony at the rate of twenty dollars a month, with costs, was heard yesterday in the Appellate Division of Osgoode Hall and dismissed with costs.

Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Joseph Wearing for the defendant.

The judgment, which has been sustained, provides that the defendant pay his wife, Mrs. Florence Ferguson, alimony at the rate of twenty dollars a month, with costs, and for reference to Local Master to vary amounts from time to time.

How To Safely Peel Your Face

If you wear an aged, discolored or weather-beaten complexion, the most sensible thing to do is to remove it—rather than patch it over or "doctor" it with cosmetics. The only way to really remove the complexion—aside from restoring to an expensive and painful surgical operation—is by means of ordinary mercolised wax. Spread the wax over the face at night, as you would cold cream; wash it off in the morning. This gradually peels off the lifeless and the half-dead outer skin, in minute particles—gradually the fresh, young skin beneath beams forth. Then you have a clear, velvety, healthy-hued complexion such as no unnatural method can possibly produce. Freckles, blotches, pimples—all surface defects due to weather, ill-health or the ravages of time, of course, disappear with the discarded skin. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolised wax; you won't need more.

If you wear wrinkles or crowsfeet, the best thing to do is to bathe your face in a harmless lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. Nothing else will so surely erase the unwelcome lines.

Music & Drama

A CLEVER ACTOR.

Brandon Peters, the young juvenile with the John E. Kellerd Co., now playing at the Grand, has been chosen to play opposite to Miss Margaret Anglin in her forthcoming tour for the Shakespeare Tercentenary. Mr. Peters has played the leading juvenile roles in twelve Shakespearian plays, a record that no actor his age can boast. He plays Lacraes, Malcolm and Gratiano with Mr. Kellerd, and has made a distinct hit. After his engagement with Miss Anglin, Canada's idol, he will be featured with a Broadway production.

HAMLET.

The small audience who availed themselves of the rare opportunity of hearing Mr. John E. Kellerd in "Hamlet" at the Grand Opera House last evening will remember an impersonation of the "melancholy Dane" which must be ranked with the finest histrionic achievements of the present day. Mr. Kellerd is one of that small group of dramatic "stars" who take their art seriously enough to respect the beautiful traditions of the stage, and allow themselves the luxury of a complete surrender to their highest artistic ideals. It was regrettable that such a small number of people witnessed this fine production, but it is hoped a much larger gathering will see Mr. Kellerd in "Macbeth" to-night.

Mr. Kellerd's bearing was at all times that of the man for whom the "time was out of joint." Although apparently suffering from a severe cold, his voice especially in the scenes of subdued eloquence, took on a most subtle and exquisite colouring. What depth of pathos in his "Would the night were come, till then, sit still my soul; and when he interrupts the solemn" sepulchral utterances of the Ghost, "List, list, list, if thou didst ever thy dear father love — what a poignant appealing cadence there was in this Hamlet's half-smothered exclamation "O heaven." Hamlet's scene with his mother was deeply touching, and Mr. Kellerd gave the best-loved soliloquy with utter absence of the false declamatory note which so often mars the work of the actor "who loves to listen to his voice."

Miss Helen Barry's Ophelia was an exquisite impersonation. The manner in which she recited those final touching verses served to awaken the deepest admiration for the talents of the young actress. Mr. Elwyn Eaton enacted Polonius with many a grace of manner and diction, and Miss Georgiana Wilson did the Queen with abundant poise and true sincerity. Philip Quin's Horatio was notable for the polished and clean-cut delivery of his difficult lines while Brandon Peters as Laertes was particularly fine in the scenes with Ophelia.

The scenic features were at all times admirable.

Mr. Kellerd presented the "Merchant of Venice" this afternoon and to-night will be seen in "Macbeth."

Evangelist G. M. Sharpe of Toronto will speak to men at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 4.15 p. m. Every man is invited. 2d-71

Well Bought Wall Paper

If you are thinking about brightening up the home this spring, it will be good news to learn that Mr. C. B. Routley has made a large purchase of this season's newest wallpapers at the old prices, notwithstanding the sharp advance by the manufacturers. To encourage the brightening of our home, Mr. Routley will take no advantage of his special buying advantages, but will sell at the old prices. Unequalled values will, therefore, prevail in these new goods, so that those who want choice of the newest patterns, out of both American and Canadian designs, should make an early selection at Routley's. Buying in large quantities for his Toronto and Peterborough stores enables him to secure unusual concessions.

FOOT BRIDGE MAY BE ON NORTH SIDE OF C.P.R.

Mr. Arundel of the C.P.R. has written the city that the south side of the C.P.R. bridge is not suitable for a footbridge. The Council will be quite satisfied with the north side, and on motion of Aldermen Edgar and Saunders last night, the clerk was instructed to write Mr. Arundel to that effect.

THE PRETTIEST OF DRESS AND SUITING FABRICS

NOW ON DISPLAY!

SOME FOLKS puzzle over the tasteful way their neighbor dresses. A little thought will solve the riddle---First, she realizes the wisdom of early shopping and thereby purchase something exclusive in design and material. Second, a competent dressmaker gives her a well made and good fitting garment. Third, and possibly one of the most important factors she chooses a dry goods house that is familiar with the demands of fashion. "We modestly claim to be one of these."

In Dress and Suiting Materials we have assembled a vast number of materials that would claim the first rank as their position in any Dress Goods Dept.—Gabardines, Worsteds, Serges, Black and White Checks and a host of others; in soft appealing shades of every color which will hold your attention. In justice to yourself we ask you to examine this stock, and we are sure you will catch some of our enthusiasm over these splendid fabrics.

Fire Did $200 Damage to Stable

At Rear of House of Mr. J. Malone, 448 Rogers St. Ashburnham

The fire brigade was called to Ashburnham last night at half-past ten when a blaze had broken out in a stable at the rear of the home of Mr John Malone, 448 Rogers Street. A horse, harness and a number of chickens were rescued from the flaming structure. No damage was done to the house, but the loss is estimated at about two hundred dollars.

Two Cases Will Be Appealed

Cases Concern Two Heavy Fines That Were Imposed by Police Magistrate Dumble

Mr. D. O'Connell has served notice of appeal in the case of Rex versus Graystock. Some days ago, Thomas Graystock was convicted in the Police Court of supplying liquor to a couple of Indians, and was fined fifty dollars.

Fined $100.

Notice of appeal has also been given in the case of Charles LaMontia. The latter was convicted of entering Canada by misrepresentation, and was fined one hundred dollars by Police Magistrate Dumble. Mr. G. N. Gordon has entered an appeal.

LIBRARY NOTES

A short time ago a gentleman expressed the greatest surprise and pleasure at being able to consult the Patent Office Records in the Library. For a long time he had been in the habit of writing to Ottawa for such information as he needed, and he was only awakened to the knowledge that he could satisfy his requirements here by a notification from the department to that effect. In connection with this it may be of interest to some to know that our fyles of the Patent Office Record date back to the very first number issued in Canada. This week is given a list of the more serviceable publications in the geological and natural history departments issued by the Dominion Government:

Turks Not All Painted Black

LONDON, March 24.—When the British were fighting around Ctesiphon trying to push through to Bagdad, a barge loaded with 200 British wounded and the necessary medical staff got stuck on a mud bank of the Tigris and had to be abandoned. The Turks towed the barge down stream under a white flag and sent the lot, both wounded and attendants, back to the British camp.

This is related in a letter from a British officer who was wounded at Ctesiphon.

"I have the greatest admiration for the Turks," he writes, explaining that he means the Pucca Turks and not the Kurds who cut down the Armenians, or the Turco-Arabs.

Another incident concerns two wounded British officers left on the battlefield in the night and found by the Turks. Although the Turks took away all their equipment such as field glasses, haversack, belt, revolver and papers, they gave the officers water, loosened their clothing and made them comfortable. The officers were left on the field where they were rescued next day by their own men.

The writer says in regard to conditions in his hospital that the number of jaundice cases is remarkable. There seems to be a curious tendency to develop jaundice in Mesopotamia, owing either to the water or

For Transporting The Wounded

Among the vast number of original ideas or inventions produced by this war are many, of course, which are peculiar to the circumstances and will probably never be used again after the war is once over.

One in particular is of interest, as showing how the great number of wounded are taken care of. For many months the whole western battle line has remained substantially unchanged. Consequently it has been perfectly practicable to construct little narrow gauge railways from various points to bases in the rear. These various short lines are connected up by lines paralleling the trenches. By these lines many supplies are quickly handled. But one of their chief uses is the quick transport of wounded in the field of battle. For this purpose a specially constructed car is provided. It is about five feet from rail to roof and has a horizontal partition dividing it into upper and lower decks, and a vertical partition which again divides these into two compartments each. This makes a four cell arrangement each of which is provided with a hinged side opening outwardly, so that a wounded soldier on his stretcher may be set right into one of the cells from the outside.

From its compact arrangement of cells it takes its name "Beehive". As soon as it is loaded it is started off for the field hospital. This is only one of the many valuable ideas turned to practical use in aiding the wounded. It may justly be said that all that is possible is being done by all branches of science to alleviate and shorten the sufferings of the enormous number of wounded in this greatest of all wars.

French Minister Defends "Creoles"

General Roques, in Maiden Speech, Praises Integrity of Colonial Troops

PARIS, March 25.—General Pierre Auguste Roques, the new Minister of War, made his first speech in the Chamber of Deputies on Thursday since his entry into the Cabinet. He spoke in connection with the medical treatment of French Colonial troops from Guadaloupe and the Antilles.

The new Minister also came to the defence of France's "Creole battalions" against an assertion by a previous speaker that the Colonials were trying to evade military service. He had served with the Creole soldiers, and had great affection for them, said the General, with a good deal of warmth. Whatever their rank, they were respected by the entire army, and he would not allow them to be disparaged. If any partiality was shown against them, the Minister said, he would make a severe example of the persons responsible for it.

The Minister's speech was loudly applauded in all parts of the Chamber.

MUNITION STRIKERS FINED

Average of Thirty Shillings Assessed Each Man Convicted.

LONDON, March 24.—Up to the end of the first week of February 555 munition workers had been convicted for striking by the tribunals established under the Munitions Act, and the average of the fines imposed has worked out at a little under thirty shillings for each man convicted says the Times. In comparison with the vast army of workmen and employers subject to the jurisdiction of the tribunals this is not considered excessive. Seventy-one employers have been convicted of enticing workmen away from their employment and have been fined on an average over five pounds each, exclusive of costs.

Before the local tribunals the greater number of cases have been applications by workmen for leaving certificates to enable them to cease their present munitions employment and take employment elsewhere. There have been 5,858 of these applications of which 1,447 were granted and 2,510 refused, while 1,472 were withdrawn or dismissed, the great majority of these being withdrawn owing to the employers consenting to grant a certificate.

STRATFORD MOTOR TRUCK AND NEW PUMPS "FINE"

Stiff Test Given at Behest of Fire Underwriters.

STRATFORD, March 24.—Stratford's water pressure was subjected to a severe test by Norman R. Wilson, inspector of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association and proved quite satisfactory. The equipment at the fire hall and pumping station, as well as the hydrants, were inspected also. One minute and a quarter after the alarm was sent in the motor truck was at the hydrant, and in two minutes had a line ready for water. The normal pressure was 100 pounds, which raised to 110. With one stream the pressure was 110 pounds, three streams 100 pounds, five streams 94 pounds, seven streams 86 pounds, eight streams 86 pounds, and ten streams 78 pounds.

The new gasoline pumps worked fine.

ACIDS IN STOMACH SOUR THE FOOD AND CAUSE INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" Fixes Sour, Gassy, Upset Stomachs in Five Minutes

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can surely get relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healty appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gasses, heartburn dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

tween the British and the French Parliamentary systems.

"I am," he said in substance, "the chairman for many years of my County Council: I am also the head of the Education authority; I have given years of my life to the mastery of these local questions, and especially of the education question. All this experience and all my service are at the disposal of the House of Commons and of the Government; yet I am doing nothing."

"Where do you spend most of the time?" I asked, fearseing and indeed inviting the answer. "Loafing," was again the expected reply.

The gentleman to whom I was speaking is a staunch but broad-minded and tolerant Conservative. He has the respect both personal and political of maiden speech was so lucid and informing a contribution to debate that everybody listened with attention and sympathy. But he has rarely spoken since; he has fallen under the paralysing lethargy that comes over even active brains and energetic characters under the dead hand of compulsory Parliamentary loafing.

KILLING TIME.

His was but one of many such experiences with which I have been confronted during my thirty-five years of House of Commons life. A few years ago I welcomed to the House a leading City Conservative whose acquaintance I had made before his election. I have rarely found a man so depressed. He was on the Terrace—it was summer time—and he was looking languidly on the Thames as it flowed by. I guessed that was his state of mind, but made some inquiries. He at once replied that he never felt more miserable in his life than during the first weeks since he had become a member of the House of Commons. He had been a busy and active man all his life—each moment of his day had been marked out for its work, and each day had been all too short for his big business and his innumerable engagements. And there he now was in the House of Commons, wandering from the House to the Terrace, from the Terrace to the Smoke Room, from the Smoke Room to the Reading Room, from the Reading Room to the Library and at another hour from the Library to the Tea Room, laboriously killing hours of his precious time every day, doing nothing taking in part in the proceedings of the House except to give a silent vote, as listless and as exiled as if he had been shipwrecked and landed on an uninhabited isle.

"They tell me," he said, "that I am going to get over this feeling, that it belongs to Parliamentary infancy as measles is part of the life of a baby; but I don't know, I don't know." And though he has now been many years in the House of Commons, don't think he has even yet got over that intolerable feeling of self-reproach and self-dissatisfaction which all busy and energetic men feel in the life of the House of Commons, unless they happen to become a member of the Ministry.

A CONTRAST.

Now I go back to my experience in Paris, and mark the extraordinary contrast. In the French Inter-Parliamentary Committee there were several of what the French called "Rapporteurs" of their committee—what we should call the chairman. There was for instance M. Lebrund, who is chairman of the Munitions Committee. Rarely have I heard a speech which produced such a profound impression on a body of trained politicians as the speech which M. Lebrund delivered before our joint committee. It is no exaggeration to say that we all listened spellbound. Yet it was not a speech of moving and passionate eloquence like that of M. Clemenceau; on the contrary it was a plain statement of facts and statistics and figures set forth with perfect simplicity. But it gave such an impression of power, of intimate knowledge, of perfect mastery of events, that we felt in the presence of a great head of a department, and we saw before us as in a drama, the story of France's magnificently well-ordered, splendidly, almost perfectly organised effort to meet the gigantic emergencies of the war.

But the speech of M. Lebrund was only one of several which produced on our minds something of the same effect. The rapporteur of the Aviation Commission—M. D'Aubigne—had given, I was told by M. Franklin Bouillon, some of the most useful suggestions to the Aviation Department. A senator and member of the Chamber of Deputies laid before us the details of the finance of France as clearly and as fully as if either of them had been France's Chancellor of the Exchequer. M. Mousset, a Socialist deputy, told the splendid story of the French colonies. And so I might go on.

ONLY SEVEN VETERANS.

And now mark another and very important point. M. Franklin-Bouillon went through the list of names of the French Cosmmitee. And this astounding fact came out, that of the twenty-five members only seven were veterans. France is training her young generation of Parliamentarians so that when the veterans past out of the service of France, there will be this new army of young reserves to take their places. There is not one member of the two French Chambers who does not belong to some committee; and the committees of the French Chambers are men who have to work, and who do work willingly, energetically and with pride, and also with the satisfaction of knowing that good work in the committee is the best and surest passport to Parliamentary recognition and Ministerial office. All of them have as much knowledge of the work of their departments as the Ministers who are at the head of them; some even more.

Now my strong conviction is that we ought to adopt the French system—modified perhaps, more modest perhaps—in our own Chambers. I should at once say that in expressing this opinion I speak as an individual, not as a member of our British committee. Many indeed of my colleagues take quite a different view.

MORE ABILITY.

This brings me to the fact that the House of Commons, and I must add also the House of Lords, contains far more ability than is supposed outside, and that is given either of them my some ill-informed critics of some journals, where a politician is now regarded as a symbol of incompetence. The real defect of the House of Commons is not the want of good men, but the want of employment for the talents and experiences of good men.

The French Commissions have the right to see all the papers of the Departments — including those of the Foreign Office; they have the right to summon the Minister before them, and to examine and cross-examine him. This, object my critics, if applied to the British Parliament, would be a revolution. So it would, but we are in a great war; we are fighting for the existence of our Empire and for all the ideals of liberty, justice and nationality, which alone makes life dear to most of us; and I am not frightened by the epithet of revolutionary to any proposal that may help my country in such an hour of crisis. The whole situation is revolutionary and requires recolutionary treatment.

A CHILD HATES OIL, CALOMEL, PILLS FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Give "California Syrup of Figs" If Cross, Sick, Feverish, Constipated

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

All meat that comes into the kitchen should be saved and clarified by melting.

The creaking of a door may be instantly stopped by rubbing the hinge with a piece of soap. It does not spoil the look o fthe paint as if oil were used.

Council Guarded Its Reduced Rate

Other Subjects Were Gingerly Treated and Received Scant Attention

There was considerable caution apparent last night in the Council's actions. Having decided on reduced salaries and as low a rate possible, most of the members desired to stand their ground, but they realized that if the whole question were re-opened anything was likely to happen, and there was every chance of the beans being spilled. Mayor Duffus sought to confine discussion to the subject of the rate. Ald. Dobbin bespoke the retention of City Treasurer Adams until July, and Ald. Saunders began a reference to Mr. T. A. S. Hay. But, the rate was the only acceptable subject, and the Mayor's desire to give the hand $400 didn't get a look in. As Ald. Stratton said, "We are standing by Ald. Evans," and they surely did.

Service at The "Y" To-morrow

A service of special interest to men has been arranged by the Y.M.C.A. for Sunday as a fitting close of the winter series of men's meetings. The programme includes Evangelist G. M. Sharpe of Toronto, speaker, a recitation by Master Percy Luther and a cornet solo by Pte W. A. Layfield. Every man is invited to attend.

Very good wash cloths can be made from white stockings cut open. The edge can be crocheted with pink or blue.

A Splendid Market This Morning

Potatoes A'plenty—Butter and Eggs Galore – Prices Well Maintained —A Recruiting Rally on The Square

Peterborough farmers took the city by storm to-day. Nearly everybody was in town; and, judging by the remarks overheard on the market, they were all glad to get out after their long imprisonment. Should the weather turn warm this week the roads will be well nigh impassable next Saturday, which will tighten up prices considerably.

Quotations maintained a high level considering the large quantities of produce offered for sale.

OUTSIDE MARKET.

Potatoes predominated on the "Square," and sold at the uniform price of $2.00 a bag. One lone farmer asked $2.10, but, no doubt, he would not be long in following his neighbours. Fully one hundred bags were on sale, chiefly the Stars, Delewares and Burbanks.

Pork was quoted at 15 cts. for the front and 17 cents for the hindquarters.

Beef was very scarce, only one lot, and it was held at 11 and 12 cents. The season for this form of meat by the quarter is about over, and we may expect prices to advance a little.

Vegetables were more plentiful and sold as follows: Onions, 25 cts. a peck; parsnips, 15 cts.; carrots, 15 cts.; cabbage, 5 cts. per head, or 40 cts. a dozen. Apples, $1.25 a bag; Russets, 40 cts. a peck.

Several crates of little pigs were held at from $10.00 to $14.00 a pair, according to size.

A load of four-foot dry cedar brought $4.00 a card.

One man from Dummer had a load of stone "boats," which he quoted at $4.00, $4.25 and $4.50, according to equipment.

Hay sold at $20.00 a ton, a decline of $2.00.

Ladders were on the market again at their usual price of 20 cts. a foot.

A large quantity of miscellaneous household furniture occupied quite a space on the Square, consisting of such things as dressers, sewing machines, organs, beds, mattresses, springs, lamps, parlour suits, office desks, rakes, etc.

Axe handles brought 25 cts. each.

BASKET SECTION.

As usual butter and eggs occupied the chief place upstairs.

Butter sold at 32, 34 and 35 cts., though one woman asked 38 cts. She was well aware that her price was higher than the others, for, after quoting her price, she added with emphasis: "It's the No. 1 article."

Eggs brought 24 and 25 cts. per dozen, the higher price prevailing.

If there is a heavy thaw this coming week roads will be impassable, so look out for higher prices.

Fowl were more plentiful than usual.

Chickens ranged from 60 to 90 cts. each. Those of a riper age brought prices as follows: 4½ lbs., 90 cts.; 7 lbs., $1.20.

A few turkeys were offered, one weighing 7½ lbs, brought $2.00.

Radish sold for 5 cts. a bunch; grape fruit, 3 for 25 cts.; oranges, 20, 30 and 40 cts. a dozen; lemons, 3 for 5 cts.; celery, 10 and 15 cts. a bunch. White beans were 8 cts. a pound. Head cheese in cakes sold at 15 and 25 cts. each.

Cream was 35 cts. a quart.

HOME-MADE COOKING.

The ladies of the Canadian Kitchener League had a table of home-made goodies, and dispensed hot tea, coffee and sandwiches.

RECRUITING RALLY.

One detachment of boys in khaki headed by the Bugle Band, took up their position on the Square, where they showed their "country cousins" a thing or two in the matter of handling fire-arms. Adjutant McElheney delivered a recruiting speech, which was short and to the point.

The Bugle Band proceeded upstairs and made the hall ring with a deafening roar, both before and after a neat little speech by the Adjutant.

If the Bugle Band could make their part of the programme a little shorter upstairs the ladies who have things to sell would appreciate it very much. Business is practically at a standstill, since it is well nigh impossible to hear a word that is said while the band is playing.

RINGWORM— SCALP SORES

If you want speedy help try the D.D.D. Prescription. So easy to apply, not greasy or messy. It washes into the scalp and the relief is instant.

Or if you are bothered with excessive dandruff—the kind that causes almost unbearable itching in your scalp—come in and we will tell you something about what this prescription, made in the D.D.D. Laboratories of Toronto, has accomplished in your own neighbourhood.

Your money back if the very first bottle does not relieve your case. Try a bottle to-day and you will not regret it.

AFTER ORDER.
Part I. and II.

Headquarters,
Peterborough, March 24th, 1916.

Appointments—

The following Officers are appointed to the 39rd Overseas Battalion, C.E.F., by Divisional Authority 8 D. 26-6-26-2, taking effect from March 16th and attached to the companies placed opposite their names:

Lieut. A. R. Richardson, "D" Company.
Lieut. W. W. Armstrong, "B" Company.
Lieut. G. N. Milburn, "C" Company.
Lieut. R. N. Payne, "D" Company.
Lieut. A. E. Choate, "C" Company.
Lieut. B. N. Sexton is struck off the strength of the attached officers, having been appointed to the 39rd Overseas Battalion by Div. Authority 8 D. 26-6-26-2, dating from March 16th, 1916, and is posted to A Company.

Postings—

Lieuts. P. L. dePuyjalon and E. R. Hughes are now posted for duty with "C" Company from March 26th, 1916.

J. E. R. MUNRO,
Captain.
Adjutant 39rd Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.

Mr. Frank Eno, of The Bonner-Worth Company, Ltd., was presented with a Waltham wrist watch and a Gillette safety razor, by the employees of the Bonner-Worth Company. Mr. Eno, who leaves for Kingston on Monday morning, is the tenth employee of the company to enlist for active service.

TEN RECRUITS YESTERDAY.

Yesterday ten recruits were sworn in and taken on the strength of the 39rd Battalion. This number is nearly one whole section or one-quarter of a platoon, and if this record can be maintained for one month longer the County of Peterborough can boast of a full Battalion, composed entirely of Peterborough men, and one of which no one should be ashamed.

That the men of the 39rd are well looked after now no one can deny, and already preparations are being made for the future, as the 37th Chapter of The Daughters of the Empire have made arrangements to see that the men are supplied with socks and other necessaries. This morning at the Market Hall the Bugle Band played and Adjutant McElheney gave a short address, and made a strong appeal for recruits. The Machine Gun Section were also present and showed the crowd what a short time of training can do towards making a man an efficient soldier.

This appeal was followed up by the soldiers making an individual canvas and while certain results were obtained the majority of the answers tended to show that the men thought they were needed on the farms, but no man is so available that another cannot take his place, and the chance of being a soldier and personally doing something for his king and country might never come again.

A Street Meeting.

To-night Mr. Joseph Wearing will conduct a street meeting at the corner of Charlotte and George Streets, at which war scenes will be displayed. To-morrow, Sunday night, the usual weekly meeting will be held at the Armouries, when Captain Williams of the 160th Battalion will be the principal speaker, and one of the city clergymen will act as chairman At this meeting some more questions will be answered by one of the members of the league and also some of the answers given to the men on their personal canvas will be present ed to the meeting, all of which should be very interesting.

THE HAVELOCK MEETING.

Last night, at Havelock, a very enthusiastic meeting was held and the crowd was the largest seen there in years. Three recruits were obtained and from the information gathered and the looks on the faces of may others the meeting was a decided success and from now on the meeting will be followed up by a personal canvas.

To-night, at Indian Village there is a large meeting and Captain Bygott says he will be disappointed if twenty-five recruits are not obtained

The following men have joined the 58nd Belmont Battery and will leave for Kingston on Monday morning next:

Vernon M. Palmer, Galt, Ont.
John Harold Loucks, 21 Aylmer street.
Walter Sindom, 565 Cedar street.
Francis John Eano, 577 Walnut street.

Men wishing to join may communicate with either Major W. C. Ackerman, care B. F. Ackerman, Sons & Co., or Sergt. A. M. Allison at the Belmont Cub rooms, George street.

Sergt. Allison has received orders to report for duty at Kingston and will leave Peterborough on Thursday morning next.

Only Small Change To Alderman Dobbin

According to Ald. Dobbin's calculations he has arrived at the following conclusion regarding the taxes:

As an illustration of the extent to which the taxes of the citizens at large are lightened in this year of financial stress, it may be noted that the combined assessments of the aldermen and Mayor lumped together and given benefit by the reduction, make a total of $11.12 saved. Consider that this saving represents the reduction on properties assessed at $70,000.00 and by this it can be seen the extent to which the poor man is relieved. Roughly speaking, the reduction amounts to 16 cents on each thousand dollars of assessment. It is a question if it was worth the fuss. IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

MOST EXCITING GAME OF THE SEASON WOUND UP IN A 4 TO 4 DRAW

146th of Kingston and 93rd Furnished a Battle Full of Excitement at Brock St. Rink Last Night.

FIVE FRONTENACS ON

In the most exciting game of the season the 146th Battalion team of Kingston and the 93rd Battalion seven battled to a 4-4 draw at Brock St. Rink last night. A good-sized crowd was on hand and saw the season's most strenuous game. It was fast and rough all the way, and made the more so because the game early got away from Referee Jimmy McMartin of the Electrics. There was all kinds of heavy body-checking, tripping and hooking, with both teams evenly guilty in that respect, but in spite of the vigorous tactics, there was plenty of fast hockey mixed up with the other stuff, and the spectators certainly got their money's worth. Referee McMartin won the disfavour of the fans early in the game and they were loud in their abuse of the official, which did not tend to improve his work. He made the mistake of being too lenient at the go-in, and the game got beyond his control. However the fans should have remembered that he was out there because he was asked by the home team to handle the game. It would have been a hard game for any official to referee, especially in view of the fact that the uniforms of the two teams were so nearly alike that it was hard to tell the men apart. The 93rd did not get the best of the refereeing, but they would have won handily in spite of that if they had settled down in the last period to play real hockey.

The 146th had five senior men, Cook, Reid, Brouse, Ferguson and Milan of the Frontenacs, in line, but at that they were dead lucky to get away with a draw. The 93rd had the edge all the way and had thre times edge all the way and had three times in the nets, assisted by bad marksmanship, robbed the local soldiers of goals when score seemed certain. It was 2-2 at the end of the first period, and the 93rd led by 4-3 at the end of the second. Kingston scored the only goal in the last session, and then declined to play the tie off.

Cook, the Kingston goaler, saved the game for the Easterners. Cool and clever in his work, he resembled Harry Holmes of the Torontos in action, and he turned aside a flock of hard drives while he cleared nicely and covered up rebounds like a veteran. Bouncer Brouse and Ferguson made a good defence team. Reid was the best of the forwards, with Milan, who played on the Eastern All-Star Juniors the other night, a close second.

For the 93rd Evans and Windsor showed some of the best combination of the season, and both showed prominently, although they had hard luck in their shooting. Blewett was never seen to better advantage, his rushing and back-checking being a big help. Sexton worked hard all the way and the defence pair checked well, while Montgomery's rushes were a feature as usual.

The teams wer as follows:

146th.		93rd.
	Goal
Cook	C.	Montgomery
	Defence
Ferguson	R.	Montgomery
Brouse		Ketchum
	Rover
Milan		Sexton
	Centre
Hughes		Windsor
	Right wing
Reid		Blewett
	Left wing
Williams		Evans

The 93rd had the best of the play from the face-off, but could not beat Cook, who in the first few minutes took care of half a dozen hard shots from close range. Three or four times a goal looked certain, but the big net guardian was always in the way. It was the 146th who finally scored, Williams taking a pass close in and beating Montgomery. The visitors came right back with another when Reid broke away for a nice rush and shot. Blewett was on the fence while the two goals were scored. That left it 2 to 0, but the 93rd soon closed the gap. Evans got the first when he poked the rubber past the post from a scrimmage. Montgomery made it 2 all when he got away for a fast rush and took a chance on a shot from the corner, the puck glancing into the net off Ferguson's stick.

Soon after the opening of the second period Evans got away alone and beat Cook with a beautiful shot. Blewett duplicated the play by going up the side and fooling the Kingston goalie. With a two-goal lead the 93rd made things interesting, but Cook kept weeding them out. Half way through the period, Reid and Sexton got into a mixup and both were chased. The Peterborough man would hardly have been blamed as Reid hit him two or three times with his stick. Just before the period ended Brouse got a lucky goal for the 146th on a long shot that trickled into the nets.

The last period was fast and furious, with the 93rd having an edge on the play, but with no luck in trying to beat Cook. The checking was strenuous and a lot of the rough stuff got by unnoticed. The 93rd suffered the most in penalties, and this helped to make things more unpleasant for the referee. The Easterners tied it up after fifteen minutes' playing, Reid scoring in a scrimmage. It was 4-4 at the finish, and the 146th declined to play it off.

Ready For Championship Willard and Moran Rest

Both Full of Confidence—Public Not Sure What to Expect—Hope to Stage the Battle Around 10 p. m. To-night—Financial Success.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The rapid approach of the time when Willard and Moran must enter the ring and risk their prestige as champion and challenger, has affected the principals in sharply contrasted ways, Willard's easy-going, good-natured attitude and manners have not changed to any extent and the result of the bout is seldom mentioned unless some one close to him insists upon talking about the outcome. Then the champion dismisses the subject with a few remarks which are non-committal although indicating that to his mind at least there is to be but one result and that is Willard a winner.

MORAN ON EDGE.

Moran, on the other hand, has reached the keen fighting edge which all trainers contend is necessary in a boxer who is to be at his best when he goes against an opponent. The Pittsburg pugilist is keyed to the point where he is brimming over with fighting spirit and confidence. He can hardly wait for the hour that will call him into the ring. He shows the tension under which he labors when he is asked over and over again by thoughtless admirers: "How do you feel?" and "What do you think will be the result?"

At such times it is evident that it requires considerable control for Moran to hold himself in check.

So confident is he, however, of defeating Willard, either on points or a knock-out, that he has engaged quarters at a local hotel for a reception to be held immediately after the bout to-night. When some one called his attention to the fact that Jim Jeffries did the same thing at Reno, in 1910 before his fight with Jack Johnston and never entered the banquet hall, Moran simply remarked that it would be different this time and that the celebration would begin at 11.30 p.m.

CONDITION PERFECT

Willie Lewis, his trainer-in-chief claims that Moran has never been in such superb physical condition for any previous bout and that this supreme confidence and rather grouchy attitude of his principal is the best indication that Moran is fit to fight faster, better and with greater chance of winning decisively than ever before in his ring career.

While there is a wide difference of opinion among fight followers regarding the outcome of the contest, there is but one view of the bout as a spectacle. The advance ticket sale and the arrangements made by the authorities to handle the crowds, indicate that the greatest gathering of boxing fans that ever witnessed a bout in this state will be on hand at Madison Square Garden to-night. The police and fire department authorities are planning for an immense crowd. They predict they will be able to handle the thousands without trouble or confusion. Only those holding tickets will be allowed to pass the cordon or bluecoat. The detectives and firemen will watch closely for violations of the "no smoking" rule.

TIMES OF BOUTS.

If the State Boxing Commission adheres to its announced plans of requiring the promoters to put on at least three four-round bouts and one six-round contest before the big event, the management has stated that it will stage the opening contest at 6.30 p.m. This plan will bring Jim Savage and Battling Levinsky into the ring for the semi-final of ten rounds about 9.30 p.m. the main bout one hour later.

Willard was weighed yesterday and it was said that the scales registered 250½ pounds. The champion says that he will be a trifle under 250 when he gets into the ring to-morrow night, although he will ease up to-day and rest until it is time for him to go to the Garden. Moran will range around 205.

Moran worked only in the lightest manner for the benefit of the camera brigade, yesterday and cut down his sparring to two rounds.

Moran Now Is Under Weight

NEW YORK, March 23.—The final week of the training season for Frank Moran and Jess Willard found the challenger two pounds lighter than the weight which he proposes to carry into the ring next Saturday night. Willard, however, weighs close to 256 pounds, which is somewhat beyond the tonnage he expects to displace when he fights his first battle in defence of his title.

Willard's programme for the day called for ten rounds of strenuous sparring with his set of partners, in addition to the regular gymnasium work. Moran's afternoon, however, will be taken up in fighting a suit for $1,400 brought again him by Dan McKetrick, a former manager.

Realizing that the time for laying their wagers is growing shorter, the betting fraternity began risking some of its lucre to-day. The prevailing odds were 10 to 8 that Willard will win the decision. Here and there some bets of 2 to 1 on Willard's chances have been recorded but most of them are small and made among friends.

The odds of 7 to 3 that Willard will knock out Moran are still being offered with a fair amount of covering by the Moranites. The eagerness with which the backers of the challenger snapped up the offers of 6 to 1 that Moran will not knock out Willard caused a shift to-day and the best offer now is 4 1-2 to 1 against Moran's chances to slip over a Morphaus wallop.

There are approximately 12,000 seats in the garden under the new arrangement. If all these were sold for cash the total intake would be close to $145,000. However, something like 800 of the choicest "squats" have been placed on the complimentary list, which means that if the 'house' is sold out completely the receipts will be around $125,000 or $130,000.

When a diamond dropped out of a dainty slipper, Lea Fredo, a New York cobbler, tilted the horn of plenty higher and kept on pouring. The owner claimed $1,700 worth.

Shaughnessy to Join The 207th Battalion

OTTAWA, March 24.—The 207th Battalion which is being recruited in Ottawa under Col. Charlie McLean, will consist of some of the leading athletes and sportsmen of the capital. Some time ago it was announced that Fred Burpee, of the Ottawa Canoe Club, would take the rank of captain; also that Jim McCuaig, captain of the Ottawa Rowing club and a member of the Ottawa eight when it went to Henley, would be a lieutenant. To-day it was given out that Manager Frank Shaughnessy, of Ottawa Baseball Club would likely go in the capacity of captain. Shaughnessy has been offered the commission and will probably forsake the baseball spangles for khaki. He has an offer from the Warren, Pa., Club, and one from a Southern League Club. He intimated to-day, however, that the call to arms sounded best to him. Shaughnessy led the Ottawas to three championships in the Canadian Baseball League and has only gained fame as a football coach. He had a military training in the States, prior to taking up residence in Canada.

Eddie Gerard, of the Ottawa Hockey Club, will probably become a lieutenant in the 207th. He will be attached to Capt. Burpee's company. Gerard captained the Ottawa Football Club, as well as the New Edinburg war canoe crew, and has been rated one of the best hockeyists in the National association. Jack Mitchell, secretary to the Minister of the interior, is recruiting the athletes and the sportsmen's company promises to be one of the finest that has yet gone out of the capital.

RIVALS WILL MEET IN MANCHESTER

LONDON, March 25.—All will be excitement in Manchester to-day when the two great local rivals, City and United, meet on the latter's ground at Old Trafford. The tussles between these two clubs never fail to raise the greatest enthusiasm and every Mancunian who is not at the front, will be there to witness to-day's battle. In London, the games between Chelsea and West Ham and Tottenham v Fulham will give the Metropolis something to talk about. The "Pensioners" are certain to make a great effort to bring off the double event by winning the supplementary championship as well as the first competition, and at Stamford Bridge there is a confident feeling that they will succeed.

Jim Thorpe's Last Chance

McGraw's Final Test of Indian as Batsman for Giants.

Jim Thorpe, the Sac and Fox Indian, Olympic prize winner, and one of the greatest football players that ever donned gridiron armor, is making his last stand on the major league baseball diamond. Without question one of the greatest athletes ever developed in America or in any other portion of the world, Thorpe has made a name for himself in track and field sports, lacrosse, football and college baseball. It was not until he undertook to play the latter game in the big leagues that he found a sport wherein he failed to shine with his accustomed brilliancy.

Fresh from his Olympic triumphs at Stockholm and the subsequent sensational stripping away of these honours by the Amateur Athletic Union on the charge that he was a professional, Thorpe was signed to play with the New York National League Club by Manager John J. McGraw. From the very beginning the red skin athlete ran like a deer in the outfield and on the bases, fielded well, but was absolutely helpless before the curved pitching of the big league box stars.

Given a straight ball across the heart of the plate, Thorpe with his powerful arms and shoulders, could and did lift the ball over the centre fielder's head with great regularity. The trouble was that the pitcher never made such a mistake but once. Thereafter Thorpe got nothing but curved pitching, and the Indian swung on the slants in vain.

The Indian drifted from the major league to the minors, and even there his helplessness at the plate caused him to be cast aside for a less sensational player who could bat in pinches. Through it all McGraw held firm in his belief that eventually Thorpe would master the art of hitting a curved delivery. This Spring McGraw decided to give him another chance with the Giants at the training camp at Marlin, Texas.

There the redman was persuaded to try batting left-handed when he went to the plate and at once a decided improvement was noticed in his hitting. In his new position he showed ability to connect with the best of the early Spring curves and his admirers have taken hope. If it is demonstrated that Thorpe, batting left-handed, can land on the ball with his heavy black war club, there is a place for him with the Giants, and McGraw's judgment will have been vindicated. If it is proved however, that it is but a flash of batting ability then Thorpe and the big league will part company forever.

FIGHT FOR MILLION BEGINS

Bridegroom of 78 Dies and Young Widow has Possession of Estate.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Captain Jacob I. Housman, one of the oldest and wealthiest residents of Staten Island, died yesterday of pneumonia. His death was announced by his young bride, formerly Miss Lulu Carleton, of Patchogue, L.I., who, as his nurse, had won his heart.

The news caused surprise, as in the county court on Monday, when his son and daughter tried to have him declared incompetent because he, in his seventy-eighth year, had married his young nurse, nothing was said of his illness.

Following the news of his death, attorneys on Staten Island looked for a long litigation for possession of his estate, the contestants being the son, Jacob I. Housman, Jr., and his daughter, Mrs. Percival S. Jones both of New York, and opposed to the nurse bride.

The widow is in entire possession of the estate.

Canadian Ford Car Parts Reduced $147 Per Car Since War Began

It is well known that the war has increased the price of practically all raw materials.

And, although all but $16.58 worth of material that goes into the construction of the Ford car is bought right here in Canada, a high import duty adds its burden to that material that must be bought in the United States.

But in spite of increased duty and increased cost, the prices of parts that go to make up a complete Ford car have been decreased $147 since war began.

This reduction was made for two reasons. First, because under normal conditions, increased quantity production would have made these lessened prices possible. Second, under abnormal conditions brought about by the war, the executives of this company felt it their duty as loyal British subjects to absorb these taxes of war into their manufacturing costs.

This reduction in price of parts is of first importance as a reduction in the cost of service to Ford owners. Prices of Ford spare parts have always been exceptionally low as compared to prices of parts for other cars, and under war time conditions the Ford company might have withheld, with seeming justice, any reduction in the price of parts in times such as these.

But the Ford Canadian executives had enough confidence in the progress of the Dominion and of the Empire to feel that the future prosperity of the country was sufficiently assured to warrant making these reductions.

This is improving a service already unrivalled in its efficiency. Ford, the Universal Car, can as well be named the Car of Universal Service.

Thus the Ford Company has left dollars in the pockets of Ford owners which it might have acquired were it not for its policy of the best service at the lowest cost. Even the finest piece of mechanism, often through abuse or neglect, sometimes requires attention. The remarkable economy of this Ford service is known to motorists all over the world.

In every community of any size in the Dominion there is a Ford dealer who carries a complete stock of parts and whose establishment is in itself a well equipped service tation. A Ford owner, no matter where he drives his car, is never far distant from a Ford service station that is ready to give prompt and efficient service in any emergency that may arise.

Moreover, Ford parts, as is the Ford car itself, are standardized and will fit in place in any Ford car to the thousandth part of an inch.

And every Ford dealer, because of this standardization of parts over a number of years, has an expert knowledge of the construction and repair of the Ford car. There is absolutely no guesswork in this Universal Service to Ford Owners.

Backing up the service afforded by over five hundred Ford dealers are the nine Ford branches located in the nine leading Canadian cities from St. John to Vancouver.

In four of these Canadian cities new branch buildings have been constructed since the war began and are themselves as large as many automobile factories. They are so completely equipped as to be able to build a Ford car complete. The buildings alone for these four new branches were erected at a cost of over a million dollars.

This immense expenditure is another indication of the attitude of absolute confidence in Canadian prosperity that has always been shown by the Canadian Ford executives and that has not been altered in the slightest degree by any war conditions.

At the same time that reductions in the price of Ford car parts were made there was also made a reduction in the price of complete car. Twice—on August 1st, 1914 and August 1st, 1915, the price of the Ford car was reduced by $60—a total reduction of $120 in the price of the car since the start of the war.

This reduction is made on an estimated production of a definite number of cars for the coming year. Forty thousand Canadian Ford cars must be built and sold by August 1st, 1916 in order to warrant this last reduction of $60 in price.

And their judgment is being fully justified.

OBITUARY

MRS. CLARKE EARLE.

The death occurred in Toronto yesterday of Mrs. Clarke Earle. Deceased is a daughter of Mrs. Thomas Harper of this city, and formerly resided here.

The funeral will take place in this city on Monday afternoon from the residence of Mr. Herbert Huffman, 81 Margaret Avenue.

JEAN ELIZABETH EANO.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eano, Hunter street, will sympathise with them in the loss they have sustained by the death of their infant daughter, Jean Elizabeth, who passed away this morning.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock to St. Peter's cemetery.

THOS. HALPIN.

The death occurred very suddenly last evening from heart failure of Thomas Halpin, 332 Smith street. The deceased was 57 years of age and leaves a wife, five sons and three daughters to mourn his loss. The sons are Messrs. Albert, Rollie, Bruce, Joseph and Frank. The daughters are Misses Ruby, Hazel and Pearl. Two brothers, Michael and John of this city and one sister, Mrs. Roche also survive him.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the above residence to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

MRS. CLARK EARLS.

The death took place in Toronto yesterday of Venie Harper, wife of Mr. Clark Earls, after an illness following an operation.

Mrs. Earls was a former resident of this city, and her death will be much regretted by a large circle of old friends. She was married to Mr. Earls in Peterborough and moved to Toronto a few years ago, where they have resided since.

The funeral will take place on Monday to the Little Lake cemetery

PIERRE FUGERE.

The death occurred at the home of Mrs. A. Leonard, 294 Mark street, yesterday, Friday, afternoon, at 5.15 o'clock of Pierre Fugere, formerly of Vermont, U.S.A., but for the past two years a resident of Peterborough. Mr. Fugere came here from the United States about two years ago to take a position with the Vermont Marble Company, but for the past year has been in ill health. He was twenty-six years of age and is survived by a wife and twin daughters. One sister, Mrs. Omer Daoust of Carney, Mich., and one brother, Joseph, of Lac a la Tortue, Quebec, are also left to mourn his loss.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning to the Church of the Immaculate Conception and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

T. H. BEST.

Word has been received of the death in Vancouver, B.C., on March 19th of Mr. T. H. Best, a former well-known resident of this city, who moved West about nine years ago. Mr. Best formerly resided at the corner of Bethune and Edinburgh streets, was a carpenter by trade; and one of the original pillars of Bethany Tabernacle. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. H. Barr (Elva)

The funeral of the late Thomas Henry Best, formerly of Peterborough, Ont., took place from the residence of his son-in-law, 436 17th Ave West, Vancouver, B.C., on Monday afternoon, March 20th, 1916, at 2.30 o'clock. Rev. J. Douglas officiated. Interment took place in Mountain View cemetery.

The splendid programme which appeared in this paper a week to-day, will be rendered in the S. A. Temple Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Special items of interest will be published on Monday. The proceeds are for the Temple Band.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders. Later come dropsy, stone, rheumatic pains and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the pains and the aches and make you well again.

WATCH FOR McLAUGHLIN SIX.

Mr. A. Brown, local agent for the McLaughlin car, announces that owing to the Company being unable to get suitable freight accommodation he has been unable to have a car here this week as previously announced, but expects it here in a day or two. Watch for the new McLaughlin Six.

WILL VISIT CITY AGAIN.

Dr. Claygone, the eminent foot specialist, who has been at the Grand Central hotel for several days, left to-day for Peterborough. The doctor, while here, performed many successful operations on suffering patients and will pay a return visit in a few months.—St. Thomas Journal.

Dr. Claygone has arrived in the city and is staying at the Empress Hotel.

SUNDAY SCHOOL REVIEW.

To-morrow afternoon the session of the George Street Methodist Sunday School will be of special interest. Dr. Middleton, the Superintendent has secured the services of Mr. Ivor Brock, Manager of the Brinton Carpet Co., who will address the school ars. His talk will be illustrated by numerous lantern slides beautifully coloured. As to-morrow is the Sunday nearest the anniversary of Fanny Crosby's birthday, all the hymns used will be of her composition.

THAWING OUT THE SEWERS

The city have taken time by the forelock and are busy thawing out the street catch-basins and their connections leading to the main sewer.

A large twelve h.p. upright stationary boiler is mounted on a platform with maple runners, and is drawn around by a team of husky horses. With a pressure of between 75 and 100 pounds, the steam is conveyed by means of a rubber pipe to the connections to be thawed.

With the drains skirting the side walks all ready things should be in good shape for a sudden thaw.

CONCERNING FEET.

Human feet have not yet become completely adapted to the different shape of boots with the consequence that many people suffer from sore feet. I relieve all such.

I am a foot specialist and can relieve all foot trouble. Dry feet, wet feet, itching feet, feet with corns, feet with bunions, feet with ingrowing nails, feet that are tender, feet that burn, feet that swell. I relieve them all; even long standing chronic foot trouble that may be incurable, I can relieve. Charges moderate. Patronized by H.R.H. Duke of Connaught Dr. Claygone will be at the Empress Hotel until April 2nd. Telephone for appointments. dtf

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer was up to 42 degrees at noon to-day, the highest this month. March has had eleven zero days so far. Both yesterday and the preceding day zero was touched. — W. P.

HANDLED $35,000,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Alfred R. Quaiffe, vault clerk of the United States Treasury, celebrated his 50th birthday to-day. He has handled $35,000,000,000 in his fifty years of service.

Forty Warships Are Engaged in Battle in the North Sea

Two Enemy Patrol Boats and One British Destroyer Sunk

German Squadron Was Forced To Run to Port in North Sea Encounter

Torpedoing of Steamship Sussex on Which Several American Citizens Were Lost, Believed, a Deliberate Plot to Force United States Into War.

LONDON, March 27.—Forty warships were in battle in the North Sea. The German squadron was forced to run to port. Two enemy patrol boats and one British destroyer was sunk in the collision. British hydroplanes successfully raided German airship sheds.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—It is generally believed in official circles that the torpedoing of the steamship Sussex on which several American citizens lost their lives, was a deliberate plot to force the United States into the war.

THE HAGUE, March 27.—The Dutch ministry announce that a piece of submarine torpedo was found on the lifeboat of the Tubantio, proving she was torpedoed.

OTTAWA, March 27.—A communique received yesterday from Sir Max Aitken says the Canadian sector severely bombarded by the Germans on March 14. Shells fell at the rate of four per minute, but little damage resulted.

LONDON, March 27.—General Alderson, Commander of the Canadian forces, has been knighted by the King at Buckingham Palace.

MARSEILLES, France, March 27.—British steamer arriving here says the liner Minneapolis was sunk by a submarine last Wednesday in the Mediterranean Sea. It is believed all aboard were lost.

PARIS, March 27.—Entente Allies' conference begins to-day. Representatives from all Allied powers are present. Big results are expected.

LONDON, March 27.—It is announced the British steamer St. Cecilia, which sailed from Portland, Me., for London, March 11th, has been sunk by a torpedo.

THE VALUE OF TRUTH

Truth in business is just as important as truth in every-day life; truth creates confidence, establishes good-will and builds a reliability that will not be wrecked by the storms of competition.

Through three generations people have learned to place reliance on the advertised words of Scott's Emulsion, because they are untarnished, unexaggerated truisms about a household remedy of real and actual worth.

The popularity of Scott's Emulsion is increasing as intelligence advances, because in these days of adulterations it continues to guarantee pure cod liver oil medicinally perfected with glycerine and hypophosphites to build strength, improve the blood and strengthen the lungs. It is free from harmful drugs—a wholesome food-tonic, truthfully advertised.

Report That Verdun is Burning Or That Enemy Has Made Progress Denied at Paris

Heavy Losses Inflicted on the Germans by a Sortie From Several Verdun Forts--Turkish Aircraft Bombard Kut-El-Amara But Damage is Slight.

PARIS, March 27.—The War Office denies the German report that Verdun is burning or that the Germans have made any progress. Heavy losses inflicted on the Germans by a sortie from several Verdun forts last night.

LONDON, March 27.—A relief ship will be sent to Shackleton in the Antarctic immediately.

LONDON, March 27.—Turkish air craft bombarded Kut-El-Amara, but the damage was slight. Russian and British expeditions are now close to the besieged city.

TORONTO, March 27.—Ontario Government may finance temperance hotels in small communities.

LONDON, March 27.—Two other German raiders who tried to run the British blockade when the "Grief" was sunk, were driven back to Heligoland.

PARIS, March 27.—It is officially announced that according to affidavits by American survivors of the steamship Sussex there is no doubt but she was torpedoed without warning.

LONDON, March 27.—British official statement reports enemy artillery activity near Neuve Chappelle, Ypres and Wieltje.

PARIS, March 27.—Last night's official statement reports violent artillery actions in the Argonne, and quite intense artillery activity to the west of the Meuse against the French second lines, but no infantry actions.

PETROGRAD, March 27.—The War Office announced last night that the Russians continue their successes everywhere. In the Black Sea Russians torpedoed boats, destroying sixteen sailing vessels on the Anatolian Coast.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—United States Ambassador Sharpe has cabled the State Department that the Sussex was torpedoed, and the loss of life is between seventy and eighty.

LONDON, March 27.—During the engagement between the British and German raider Freif, the British sank a German submarine.

MADRID, March 27.—Chili has decided to seize all German ships as a security.

Price 50c. Sold in this community only at our store. The Rexall Store—McDermid & Jury, corner George and Charlotte Streets.

To Make Call on Retired Farmers

BRANTFORD, March 27.—A movement is under foot in the city to organize the retired farmers for the purpose of assisting during the seeding and harvesting throughout the county on farms which are shorthanded through the enlistment of men.

When Dr. J. L. Hughes spoke here recently he advocated having the retired farmers help. At the recent general meeting of the recruiting league it was also discussed, the feeling being that it is a good idea and one that could be worked out to much advantage. Steps are being taken in the matter at once.

Brantford, like most other cities, numbers amongst its population a large number of retired farmers. Many of them are still able to work and these, if willing, will be asked to put in the summer on the farms. Others who are not able but who have the practical knowledge will be asked to supervise the Boy Scouts. Another movement is on foot to take Boy Scouts and students to the farms for the season and retired farmers who are not able to do actual work could superintend their work.

WONDERFUL BILIOUS REMEDY—ACTUALLY PREVENTS ATTACKS

There are two great causes of biliousness,—they are constipation and defective liver action.

When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken, they not only correct constipated bowels, but act upon the liver as well.

Quite unlike ordinary medicines, which purge and give temporary relief, Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the conditions which cause biliousness, and thus permanent cures are effected. No person who occasionally uses Dr. Hamilton's Pills will ever suffer from the headache, bad stomach or bilious complaint. Get a 25c. box today.

NEUTRALS THINK HUNS CAPABLE OF ANYTHING

LONDON, March 27. — There was great excitement on the Copenhagen Stock Exchange Saturday, says a Copenhagen despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. It was due to reports that German submarine warfare had entered on a new phase, and that the torpedoing of neutral shipping would become more general.

There was a fall of fifteen per cent. in steamship shares soon after the opening and United Steamship stock was sold in a larger quantity than any single stock had ever been dealt in before. On reassuring advices and support by a well-known member of the exchange, who put in large buying orders, prices recovered somewhat toward the close which was strong.

Violent Artillery Actions West of the Meuse

PARIS, March 27.— Yesterday afternoon the official statement reported violent artillery actions Saturday night west of the Meuse, but no infantry actions. Two German attacks in Le Pretre forest were repulsed.

Two French aeroplanes dropped sixteen bombs of large size on the enemy camps at Nantillois and Montfaucon.

BERLIN, March 27.— Yesterday's German statement says the Russians are attacking heavily north-west of Postavy.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Official cables to the State Department indicate several Americans were lost when the steamship Sussex was torpedoed.

Strange Story From Manvers

A strange story, believed in by at least some in the section, is reported from North Manvers, where in one of the homes the woman of the house accidentally dropped a plate which smashed on the floor, whereupon her six months' old child which has never been known to cry or utter a sound from birth, called out "No. 1." The startled mother called her husband, who dropped a second plate by way of test, when the voice came again, "No. 2." A doctor was hastily summoned, who on his arrival to dispel his skepticism, dropped a third plate, when the voice was heard, "No. 3, and the war will be over in three months." The sound of the voice had hardly passed away when the child fell back dead.

MUNSON IS IN FAVOUR

March 23rd, 1916.

J. H. Burnham, M.P., has received the following letter:

Dear Sir,—I am just in receipt of yours re Hydro-Electric meeting in Peterborough on the 31st of March. I assure you that I believe this to be a move in the right direction and everything should be done immediately to bring about the best results for the eastern part of Ontario.

I fully intend to be there and may say that I am informed that a number of other people from the town of Cobourg and surrounding country will also attend the meeting.

Sincerely yours,

(Sgd.) C. A. MUNSON.

Sugar Has Advanced 70c.

Big Advance During the Month —Feeds Have Advanced One Dollar

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs will appear in the Canadian Grocer this week:

The situation in molasses which for a long time has been growing serious, is now at a deadlock, almost. Several factors combine to make a very difficult situation and prices have risen sharply and will probably do so again. One reason has been the high price of sugar, which has advanced seventy cents during the last month. This has naturally affected the molasses market. Then, secondly, holders appear to have been caught practically bare of stock in Canada and shipping has been tied up to such an extent that this bareness cannot be relieved. In a letter the Canadian Trade Commissioner at Barbadoes house the fact was stated that reservations on bottoms were cancelled often after having been held for two months and that the scarcity of boats plying between the West Indies and Canada was growing to be so serious that planters did not know where they were. An instance was quoted where it was shown that the Barbadoes house in question could not get its stuff away before the first of June. All these things are combining to make a very high market for molasses in Canada. Add to them the fact that molasses is being used for munitions and that there are more calls on the stock than ever before and the reason for advances is easily seen.

Prices are Firm.

Notwithstanding the recent advance which took place in condensed milk, all prices are very firm and the trade is buying heavily. It is felt that the market for this product has been very much strengthened by the amount exported, going overseas to the troops. Consequently domestic buyers will do well to cover their requirements now. They may have to pay more.

Other things which have gone up are Gruyere and Roquefort cheese. Feeds have advanced a dollar. This is somewhat surprising, as there is very little demand for feed at this time. Nevertheless, the mills have been running short because of the difficulty in getting their supplies transhipped and they have not been grinding much in the way of feeds. Consequently, both shorts and mid dlings are up $1 this week.

Zeppelin Now Carries Six Machine Guns

Form of Vessel Changed From Those Used Earlier in the War

LONDON, March 27.—The Times published Saturday a lengthy account by the French aviation expert, Georges Prade, of the results of his study of the remains of a Zeppelin brought down Feb. 21 at Revigny. M. Prade believes the airship was of the latest type and compares its details with those of the Z-8 which was brought down in France in August, 1914. The writer says:

"If presence of the shapeless heap of debris it is not possible to reconstruct exactly the dimensions of the airship which here the number LZ-77 but an examination of the main beams warrants the conclusion that she measures 30,000 cubi cmeters.

"The metal employed is somewhat different from that of earlier Zeppelins, being of aluminum toughened by a slight alloy of copper and zinc.

"It was about 160 meters in length.

"The shape has changed somewhat. All previous Zeppelins were symmetrical, both ends being alike. This one was much bulkier forward and tapered off toward the stern. This shape gave with equal capacity less resistance when advancing and, therefore, greater speed with the same power.

"She had five motors and five propellers, a crew of about 23 and six machine guns, two in each gondola and two on the platform above the envelope, She had no other guns."

CELEBRATE WITH RAID.

Demand in Connection With Completion of Hundredth Zeppelin.

LONDON, March 25.—Count Zeppelin will be retired from an active part in the construction of Zeppelin airships, leaving the work to his chief engineers, headed by Herr Durr. So states a despatch to the London Express from Geneva. Zeppelin is in his 78th year, and has been in indifferent health of the last eight months.

The hundredth Zeppelin has just been completed, according to Swiss and Munich newspapers. More than half that number have been constructed at Friedrichshafen. Austria has been helping to build them since the war began. It is probable that at least a quarter of these airships have been destroyed. The people of Friedrichshafen are demanding that Zeppelin fleets celebrate the building of the hundredth airship by a great raid on London and Paris.

CONTINENT WHICH SHACKLETON WAS TO CROSS—The Antarctic explorer's route lay from Weddell Sea across to Ross Sea. Shackleton has arrived at Sydney says a despatch to-day, but there is no announcement of his achievements.

KAISER CONGRATULATES.

Writes Letter of Praise to German Aviation Hero.

BERLIN, March 26. — Emperor William has sent the following letter, in his own handwriting, to Lieut. Boelke, of the aviation corps:

"I have been informed that you have again returned successfully from combat with the enemy's aeroplanes. I recently bestowed on you the highest war order, Pour La Merite, in order to demonstrate the importance I attach to the results of your courageous action! but I shall not let pass this moment, when you have disabled your twelfth aeroplane —which means that you disabled two air squadrons of the enemy—without expressing to you again my fullest acknowledgment of your excellent achievement in aerial fighting."

This Indian Accounts For Twelve Germans

The following letter was received this week by Master Harry Morrison, son of Captain A. S. Morrison, from Pte. Johnson Paudash of the 21st Battalion:

You will no doubt be surprised to get a letter from me. Your father Capt. Morrison is so kind to me, and the least I thought I could do is to write to some one of his family. Mr. Morrison is quite well and the rest of his boys also. It is raining very hard just now. Of course that is nothing new out here in Belgium. I am quite well, but my nerves are very near gone. This was done by high explosive shells. Fritz is quite busy these days, wasting his hardware. We have been out at the front over five months. The original 21st is nearly all gone, only a little over four hundred of us left. I am now attached to the Scouts as a sniper. I have now got up to 12 Germans, including two officers. I will now close with best regards to you and your family.

Yours truly,

Pte. Johnston Paudash.

"CASCARETS" FOR A COLD, BAD BREATH OR SICK HEADACHE

Best For Liver and Bowels, For Biliousness, Sour Stomach and Constipation

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred Tongue, Bad Colds, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing, and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a ten-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver, and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

CIVIL SERVANTS TO ARMY

Unmarried, Eligible Men Are Taken From Government Service.

LONDON, March 25.—The military authorities are searching the Government departments for single men eligible for military service. Large numbers have been taken in the last few days and women have been put in their places.

A news agency announcement published to-day says that eight groups of married men will be called to the colours on Saturday of this week and Monday of next week.

Smokeless Frying!

Frying with Crisco means a sweet, smokeless kitchen. For Crisco does not smoke at frying temperature. The potatoes and doughnuts, etc., become almost instantly a crisp brown. There is no "lardy" taste.

Made of the choicest Canada

CRISCO For Frying—For Shortening For Cake Making

Made at Hamilton, Canada

costs about the same per net pound as the best pail lard.

There is no loss through rancidity, as Crisco stays fresh and pure indefinitely in ordinary kitchen temperature.

Foods fried in Crisco absorb less, because they fry so fast and brown so readily

The same Crisco may be used for all frying. You can fry fish, onions, doughnuts, etc., all in the same Crisco. Merely strain out food particles after each frying. This is a further saving.

COULD NOT BEND DOWN

COULD NOT WALK STRAIGHT

BACK WAS SO BAD.

The bad back comes from the kidneys, and unless the kidneys are carefully watched and properly regulated many serious troubles may follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure all forms of kidney trouble, and cure the kidneys so that they will stay cured.

Mr. J. A. Lubiniecki, Dauphin, Man., writes: "It is my pleasure to write you in regard to Doan's Kidney Pills which I have been using for some time for kidney trouble, which used to affect my back so that at times I could not bend down nor could I walk straight. I learned about your pills from your almanac, and I bless the happy hour I thought of buying this medicine. One time a druggist persuaded me to buy ——'s Kidney Pills, saying they were just as good, in fact he guaranteed they were. I yielded to his advice, and what was the result? I had bearing down pains in my back for two days, so I took the balance of the pills unused to the druggist and told him to give me Doan's Kidney Pills as they would stop the pain in twelve hours at the outside. He told me he was sorry I did not use more of the pills, and lengthen the time to await results. I told him there was no need of waiting with Doan's Pills; they go right to the spot. No substitute for me."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25. See that our trade mark, "The Maple Leaf," is printed on both the table and wrapper.

"Doan's" are manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

Monsieur and Madame Bontot were the most surprised people in Quimperle when two elegrant ladies alighted from an automobile outside their tiny shop, and inquired for Madeleine Demoret. They were almost astounded when they recognized Yvonne, whom they had never before seen in such guise.

"But why do you seek Madeleine here, Mademoiselle?" cried Madame Bontot, recovering her breath and her wits simultaneously. "I've not even heard from her or her aunt since Jacques was in Pont Aven two months ago. Isn't that so, Jacques?"

"Parfaitement," agreed Jacques, a rotund little man, coatless, and decorated with a tape measure slung round his neck.

Yvonne paled, but was, in a sense, sufficient forewarned that she did not make matters worse for her unhappy friend by blurting out the true cause of her visit.

"I'm sorry," she said. "It is my fault. I have not seen Madeleine for some days, and I had a sort of idea that she meant coming to you about this time. It was discussed, I believe?"

"Yes; yes!" admitted Madame Bontot instantly. "We should be glad to have her in the shop. Then I could look after the dressmaking, and Jacques could run all over the country for orders. Isn't that so, Jacques?"

"Parfaitement," said the stout man, breathing heavily. In imagination he was running already.

"Well, I'll look her up when I return home, and tell her of my mistake. Then I'll see that she writes to you, at least," said Yvonne.

"Take us to the station," she said to the chauffeur, controlling voice and features with difficulty until safe in the seclusion of the closed car. Then she broke down, and sobbed bitterly; for she feared the worst.

Mrs. Carmac, unable to share this distress on account of some village girl's escapade, felt nevertheless that some minor tragedy was about to be added to the already heavy burden which life had imposed since the Stella was shattered against the inhospitable rocks of Brittany.

"Are you afraid she has run away—that she is making for Paris, or London?" she whispered.

Yvonne nodded. She could not speak. For the first time in her life she understood what hysteria meant.

"To join Rupert Fosdyke?" persisted her mother.

"Oh, I don't know! I am afraid—terribly afraid!" was the broken answer.

"But — it is inconceivable. A rustic of her type can have no attractions for a man like him. She would weary him in a day."

Yvonne did not reply; and in her heart Mrs. Carmac knew why. Rupert Fosdyke might share her half-veiled contempt for one of the "lower orders"; but he would have no scruples in using poor Madeleine's infatuation as a whip to scourge certain folk in Pont Aven.

Inquiry at the station was almost fruitless. Yvonne dared not appeal to the conductor of the tramway service, because any hue and cry raised for the missing girl must reach Pont Aven in the course of a few hours. She ascertained that no young woman in Breton costume had bought a ticket to Paris or St. Malo that day. This signified little. The very fact that the coif identifies the Bretonne would induce Madeleine to travel in an empty first-class carriage and change her outer garments.

"Was any ticket issued for a long journey to a girl of twenty after the arrival of the first train from Pont Aven?" said Yvonne as a last resource.

The booking clerk was inclined to be helpful. Not often did young American ladies speak French with such an accent. Usually they misunderstood him, or blandly assumed that he spoke English.

"Tiens!" he said, tickling his scalp with a pen-holder. "Such a one booked to Nantes. I remember thinking that she had a lot of money, because she picked a hundred-franc note out of a fair-sized packet."

"Was she a Bretonne?"

"Yes, Madame. Wait one moment." He called a porter. "Pierre," he cried, "you had charge of a lady's baggage by the nine o'clock train to Nantes. Did she come from Pont Aven?"

Pierre thought she did, but could not be sure. If so, the local conductor had brought her box across to the departure platform. At any rate, she was not a known resident in Quimperle. And she possessed one trunk, a black one, iron-clamped, and studded with brass nails. Madeleine owned a similar box; but so did half the inhabitants of Brittany.

With that Yvonne had to be satisfied. Madeleine might or might not have gone to Nantes; whence, if so minded, she could travel on to Paris in the same train. It was difficult to account for her possession of the amount of money spoken of by the observer behind the wicket; but Mrs. Carmac solved the riddle at once.

"Until I am convinced to the contrary," she declared, "I shall believe that your friend is on her way to meet Rupert Fosdyke somewhere. Of couse he would provide her with ample means. Gold is the most potent of all lures."

Yvonne shuddered. Her mother was least lovable when she became cynical. The girl felt unutterably sad and depressed.

It was a relief, in a sense, when the car sped down the hill into Pont Aven, and she could make some excuse to hurry home. Her father and Lorry, thinking she would be absent till a much later hour, had gone out, tempted by the continued fine weather.

But she was given no respite from her misery. Madame Brissac had posted an urchin to watch for the return of the motorists. She came now to gather tidings of her wayward niece, and Yvonne was obliged to confess that Madeleine was not at her cousin's house.

Then the storm broke. Madame Brissac had probably been made aware in the meantime that Madeleine had outraged local conventions by "walking out" with a stranger, and she poured her wrath on Yvonne.

"This is your doing!" she screamed, her black eyes flashing fire, and her swarthy skin bleaching yellow with fury. "You turned her head with your fine friends and their fairy tales. What could I expect but that my girl would be led astray? But her character is not the only one at stake. When we know the truth we'll hear more about that precious aunt of yours. Aunt, indeed! Who ever heard of an aunt screaming for her daughter and meaning her niece?"

Mee Pitou bustled out, breathing the flame of battle. "Marie Brissac," she cried, "you ought to be ashamed of yourself! Isn't this a case of what's bred in the bone coming out in the flesh? Have you forgotten why Jean Brissac married you? Because, if your memory is failing, mine isn't. I can tell you now that Madeleine simply flung herself at that young Englishman's head, and, if that's news to you, it's the talk of everybody else in Pont Aven. Don't you dare come here insulting my friends, or you'll get more than you bargain for!"

"Oh, please, please, don't quarrel with Madame Brissac on my account," wailed Yvonne, daring all, even a blow, and putting her arms round the half-demented woman's shoulders. "You poor dear," she went on in a voice choked with sobbing, "blame me if you wish, but don't condemn Madeleine unheard. It may not be true. Let us pray the good God that it is not true! I love Madeleine as my sister, and I shall never believe that she has fled with any man until I hear it from her own lips."

Anger melted in tears. Madame Brissac suffered Yvonne to lead her back to the deserted cottage. There the two talked, and the girl got the old woman to agree that, in Madeleine's interests, the fiction of transference to the drapery establishment in Quimperle should be maintained until something really definite became known. Not that any such pretense could avail to shield the lost one. The village was already agog with the sensation of Madeleine's flight, and not a soul credited Madame Brissac's story of the Quimperle cousins. The shy, rabbit-eyed glances of every village girl met in the street told Yvonne that Madeleine could never again raise her head in her native place. The maid of honor was dishonoured—the Gorse Flower crushed into the mire!

And all this wretched botchpotch of suffering and contumely was directly attributable to the presence of her mother in the community! Truly, Yvonne was sorrow-laden and oppressed when she reached the cottage again and found Harvey Raymond awaiting her.

CHAPTER XI.

MUTTERINGS OF STORM

Unfortunately neither Ingersoll nor Tollemache had returned. Yvonne was on the point of asking Raymond to pardon her if she deferred receiving him until the next day, when his adroit brain anticipated some such setback to his plans, and he strove instantly to prevent it.

"I fear you made an unpleasant discovery at Quimperle to-day," he said, striking boldly into the one subject that he guessed was occupying her thoughts. "Is Mr. Ingersoll at home? If so, I ought to tell you briefly what I purpose doing to help, as you may not care to discuss the matter in your father's presence."

It was cheering even to hear the man speaking of "help," and he had already given solid proof of honest intent in his stern rebuke of Fosdyke; though, alas! it had come too late to be of any real service. Yvonne's mind belonged to that somewhat rare order that magnifies good and minimises evil. She was grateful to her mother's secretary for that which he had tried to do, though failing, and abandoned her first design forthwith.

"Come into the studio," she said, leading the way.

"My father and Mr. Tollemache will be here soon. Meanwhile I'll ask Mere Pitou to bring some tea. We won't wait. Of course I must tell Dad everything about Madeleine now. We can depend on him for sound advice. He doesn't lose his head in an emergency, and I shall be guided entirely by what he says."

"Naturally," agreed Raymond, throwing the utmost deference into voice and manner. "It is delightful to meet a father and daughter who are on terms of genuine confidence and comradeship. I only meant to suggest, Miss Yvonne, that I should communicate with a friend in Paris who is acquainted with Rupert Fosdyke, and ascertain by that means whether or not Mademoiselle Demoret is in his company. I have taken action already in a small way. Thinking it advisable to keep an eye on him, I telegraphed to my friend this morning, asking him to let me hear if Fosdyke was in Paris, and his address. Here is the reply."

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine —Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcers, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MAYME ARBACH, North Crandon, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. MCCASLAND, 509 Have St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. OSGOOD, 1 Haynes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

SUDDEN DEATH

Caused by Disease of the Kidneys.

The close connection which exists between the heart and the kidneys is well known nowadays. As soon as kidneys are diseased, arterial tension is increased and the heart functions are disturbed. When the kidneys no longer pour forth waste, uremic poisoning occurs and the person dies, and the cause is often given as heart disease, or disease of brain or lungs.

Is it a good insurance against such a risk to send 10 cents for a large trial package of "Anuric"—the latest discovery of Dr. Pierce. Also send a sample of your water. This will be examined without charge by expert chemists at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. When you suffer from backache, frequent or cloudy urine, rheumatic pains here or there, or that constant tired, worn-out feeling, it's time to write Dr. Pierce, describe your symptoms and get his medical opinion without charge—absolutely free. This "Anuric" of Doctor Pierce's is found to be 37 times more active than lithia, for it dissolves uric acid in the system as hot water does sugar.

Simply ask for Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. There can be no imitation. Every package of "Anuric" is sure to be Dr. Pierce's. You will find the signature on the package just as you do on Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for blood and stomach.

WORRY, RESPONSIBILITY.

Kidney Disease is recognized by medical men when patients complain of backache or suffer with irregular urination, disturbed, too frequent, scanty or painful passage. The general symptoms are rheumatic pains or neuralgia, headaches, dizzy spells, irritability, despondency, sleeplessness and general misery. Worry is a frequent cause and sometimes a symptom of kidney disease. Thousands have testified to immediate relief from these symptoms after using Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

WONDERFUL CALLING TO THE DIVINE NATURE

The Reward of the Faithful Church.

Promises Exceeding Precious—Not Many Great or Wise in Worldly Things Believe—Chiefly the Poor and Humble — These Humble Ones the Truly Wise—God's Truth Gives True Learning and the Spirit of a Sound Mind—Terms of High Calling Definite—Glorious End of the Heavenly Way.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

PASTOR RUSSELL

ROANOKE, Va., March 26.—Pastor Russell delivered a very impressive address here to-day from the text: "God hath given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these we might be partakers of the divine nature." (2 Peter 1:4.) He said in part:

God designs that the elect Church, the Royal Priesthood, shall, when completed and glorified, occupy positions of great honor and responsibility. They will be kings, judges, priests, throughout the thousand years of Christ's Reign. Moreover, they are to be the honored associates of the Lord Jesus throughout eternity, spirit beings of the very highest order—the Divine. We trust that many of those who now hear us are of this class. Do we realise what all this means, dear brethren? Unless we have thoroughly tested characters we shall not be fit for so great an exaltation. If we have any sympathy for sin, it would be unsafe to trust us; for the sin might spread and make us in time emissaries of evil, whose influence would be disastrous. God is looking for those only who truly love righteousness and hate iniquity. He does not expect perfect works in an imperfect body; but He seeks a perfect heart and an overcoming spirit, with as nearly perfect conduct as we are capable of by His grace.

If those of this class do anything wrong, if they are overtaken in a fault, they are very repentant. They have a feeling of sorrow and regret, and go quickly to the Throne of Grace for forgiveness and cleansing. This shows that the heart is fully loyal. So the Lord tells us for our information and consolation that He judges us not according to our unavoidable weaknesses, but according to our hearts and our earnest endeavors. Surely in this merciful arrangement the blessing of the Lord hath made us rich! While God has not given us perfect righteousness as yet, He has imputed it to us.

How rich indeed the Lord has made His children, even in this present life, while we are only heirs of all this wealth laid up for us in Heaven, while we have only the earnest, or hand payment, of the wonderful things which we shall inherit when we enter into glory with Christ! The Spirit of the Lord gives rest of heart to His people and sounder judgment than they ever had before. (2 Timothy 1:7.) It often increases their physical health and their mental efficiency. As a business man a Christian is more capable, more conscientious, and hence more valuable, whether he be an employer or an employe. Those of this class who are housewives know better how to keep the home, how to keep things in order, how better to exercise common sense, than before they accepted the Message of Truth and began to live its spirit. Common sense is not a common article, even though it is so called.

The Lord's Truth brings a rich blessing wherever it is received into a good and honest heart. Many of you are parents. If you are faithful, obedient children of God, you are better parents than you were before. When you brought your children into the world you assumed a responsibility for them in the sight of God. This thought is sobering, strengthening. It helps you to watch your example, to see that you carefully train these children up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, as well as caring for their material needs.

Why God Chooses the Poor.

Many of the Lord's faithful are amongst the humble and obscure. They are largely from the poorer walks of life. "Not many great, not many wise, not many noble are called," but chiefly the weak ones of this world. Why has God chosen these? We answer, the people who are naturally poor and ignoble realize that they are nothing in themselves; they feel their weakness and long for something better that God can give. Men who are rich and learned and influential note this, and sometimes say, "This Gospel is a good thing for these people. They need something to lift them up." Those who are thus high-minded are not in the proper attitude of heart to realize their own need and to come to God. No matter how rich, how learned, how noble a man is, according to human standards, he must come to the point of acknowledging that he is a sinner, wholly dependent upon God for forgiveness and for every blessing. All such self-righteous ones miss the special blessing the Lord is now offering; for they do not realise their need.

This is why Jesus said of these, "Woe unto you that are rich; for ye have received your consolation!" "Woe unto you Pharisees!" for you are not anxious to know about God. It is as we would say, "Alas! alas! for they will lose this great privilege of the Kingdom!" Only those who will humble themselves will ever be exalted. It is not advantageous to be rich in this world's wealth, either socially or financially. Those who are rich now in these things will in the next Age have difficulties that the poor will not have. "Blessed be ye poor!" if your poverty leads you to Christ, or assists in this direction. Few are willing to walk in this way of humility and self-abnegation; but to those who do a great blessing comes—the blessing of the Lord which maketh rich. A work of transformation is going on in them. From the Divine standpoint, these poor and lowly ones are the truly rich, the only ones who are rich.

The Apostle Paul says that the Truth of God which illuminates the mind gives a better mental poise, the spirit of a sound mind. The minds of all fallen men are unsound, just as their flesh is unsound. Our minds are more or less twisted and warped. But God has a sound mind; and He tells us of His will, His plans, His ways. If we accept these, then we have the mind of God, the mind of Christ. We direct our conduct by the Divine instructions. We receive from Christ these riches of God's grace which become a transforming power, working in us to will aright.

Should a Christian make a mistake, then he will go to the Lord for forgiveness, and resolve, "I will endeavor so to live that henceforth this difficulty shall never overtake me again." But if it should again overtake him, he will go again to the Lord, with deeper contrition. So the mind of Christ continues to work in God's children to will and to do all His good pleasure, and they become richer and richer in character.

Those Educated by God Truly Learned.

This class are not only the richest people in the world, but the most learned—learned in Heavenly wisdom, the only true wisdom. (James 3:17.) Many have said of the Bible Students, "These people have a general knowledge of nearly everything." Whoever knows the Bible from Genesis to Revelation—understanding God's great Plan for both the Church and the world—is highly educated, whether he has been instructed in the world's schools or not. He is educated in the best and most thorough School in all the Universe—the School of Christ. Many of the enemies of present Bible Truth admit the unequaled knowledge and understanding of the Bible which even the humblest of these Bible Students possess. And they say that these have a wonderful knowledge of right principles, in every direction. This was true of our Lord Jesus and of His immediate followers; and those children of God have been instructed by them.

We read that when St. Peter and St. John were preaching in the Temple, the people perceived that they were ignorant and unlearned men; and "they took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus and learned of Him." (Acts 4:13.) They had not been in the school of the Scribes and Pharisees, but they had been with Christ. Whoever attends the School of Christ receives the best education for the present time and for the life eternal.

Abraham's Two Seeds.

Everything that God has to bestow is designed to be a blessing. He has provided a great blessing for all the families of the earth. He declared to Abraham that this blessing should come through his Seed. The opportunity to become of Abraham's earthly seed will come to every member of Adam's race; and every one will have an individual opportunity, except those who get their full opportunity now. There is only the one class who have this opportunity during the present life.

The vast majority of those who live in so-called heathen lands have no knowledge of Christ at all. Very many in Christendom so-called have very little or no real knowledge of Christ. Some of these attend meetings with more or less regularity where Christ's name is spoken and where hymns are sung, and join in the singing, though many who do so know not what they say. There was a similar class in our Lord's day, and it was these who joined in crucifying the Lord of Glory. St. Peter says of them, "I wot that in ignorance ye did it."—Acts 3:17.

So everywhere to-day there are many who do not understand. Having eyes, they see not; having ears, they hear not. But the Spirit of God gives wisdom, quickens the understanding. Jesus said of this class who see and hear, "Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven." It is this class which is now on trial for life or death everlasting. The world is not now on trial for life or death, though their present course will have a bearing upon their future. For the world now to know these things that the children of God know would only increase their responsibility. The class that really know does not include one-thousandth part of even the church membership of the world.

Those who know are those who have accepted the terms of discipleship laid down by the Master—"If any man will be My disciple, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow Me." (Matthew 16:24.) This means that he must give up his own will to take instead the will of the Lord Jesus Christ, who represents the Father. Whoever has not done this has not been accepted of God at all. Much more is necessary than abandoning sin. Nobody ever had a right to live a wicked or immoral life. We come into the family of God in only one way. Jesus is the Way. The first step in consecration is to deny one's self. The second step is to adopt the will of God, to take up the cross and follow in the Master's footsteps. These are the only steps.

Once we had the impression that the Bible taught that whoever would be saved must get into this Church of Christ, otherwise he would go to Hell to suffer torture forever. And in sympathy for our own we said, "John and Mary must join the Church!" But getting their names on the roll of one of the church organizations did not get them into the true Church, "the Church of the Living God, whose names are written in Heaven"—not on earth. We get into God's Church by accepting Christ as our Ransom from sin and death and by fully uniting our minds, our hearts, our wills, to God.

"If Any Man Draw Back."

For all who become His disciples Jesus becomes the Advocate. He accepts them to be members of His Church and presents them to the Father. Then the Father receives them by begetting them of the Holy Spirit. They are then members of God's family, sons of God. They are New Creatures in Christ and constitute the true Church. It is this class who are to go on from grace to grace, from knowledge to knowledge. The Father, through Christ, deals with them as with sons, giving them the chiselling, polishing, disciplining, refining, necessary to make them ready for their great inheritance in the Heavenly Kingdom. Heirs of glory are these. If faithful unto death, they will enter forever into the joys of their Lord.

But if any who have once been begotten of the Holy Spirit and have tasted of the Heavenly gift shall draw back from God, it will be impossible to renew such to repentance, seeing that they have crucified unto themselves the Son of God afresh and put Him to an open shame. There is no further hope for those who have had their opportunity and have misused it. They will die the Second Death.

The great mass of those in the churches of to-day have not been begotten of the Holy Spirit, and cannot die the Second Death without further knowledge and opportunity. They are still to have their share in the future blessings coming to the world at large. But in proportion as any shall have been closely in contact with the Truth, and have seen and rejected it, to that extent matters will be unfavorable for them in the future. However, all will have an opportunity except those who have been made partakers of the Holy Spirit and have fallen away through wilful sin. If these fall away, there remaineth no more a sacrifice for sins; for Christ dieth no more. "But we [who are faithfully following Jesus] are not of those who draw back unto perdition, but of those who believe to the saving of the soul."—Hebrews 3: 4-8; 10: 26-31.

The Twelve Apostles were supernaturally guided in their utterances. Jesus promised them that, after the Holy Spirit should come upon them, they should be guided into all Truth. (John 16:13.) So we may have full confidence in St. Peter's words. The intent of God's wonderful promises is that they shall work in us, day by day, to will and to do the perfect will of God. "According to your faith be it unto you." If you let go your faith, you lose all. The greater your faith the greater your blessing. God seeks only those who will trust Him in everything, whether they can trace Him or not.

Whether we shall be of this blessed company is for us to decide. Our Lord Jesus has promised us the needed help. He will make all our trials and difficulties work good for us. He will make us meet for the glorious station to which the Father has called us. But He expects us to co-operate with Him, to have faith, trust, and the spirit of loyalty and obedience. We are to be true to our covenant, true to all the principles of righteousness. He wishes all of His people to gather under the same banner—the banner of truth and love and of faith in God.

But as we have said before, not many of the professed children of God are of this mind. Not many of the great and mighty and wise are thus obedient and teachable, but chiefly the poor of this world, rich in faith. But to those who appreciate the glorious High Calling of God, the call to the Divine nature, to joint-heirship with Him who has been exalted far above angels, principalities, and powers and every name that is named, next to the Father, we would say, having tasted of the exceeding riches of God's favor, are we not determined to go on and obtain the full inheritance promised?

The things which eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, which God hath in reservation for them that love Him, are for those who love God more than they love father or mother, brother or sister, children or friends, houses or lands, wealth or fame or pleasures of earth. If we are of this class, let us rejoice and be of good courage! God is for us. He has been blessing us all along the way; and if we continue thus to follow on, the end will be glorious. We shall be made partakers of the Divine nature!

"Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life," says our Lord to His faithful Church. (Revelation 2:10.) These are they to whom He has imputed of His merit. Blessed are they, indeed! No angel ever had such favor bestowed upon him. Our Lord was the first to receive this high exaltation; and His Church, when completed and glorified, is to share it with Him—"changed from glory to glory." The blessing begins here. The relationship with the Lord begins on this side of the veil and culminates on the other side. Blessed and holy are all they that share in that First Resurrection! (Revelation 20:6.) They shall receive their reward—glory, honor, and immortality—"the Divine nature," as St. Peter says in our text. So wonderful are God's arrangements that no human tongue could picture them. We can merely point out the glorious promises which God has given through the messages of our Saviour and His Apostles. Thank God for the blessed promises of His Word!

Had No Ambition To Be Her Housework.

System Was All Run Down.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty, Beaver Brook, N.B., writes: "I have used some of your Burdock Blood Bitters, and found it to be a great medicine. My system was in a run down condition for over a year. I suffered with bad headache, and did not seem to have any ambition to do my housework. In the morning I could not half eat, and what I did eat did not apparently seem to do me any good. After using four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was an entirely different woman. I cannot recommend B.B.B. too highly to people suffering the same as I was."

The blood reaches every portion of the body to distribute nutriment, and remove effete matter and waste products, clearly then, any influence, good or bad, affecting the blood, must necessarily affect the entire system for good or evil as the case may be. To this fact is due the wonderful efficacy of Burdock Blood Bitters in removing every form of disease. It at once strikes to the root of the trouble, and quickly restores the depleted system to a condition of vigorous health.

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past forty years, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HOAX HAS SERIOUS RESULT.

False Call For Undertaker May Unbalance Woman's Mind.

New York, March 25.—Because an unidentified person perpetrated a hoax on an undertaker, Mrs. Samuel Lowenstein, sixty years old, of No. 226 Manhattan avenue, is so seriously ill that it is said her recovery is doubtful.

Mrs. Lowenstein was alone in her apartment Wednesday night of last week when an undertaker called and said he had been sent to prepare for burial the body of her daughter, Mrs. Josephine Gonzales. Mrs. Lowenstein immediately concluded that her daughter had been killed by an accident.

It was hours before it was ascertained that Mrs. Gonzales was neither injured nor ill. The shock, however, prostrated her mother, who was in a critical condition. Even if Mrs. Lowenstein recovers, her mind may be affected.

Half of Canada's Breweries May Close this Year

Proposed Federal Law Would Affect 42 Plants in this Province

Will the proposed federal law suspending the manufacture of intoxicants within provinces enacting measures of prohibition mean the gradual suppression of the manufacture of liquors in Canada?

This is a most likely outcome of the legislation—a result which may come sooner than most people expect.

There are 94 breweries in the Dominion of Canada, according to the Brewers' Handbook for 1916, recently issued. These breweries are located in provinces as follows:

Ontario, 42; British Columbia, 22; Quebec, 13; Manitoba, 7; Alberta, 7; Saskatchewan, 4; Nova Scotia, 4; New Brunswick, 2; Yukon Territory, 1; Prince Edward Island has no brewery within its bounds.

If prohibition goes into effect in Ontario and is supplemented by a federal law prohibiting manufacture within a prohibition province, the following 42 brewing firms at the points named will cease manufacturing:

Belleville—Jas. A. Roy.
Berlin—Berlin Lion Brewery, Ltd.
Brantford—Bixel Brewing and Malting Co., Ltd.
Brockville—Bowie and Co.'s Brewery, Ltd.
Carlsruhe—Carlsruhe Brewery.
Cornwall—St. Lawrence Brewery, Ltd.
Formosa—Formosa Spring Brewery.
Fort William — Kakabeka Falls Brewing Co.
Guelph—Halliday Brothers.
Hamilton—Grant Spring Brewery Co., Ltd., and Hamilton Brewing Association, Ltd.
Kenora—Lakewood Brewery Co.
Kingston—Bajus Brewery.
Listowel—John Watson.
London—Carling Brewing and Malting Co., Joseph Hamilton, Kent Brewery, John Labatt, Ltd.
Neustadt—Crystal Spring Brewery.
New Hamburg—Rau Brewery.
Ottawa—Brading Breweries, Ltd., Capital Brewing Co.
Peterborough — Calcutt Brewing and Malting Co.
Port Arthur — Diamond Brewing Co., Ltd.
Port Colborne — Crohmiller and Whit Brewing and Malting Co., Ltd.
Portsmouth—Fisher Bros.
Prescott—J. McCarthy and Sons Co., Ltd.
Preston—Rock Brewery Co.
St. Catharines—Taylor and Bate.
St. Thomas—Rudolph and Begg Brewing Co.
Sault Ste. Marie—Soo Falls Brewing Co.
Stratford—Felix Delvin.
Sudbury—Sudbury Brewing and Malting Co.
Toronto—Copland Brewing Co., Ltd.; Cosgrave Brewing Co., Ltd.; Dominion Brewing Co., Kormann Brewery, O'Keefe Brewery Co., of Toronto, Ltd.; Reinhardt Salvador Brewery, Ltd.
Walkerton—John Arscott.
Walkerville — Walkerville Brewing Co., Ltd.
Waterloo—Kuntz Brewery, Ltd.
Windsor—British American Brewing Co., Ltd.

The 42 brewing plants in Ontario cost $45,000,000 to construct and equip. The six distilleries represent a capital investment of $20,000,000.

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST.

AGONY COLUMNS CROWDED

Officers Asked Aid For Families; Some Are Gay

A London correspondent writes: Offers to write cheerful letters to wounded soldiers crowd the agony columns like berries clustered on holly, and requests for financial help, in order that the advertiser may take his share of the fighting, are numerous. It is a well-recognised thing that the lieutenant with a wife and family to provide for is often worse off than is the married man in the ranks, for the latter has far fewer expenses and a separation allowance from the Government, and there is no reason to doubt the genuineness of the type of appeal of which the following advertisement is an example: "To any Patriot—Will you guarantee $25 per month for the support of subaltern's wife and little girl while he fights for them and you?"

But all the notices are not grave. There is the "subaltern who wants introduction to dancing set, Kensington or West"; the romantic yet timid warrior who begs "the dark girl in pink frock, sitting alone on couch opposite soldier in evening dress, Carlton Lounge, 7.45 Sat.," please to write to him; and the frankly hard-up young officer who boldly states his wants in the following flippant terms: "Wanted prismatic compass, service revolver, map case, if lying idle. Sell them to me cheaply, and continue the strafing process. 'Impecunious Benedict.'"

And then there is the intensely human appeal on behalf of loved dumb animals: "Will somebody give a kind home to young officer's two very valuable, affectionate, and gentle dogs while he is at the front? Otherwise they must be destroyed."

BRITISH ZEPPELINS

Canadian Paper Would Have Attempt to Make Calais Needless

With Calais in their possession the Germans could make it a much more effective base against Great Britain than Zweebrugge or Antwerp. Only twenty-one miles away from Dover and about a hundred from London, the advantage in point of striking value of Calais is obvious. Hence their terrific and exhausting efforts to reach it. But without it the distance is too great for a raid on a grand scale with the design of laying a whole district of the metropolis in ruins and killing thousands of inhabitants, unless a very large fleet of fast airships is used.

If the war lasts long enough Germany may be able to darken the air with Zeppelins. In the meantime the British Government will try to devise a plan of coping with the menace, but unfortunately the aeroplane can be of little use at night. In the dark hours it is more dangerous to the pilot than to the enemy. The only answer to the German Zeppelin sweeping through the air at night would seem to be another great airship.—Beck's Weekly.

WHAT ITALY'S ARMY HAS ACCOMPLISHED

Capt. Ettore Bravetta Reviews Progress Made in Conquest of the Alps

Artillery Perfect and Abundantly Supplied with Ammunition—Bayonet the Infantry's Favourite Arm.

Captain Ettore Bravetta of the Italian Navy, who is one of the best known military writers in Italy, has written a letter to Colonel William C. Church, editor of the Army and Naval Journal, in which he endeavours to give "an accurate and truthful statement of the military position of Italy."

"In compliance with your request," writes Captain Bravetta, "I take pleasure in giving you a summary of the results of our warfare, and in placing before you a brief, but accurate and truthful statement of the present military position of Italy.

"It appears expedient to point out in the first place that we Italians, while originally destined to see our country invaded—an invasion which, having been planned down to the most minute details, was absolutely sure to follow in case of a victory of Austria-Hungary over Russia — are now ourselves the invaders, and that the border line to which we were compelled to submit in 1866 has already been upset, and at many points straightened out or readjusted.

"The mountain passes that were to be the thoroughfares through which the flood of enemies was to descend upon us are in our possession. The conquest of the Alps has been inaugurated with powerful onslaughts and under favourable auspices. We have opened up a passage in high mountain territory, over newly made roads, extending over hundreds of kilometers. Not only the Alpine troops, especially trained for such service, but also the infantry, and even the southern and Sicilian regiments, are doing splendid work in the Alps. Means of supply, operated with the utmost regularity, have been established, even over the most impassable rocks and precipices.

"Our army may now be considered as being almost wholly made up of mountain troops. Guns in enormous numbers are lining the highest mountain peaks, dominating and covering the mountain passes. By virtue of our achievements, not only the mountain artillery, but also the field artillery, and even siege guns of large and medium calibre, hold their sway over the Alps. Our troops are wintering under the very best conditions in high mountain regions, and even at elevations of 6,600 to 9,800 feet. They are under cover everywhere, being quartered either in shelters cut into the rocks or in wooden barracks, and well supplied with stoves, fur coats, woollen garments, good footgear, hand and foot warmers, and especially selected provisions. Whole cities, built of wood, have sprung up, on more or less level ground, in the valleys and in the mountains. No soldiers have camped under canvas for several months past.

ARMY'S MORALE SPLENDID.

"The morale of the troops is splendid. All parts of the country, all social classes, and all political parties have become amalgamated in the army. Harmony, cool deliberation, indomitable courage, hatred of the hereditary foe, legitimate pride born out of the great obstacles already surmounted, a deep-rooted conviction of the absolute necessity of this war, fraternal fellowship between officers and men—these are the factors that render the spiritual unity of the army infrangible.

"Our infantry has displayed sublime courage, and the arms with which it prefers to give battle are the bayonet and the hand grenade. Neither the boom of the enemy's cannon, the rattle of his machine guns, nor the fire of his rifles can stop our infantrymen. Once they have taken a position they are bound to hold it, even though the enemy may concentrate upon it a hail of projectiles of every description. They cannot be surpassed in fighting at close quarters. The artillery is perfect, its fire is accurate, and it has an abundant supply of ammunition. The production of materials for replacing the supplies consumed is progressing splendidly in Italy, while the other arms of the service and other technical means of warfare are likewise excellent.

"The Trentino salient has been cut down at its southern points as far as Roverto, by a brilliant advance through valleys and over mountains, some of which number among them the principal passageways that were to be used for the invasion planned by Austria, and for which she had prepared herself. In Cadore we have removed the main obstacle in the way of our advance into the high valley of the Cordevole, by occupying the imposing mass of rocks of the Col de Lana, while we have also cut the lines of communication between Trent and Toblach. In the high valley of the Boite we have occupied the Cortina d'Ampezzo basin as far as Podestagno, overlooking the massive rocks of the Tofano and Cristallo, thus practically taking possession of the road to Germany, extending from Toblach and Schluderbach. In Carnia we have firmly maintained our already favourable border line, while improving the same at certain points, and barring the way against an invasion by the enemy by interposing powerful obstacles.

ENEMY'S DEFENCE HOPELESS.

"On the line of the Isonzo River, starting out from the Plezzo al Mare basin, we have occupied all of the right bank of the river, with the exception of the heights of Santa Lucia and Santa Maria (Tolmino bridgehead), and of the Sabotino and Piedemonte (Goerz bridgehead) heights. While tenaciously holding on to these positions, the enemy is restricted to an exhausting hopeless defence, being deprived of all means for active operations. On the left bank of the Isonzo River we occupy the Plezzo basin and forty positions on the heights, commanding the eastern bank of the stream; the mass of rocks of the Monte Nero, with splendid positions on the spurs of the Slome del Mrzli and the Slome del Vodil, rising above Tolmino and dominating it; the Plava bridgeheads, including the lower slopes of the Monte Cucco and the village of Zagora; the plateau of the Carso on the line that grazes the San Martino region, covering the Cappuccio Forest, the Mont Sei Busi, and the heights east of Vermigliano, Seltz, and Montfalcone.

"These conquests of ours in territory beyond the Isonzo constitute for us the first and most helpful guarantees of ultimate possession of all the mountain reaches extending along the left bank of the river.

"In this connection I would point out to you that in her propositions made prior to the war Austria did not in any instance consent to allow us to extend our territory to the left bank of the Isonzo, for the very reason that there arise on that side of the river strong strategical positions, completely dominating the left bank. With the strength born of despair, the Austrians are holding on to all there still remains of their entrenched camps of Tolmino and Gorizia. But what sacrifices in men and materials, and above all in pride, does such passive warfare compel them to make! Even these towns of Tolmino and Gorizia have been made uninhabitable by us, as demanded by the cruel but inexorable requirements of war, and we have thus placed upon the enemy an additional burden, tending to exhaust his physical and moral energy.

"On the other hand, we have retained all our moral strength, nothing is lacking in our economic resources, we have a large reserve of men, and the development of our technical means of warfare is assured. The war loan has been enthusiastically and fully subscribed. Life in our cities takes its ordinary course. Our theatres and all other public resorts are open and well patronized. There is an abundance of currency. The want of employment has ceased, and our political parties are all united by the slogan, 'War unto victory.'

"When the time arrives for writing the history of this war the world will be filled with admiration for the courage of the Italians, who are proving themselves to be the true and worthy progeny of the men who made up the Roman legions."

CANADIAN TRENCH HUMOR

Awful Mud Cannot Daunt These Journalist Soldiers

Mud and water are usually plentiful in France, according to the trench newspaper of the Twentieth Canadians, the "Twentieth Gazette," is to be credited. Under "Extracts from (expected) Brigade Orders" appear the following: "Commanders of submarines plying in the communication trenches are requested to see that these vessels are not used by pleasure parties between the lines. N.C.O.'s and men are not allowed to use the bathing beach at X250 trench. This is for officers only. Men on duty must not fire at the periscopes of submarines plying between the redoubts and the firing line. Ration and fatigue parties must not participate in swimming races to firing line, owing to the presence of hostile submarines. These events will be swum off during the six days' leave under the supervision of the battalion swimming instructor. Owing to the scarcity of material for filling sandbags, any man who consumes more than 10 lbs. of mud per day will be severely dealt with."

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is musy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanliness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent calomel, which is a dangerous, salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter poung, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

.. PRESTON LOSES AGAIN.

Libel Suit Against a Newspaper Correspondence Is a Failure.

LONDON, March 25.—The court instructed the jury without hearing the evidence for the defendant to return a verdict in the defendant's favour when W. T. R. Preston, author of the "Life and Times of Lord Strathcona," brought action for libel against F. A. Mackenzie, journalist, on account of his cable to certain Canadian newspapers criticizing the book. The jury at the previous trial disagreed after three days' hearing. Mr. Preston urged that he wished to call as a witness Hon. Clifford Sifton, who, however, was not in court at the moment. This book has now been three times before a jury and once before the Court of Appeals.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

Run-Down, Weak and Nervous—Made Strong by Vinol.

For the benefit of Peterborough school girls who overwork and get into highly nervous, weak and run-down condition, we publish this letter from Dorris Coplier, of Forth Worth, Texas: "I go to the high school and take music lessons, and became run-down, weak and very nervous, so I could not do anything. I would shake all over and could have screamed at times, and was really unfit to keep on with my studies. Mother purchased a bottle of Vinol for me and within a week I was better, and in two weeks I had gained five pounds and felt fine."

It is the curative, strengthening elements of the true cod liver extract, aided by the blood-making, revitalising effect of peptone of iron and beef peptone, contained in Vinol, which made it so successful in building up health and strength, and overcoming the nervous condition of Miss Coplier, and we ask every school girl in Peterborough who is in a like condition to try Vinol, on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit.
